Ex. Mayor R. J. Graham explained the purpose of the meeting which he had called with the object of presenting to representatives of various civic organizations a concrete proposal for the erection of a war memorial in the form of a monument to be located in Memorial Park at the junction of Cannifton Road and Station Street. There was a photograph of the proposed monument, thirty feet four inches in height and of granite base and shaft surmounted by a bronze figure of a warrior. He also presented figures as to the cost less the lettering of names of soldiers and the cost of the concrete base, the figure being $11,350.

Mr. John Elliott, chairman of the citizens' committee appointed months ago, was voted to the chair of the meeting and Mr. Fred Chamberlain to the secretaryship. Mr. Elliott explained what steps had been taken on previous occasions only to reach no decision at length.

Public Participation

Mr. Graham pointed out his proposal which was to have if possible public participation in the cost of the memorial by the city, individual citizens, the county and adjacent townships, the schools and various organizations, including fraternities.

Chairman G. J. Symons of the Parks Commission explained that the improvement of Memorial Park had been carried on with the end in view of making it the site of the monument to the fallen soldiers. Discussion turn-

CADET DRILL STARTS

Cadet drill has started for the season at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. The drilling takes place from three to four in the Armouries under Mr. J. Howard, cadet instructor.

GEESE ATTRACT ATTENTION

Walter Turner's pen of wild geese and wild ducks has attracted more than considerable attention at the annual poultry show this year. The wild fowl are so tame that they will feed from the hand, and it is hard to believe that they are not only domesticated breeds. Brilliant coloring, however, soon dispels this illusion. Mr. Turner's sanctuary is located in Thurlow township, just outside the city.

RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Messrs. George Cole and Joseph Imlah returned early this morning from Toronto where they have been in attendance at the district convention of the Kiwanis organization. "A splendid gathering," was Mr. Imlah's opinion of the convention today. Mr. Cole is president of the local Kiwanis Club and Mr. Imlah is immediate past president.

The reception will start at eight o'clock this evening.

DROP OF 24 DEGREES

Plunging down thirty-four degrees in the space of about fifteen hours the temperature performed the first feat of the kind this season between yesterday afternoon and this morning. Yesterday's high temperature was 36 degrees as recorded at the pumping station and today's lowest was just two degrees above zero. The precipitate drop was not expected though a decline in temperature was expected.

STEADY PROGRESS AT FILTER

Steady progress on the construction of the water purification plant is being made with the installation of valves, machinery and piping, an operation in which great care has to be taken. It is thought the plant will be ready for opening some time around the first of April although there is nothing definite in this regard at the present time.

POTATOES DISTRIBUTED

Twelve 90-lb. bags of potatoes were given away to twelve fortunate "lucky number" holders at the Belle Theatre last night. Those who succeeded in carrying off the splendid prizes included—Miss Hilton, 168½ Catherine Street; Mrs. Ellis, 132—Ann Street; Miss Madge McElrath, 21 St. Paul Street; Mrs. G. Beare, 115 Lingham St.; Mrs. Jean Bateman, 77 Queen Street; Mrs. Floyd Clare, 306 Charles St.; Mrs. John Spencer, 146 George St.; Mrs. Rayfield, 11 Howard St.; Miss Annie Logue, Point Anne; Paul Hibbard, 19 Ridley Street and Miss Marjorie Lynch, 153 Church St. As well as theatre-goer from Trenton won one of the bags and was given an order for it.

DOG OWNERS FINED

Three dog owners in the city were fined $3.00 without costs today in police court for possessing or harbor ing a dog and allowing same to run at large. The police are determined to stop this nuisance in the city and other owners will be summoned if they persist in allowing their dogs to run at large.

ARM WAS FRACTURED

Mrs. H. F. Forward, 83 Victoria Ave., had the misfortune to fall on Coleman street yesterday afternoon and fracture her left arm. She was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where the fracture was reduced and today she is doing as well as can be expected.

MINOR BLAZE

The firemen were called to 61 Church Street, the residence of Mr. Dick Duesberry at two o'clock this afternoon when a slight blaze broke out in a second storey room. No matters and some bedding were damaged. The cause of the fire was not known.

BOTH DRIVERS CHARGED

An aftermath of the automobile accident near Deseronto last September in which a brewery truck was upset in a ditch and a car owned by E. T. Hinchcliffe badly damaged in the collision, was aired in police court in Napanee before Magistrate Mark Graham on January 6th last. Both the driver of the truck C. Nichols and Mr. Hinchcliffe were charged with negligent operation of their motor vehicles. Nichols was committed for trial and later released on a bail of $1,000.00 and Hinchcliffe was dismissed. The Magistrate held, in committing Nichol for trial, that Hinchcliffe was on his right side of the road and if he was not it was all the more reason why the driver of the Brewery truck should have exercised more precaution.

J. N. Ebichard of Toronto was endeavoring to pass a parked car on Murphy street today and in so doing struck the car and broke off the bumper. The owner of the parked car had not yet been located this afternoon.

On Monday about two hundred dollars damage was caused to two motorcars in a collision. MADOC DEFEATED FRANKFORD TEAM IN FAST GAME

Paper-Makers Have Yet to Win in the Trent Valley League

In a good, fast clean game of hockey Madoc defeated Frankford in a Trent Valley league game by the score of 3-0.

First Period

Play opened fast with McLean nearly scoring for Frankford on a close-in shot. A few minutes later Barker tested Prevost with a hard drive from the blue line. Both teams threw on a few forward line for a few minutes to relieve the pressure. With but ten minutes to go Maguire missed a nice one for Madoc. McLean came right back and made Hollin go to his knees to save. Madoc appeared to have the edge in this period.

Second Period

L'Heureux missed a nice one for Madoc shortly after the period commenced. Legault drew the first penalty of the game for tripping Barkey. McLean missed a beauty when his shot went just over net. Henderson had hard luck on his try when he took Andrews' rebound from close in. Play was even in this period with both teams having good scoring opportunities.

Third Period

Barkey opened the scoring when he beat Prevost with a soft one from outside the blue line. Bohan missed a hard one when Hollin had to go to his knees to save. With but five minutes to go Frankford threw four men on the attack in an attempt to score. L'Heureux cinched it for Madoc when he made it two just before the period ended.

Referee Stub Barrett handled a nice game handing out but one penalty.

L'Heureux for Madoc, was the best man on the ice, Johnston and Andrews also played well. For Frankford, McLean and Legault were outstanding. McLean especially showing up well.

The Line-up:

Frankford—Goal, Prevost; defence, Legault, W. O'Malley; centre, Bohan; wings, J. Borland, McLean; subs, A. Munn, R. Shaw, C. O'Malley.

Madoc—Goal, Hollin; defence, Barkey and Andrews; centre, L'Heureux, wings Johnston, McGuire; subs, Watson, Henderson, Rupert.

NIAGARA FALLS DEFEAT OSHAWA

Niagara Falls, Jan. 14—Niagara Falls Cataracts defeated Oshawa Particias in a thrilling ten-minute overtime Ontario league hockey game here last night by a 2 to 1 score. The win raised the Falls' team out of the cellar.

The game provided much excitement to the 600 fans present as the homesiders came from behind in the last two minutes of overtime to tie the count and then put the winning marker over in the last minute of extra play.

Oshawa missed the only marker of the opening period, Steve Rice doing the trick when after 10 minutes play he shoved in a rebound from Hanhope's shot. A bumping duel between "Red" Moore and Davey began early in the period and was terminated by "Red" taking the count in the collision just before the gong and Davey drawing a penalty.

BOSTON BRUINS SAVED BY GOALIE

Boston, Jan. 14—The New York Rangers played great hockey here last night but sensational goal tending by Tiny Thompson forced them to play an overtime 3 to 2 tie with the team they have been unable to defeat in three years. During the interval the Bruins have overcome Lester Patrick's men thirteen times and have been held to three shots.

The Bruins opened at a fast rate and scored in less than five minutes when two of the starting forwards, "Dutch" Gainor and Cooney Weiland, combined on a rush, the former caging the puck. The Rangers tied the contest early in the second, Bill Cook sweeping into a scrimmage near the Boston net and scoring on a pass out handed by both his brother Bun and Frank Boucher, the Rangers' centre man. During the same period the Bruins again went out in front when Eddie Shore carried inside of the Ranger's blue line, swung wide and passed over to Harry Oliver, who had trailed him down centre.

CADETS TO PLAY Y.M.C.A. CAGERS HERE SATURDAY

Royal Military College are Bringing Strong Team for Engagement Here

Physical Director Morden was in receipt of the Intermediate schedule of the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Association, yesterday morning and the opening game on the list is Royal Military College at the Y's Men Club, January 17th. This makes the league somewhat later than usual in starting this year and as a result the five teams entered in the Eastern Group of the Intermediate Division will see plenty of action with eight games to be played off by every club before the end of February. The teams composing the league this year are, of course, Napanee Kingston, Y.M.C.A., Royal Military College, Queen's University and Y's Men's Club of Belleville. This is about the same as last year's complement with the exception that last year Napanee was represented by two teams.

Although very little is known locally as to the strength of the Military College Quintet it may be taken for granted they will be represented by a strong team. It is a coincidence that the Y's Men and R.M.C. were the two teams to open the schedule last year only on that occasion the Club Men were the visiting team. Students appeared to have that particular game well in hand toward the end of the game only to have the Belleville five come from behind in the dying moments to take the game by a one point margin. After their two year experience the locals have formed the greatest respect for their opponents from the Eastern Centre of Learning and when the referee comes to toss the ball at Campbell Gyon on Saturday night the Club Men will be found out there fighting to the last ditch in order that they may have an auspicious start in the league, by winning their first encounter.

Monday night the team were out for practice and tonight they journey to Kingston to play an exhibition game against Queen's Intercollegiate team, this game being the first basketball fixture to be played on the University's new gymnasium. This game against the strong Queen's team should put them in good form for their league fixture later in the week and in addition it will give them needed experience in playing on a large floor surface, something the home team are much in need of seeing that three of their scheduled league games will be played on courts much larger than that contained by the Campbell street institution.

Additional to the Cadets vs. Y's Men's game there will be a curtain raiser attraction between a team of Albert College Boys and a group of younger Y.M.C.A. boys. This game will precede the main attraction and will commence at sharp 7.30 p.m.

The Arenas took three points to Smile and Try one, in the Ladies' Afternoon League game, in a match which was very closely contested, after the first game. High scores were Mrs. MacDonnell for the Smile and Try and Mrs. Rowsome for the Arenas.

In an Inter-Group Teachers' League game Mr. Kells King George team took three points, to Mr. Gordon's Stephens-Adamson's. The results of this game were Miss Cook's 302 and Mr. Gordon's 336. A glance at the figures will show many nice singles.

The Stephens-Adamson bowlers into the win column last night with a bang when they took all 4 points from the Hydro crew. L. E. McIntosh topping them for 328 in the last game. This is a tidy single in any league.

Reynolds and Wm. Pye's met in the Ladies' League result 4 points each. This promises to be a fine league as the teams appear to be very evenly matched. Pye's were victorious in the third game and 9 on the total was real close for this match. All teams should improve as they get a little experience.

PORT COLBORNE WON FROM HAMS

Port Colborne, Jan. 14—Port Colborne O.H.A. seniors won 1-0 from Hamilton here last night, thereby assuming the undisputed leadership of the Senior A group of the league with Tigers to second place. The game, which was played in an arena jammed to the doors, provided plenty of thrills for the fans.

Three times the red light flashed behind the Hamilton net and twice the goal was not counted. The third and counting one came with ten minutes of the third period when Mountain speeded along right wing, rounded the defence and sent a perfect pass to Morrell who was waiting in front of the goal. Morrill tapped the rubber into the mesh.

Port Colborne had the better of the play during the entire game and but for the marvellous game by Marsh in the Hamilton nets, the score would have been larger. Moore, the Port goaler, was called upon frequently but he handled all his shots smoothly.

DUNN GOES TO BOSTON

Detroit, Jan. 14—Dick Dunn, former manager of the Olympia Arena here, will become manager of the Boston Garden, it was learned today. Dunn resigned his position with the Arena to accept the Boston managership. He was released from a contract which had one year to run.

The Intermediates will journey to Kingston for a scheduled game against the Frontenacs, and they are looking forward to another win, but the opposition will be classy, according to the Kingston sport writers in Limestone City. After much pleading, Joe Smith, veteran of a hundred battles will be in the starting line-up. It was the intention of the veteran and gentlemanly player to retire from a game that he has graced with credit for the second year, but a call from his team-mates and he succumbed to the lure and again will patrol the left boards and right now there are many worse hockey players than the same Joe. Belleville and Kingston have in the past put on some fast hockey battles and no doubt another strenuous game will result tonight. The locals will be minus Ingram and Davis for the tilt but good substitutes have been secured and the team will make the journey by bus.

TWENTIETH LOSS FOR THE QUAKERS

Philadelphia, January 14. — Philadelphia's Quakers, with a borrowed goal tender, held off the speedy Canadiens for more than a period and a half in a National Hockey League game here last night, but in the end, Cooper Smeaton's men were forced to take their 20th defeat of the season. The final score was 2 to 1.

With both his regular goalies out of commission, Smeaton borrowed little Jakie Forbes from the New Haven Eagles, an American International League. Jakie did a great job as far as goal-tending was concerned. The two goals that were scored against him were fast and hard and Forbes' work was no higher a a credit to Forbes. The Quaker defence was plucky and lucky but not scientifically perfect.

Belleville Cubs Out to Defeat Cadets in Group Fixture Here

SMITH IN LINE-UP

Intermediates Will Play Kingston in Limestone City Tonight

The first junior scheduled home game of the season will be played at the Belleville Arena Thursday night with Royal Military College of Kingston as the visiting team. The Cubs are still smarting under their defeat at the hands of Kingston in the first game of the group, and are out to redeem themselves in the eyes of the fans in the city. They can play much better hockey than they showed in Kingston. Stan Burgoyne has read the riot act to the boys and they have been practicing faithfully for this tilt. It is necessary for the locals to win to keep in the running with Kingston, who have won one game to date. There may be a slight change in the lineup from that used at Kingston, the management wishing to be made of the starring crew until game time.

Don Morton will be in goal with Ethier and Sherry on Sherry-Yount on defence. The front lines will be the same, with Rundens, McDonald, Reid and Smith the starting line-up and H. Morgan, St. Denis and McGuire on the other.

Although R.M.C. have been defeated twice, the teams winning over them, have been extended to the limit and Professor Galley believes his team will be no set-up at the game Saturday. In Bigelow, the team has one of the classiest goalies in the group and the other positions are well fortified. The junior boys have showed real hockey and tomorrow night will be no exception. "Bobby" Armstrong and Wrenn Throsby will handle the belt and the game will get under way shortly after eight o'clock. The prices have been reduced to a point where the whole town will be out to see the full line up for the R.M.C. team is coal Bigelow, defence, Mather and Kennedy, centre, Piers, wings Blanchard and Peck with alternates of Kelly, Kirk and Robertson.

Tonight the Intermediates journey to Kingston for a scheduled game against the Frontenacs, and they are looking forward to another win, but the opposition will be classy, according to the Kingston sport writers in Limestone City. After much pleading, Joe Smith, veteran of a hundred battles will be in the starting line-up. It was the intention of the veteran and gentlemanly player to retire from a game that he has graced with credit for the second year, but a call from his team-mates and he succumbed to the lure and again will patrol the left boards and right now there are many worse hockey players than the same Joe. Belleville and Kingston have in the past put on some fast hockey battles and no doubt another strenuous game will result tonight. The locals will be minus Ingram and Davis for the tilt but good substitutes have been secured and the team will make the journey by bus.

Stirling will be the mecca for hockey fans tonight when Campbellford journey to Bill Whitty's village for a scheduled game. With Stirling leading the parade they have a pretty fair chance to increase their margin at the expense of the millers.

Campbellford will give the red and white a great battle and it is expected that the titanic struggle which was concluded in Belleville arena last March will be renewed.

Stirling will throw the same lineup over the boards which has come through the last two games with flying colors. The famed "Tit" Horkins and "Buster" Whitton will be with the northerners. Local hockey fans who want some real action are advised to book passage for the north country for some of these stirring struggles.

The standing of the Trent League is:

Tweed	2	1
Madoc	2	2
Campbellford	1	2
Frankford	0	3

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE NOTES

Frankford paper-makers have yet to register a win this year, despite the fact that they have given every team a battle to date. After holding Madoc to a scoreless tie until within six minutes of the final bell, they allowed the tale makers to slide through for two goals which clinched the verdict. Manager Ross Turley is confident that his boys will break the line during the next week.

Frankford is said to possess the fastest player in the league in Frank McLean of Montreal. It is understood that overtures were made by some of the other teams to McLean this year but he remained with Frankford.

MAROONS ENDED LOSING STREAK

Montreal, Jan. 14—Montreal Maroons ended their losing streak at three games by defeating the Detroit Falcons in an interesting battle here last night. The score was 6-1.

The locals ran in two goals early in the first period, easily held off Detroit's determined second period rally and ran riot in the last to push in four goals.

The last couple came when Detroit had five men down on the ice and Johnny Gallagher (wice broke past with no one to beat. He scored one himself and passed to Jimmy Ward for the other.

Goodfellow the league's leading scorer, snapped in Detroit's only goal in the third period on a clever pass out by crafty Reg. Noble.

ed on the cost of the memorial with would be of concrete, Mr. Graham stating that the rock was here too, but below the surface, and he looked forward to the memorial with the utmost care in this city," declared Mr. Graham.

Motion to Have Monument

Miss C. Yeomans moved that "a war memorial in the form of a monument be erected at Mr. Graham has not risen." Alderman Woodley seconded the motion.

Some Funds Handy

Miss Yeomans explained that there was about $1,845 including interest in a fund which had lain in the bank since the dissolution of the patriotic organization here, this fund being in the hands of Miss Hurley and Mrs. O'Flynn, members of the executive. It had always been felt that the money in this fund should be devoted to this project of erecting a monument to the dead soldiers.

Alderman Armstrong asked what was the feeling of the returned men.

Mr. O'Connor: "I do not know."

He explained that the park had been given to the city by his wife, the late Mrs. Graham, and by Mr. Ackerman and had been accepted by the city council for memorial purposes.

Specific Proposition

Mr. Graham went on to state that the matter had been so much discussed and that he had a specific proposition for a monument on this park.

Alderman Woodley explained that Mayor Reid had asked him to attend the meeting in his behalf owing to his enforced absence from the city. "It is too bad," commented the alderman, "that we have not a memorial monument in this city," and explained that the city had given the veterans what they asked—a memorial home. Reference was made to the present memorial building.

Monument to Dead

"I feel that the men who gave their lives overseas should have a monument which can be seen and that their names should be inscribed upon it," was Mr. Graham's view.

He made his standpoint clear. He had a project to place before the meeting and as the property had been given and accepted for the purpose of a memorial he wished to see a memorial erected there. He was not interested in any other site and said that if he had the support of the Parks Commission and if assistance was not forthcoming, he would erect a memorial there, himself, the completion of the original plan under which the park was promised. However he did not desire to take this action, he preferred to give the opportunity to others to have a part in the tribute to the dead, because he wanted this a general memorial and monument. He did not desire any association of his name with the memorial. He had found the plan read a statement as often, that he was now trying to prevent this.

Memorial Hall Problem

Mr. John Kennedy, formerly secretary of the Canadian Legion, said that the legion hall was not patronized and used as it had been anticipated and hoped for. The building was too large and veterans did not require large quarters. He told of difficulties of making the memorial hall on Front Street "every" itself.

Col. Ponton asked, if the legion would consent to the taking over of the hall by the city, would this be used for city offices as he had heard something of this reported on one occasion?

Alderman Woodley thought the building might not quite suit offices for the city.

"I never heard that discussed," also said Ald. Armstrong.

Motion Unanimously

Col. Ponton remarked that if the trustees of memorial hall handed it back to the city and the city either used it for offices or disposed of it, and the equivalent of its value were given towards the war memorial, unanimity of feeling and co-operation in contribution would be accomplished.

It was pointed out by Mr. C. J. Symons that "we have been building up this park up with the one idea of making it the site of a monument."

Mr. Arthur Jones declared that the city was in favor of a memorial whether the hall was disposed of or not.

The motion to erect a monument carried unanimously.

Resolution for Site

The second motion was made at the juncture by Mr. Graham, seconded by Mrs. A. R. Symons, "that in the opinion of this meeting the memorial should be placed on Memorial Park."

The central location, the large space available, its great possibility or beautification make it ideal for the purpose in the opinion of of Ald. Armstrong.

Col. Ponton remarked, "We want co-operation."

Mr. Graham, "I am trying to get away from a stalemate such as has developed on two or three occasions." The city should have the opportunity to acknowledge the leadership of Mr. Graham in this enterprise, said Col. Ponton.

"I do not want to do anything to commit the city council or the people," remarked the chairman Mr. Elliott. "Personally I am not opposed to the site."

Park for Memorial Purposes

"The city accepted the park for memorial purposes," noted Ald. Woodley.

"Personally I do not see that anything done at this meeting is obligating the citizens' committee." There should be a report presented to the committee and steps should be taken to find out the views of the various organizations."

Col. Ponton said, "I have heard objection to this park on the surroundings, but once the memorial is built, it will become the pride of neighborhood. People are tired, just as you are, of seeing nothing accomplished."

"I am going to see that a meeting is held in not yet than within twelve months," said Mr. Graham. He felt that there was no use waiting for the opinion which could never be secured.

"In fear lest the war memorial scheme will fall away again, I am going to vote for this monument plan," said Mr. Arthur Jones. "I feel Belleville has been remiss. I am going to vote for the site for fear the whole project will fall down."

In answer to a question of the Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, Mr. Graham explained that the vote of the meeting did not bind any organization or any individual except that the representatives use their graces to present the attitude of the meeting to the organizations in order to get an expression of opinion on the memorial and the site, Memorial Park. If the organizations approved and wished to assist they could submit their own method of raising money.

"If the organizations are against the park the project is done," remarked Mr. Elliott, from the citizens' standpoint.

On that event Mr. Graham said he would carry on but he did not want the memorial to go up without the widest participation.

Motion Carried

After Mr. Graham thanked the members of the meeting to get their committees together and let him know their names.

Mr. Jeffs pointed out that the ex-service men numbered between eight and nine hundred and about 200 belonged to the legion. He asked that all ex-service men might have an opportunity of expressing their view on the matter of the memorial hall disposal.

Mr. Elliott explained that he would call a meeting of the citizens' committee shortly at which they would explain the developments and after he had heard their views, the committee would at once get in touch with the veterans and the other organizations to secure their opinion.

Mr. Graham thought that there was authority to hand over the funds of about $1640 in the bank.

Mr. Graham thought work on the memorial should be started in three months.

Belleville's indebtedness to Mr. Graham's leadership was expressed by Col. Ponton. His leadership has given a new impetus towards the realization of the project and would probably pledge the individual interests to bring this to a happy conclusion. He hoped Belleville would be linked up with the county, so that in a very true sense, city and county could say "Evening and Morning, we will not forget."

"I went action. I want to get something done," said Mr. Graham. "Just as soon as you decide, and have a report, let me know. I am leaving for Nassau on Saturday and may be there until the first of May or April."

STAFF HONORED SUP'T FETTERLY

Social Event at School for Deaf for Superintendent and Family

On Friday evening, January 9th, the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf tendered a reception to the new Superintendent, H. B. Fetterly, M.A., and his family in the Assembly Hall of the school, which was very attractively furnished and decorated for the occasion. A very pleasant social evening was spent in various games and pastimes, ending with refreshments. During the evening Mrs. Fetterly was presented with a beautiful sheaf of roses, Mr. Fetterly made a suitable acknowledgment of the kindly thoughts expressed in the presentation and reception. He assured the staff that he and his wife and daughter greatly appreciated their kindness, and he wished to take occasion once again to express his appreciation of the hearty cooperation he had received from every member of the staff ever since he had assumed office. His ambition, which he was sure could be realized with their continued support and cooperation, was to carry on with ever increasing efficiency the good work the school had done in the past, and to make it one of the best, if not the very best school for the deaf on the continent. Referring to this event, the Canadian, the paper published by the School, pays the following well merited tribute to the Superintendent.

"As our new Superintendent, H. B. Fetterly, M.A., assumed his office on July the first, and the school had closed the staff was debarred from extending to him their formal welcome and congenial greetings at that time; so on Friday evening, January ninth, a reception was tendered to Mr. Fetterly and his family by the members of the staff. The purpose of this very pleasant social event was to give him tangible recognition of the sentiments of high regard and cordial good-will that he had already won for himself among the officers and teachers of the school, and to again assure him of their hearty cooperation and support in the discharge of the duties and responsibilities of his office. We have all greatly appreciated the wholehearted interest and devotion that he has manifested in the work of the School, and his courteous and considerate attitude towards everyone connected therewith; and have admired the extent to which, in a few short months, he has become conversant with the peculiar conditions and problems involved in the education of the deaf, and has envisaged the forward steps yet to be taken, especially in the direction of more and better trade-instruction, in order to make them efficient in the diverse vocations they may choose, and thus enable them to compete successfully with hearing men and women. Our School has made splendid progress in the last decade, of which we are all justly proud, and under the far-sighted ideals and inspiring leadership of Mr. Fetterly, we can confidently look forward to continued and ever-increasing advances in the years to come."

Radio Fans Corner

Reception was still down in the dumps last night and local radio fanning was one of its outstanding characteristics. There wasn't so much of the subway noise but static it seems were trying to pile in on each other but the fading business more than made up for that.

WEAF offers us another new program beginning to-night at 8 o'clock when Bobby Jones goes on the air from Atlanta, Georgia and tells us all how to play that game called golf. We hear so much about Bobby has signed a contract for twenty-six weekly broadcasts so we'll be seeing him plenty. If Bobby travels away from Dixie they just make arrangements for him to broadcast from some other city, just as simple as that.

Dennis King, baritone, is the guest artist on the program originating in WEAF's studio to-night at 8.30 and he will sing a group of songs which he introduced across the footlights. The opening number by the orchestra will be more than appropriate, selections from "The Vagabond King".

Outside of these celebrities the usual Wednesday night entertainment will take place. Tex Tinners at 6.30 and the Rex Cole Mountaineers next. These are WEAF's program by the way. Uncle Abe and David have plenty more fun at Everybody's Equipery to-night at 6.45.

The "Varieties" are on the air at 8.15 for anybody that's interested in hearing Sammy Herman and that precious xylophone of his and Wendell Lewis and Peggy Baer, the genial master of ceremonies. The Old Counsellor at 8 and at 10.30 Grantland Rice is interviewing Ruth St. Denis, the authoress. Vincent Lopez at 11, Jack Albin at 11.30 and Florence Rich ardson at midnight.

The Smith Brothers are appearing weekly from WJZ now at 7.45 and they are on the air to-night at this time. The Pioneers at 8 and the Mercer Girls orchestra at 8.30 then Muriel and Vee have a turn at 9. Guy Lombardo at 11 from WABC with CFRB coming on the program fifteen minutes later.

Joan Bennett Plays Opposite Barrymore in "Moby Dick"

Joan Bennett, youngest of the three beautiful daughters of Richard Bennett, stage star, and leading lady for John Barrymore in his latest Warner Brothers picture, "Moby Dick" coming to the Belle Theatre, Thursday and Friday matinee daily are truly theatrical society back through seven generations.

Her grandmother, Rose Wood, was featured on the American stage at the age of eight, later becoming the featured attraction in New York and Philadelphia stock companies, where is is remembered she frequently played opposite Maurice Barrymore, the father of the sire of "Moby Dick".

Still further back in the family tree is William Wood, famous English pantomimist, and another generation back was the distinguished manager of the old Drury Lane Theater in London.

Educated in America and France, Miss Bennett had never professed an interest in the stage or screen, although they had claimed both of her sisters, Constance and Barbara.

JUDGMENT WAS HELD OVER IN THURLOW CASE

Lengthy Argument Ensues in Court Over Theft of Heifer

Magistrate Millet reserved judgment without a fixed date in the charge of theft pending against Orval George Babcock by Milton Robinson of Thurlow Township in respect to a heifer. Most of the evidence had been adduced, Charles A. Payne, K.C., appearing for the defendant, argued that Babcock had a certain color of right, as he honestly believed that the heifer belonged to him. "As for his retaining the animal after a certain report had been received, it could not be charged that he committed theft," said Mr. Payne. The evidence of Mr. Moore that he had punched cattle in the cars and that the purple marks had grown together was conclusive that possibly such a thing could happen. Babcock had even gone so far as to produce the hired man on the farm, who positively states that the heifer in dispute belongs to Babcock. There is also the question of the broken horn in the defense evidence that has not been contradicted in the cross examination.

Mr. Donnan in summing up the case showed that the heifer had been in Robinson's barn nearly every night and there is no harm on the eye in question. He also showed that Robinson made claim to ownership on the 15th the first that the heifer was hard to drive with the other cattle, was an indication she did not belong to that herd. "The evidence of the defendant is that Babcock had not claimed absolute ownership but he did state that if Evans said the heifer was Babcock's he would retain the same," he claimed. "Babcock in his evidence, stated that the heifer positively belonged to him adding that when he got the animal was placed in he truck to be taken to the Evans' farm for pasture it had a hole in its ear the same as the other cattle, which is contrary to all evidence submitted. The pathologist was not prejudiced in the matter but reported that the ear was apparently scarred."

The Magistrate stated he was not favorably impressed with the evidence of Babcock but he was not judging as to reasonable, but only as to the charge of theft. "It is never a matter of color of right and I would like to have evidence to arrive at a decision," he declared.

Mr. Kenneth Breese positively swore that the heifer belonged to Babcock, and Mr. Moore stated that he had punched cattle in the cars and that the punch-marks had grown together again. Dr. Honeywell was recalled for the Crown, and stated that he did believe that once the ear of a cow was punched the hole in the ear would always be in evidence, unless opposition had taken place.

In your untiring efforts for the advancement of our case, as evidenced by the continued prosperity of our Lodge while you presided, we felt that we could express ourselves in no better way by asking you to accept this jewel, not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of our appreciation and esteem, hoping you will long remain a member, and that we can always look to you for advice and help.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

COULD AS WELL HAVE BEEN BURGLAR

A clerk in a New York bank accidentally set off a burglar alarm and in four minutes fifty policemen were on the scene.

The alarm would have worked as effectively if an actual burglar had done it—so much for its effectiveness in warning the detectives.

Burglars should ponder over this.

CANADA'S NATIONAL GALLERY

Canada's National Gallery possesses according to critics the most notable collection of sixteenth century paintings by world masters in the New World, according to Charles Ricketts in the London Observer. The National Gallery's collection is of course small in numbers, but it owns a small authentic Botticelli, and an exceptionally fine Montagna, and a rare French and a rare English primitive and a superb Franco-Flemish portrait of the fifteenth century. The great collection of the sixteenth century masters includes Sebastiano del Piombo, a brilliant Titian, and examples of Moroni, Cariani and Bronzino. Tintoretto (represented by three pictures, "Portrait of the Servant", being one of them), and Paul Veronese, represented by two paintings. There are also two Moros, two Rubens and many examples of the finest Flemish, German, Dutch and French schools. There are Reynolds, a Gainsborough, and a Lawrence and a Hoppner. Moreland, Crome, Turner and Watts are represented.

Canada has been generous in the share she has allowed the great works of the past for the acquisition of masterpieces is of national and economic importance.

At the present time the need of a permanent modern gallery to house these priceless possessions is felt. The present quarters in Ottawa do not provide a proper place for the display of pictures says Hector Charlesworth in "Saturday Night" and the building contains none of the necessities of a modern art gallery such as proper and sufficient artificial light control and the humidification of air, adequate storage space and proper conveniences for visitors and staff. Mr. Charlesworth says: "The time has come when the question of proper accommodations can no longer be shelved. This fact was recognized by the late King Government when the annual report of the National Gallery was laid before the House of Commons in April last; and every enlightened Canadian hopes that it will receive the early attention of the Bennett Government."

CITY'S FUTURE

Mayor Reid's remark at St. Andrew's men's club on Monday evening that within the preceding forty-eight hours there had been something transpire which would mean to the bringing of a large number of families to Belleville in the very near future, is most encouraging to the citizens of Belleville who are confident that the city is on the verge of a step for industrial activity, and as the past has been. Mayor Reid struck a sane chord when he said the hand of friendship ought to be extended to newcomers.

Whatever industries this city acquires in the immediate future, will mean the acquisition of new civic blood, for the merchants, employers and employees, alike will bring their own contribution to the civic life. This civic spirit has to be the home-feeling and one of hospitality for the newcomer means development of the city and district as well as faith in his locality.

The immediate future looks bright coming as it will upon the past year and a half in which this city has more than upheld its own, in growth of population and in confidence of industry. Belleville City Council and the Chamber of Commerce deserve high commendation on their lively interest in the state of the local industrial situation.

RAILWAYS AND BUSSES

Steam railroads are operating 3,037 buses instead of 1,900 in the United States according to an annual report at Washington for the year 1930.

This must mean that the steam roads are more and more coming to use buses for various types of trips. How many trucks are used by railroads over the previous year is not given but this would make interesting reading for purposes of comparison.

THE PERENNIAL DOG

It seems that whatever the season somebody's dog gets into the catcher's net and when it is caught the owner or harborer declares the unfledged friend.

Several dogs were caught recently in the rounds of the city official and it is a foregone conclusion that these dogs were not living as vandals or tramps in outbuildings or barns. They must have been staying about somebody's home and been there cared for in some way.

Ernie Marks remains to many though mayor of Oshawa, the man of the stage. Belleville once had an actor as tax collector, William L. Doyle, and though he performed his duties efficiently, people never forgot his honored association with the stage.

A dramatic critic says that he always prefers a play which has a happy ending. With some plays we've seen any sort of ending would be a happy one.

SIDELIGHTS

HESITATION

If I should give you kisses,
Who only gave you song;
If I should taste of blisses
For which all lovers long,
Ah, would we be the dearer
For touch of slinging hands,
And would our souls be nearer
Than now, across far lands?
If I should give caresses,
Who only gave you dreams;
Give starry tendernesses
Where earth-love's country gleams,
Would toil yield richer dower,
Would rest be then more sweet,
Would fairer visions flower,
Would life be made complete?

The gate swings wide, I ponder
What meadows there? What streams?
Yet, till I enter yonder,
How sweet to give but dreams?

FIRST DAYS OF THE MOVIES

Many of us remember when there were no movies, but who recalls when he first became aware of them?

And who was "the father" of the movies?

In naming Louise Le Prince as "a father" of the moving picture, the Manchester Guardian saves itself from possible dispute.

They are putting up a tablet to Le Prince on the wall of his workshop in Leeds, England, where Le Prince in 1888 made the first practical one-lens animated-picture camera. Some interesting details about him are taken from America to be exhibited at the Science Museum in South Kensington. The Guardian gives the story:

"It was in the garden there that Louis Le Prince took moving pictures at the rate of twelve a second in the summer of 1888. That year he made kinema photography on Leeds Bridge which he showed in the workshop on a screen with a collector having electric arc lamp illumination.

"Le Prince, who was the son of an officer in the French Army, was essentially an artist craftsman.

"He made his first experiments in New York, but it was in Leeds that he perfected his invention which was, of course, based on the attempts of earlier experimenters, such as Edward Muybridge, who had photographed the movements of race-horses with two dozen separate cameras in the 'seventies.

"The career of Le Prince ended in an extraordinary and never-explained mystery.

"On September 16, 1890, he was seen entering the train for Paris at Bourges, and from that moment he completely disappeared. His wife and family and papers disappeared too. Foul play was suggested, and his widow always thought that he had been removed through the agency of agents who wished to get control of the moving-picture situation.

"It had that effect, for although he held master patents, nothing could be done with them until the statutory period of seven years, when by law his death was presumed and his affairs administered. By this time many others had entered the field of kinematography."

"ONE GOOD COMMUNITY NURSE will save a dozen future policemen."

So said President Hoover in opening the recent White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

After hearing his address, 3000 leaders eventually decided they called "the major pet personal project of Mr. Hoover," got busy on a three-day program.

Their aim was to "co-ordinate the most advanced knowledge and thought," says a dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, "to carry out his project to enable the nation to do its best by all its children."

Here we have "another example of the moral power of the Government as a leader in public opinion," as David Lawrence points out in one of his Washington dispatches.

Unfortunately, a bitter fight broke out in the midst of the conference we read, and threatened for a time to grow to disastrous proportions.

GAILY GARBED GARBAGE

The Sanitation Department is in harmony with the age. Its new trucks are not to be the old drab Reid. They will be painted orange, white and blue —the city's colors. That is a darling idea. Every one will recognize one of the new trucks on sight, and will be quick to appraise it. The old ones failed into the landscape, making their shortcomings as inconspicuous as possible. Handsome is as handsome does, however. The new refuse, ash, garbage and snow removal outfits will be judged not on their looks but on their performance. They are to be slung low, in order to facilitate ash-can dumping. Can they receive their load without allowing a large part of the contents of the cans to be wafted to the four winds? Having received it, can they retain it without spilling? These are questions that go deeper than paint.—New York Times.

WHY POOR SPELLING?

Reading has gone out of fashion among young folks, and avid readers are the best spellers.

wrong, but it is a notion that not'ki ing like the amount of reading is done at home by children as used to be the case. Can their fathers read to boys, Scott and Dickens may still be read, but that they were devoured as formerly we very much doubt. Others no use diversions now—from autos and jazz to radio and talkies. What, somecop may ask, has this do to do with spelling? As we have hinted, it has a great deal. Good "spellers" by those who most readily retain images of words, their wonder-work is to other words, spelling is as much, if not more, a matter of memory as of phonetics and reasoning. Those who read constantly will rarely, because they trust to the appearance of words.—Ottawa Citizen.

PASSING A DIVIDEND

It should not be forgotten, in a very large proportion of these instances, that secure investments are aged people and widows, who have put the savings of lifetimes and the proceeds of insurance into low interest from which they are to get no return this year. To these people the passing of a dividend may be just as quite as real as the failure of a crop or the loss of a job to a man in good health and in the prime of life. If they are forced to sell their stock, at the depressed prices, they will be in the same position as the farmer who is forced to sell his farm and the wage-worker who has to part with his home. These are the "bourgeoisie" against whom the class agitator rants.—Edmonton Bulletin.

ANOTHER NEW YORK LESSON

The daily attacks on Toronto's police force, perhaps not unnaturally, are directed against its administration and subject it to the influence of civic politics, again have a reply in the new disclosures being made in New York City. These latest revelations are described as "the most vicious racket in which the government and the law have ever joined forces." It is stated that almost 100 girls have been compelled, by intimidation and illegality, to entertain guilty persons have little difficulty in retaining their freedom, all because they have Mother Goddess Tammany and court officials are working for the "ring" which conducts the racket and tells the courts what to do.—Toronto Globe.

SLAVERY IN LIBERIA

The smug world may be startled to learn of shocking conditions of slavery still existing in Liberia. In that country, it is said, black officials are preying on their fellows in the most brutal fashion. It is a strange characteristic of the colored races that many of those clothed with authority are absolutely merciless to the helpless creatures over whom they have control.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Mythical Animals

Paris, Jan. 14—The "mythical animals" of Agen which looked like lions and left hyena tracks, have reappeared after six months' absence in their bodies. Master-of-fact people expressed the opinion that they were cows.

The animals, examined today through a telescope by a functionary of Albi, were declared to have no resemblance to any European domestic animals. The official phoned the gendarmerie and two gendarmes were sent with rifles to kill the beasts. The animals, however, were not hurt by gunfire and after a mile chase disappeared in the forest.

Early Railroading

(Ottawa Citizen)

A book with the story of the beginnings and early experiences of all well known locomotive engineers would make great reading. Every engineer, either in his firing days or in the first days of driving, has had some peculiar experience.

Take for example the early engineering experience of Harry (Hiram) Brown, who has just retired.

When Harry Brown started driving an engine he did so under quite humble circumstances. His engineering job was on a small tank engine which ran from Deseronto to the O. R. station (junction) about a mile and a half long.

At that time the Rathbun Lumber Co. owned pretty much everything at Deseronto. The company owned the little railway line.

The train crew on the Rathbun train consisted of an engineer and a fireman. The engineer ran the train and fired as well, and the conductor collected fares, and also looked the engine over. Hand brakes were used.

This "short-line" train made six trips per day between Deseronto and the G. T. R. station.

In the eighties the Rathbun firm had great holdings. It a'so owned a three and a half mile railway line out from Gafanoque to the Grand Trunk Railway junction, and a 20 mile line between Napanee and Tamworth.

After serving several years and gaining experience on these miniature railways, young Brown began to aspire for higher railway activities. In 1886 he came to Ottawa, attracted by the possibilities of the then almost new Canada Atlantic Railway.

There was no engine opening vacancies here, so he accepted a job as cleaner in the C.P.R. shops. Two days later they called the newcomer out of the cleaning gang and put him on a freight engine, as fireman.

The crews of the freight engines at that time (1886) were:

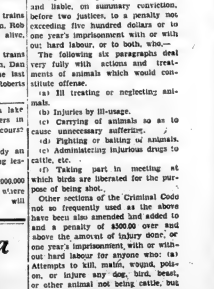
Engineers—James Casey, H. Kirk, Billy Sandow and Billy Eldridge.

Firemen—James O'Connor, Billy Call, Alex Dewar and Harry Brown.

All the engines at that time were wood burners. The freight engines carried a wood car behind the tender to ensure a supply. The passenger engines did not carry a wood car. Instead, a much tender had built up racks to increase the carrying capacity.

The passenger train engines did not require as much wood as the freight engines because early passenger trains on the C.A.R. only carried two coaches. The load was therefore light. The C.A.R. referred to at one of the early firemen was the first man to fire a coal-burning freight engine on the line of the C.A.R. Mr. Call is still alive. He is an uncle of Len Grosvenor, the hockey player.

When the C.A.R. started in 1883, the passenger service was supplied by the Grand Trunk Railway. In 1887 the C.A.R. began to handle its own passenger service, and put on its first train to Montreal over the C.T.R.



The engineers of these fast trains were: Pat Ferguson, Isaac Johnson, Robert Orr and Phil Roy. All are alive, but superannuated.

The conductors on these fast trains were: John Roberts, Ned Martin, Dan Brown and J. Whitman. The last three named are dead. John Roberts is superannuated.

NEGLECT OF ANIMALS

Port Hope,
Box 575
January, 8, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

Dear Sir,

It may prevent much trouble in your city and surrounding country, if publicity is given to the amended laws dealing with persons guilty of cruelty or neglect of animals. And there are many persons careless and so could be penalized for not providing proper and sufficient food, water, bedding and shelter for stock, as well as dogs, cats, etc. Section 542 of the Criminal Code is the section under which the majority of offenders are prosecuted as it covers all kinds of cruelty and neglect.

In the past the maximum penalty was $50, or three months imprisonment. By the act passed May 30th, 1930, Section 542 now reads: Everyone guilty of cruelty or neglect is liable to a penalty not exceeding $500.00 or to one year's imprisonment with or without hard labour. Enclosed are some items showing the law in action.

Yours truly,
"Visitor."

AMENDMENT SHOWS ITS TEETH

That the amendment to Section 542 of the Criminal Code meant what they say is demonstrated in Orillia recently, when Magistrate McLaughlin fined Gordon Cole, Township of Orillia, $200.00 and costs for neglecting a horse.

Cowie was haled before the court on two charges, one for working a horse with sore shoulders, the other for overloading a horse. Both had to be injured and suffering conditions. The animal was terribly lame in the forefeet, the blisters had broken and were anchylosed. It had been in this condition since last spring. This horse had also two sores on the shoulder showing that it had been worked in that condition. It was destroyed and the other laid off for a time. Magistrate McLaughlin remarked that he intended that cruelty to animals should be stamped out in that district.

At the meeting of the Port Hope Humane Society, the secretary presented a copy of the amendments to those sections of the Criminal Code pertaining to cruelty to animals, the secretary stated that as a result of the meeting in Toronto Wednesday through out Canada the laws of this country for the protection of animals have been so revised as to make a course of practically every form of cruelty that a person can commit, attempt to commit, threaten to commit or cause to be committed against animals or birds.

For the purpose of enforcing these laws and to provide anything like adequate protection to animals, as curers all kinds of acts of cruelty and neglect.

Under the past the maximum penalty under this section was $50.00 or three months imprisonment with or without hard labour or both.

By an act to amend the Criminal Code, consented to May 30th, 1930, section 542 now reads.

Every one is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, before two justices, to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars or to one year's imprisonment with or with out hard labour, or to both, who,—

The following are the offences very fully with actions and treatments of animals which would constitute cruelty.

(a) Ill treating or neglecting animals.

(b) Injuries by ill-usage.

(c) Carrying of animals so as to cause unnecessary sufferings.

(d) Fighting or baiting animals.

(e) Administering injurious drugs to cattle, etc.

(f) Taking part in meeting at which bulls are liberated for the purpose of being shot.

Other sections of the Criminal Code not so frequently used as the above have been also amended and added to and a penalty of $500.00 over and above the amount of injury done, or one year's imprisonment, with or without hard labour for anyone who:—

Attempts to kill, wound, maim, poison, or injure any dog, bird, beast, or other animal not being cattle, but being either the property of any municipal law, or being ordinarily kept in state or confinement, or kept for any lawful purpose or who places poison in such a position as to be easily partaken by any dog, birds, etc., or, (g) Who sends, delivers or offers or directs or authorizes cause to be received knowing the contents thereof any letter or writing threatening to kill, maim, wound, poison, or injure any dog, bird, etc.

The galago, or flying opossum, a native of Indian archipelago, is said to be the champion jumper of animals. It clears about 300 feet on its favorite glide.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

"Is she tough?

"Is she tough? Doc, she's so tough I know it aint natural. A girl as young as her must be loony. But there's not nothing tough about her eyes or her mouth—and that's where you can always find toughness that's been bred in the bone. There's something about this girl that's different, Doc. I don't know what it is but I know this much; she wasn't always tough. I want you to give her the once over."

"I understand there is a psychologist and psychiatrist—Dr. Blethen—who does all of the medico-legal work for the department, Chief. I wouldn't care to examine the girl except on his invitation."

"Yes, I know. Question of ethics, and while the question is being debated this girl gets hauled into court and takes the rap on the old charge of grand theft. I know Blethen. I've tried him and he says this girl is a natural hoodlum, and mentally and physically healthy. He says she's got more intelligence than any ten girls in Vassar. She must be smart, too, because she told him he was a fool, and I agree with her."

Dr. Burt was silent, for he was intensely ethical and would not criticize a fellow doctor.

"I've heard a lot about you," the chief of police continued. "You're regarded in the best psychiatrist and neurologist in San Francisco. So come talk to me about the capable Doc Blethen. I want you to look this girl over."

"His huge face brightened as we summoned a thought that would bother up his plea. "She don't cuss me, Doc. I've raked her all about herself, and I'm sure she tells me all she knows, but she don't know anything. She's bound to like you, Doc, and when she likes anybody——Now, Doc, I've got a notion you can get her confidence to such an extent you can prong down into her soul and locate the trouble. I hear men like you to do things like that nowadays."

Dr. Burt smiled. "Sometimes we uncover complexes or mental reflexes frequently we do not. And when we have uncovered them we cannot always cure them. You say this girl has a ruined nose? Does it affect her appearance greatly?"

"She's ugly when you look at her the first time, Doc, but after you've talked with her and looked some more the shock sorta of wears off. I got a notion that if her nose could be straightened up she'd be a good-looking girl. And maybe if her mind could be straightened she'd be a good girl."

"Know anything about her antecedents, her background?"

"I dont know and I can't find out. She won't tell me."

"It may be, Dr. Burt suggested, "that she doesn't know. Has Blethen finished with the case?"

"Yes, sir. He told me not to bother him about her no more."

Dr. Burt indicated his telephone. "Call him up, Chief, and ask him if he has any objection to having me give her an unofficial examination."

McNamara did so. Following a brief conversation, he turned the telephone over to Stephen.

Stephen took the telephone. "Dr. Blethen? Burt speaking. The chief came to my office about that girl he has at the Central Station. Notwithstanding your report he has asked me, as a personal favor to him, to see the girl. You understand, however——

"Yes, I understand. Burt, she's a bad lot."

"Something the chief said has bolstered my curiosity. If you would care to invite me to dinner we can discuss the case—understand I have no desire to intrude—"

"I'm through with her, Burt. Help yourself, old man. However, take a tip from me and don't let that fellow McNamara sell himself to you. If you do he'll keep you busy. I doubt if any man on earth can run a criminal down as promptly as McNamara; he has a photographic brain and never forgets a face or a fact; but after he's landed a yegg in his cooler he develops an abnormal yearning to find out what made him set that way. Mac's a softy."

"Exactly. Thank you, Stephen. Still a blind pig" will sometimes find an room, and something he said—Goodbye."

Lanny entered. "There's a young woman in the waiting-room," she announced. "She said to me: "Where the hell is that bastard of a chief gone?" Lanny looked at Dan McNamara severely over the rims of her spectacles. "Friends of yours?" she queried withering.

"Yes." McNamara admitted, "and Doc's new patient. Bring her in and he'll give her the once over."

But Lanny shook her head. "This shit shop is closed for the day," she told him. "Bring her around at one o'clock tomorrow. The doctor has fifteen minutes then."

"Lanny!" Stephen reproved her. Then to Dan McNamara: "Do you mean to tell me you left her out there unguarded? How would you explain her escape—if she had chosen to disappear?"

"I didn't think she'd duck, Doc. But even if she tried it, I got a plain clothes man on guard."

Stephen bring the patient in, Lanny," Stephen pleaded. "And if she you might—" he glanced eloquently at their empty glasses. Lanny glared at him, so he smiled—and she ceased to glare. But she went on mumbling.

Dan McNamara shook his head sagely. "Nothing wrong with that woman's thinking apparatus," he informed Stephen.

And then Lanny ushered the new patient in. She paused just inside the door swept the room with a cold glance and permitted her gaze to come to rest on Stephen Burt, who rose and bowed to her. Instantly the frozen hostility in her glance faded and she smiled. "Reminds me of a garden," Stephen reflected.

INSTALMENT III

"Meet my friend, Dr. Stephen Burt, Nance," Dan McNamara introduced her airily. "Doc, this is Nance Beldon, alias Dorothy Case, alias Fay Barton, alias Elizabeth Vernon."

Stephen said politely that he was delighted to make her acquaintance, and Nance replied with acrid directness. "Why?" Whereat Stephen Burt laughed and set a chair for her. Nance plumped herself down in it with a weary sigh, jerked off her jaunty hat and threw it on Stephen's desk. "All right, Steve. Shoot! What's the idea of the big convention? Another fishing expedition?"

"Now, Nance," Dan McNamara scolded her, "you cut that out. You're not talking to Doc Blethen. Doc Burt's a gentleman."

Nance remembered her manners. "My error," she apologized.

From the doorway leading into the waiting-room, Lanny gazed upon the girl with frank disapproval. Over Nance's shoulder she caught Stephen's eye and shook her head sorrowfully.

"The old girl's shocked!" Nance laughed softly without looking around while Lanny disappeared.

"How do you know, Miss Beldon?" Stephen inquired.

"Mirror," and Nance Beldon pointed. "Close your eyes," Stephen commanded, "and describe this room to me."

"All right. There are two empty high-ball glasses on the telephone stand—one of you. She sniffed. "Bourbon. The stand's three feet high and the telephone book is in the compartment under the top of the stand. The telephone is one of those telephone receiver-mouthpiece things like they use in English stage scenes, and the telephone cord is white. The desk is solid walnut. I think, flat-topped and clean. You have a bronze combination ink-well, pen-rack, and pincity. There is a blue crayon pencil and a red crayon pencil and a black, gold-banded fountain pen on the pen rack. The fountain pen has green ink in it.

I know because on the calendr pad on the desk, which is opened at November 23rd——although this is the 24th —you've written something with the pen very recently. You're sitting in a walnut swivel chair, brown leather upholstered, and a high back upto your shoulder tops. The chief's chair is an over-stuffed rocker, and there is also another desk chair, a full asleep in it. On the wall back of you, there is a framed diploma in gold from Stanford Junior University med Latin, issued to one John Burt by Yale School, and about four feet from it is the Oath of Hippocrates in a black frame, like the diploma. The print is old English and done in black and red. Across the room, in back of the chief, is a walnut book-case, built in cabinets, and there's a white washstand in the corner close by it. The rug is beige colored and Chinese, and on the wall in back of me, where you can look it it readily, is a framed photograph of your father. It must be a photograph of your father because he looks a great deal like you. In back of me a door leads into the old lady's den and——here Nance opened her eyes—I took out a small mirror, held it up and opened her eyes an instant——Yes, I thought so. That door is open and the old lady is listening to every word I say.

"Now, I'll describe you. You're a darling. You're tall and you haven't started to grow a tummy yet. You are about thirty-two or three years old, your hair is dark brown and your eyes dark blue, and you have nice teeth, and they show when you smile. You have nice hands and your nails were manicured this morning, but you have a dirty spot on the finger-nail of your right index finger——no, it isn't dirt. It's iodine, Pardon! My error, Doc. Do I win first prize, Doc?"

"In a way, Miss Beldon, You are absolutely the most amazing person I have ever examined. You are one in a million—one of those rare persons who not only see everything at a glance but take a mental photograph of it. And remember it. Yes, you win a prize."

"I'll have a high-ball with you boys," said Miss Beldon composedly.

"You'll not, you little——this and that," Lanny countered from behind the door. "The very idea!"

"Then the party breaks up here and now," Miss Beldon informed Stephen.

"Lanny," Stephen called. "I hope you aren't forgetting the laws of hospitality."

"Come on, kid," the girl entreated Lanny. "Buy me one and I'll get the hotel to do something nice for you in return."

"What influence has the likes of you with the chief of police?" Lanny was emerging with two highballs.

"Do you drive a car, Miss Lanning?" Nance Belden whistled sharply to Dan McNamara.

"Get out your card, Dan. Here's the fountain pen. Write as I dictate. Ready: "To all Traffic Officers: The bearer, Miss Rebecca Lanning, has the freedom of the city. She has my authority to park where she pleases and she shall not be tagged. She cannot be arrested for anything except murder and even then she must not ride in the wagon. Signed: Dan McNamara, Chief of Police.' "

Dan McNamara obeyed, Nance Belden, viseed the card, blotted it and handed it to Lanny. "Now, you tell 'em all who's the boss, Rebecca! I'm some kid, am I not You bet I'm some kid. Dan knows it and your boss knows it and if, by now you don't know it, I hope Steve tells you."

"You are some kid. I admit it. Thank you, dear. You shall have a high-ball."

"Hive one yourself," Nance suggested gravely. "Let's all be sociable, eh, Stevey."

"Miss Belden——" Stephen began.

"Call me Nance," the strange young creature interrupted. "Why all the formality?"

"Have you any objection, Nance, to telling me your real name?"

"None at all. I don't know my real name."

"Who were you parents?"

"I don't know."

"Why did you steal the silk stockings?"

Nance threw back her head and laughed. "Why you silly, I had runs in every pair I owned."

"Poor dear!" Lanny was speaking. Her hand strayed over the girl's jet black, shiny bob; her fingers caught a shell-like ear and tugged it gently.

Nance looked up at the nurse, surprise and friendliness shining in her eyes.

"Why, you're sweet, aren't you? Why, you darling!" And she lifted her face for Lanny to kiss. Lanny kissed her. Trust Lanny for that.

"It's too late to go further tonight, Nance," Lanny said. "Bring her in at nine tomorrow morning."

"Can't Lanny." With a bound the excellent McNamara had landed beside Lanny in the garden of friendship, as one might say. "She's due in the police court at nine o'clock for vagrancy. Right away she'll be walked over to the Superior Court to the judge that gave her a suspended sentence two years ago. She hasn't made good, so he'll sign the commitment papers, and it'll be some time before on the murder sex of life—had lookee behind her brazen, unassailable, beligerent exterior and found the great warm heart that yearned so for affection and understanding. Him was a strange nature. She was so strong and so possessed of the urge to share her strength with those she loved, particularly if they evinced any affection for her, that she was singularly democratic in her choice of beneficiary. Nance Beldon, like Stephen Burt, had appealed to her thwarted mother love, and nothing that the girl had been, nothing she might ever, be would alter Lanny's opinion, formed on an instant's notice, that the girl was an angel. A dark angel, perchance, and like Lucifer, fallen from high place, but —an angel nevertheless.

The presence of Chief of Police Daniel McNamara cleared a lane through the corridor of the Hall of Justice, in which the police courts of San Francisco are located.

He passed before a court-room door. "Nance is in there," he told Stephen. "I'll not go in with you. I'd have a week of rotten publicity in all the papers if it appeared I have any special interest in the case. Her lawyer's name is Tyrrell and he's call you as an expert witness."

INSTALMENT IV

Stephen elbowed his way into the courtroom. Nance Beldon saw him, and from behind the bars of the prisoner's dock waved to him and called cheerily: "Hello, Steve."

"Silence——you!" the bailiff warned her.

Nance made a face at him; then, observing Stephen lay finger to lip in a warning gesture, she tossed her head, tilted her chin and bent upon the judge a cold and defiant stare.

The bailiff opened the door of the prisoners' dock and motioned to her.

"Nance Belden," the judge queried, "have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?"

"I've got a mouth-piece," the girl retorted. "Ask him!"

From a chair beside the counsels' table a young man arose. "May it please the court, the public defender has withdrawn from this case and I am now counsel for the defendant, my name is David Tyrell. I am reliably informed, your honour, that, following a fair and impartial trial, this defendant has been convicted of the crime of which she stands accused and is now before the court for sentence."

"Mr. Tyrell, your client is now under a suspended sentence from the Superior Court, for the crime of grand theft. She was then sentenced to two years in San Quentin penitentiary, but paroled for two years. Less than two months have passed since she was paroled, and today she stands before the court for sentence under a charge of petit larceny. The defendant evidently is incorrigible and I intend to remand her to the Superior Court for commitment under the old charge of grand theft."

"I thank Your Honor. I have been retained in this apparently hopeless case for the purpose of rendering a sound reason why this defendant should be neither sentenced under the present charge nor remanded to the Superior Court for commitment under sentence for the former crime. To that end, your honor, I ask leave to present an expert witness to testify to the mental irresponsibility of my client.'

...In One Man's Life Time

K. J. Dunstan, Vice-President of the Bell Telephone Company, has just retired after 53 years in the service.

Within a few days of the announcement of Mr. Dunstan's retirement, a lone telephone pole, relic of other days, was removed from Young Street at the corner of Front—the last pole on that busy thoroughfare from the waterfront to Hogs Hollow. Over 85 per cent. of all the city's telephone wires are now underground, and Toronto, of homes of all the great cities of the world.

As a striking evidence of changed conditions from the early days of Mr. Dunstan's career, it is recalled that the big 60-foot telephone poles that used to carry scores of open wire at one time cost in the neighborhood of $5.00! To-day they cost about $40.00.

PREPARING THE CHILD FOR LIFE

By Constance Cumtron

Nan was graduated from high school last Spring and last September she joyously entered a girls' school. She left home and friends without a quiver, secure in the thought that the world was hers to see and conquer and the home folks would next be seen when she would return with laurels, i.e., the highest school marks, the most frat pins, the biggest array of tales of bids to this or that, in a realm where she planned to be queen.

Not along around the end of September, Nan stole into her home one evening just as Dad and Mother sat down to dinner. She had taken the French leave, ridden away without as far as the remainder of her allowance would permit—by train and "hitch-hiked" the rest.

She was weeping tired and discouraged Nan. Why had she left school like that? The parents demand ed an answer, as one does, while Mother held her on her lap and ordered a cup of hot tea for the wanderer.

Well, the teachers were "rotten" to her. The girls were "stuck up" and the subjects didn't dove-tail with what she'd had in high school, and she wasn't going back. This statement was shot forth in a burst of sobs.

Nan was patted and soothed, tucked into bed like a baby and the loud, excited voices of Mother and Dad could be heard until very late, berating the teachers, the school the girls and subjects of which they barely knew the names. Their Baby mon decidedly would never be sent back to that awful place!

So, Nan was sent to another school. A month later the same performance was repeated. And Mother and Dad about decided that girls' schools are relics of the Dark Ages—all on Nan's say-so, don't forget.

Neighbors, relatives, school friends know what the trouble is but the parents probably will never know.

Those parents had never prepared Nan for life outside of home. In her home she was and is queen. All plans were laid around what she wished to do. Mother's club meeting was postponed if Nan wanted to entertain. The family went to the movies if Nan wanted to go. Never in her short life had Nan been made to give an inch toward making other people comfortable and happy.

And then came the time when she was thrust out into a world of girls, each, in a measure, wanting her own way, each demanding her own rights, each teacher setting a certain standard and not being given to pandering out high marks just because the girl was Nan. It was a cruel few months. The parents are worried. Nan is unhappy and Nan is staying at home now where she can strain mom's her throne and reign supreme.

It is lovely to adore your child, to help that child and make him or her feel secure in your affection; but it is absolute cruelty to never let him or her get the feeling of "every man for himself," which one is bound to meet away from home, at school and later all through life. Teach your child how to adjust himself outside the home, how to live and help and get along with people who do not necessarily submit each time they see him or her coming.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers:

After you've worn your evening dress to a number of gay dances you begin to wonder if you couldn't do something to give it a different air. New and charming as it was at the beginning of the season three or four appearances in rapid succession are apt to dim its glory.

Dame Fashion keeps vigilant eye for style ideas for just such occasions and now she has discovered an enchanting fashion that will make evening dresses, new or old, more fascinating than ever. The answer to the problem of renewing dance frocks has been presented with the popularity of the lei. You see Fashion has looked far afield this time to the Southern Seas. The lei, you know, is the garland of flowers with which visitors to Honolulu are decorated when they arrive and leave. Adapted to dress decorating the lei is very lovely.

White gardenias rather than colored flowers are used in leis for evening dresses. The lei does not encircle the neck of the dress but is about nine inches in length and arranged over one shoulder or at the back of the decolletage. You can picture the smart effect on one of these new dance frocks.

The lei is not the only flower that will be worn this season. For tailored dremes or coats the patent leather boutonniere is the newest thing. These are sometimes in black or white but one I saw was in shades of brown from a creamy sand to a deep beaver shade. For the most part though flowers are not being worn to any great extent on coats this year's models not requiring that touch. With the advent of the Spring days, flowers will come into their own again. The practice of wearing natural flowers instead of artificial dilemmas was quite popular last year particularly throughout the summer months and was a very pretty custom.

Fashionably yours,
LUCILLE.

A One Dish Casserole and Other Things

By Hannah Wing

A one-dish casserole dinner for your club day is a splendid idea and may be made to taste so good that club day will be welcomed by the entire family. Be sure that your one dish includes the food essentials that several dishes ordinarily do. For instance, corn chowder made with canned corn, salt pork, onion, tomatoes and potatoes is almost a meal in itself. Served with buttered toast finger, celery and olives and topped off with a generous serving of fruit salad for dessert—a chowder dinner is one to be looked forward to. The fruit salad may be quickly tossed together with a can of fruits and some bananas sliced to give additional substance.

Something new in open-faced sandwich treats is a sandwich consisting of cream cheese mixed with equal quantity of apple butter and spread on thinly sliced white bread graham bread. A walnut meat in the center adds to the taste and decorative effect. Try this with tea, some chilly day.

Speed it up when you are making muffins. The ingredients must be combined quickly because the batter of which muffins are made quickly loses gas and if you mix it too long, so much gas escapes that your muffins have a bomb-like instead of volatile. If you favor fruit muffins that will like these delicious specimens.

Cranberry Cove Muffins: Beat one egg, add two tablespoons of sugar and one cup of sour milk. Then add the following sifted dry ingredients; one cup of flour, one cup of cornmeal, one-half teaspoon soda and one-half teaspoon salt. Stir in three tablespoons of melted butter and one half cup of canned cranberry sauce, using the thick part rather than the juice. Bake in buttered muffin tins at 400 degrees for about 20 to 25 minutes.

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Aiden

Dark shadows creep into the evening scene, for the frock of dark brown lace overshadows everything else just now. And so we have an exquisite dinner frock of very dark brown lace with lace with long, flowing sleeves and a strap-like decolletage. Its ethereal transparency is posed over an apricot coloring foundation.

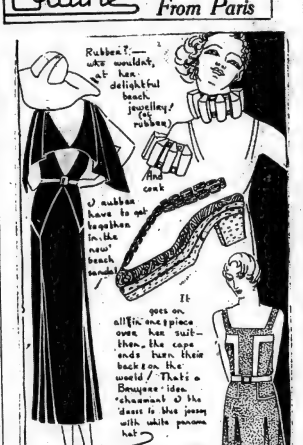
Stick a feather in your hat and be jaunty. Ideal for street wear with a sports coat is a trio of dark green double felt. It is on the order of the Tyrolean hat and therefore sticks into dark feathers in the center of the upturned brim at back.

One thousand yards of black chenille. That is the enormous amount of material used for a lovely evening frock. It has separate sleeves with graceful drapery from the elbow and a beautiful belt of black shiny wood. It is made on black net.

At the feet of the mod's are lovely new shoes. For walking there is a good pump of brown kid and brown lizard with much perforated trimming.

Dancing daughters now wear short wraps of gleaming lame lined with white bunny. We saw an exquisite wrap of rose and silver lame with wide sleeves that had a luxurious lining what had once been a coat of white bunny. A good economy suggestion for those tired of the bunny wrap.

Get ahead of smartness with one of the new tricornes. One of the best seen this season is made of white velvet with a tiny edging of black lace. At the side is an aigrette trimming of black and white.



Keep your stock free from blemish with Doug'as' Egyptian Liniment. Removes inflammation, quickly relieves bruises, sprains, strains, swellings, contraction of cords, stiffness of joints, and sore muscles.

STIMSON BONDS WERE SOLD HERE

Reorganization of Company to Follow Voluntary Receivership

The Stimson interests who entered a voluntary receivership at Toronto yesterday for the five firms organized under O. A. Stimson and Co. Ltd., "Canada's oldest bond house," had a branch in Belleville on Bridge Street for several years. For about six months they have not had their local office open.

Sale of Bonds in County

The company did a general bond business and also dealt to a large degree in their own issues. They have erected a number of buildings in various parts of Canada.

Considerable bonds are held in the counties parts of this district. It is said among local financial men. The sale of bonds in Belleville was not so large as in the rural sections.

The five companies affected are: O. A. Stimson and Company, Ltd., National Debenture Corporation, Limited.

Stimson's Canadian Development Company, Limited.

Toronto Bond Exchange, Limited.

Stimson's Building and Investment Company, Limited.

Assets of $7,500,000

Assets are placed by the companies at approximately $7,500,000, with liabilities slightly under this sum. G. Clarkson, accountant, has been appointed to investigate the companies' affairs and reorganize them into the new company. In a statement issued last night Mr. Clarkson stated:

"The assignments were made looking forward to a reorganization that will permit continuance of the undertakings now in hand through capital stock control readjustment.

"Because of the intricacy of the relations between the various Stimson units and the manner in which these interlocked in the promotion of bond issues, it was stated, financial statements have been exciting public attention. At the same time industrial and financial depression made it doubly difficult to sell these issues.

Surplus of $2,003 is Announced — Interest is Gaining

That the Belleville Agricultural Society is financially sound and decided progress has been made in the handling of the reorganized fall fair were the highlights of the annual meeting held in the City Hall yesterday afternoon, the president Charles E. Hanna being in the chair. In the chairman's address given before nearly fifty members of the Society a note of optimism was sounded and a surplus of $2,003.00 announced after the operating expenses and prize list had been taken care of. The members were unanimous that greater progress would be made in the coming years and after a keen election an efficient slate of officers were elected to guide the destinies of this organization for the ensuing year.

Mr. Hanna in delivering his address stated that he appreciated the honor that had been conferred upon him and

BREAD PRICES ARE DROPPED IN CITY

Bread prices have dropped in Belleville generally three cents per large loaf. Three pound loaves are being delivered to households at fifteen cents a loaf. Until this week the usual delivered price in the city was eighteen cents a loaf.

There still remains a fluctuation of quotations on bread but fifteen cents remains the general quotation.

Several years ago bread was at a price of five cents, up over twenty cents per loaf. It was in this period that the price was the highest in its recent history.

THREE MASTERS RAILWAY MEN

Unique in the history of Masonry in Belleville, is the fact that the Masters of three Belleville lodges, are all railway men, employees of the Canadian National. Newton Thompson, installed last night as Master of Eureka Lodge is an auditor in the Superintendent's office; Fred Chapman of The Belleville Lodge, is chief of the local detective branch, while R. P. Orne, of Moira Lodge, is a locomotive engineer. This is the first time in memory of the veteran Masons that all three Masters have been railway employees.

CLOSE BATTLES AT CURLING RINK

Tankard Rinks Will go to Oshawa for District Competition

Three games were played in the inter-city curling schedule last night and some interesting situations were noted. Two of the games were won by one shot the rinks being tied on the honour count. Percy Finney escaped defeat at the hands of R. E. Orr by making a perfect draw with his last rock. W. J. Harden dropped a stone in the house in his game against J. G. Galloway and closely guarding the rock was able to save the shot until the end. Mr. Galloway tried a raise with his last rock but was a little short. Harden did not have to jump his last rock to count. H. B. Stock defeated A. R. Symons by a count of three being in the lead from the beginning of the game. On the other sheet of ice a spirited game was held, which shows the keen interest that is being taken in the fascinating winter pastime.

The tankard rinks skipped by W. N. Belair and R. J. Wray will leave for Oshawa early Tuesday morning for the tankard competition in Oshawa. At least three curling clubs will be in attendance, they being Oshawa, Belleville and Cobourg with Colborne and Campbellford on Monday evening the return game with the Kingston Junior C.O.C.A. rinks will be played at the local rink and a keen game is expected Kingston are one shot up on the round but the Belleville broom wielders expect to turn the tables once at home. TERRIBLE EXPLOSION

Peterboro Department Fought Menace in Very Frigid Weather

PETERBORO, Ont., Jan. 15.—CP —Fire early this morning swept three small stores in the centre of the city and completely gutted part of the two top floors of an apartment house which adjoined the stores.

The fire started in an old shooting gallery and spread rapidly. An explosion thought to have been caused by the gas lines shook the surrounding buildings. Firemen experienced conbuildings. Firemen experienced consternation of two of the families whose living quarters in the apartment were destroyed. Progress of the blaze was stopped, it was said, by the fire wall built in the apartment house several years ago.

The firemen worked with the temperature registering 10 below zero. Huge sheets of ice formed as the water was poured into the blazing structure.

LUSITANIA SURVIVOR GRAPHICALLY DESCRIBED TERRIBLE SCENES WHICH FOLLOWED 1915 MARINE DISASTER

Piano Selections and Vocal Numbers Pleased Crowd at Bridge Street

Graphic descriptions of intimate scenes in that terrible disaster, the sinking of the Lusitania, were given in a compelling and realistic manner last evening in a lecture at Bridge Street Church by Mr. Raoa Williams, a survivor. The very interesting programme was rendered in part by Mr. Williams and brilliant piano numbers by Mr. Idris Hopkins, who also acted as accompanist for the vocalist.

The artists were introduced by the pastor of the church Rev. Dr. R. H. Bell. Mr. Williams' vocal numbers included "The Deathless Army" and, here, 'I Picked a Flower" one of Mr. Williams' compositions, "The Skippers Child" and a reminisce ence song, Mendelssohn's "It is Enough," "When My Caravan Has Rested," The Welsh National Anthem in Welsh and English and Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory." Mr. Williams possessed a very pleasing voice and his numbers were warmly received by his audience.

Mr. Hopkins' piano selections were Chopin's "Military Polonaise in A." "The Last Rose of Summer" the pianist's own transcription, two numbers from the modern school "Hopak",

HENRY B. HUNT CELEBRATED HIS 93RD BIRTHDAY

BEST OF HEALTH

Climate About the Same as Years Ago—Not a Movie

Ninety-three years is a long time back, but today Henry B. Hunt, Grand Old Man of Highland Avenue, is celebrating his ninety-third birthday and a host of his friends are congratulating the nonagenarian upon reching this advanced stage of life in the best of health and the very best of spirits. The Ontario Intelligencer joins in wishing Mr. Hunt many more years of happy life upon this terrestrial vale.

A reporter went up to call upon Mr. Hunt this morning. To be perfectly candid he went expecting to find a decaying old man comfortably ensconced in a wheel-chair, surrounded with hot water bottles and with a voice that quavered with the years. A distinct shock was in store for him. He was ushered into the living-room of the lovely home of 74 Highland Avenue and found a man looking about sixty or sixty-five years of age, who promptly rose to his feet and shook hands with the interrogator's hand warmly, bidding him welcome. "I'm feeling fine" he said. "I haven't been outside for the last couple of days because it is pretty fine." This brought about the inevitable query "Has the climate changed much in the past ninety-odd years?" Every now and then there is an interview in the press with some old-timer out in the pastire promises or in the north country, wherein it is stated as the old-timer's opinion that the winters are getting warmer every year and that people seem to will have a climate like California's.

Mr. Hunt doesn't agree with this at all. Far from it. "I don't think that the climate has changed one little bit" he said this morning. "As far back as I can remember the winters have been pretty much the same. One winter would be cold and hot we would make up for it next year.

CANINES WERE RESCUED

Two well-bred collies "run in" by the dog-catcher and only a few hours from death, were rescued from their fate last night. Two farmers, one from Stirling and one from Thurlow, came to the dog pound and made request for the animals and the dogs were taken away in the "life of Riley" in green pastures and beside a comfortable fire when the winter winds do howl. These dogs will make excellent animals for the farm and rid the city of two dogs running at large. The dog-catcher captured a wire-haired terrier, white in color, with black spots yesterday and is now in custody. This dog has three days to live and if not claimed will be put to death.

Archie Gill, manager of the Belleville Laundry had his foot slightly crushed while carrying on his usual occupation. The injury will not cause Mr. Gill to discontinue his work although it is quite painful.

BEAR ON PARADE

The most discontented individual in Belleville today appeared to be a bear, seen perched atop the radiator of a truck which made a round of the business section. The bear shivered and shook with the January blasts creeping in from every side. Not an inviting excursion for one in a birthday suit, but Mr. Brain stood the gaff during the ordeal. It was a novel advertising stunt by the Capitol Theatre for a miniature circus which is one of the attractions on the mid-week program. Some wag said the bear answers to the name of Teddy and so well trained is he that he answers the beck-and call of his master in an instant.

MERCURY DROPS 40 DEGREES.

From yesterday morning's lowest temperature of two above zero the imprisoned alcohol and mercury in the chilly glass bulbs and tubes took another precipitate plunge into the sub-zero regions during last night. The lowest record was eleven degrees below zero and the highest yesterday was eight above. Last night's chill was the coldest of this season being about five degrees more of cold than in the December dips. From Tuesday noon the mercury has dropped just 48 degrees. Already the mercury is on the climb again. In the early morning business hours the cold remained but the steady climb had started before eleven o'clock. This afternoon it was warmer than yesterday afternoon. The outlook is for warmer weather and snow is promised tomorrow.

FIRE MARSHAL IS UPHELD IN POLICE COURT

Local Property Owner Fined for Failure to Comply With Act

Neglecting to comply with an order from the fire marshal's department issued last May to make structural alterations to ensure the safety of human lives from fire, brought two property owners and a business proprietor into Police Court today before Magistrate Mikel. Mr. R. Doyle, Daniel Doyle and Ernest Sprague were the business men summoned and the complainant was Lionel J. Bishop, an inspector in the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto. Daniel Doyle was found guilty and was assessed a fine of $100.00 and $17.50 costs. Mr. Doyle explained to the press that the judgment would be appealed although he was not represented by counsel in court. Mr. R. Doyle's case was reviewed by Charles A. Payne, K.C., who appeared for the defendant, who was unable to attend the court and was remanded for one week without action being taken. Ernest Sprague explained that he had purchased a lot and would start building in the spring and the inspector granted his request for an extension of time, the same being set at two months. Even if the work is started in that time, a small fine will be registered against the defendant in lieu of failure to obey the order.

Mr. Bishop, Fire Chief William Lynch and Assistant Chief Gerald Vance all gave evidence in the cases. Mr. R. Doyle and Daniel Doyle, each one the alterations advised to be made in the orders issued in May were started after they were summoned to court but the court held that that did not relieve them from penalty. Mr. Payne arguing on the behalf of Mr. M. R. Doyle said that the statutes conflicted with respect to a fire escape. The counsel held that before an order for a fire escape could be made through the Factories Act and not through the Fire Marshal Act but both B. C. Donnelly, Assistant Attorney and Lionel Bishop, the inspector, held this was not a true interpretation and this cause could be acted where the Attorney General held that the Fire Marshal's department had the right to order certain structural alterations to protect human life.

The property in dispute is the one at present occupied by the Bowling Alley on Bridge Street east. The Fire Marshal inspector in his inspection in May, explained that the outside door had to swing outward, there had to be certain head room in the stairway and lights placed at convenient points. An order was issued to this effect and delivered by the Fire Chief. Mr. Doyle, in his own defence, stated that he was winding a head bolt placed at the foot of the stairs and that the outside door had been bracketed against the wall. The inspector argued that this did not satisfy the case and Magistrate Mikel assessed the above mentioned fine.

No evidence was offered against Ernest Sprague, when he explained that he was going to build on the property a building that would in every way comply with the regulations. The court granted a postponement of sentence for two months in the understanding that the work was to be started in that time. There is a possibility that more orders will be issued against buildings that do not conform with the fire regulations.

LUSITANIA SURVIVOR DESCRIBED SCENES

a selection from Verdi's "Il Trovatore". There were given in a masterly manner by the talented musician.

In his lecture on the sinking of the Lusitania, Mr. Williams threw forward pictures of the scenes on board the fated ship. He was a member of a chorus of 14 Welsh singers who had been touring Canada and the United States for two years, nine members of whom embarked on the Lusitania on May 1, 1915, for a visit to their home. After an ideal voyage the Irish coast was sighted on Friday, May 7th and there was a happy time on board as passengers seeing the beautiful Irish scenery felt themselves so close to landing.

Terrific Impact.

At two-fifteen that day, when Mr. Williams, with three hundred others were having lunch in the main dining room, a terrifying impact was felt, and the boat staggered, reeled and shuddered. A torpedo had struck the vessel amidship. The diners were terrified and made a mad rush for th stairway leading from the dining room. Fighting and screaming, hurled to the floor from the lurching of the ship, and rising again to fight themselves out of the mob, these people finally reached the main deck where hundreds of others were collected. Life-boats were hastily boarded, and, finally the first of the passengers and crew were ordered to put on the life belts.

Women's families clung together into the ties and when the Lusitania finally sank, the suction carried under hundreds of people who had been in the vicinity of the boats on the surface of the water. Mr. Williams himself was carried down but rose to the surface again, and was able to reach an overturned life boat on which were 14 others.

The scenes about them were terrible. People were screaming in despair and from those who were above were struggling to keep afloat on pieces of the wreckage, there arose such fearful wails that it sounded like an inhuman dreadful music. For five hours there on the life-boat drifted, singing "Abide With Me" and the comforting strains were repeated by many about them. From Queenstown, on the Irish coast a rescue ship arrived. The next day there were horrible scenes in that Irish town as the dead were recovered. Men lost their reason as they realized that all they held dear had been lost. Eleven hundred and ninety-seven of the two thousand on board ship had perished. Six of the Welsh singers survived the three others were never seen again.

Plea Against War.

In concluding his lecture Mr. Williams made a plea for the members of the Christian Church to unite against war.

"The war is over" he said. "We forgive. But for the sake of those who must carry on, we must not forget. When battles recede dimly into history, the disaster of the Lusitania, that was a shock and challenge to the world, will be remembered when ever a proud ship plies the seas, and the waves ebb and flow."

The most heroic instance that Mr. Williams saw during the few minutes before the boat sank, was when a nurse, a young girl of about twenty, stood putting life belts around little children, laughing and smiling with them. She did not pause to put a belt on herself, but in the morning's mail her body was washed ashore at Queenstown still with... a life belt.

The programme last evening was under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the church.

BELLEVILLE SHARPSHOOTERS OFF COLOUR AND KINGSTON CITY HANG UP WIN IN INTERMEDIATE SERIES

Joe Smith Played Smart Game for the Kingston Puck Chasers

SCORE WAS 3-1

Burgoyne's Team Gave Limestone Club Stiff Argument" at Jock Harty Arena

(By Staff Correspondent)

Joe Smith, who has nearly twenty years of competitive hockey behind him, practically brought the downfall of Belleville Intermediates last night, in the Jock Harty Arena at Kingston, when the Limestone City sextette took a fall out of the locals to the tune of a 3-1 score.

Smith the iron man played fifty-eight minutes of peerless hockey, worrying Belleville from the minute the referee's bell started the game, until the final whistle. The other two minutes he spent in the penalty box. Wheeling and circling all over the rink playing every position and his own, Smith constantly worried and harried the local puck carriers speeding deep into Belleville territory after the disc, causing many a mix-up behind the nets and was a constant threat. Muchmore playing on the wing tricked the Belleville defense time and time again although he took some heavy bumps.

ARRIVES HOME

Miss Mildred Bennett, sister of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, who has just arrived in Canada with her brother following an extensive visit to the Motherland.

The local boys didn't seem to be able to find the net last night. A continual rain of discs smote the end of the rink and it is doubtful if Lawlor, in the Kingston goal, had to stop many more than a dozen shots during the entire evening. Murney Green, breaking through twice with nobody but the net, guardian to beat, seemed to lose his usual shooting ability and both times shot weakly into Lawlor's pads. Once Lawlor was flat on his face on the ice and all Murney had to do was gently lift the puck over his prostrate form. He bungled and put the puck right into the goalie's tummy.

Mull notched the only counter for the locals in the second frame, being more accustomed for two of Kingston's tallies while Dougall garnered the third one. Fisher Buskard in the local nets played a splendid game and saved a number of hard shots. He couldn't have saved two of Kingston's tallies if he had been twice white line a third one glanced in off his skate, a tough break. Lawlor is about the slop piest looking net guardian who ever stepped on the ice, clothes colonial and looks had most of the time. However, he didn't have a great deal to do, just skates and is practically as dangerous shots it all to worry him.

Kingston now steps into first place in the intermediate group with one win and no losses. Belleville is in second place with one win and one loss, while Trenton is third with no win and one loss. The local boys will be able to give Kingston a good argument when they pay a visit here next week and there is no reason in the world why they shouldn't beat them. Last night the teams were evenly matched and if Belleville had been able to find the net instead of the end of the rink, they probably would have won.

First Period Scoreless

The first period was scoreless and both teams looked about the same. Right from the starting bell it could be seen that the contest was going to be 100 per cent better than the game against Trenton here on Monday last. "Grumpy" Painter drew the first penalty of the game on a trip. Kingston looked nice and pressed hard. Buskard had a hot time as the shots rained in on him. Johnny Baker broke through and it looked like a sure goal but Dougall and Gallivan, on the Kingston defense, sandwiched him and his shot went wild. Muchmore came down first but was spilled by Painter and Green. Shots shot from the blue line and pretty nearly caught Lawlor flat asleep. Joe Smith drew the second penalty of the game and spent the only two minutes of the entire sixty of the ice. Coming back on the ice, Smith nailed the puck and broke through the defence but Buskard saved nicely. Smith got his own rebound and shot once again, but once more "Rube" was too smart for him. Johnny Baker drew a penalty for tripping. Muchmore looked nice again, and nearly beat Buskard on a hard shot. The period ended with Alec Weir, on a hard drive, almost scoring.

The second frame was all Kingston's. Dougall shot from the blue line and nearly scored. A few seconds Muchmore fooled Green and Painter nicely, and didn't give Buskard a chance of a chance to save. The Limestone City sextette came right back and buzzed around the local net like a herd of hornets Gallivan drew a two minute penalty and was followed to the box about three seconds later by Tommy Painter who spent his second time in durance vile. While these two kids were cooling their heads Dougall captured the puck and broke through to score Kingston's second counter. Things looked black for Belleville and looked worse when in a wild scramble in front of the local net the puck stopped right on the line. A ray of sunshine dispelled the gathering clouds of gloom when Bobby Hull with less than two minutes to go beat Lawlor cold to garner Belleville's one and only goal of the game.

Four Men on Attack

The third period opened with Belleville sending four men down the ice in a desperate endeavour to tie up the score. Murney Green took a nice pass from Tommy Canning and had nobody but Lawlor to beat who was lying flat on the ice. He didn't lift the disc an inch and shot right into the recumbent goalie's body. Belleville pressed hard the whole period but couldn't seem to bring out a scoring threat. Less than two minutes before the end of the game Muchmore broke away and didn't give Buskard a chance, to leave the final score at 3-1.

Mac MacCarthy, from Toronto, handled the game and handled it to the satisfaction of both teams, Burgoyne's men are thirsting for blood and it promises to be a real contest which the fans shouldn't miss when Kingston comes up here next week.

The line-ups—Belleville — Buskard, (G), Green and Painter (D), Johnny and Henry Canning (W); Bick (C); Hull—Baker, Alec Weir and Bob Hull. Kingston—Lawlor (G); Dougall and Gallivan (D), Muchmore and Smith, (W); Boyd (C). Subs—Gibson, Watts Melis.

MANY NOVELS ARE JUSTLY FORGOTTEN

In the second of a series of addresses on the modern novel, Mr. E. C. Kyle, Librarian of Queen's University, spoke before members of the Fraser group last evening at the collegiate library on the novelists of the eighties. These writers he said were industrious and yet most of them are deservedly forgotten, though they achieved one result for the artbringing all humanity within the field of the novel. Olive Schreiner in "The Story of an African Farm" headed the revolt of the feminine world. Grant Allen, a Canadian, was one of the writers of that day. George Gissing commanded more than ordinary attention from the speaker. Dancing has been described as a cirl of angel who had lost his way for he was the man with the muckrake. Revd. Baring-Gould, a believer in witchcraft, yet possessed a tremendous brutality as a relic from his old wrecker ancestors of Devon. "Mehalah", "In the Roar of Sea," and "Court Royal" are fine works. J. H. Shorthouse in "John Inglesant" made a fine contribution to the novel.

Rider Haggard wrote "King Solomon's Mines" in this period this work and others attracting a large following. "Q", Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch in "Dead Man's Rock," and "Troy Town" was very successful. Stanley Weyman wrote "The Gentleman of France" one of the best stories of the cloak and dagger school. "Under the Red Robe," "The Man in Black" and "The House of the Wolf." "Lorna Doone" by Blackmore is a classic, though it is excelled by another book of his "Springhaven."

Conan Doyle was writing in the eighties. Speaking of Sherlock Holmes, the detective in Doyle's work Mr. Kyle said, "A great many people secretly believe Sherlock Holmes exists. This he declared a great achievement—to have added a little-place to the world of fiction. Doyle's "White Company" is an enjoyable work.

Rhoda Broughton discussed frankly love and passion and was turned down by prudes. Prof. Kyle described her as writing of healthy, hearty, pleasant, passionate life.

Mrs. Henry Wood wrote "The Channings." "Oulda" without a sense of humor or knowledge of sport is full of impossibilities but she does depict certain emotions well. W. E. Norris wrote comedies of manners of the mid-Victorian era, his novels being not deep but pleasant.

One of the outstanding books "The Pariah" is by Anstey, who also wrote "Vice Versa" and "Man from Blankleys." Richard Jefferies "Twilight of the Gods" ought to be read. Robert Louis Stevenson is most successful in "New Arabian Nights" and "Prince Otto" and "The Dynamiter." Richard Jefferys wrote as poet of nature "Amaryllis at the Fair." George Moore's "Untilled Field" is a masterly study of emotion. Moore set out to be heartless and succeeded; he has been one of the considerable novelists of the day. Mrs. Humphrey Ward was never really a novelist, though she nearly became one. She came of the intellectual Arnolds and met only the intellectuals. "Robert Elsmere" is one of her best books. The historian of the future will have to go to her works for the study of the upper classes of English society in the Victorian era, though she is little read today.

Henry James wrote "The Turn of the Screw" one of the world's great short stories. He wrote novelist's prose. "What Maisie Knew" is one of his best works. His prefaces are the finest set of rules for writing books, he knew his art but could no receive himself. Margaret L. Woods' "A Village Tragedy" is one of the notable works of the period under discussion.

NEW PERSONALITY FLASHES ON CANADIAN SCREEN MARLENE DIETRICH IS ENTHRALLING IN "MOROCCO"

A new co-starring team looms on the motion picture horizon. And, from all indications, it seems very promising indeed that these two players will achieve considerable popularity together. The male half of this team is Gary Cooper. The female half is a newcomer to the audible screen. Her name is Marlene Dietrich, a ravishing, sphinx-like blond who has scored an outstanding success on the Berlin stage.

Their first picture together is Paramount's "Morocco", a vivid and tempestuous story of the adventurous love which director Josef Von Sternberg has fashioned, together with compelling and fascinating skill. Gary Cooper plays the role of a ruthless adventurer of the Foreign Legion. Incidentally this is one of Cooper's best later roles. And Marlene Dietrich with boundless finesse and distinction, creates a beautiful and alluring woman of the world to whom love brings its full share of happiness and bitterness. Playing together these two are a delight to watch and a joy to listen to. For rarely have two such contrasting personalities so perfectly suited the mood of the other. Given every opportunity for emotional expression Miss Dietrich and Gary Cooper give performances that are credit and a tribute to the sincere understanding of their characterizations.

The atmospheric backgrounds of "Morocco" are praiseworthy planning the feeling of the story with subtle shadings and effects. Morocco, city of twisted streets and stealthy men and women; of bragging, boisterous Legion paires; city of glittering wealth and wretched poverty is vividly and realistically brought to life on the screen. Such is the background of this deeply moving story; a story to command the attention of all who are interested in vital, suspense-filled, carefully detailed drama.

Included in the strong supporting cast are Adolphe Menjou, Michael Visaroff, Juliette Compton, Albert Conti, Francis MacDonald, Ulrich Haupt and Paul Porcasi.

"Morocco" will be shown at the Belle Theatre Saturday and Monday matinee daily.

MCCAFFERY TO PROVIDENCE

Providence, R.I., 15 —Jean Dubon, president of the Providence team in the Canadian-American Hockey League announced last night that Art Lesieur, local defence player, would join the Canadiens of the National League Thursday night. The Reds will obtain Bert McCaffery from the Canadiens in exchange.

Popularity of the name Lafayette in America is shown by the fact that 5 geographic locations bear the name.

Catarrhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint double strength and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Coughs usually should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

BELLEVILLE BRANCH MAY TAKE LEAD IN CANADIAN RADIO FIELD

Stewart Warner Plant Flooded With Orders for New Models

MAJOR INDUSTRY

Night and Day Staffs Employed to Maintain the Production

Ten years ago the radio industry was in the embryo in Canada. Five years ago it was in the infancy stage, and although it had developed amazingly, it was the subject for deep research on the part of the world's leading scientists and engineers. Today, five years later, radio has hitched its wagon to a star and is numbered as one of the major industrial enterprises of the Dominion. Great things are predicted for radio and no one can foretell what tremendous and far-reaching changes the next decade will see.

W. E. ROWSOME

Belleville is now one of the chief distributing and manufacturing centres of radio in Canada. The Stewart Warner Alemite Products Co. is on the threshold of a great era of expansion, and under present signs fail, the staff and buildings will not be adequate, to take care of the increasing demand for the Stewart Warner products.

Last night Mayor George A. Reid, members of the city council, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies were guests of Mr. W. E. Rowsome, general manager, and the staff of the plant, when a tour of inspection was made. Over one hundred people, learning of the activity at the east-end factory, were taken through the establishment from cellar to dome.

What they saw amazed them. In the radio stock room they saw hundreds of the tiniest parts each carefully separated. Following the process they observed the assembling of these parts, until at the other end of the line they heard the dance and dinner programs from New York, Pittsburg and Chicago.

Mystery to Layman

To the average layman radio is a mystery. He knows how to turn the dial and pick up his favorite station, but insofar as the actual mechanism is concerned, it is just a tangled mass of wires, tubes and posts.

Only last year the radio department was added to the plant, but with the depression, business at first was not what was expected. During the recent autumn the popularity of Stewart Warner began to assert itself and gradually the staff was augmented until now, dozens of girls and young men are engaged in this highly-accomplished art. Instructors took days to teach the girls, and now their fingers move like lightning in assembling the machines.

Harry Evans, who is a graduate of the Stewart Warner plant, has performed visitors that the facilities have reached the stage, where it is now possible to turn out three hundred radios a day. This seems almost beyond comprehension, but nevertheless it is a fact.

Nimble fingers sorted the little parts and as the frames were shoved along the assembling line, the machines assumed form in which they are best known to the radio fan. Finally they reached the testing room where experts sought to detect the slightest flaw which might mar perfect reception or tone.

"Canada has gone Stewart Warner this year," exclaimed Mr. W. E. Rowsome, general manager, "and we are going to put Belleville on the map in a radio sense."

Big Order for Canso

In order to fill an order for one thousand machines for Vancouver, B. C., the staff is working at top pitch, and the office and mechanical staffs will be pressed to the limit to meet the demand from the coast. Orders are coming in from other points in Canada as well and this winter will see no idle minutes in the Stewart Warner plant. The guests were informed that while a small quantity of the raw material comes from the United States, the bulk of it was made in Canada and the Belleville product will be almost entirely Canadian.

The cabinets are manufactured by Gilbards of Napanee, and they are entirely of walnut with a beautiful finish. Gilbard's are working night and day staffs to keep up the output.

Stewart Warner radios embrace all that is modern. Superlative tone quality and appearance have been achieved by expert engineers who were determined to turn out the finest product possible.

The Final Officials

That Belleville is becoming a "Radio hive" is due in no small measure to Mr. W. E. Rowsome, general manager of the local plant. He interested himself in radio some years ago, when the Stewart Warner product was first introduced.

Arthur Young, plant superintendent of the Alemite, has been the chief lieutenant in the development, while two highly competent officials were secured in Harry Evans, production manager and Orville Hill, chief engineer.

Stanley Hagerman is chief sales manager for Canada, while Frank Barrett is sales manager for the local district. Mr. Hooper, chief engineer of Chicago, was in attendance last night.

Mayor Reid opened last night's proceedings when he picked a radio chassis off the line and started it operating in the general manager's office. The model had not even been tested, but the rich-lifelike tone, perfect reception and beautiful finish were more than pleasing.

Officials of the city, the Mayor and Aldermen were particularly impressed with the plant and all who visited the factory last night are convinced that Belleville is forging to the front in one of the major industries of the Dominion.

L. F. Green, superintendent of the local Government Employment office, said today: "It is indeed a privilege to inspect the up-to-date factory of the Stewart Warner Alemite Corp. and see the workers so interested in their work, and to know that thirty-eight per cent. are people residents of Belleville." "The latest type of machinery, cleanliness of the factory and personnel of the entire staff reflected great credit on the management."

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Ma and me took my sister Gladdies baby out for a ride in his baby carriage this afternoon, and we saw Lefty Shoosters mother pushing his sisters baby, me asking to no, that I was surprised to heer that Willie is crawling a-ready. She'll be jellis too, Im sure of that, she sed.

And when we came up to her ma sed, Good afternoon Mrs. Shooster, how's little Mildred?

She's just as cuteck as she looks, if possible, Mrs. Shooster sed. Izzent your little grandson looking a triffle chin? she sed.

Its quite possible, I bleeve he's been exercising too much, ma sed. You know he's crawling now, yes indeed, the moment we put him on the floor he's off like a flash, she sed.

Little Mildred never made any attempts to crawl, Mrs. Shooster sed, and ma sed, Izzent that too bad, but then some babies are naturally a little slow by nature. Id be ony too happy to have little Willie give her en exhibition of it mite stir up her little faculties of imitation, she sed.

Well the truth is, little Mildred started rite in wawking without bother long to crawl first, Mrs. Shooster sed. Its reely most unusual, everybody says so. You must come in a moment and see her, she sed.

No thanks, reely, I must keep Willie out in the air, ma sed, and Mrs. Shooster sed, But I insist, its reely a remarkable site, Benny will mind Willie a few minnits.

And she went in her house with her and prittu soon she came out agen and we kepp on going, me saying, Did she reely do it, ma? and me saying, I suppose some people would call it wawking, but she bring onlo a chair the whole time like a drowning man, its what Id call a very undeveloped method, and any body that starts using subterfuges so erly in life leasnt to be trusted very far in my opinion, she sed.

Proving a grammother never runs out of arguements.

Wallbridge

The first meeting of Wallbridge W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid was held at Mrs. Sherey's home, Jan. 7th.

The Ladies Aid served usual noontime luncheon with 18 ladies present. The W.M.S. then had their meeting with the officers of 1930 retained for the New Year: The pres. Mrs. J. Chisholm opened with the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" for consecration and led in prayer.

Roll call and report by secretary, Mrs. W. Sine.

Mrs. G. A. Keichesen, treasurer, gave a gratifying report, being in excess of last year. The auxiliary raised the allocation completely by systematic giving.

A letter from Rev. McMullen was read acknowledging goods sent to the Dundas Mission. Pres. gave a stimulating talk for coming year, using "Caste your bread upon the water." Mrs L. J. Keichesen, convener of her group then took charge. She had a pastor give a talk on the book of St. Mark, which he will continue for the next two months.

The meeting was closed with prayer.

Ladies Aid was opened by Mrs. J. While, (one of the Vice-Pres.) by singing "All hail the power of Jesus' Name."

A leader for the society is chosen at each meeting by drawing the names of three members and one of the three are responsible for the work of that month. Mrs. C. Fisher, Mrs. F. Woods and Mrs. L. J. Keichesen's names being drawn for the month of February.

Other business was discussed and the meeting was closed with a hymn and a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Shorey. The February meeting to be held at Mrs. Leonard Sines.

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

The total number of suicides in the United States in 1928 was 5,561.

HENRY B. HUNT CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY

This year the weather has been odd. Early summer, a stormy when the climate was so variable."

Came Here 86 Years Ago.

Henry B. Hunt came to Belleville in 1845. That was just eighty-six years ago, and Belleville wasn't what you might call as prosperous or as large a place as it is today. His father was Burleigh Hunt hailing from Kingston, Illinois. The family located on a farm on the Trenti Road about seven miles from the present city limits. A nephew lives on that very same farm today. Burleigh Hunt and his brother owned a number of lots above the upper bridge, and also above the railroad bridge.

Henry Hunt attended school in Belleville, going first of all to W. J. Kerr's institution of learning and later attending J. Sterling's emporium of knowledge. He had no grand old days there were four public schools in the city the same number is to-day, but they had no auto system. The pupils paid fifty cents a quarter for the privilege of getting an education. Mr. Hunt attended school with "Jimmy" Roy, another aged and respected citizen of Belleville.

In Hardware Business

When he entered his business career as a youngman, Mr. Hunt had a number of positions before he finally ended up in his last "job", that as owner of a hardware store, the present Walker's Hardware. He was accountant for the Grange Wholesale Supply Co., of Toronto and lived in the Queen City for eleven years. He spent twenty years on and off in the United States as a traveller. He worked for Messrs. Foster Milburne Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., as a commercial man.

In 1867 he married the eldest daughter of John Lasher, a manufacturer of Belleville. From this union there was born four children, but, all have now passed away as has his wife. But Mr. Hunt is not lonely. His brother, before he died, left nineteen grand children and Mr. Hunt does not lack for company.

Many, many years ago, he doesn't remember the exact date, Henry B. Hunt, Walter Hervis and J. W. Walker, the father of the present Clifford C. Walker, Aldermen, started a hardware business on Front street in the very same property now occupied by the Walker Hardware Co. The business was known as H. B. Hunt Hardware Co., and prospered mightily. In 1912 Mr. Hunt decided to retire and he built his present lovely home on Highland avenue.

Mr. Hunt is a little too old now to have any recreations, but just moreso than reaching to him! Many years ago he was one of the most enthusiastic yachtsmen who ever sailed a boat in Belleville, and Belleville at that time possessed practically all the inc and cabin yachts in Ontario. He was one of the owners of the yacht "Surprise", a trim craft of around nine tons or so, and did plenty of sailing. He too can remember the famous "Atalanta" although he did not sail aboard her when she raced for the Americ'n cup. "Those were the days for yachting," he chuckled. "We had practically all the first class yachts in Ontario right here in Belleville and had one or two fine 1st class boats the "Rivet" and the "Spray."

In conclusion it might be said that, although the "talkies" have swept the country by storm Mr. Hunt does not believe in them. "I have never been to one," he admits. Furthermore, he says he isn't likely to go, either.

CUBS PREPARED FOR COLLEGE IN TONIGHT'S GAME

Locals Must (Win to Stay in Running for Group Honors

Belleville fans who attend the game at the Arena tonight between R.M.C. and the Cubs, will see one of the classiest goalies in junior hockey who is destined to travel far in his hobby. That boy is Bigelow, and in all games he has been a standout. Bigelow is one of the other players are big rangy lads, with plenty of condition and able to go the route. All teams from the Military College are in what is known as "the pink," and they will be skating when the rest of the teams are in the cooler. Their condition and fast skating are not worrying the Cubs as they intend to win by a decisive count and show the town they have a real hockey club. The game will no doubt be clean, as the Cadets are not allowed to become rough in any manner since hockey at the college is played purely for sport's sake. Professor Galley is mentor of the hockey team and there are few who know the game any better.

Sam Burgoyne has been drilling the Cubs since their unexpected defeat at the hands of Kingston, and the boys have been assimilating that coaching and look all over a better team than they have all season. If a defect is registered tonight, the boys will at once hang up their sticks and Walter, and the Cubs are not ready to do that little thing just at present. The team members are hoping that Kingston and the locals are in the Kingston come here on February 13th for their return game.

Practically the same team will be trotted out as did duty at Kingston and the fans can be assured of a real fast game. Bobby Armstrong of Toronto will handle the ball. The prices have been greatly reduced for the game, the south end being thirty five and the remainder of the house four-bits. The boys would appreciate your attendance.

Y'S MEN MADE GOOD SHOWING IN QUEEN'S GAME

Local Cagers Tied With Trinity at New College Gym

Yesterday evening the Y's Men's Club Basketball Team journeyed to the Queen Alma City for a practice game of basketball against the Queen's representatives in the Intercollegiate series. It had been planned to play this game on the new gymnasium floor of the University but due to the fact the basket equipment and court lines had not been completed, the game had to be played on the old gymnasium. The score was 19-19.

The Y's Men took down with great cheers the members of the team being unable to make the trip. Quite on the other hand tried out quite a number of candidates for the team making frequent changes in their line up.

The second half saw more action than the initial period when the Y's Men players were scarcely warmed up after their somewhat cold car ride to the Eastern city and throughout the balance of the game the score was sawed back and forth with first one, then the other team in the lead. Just before the final timers signal sounded the Y's Men had a chance to win the game when awarded a foul shot but failure to secure the single left the teams deadlocked.

The Teams

Queens University—Elliott 2; Thompson 3; Carter, McLaughlin 3; Bews Myres 5; Filton; Ross, McMahon, Hellet 2; McGill 2 Total 19.

Y's Men—McPee; Kvoy 2; Davison 4; Allen 2; Bonner 4; White; Walters; Wehr 7; Total 19.

Last night's game was of great value to the Y's Men as a workout in preparation for their league fixture on Saturday night against the R.M.C. cadets. Phil Brockel, Mentor of the Eastern Division in the O.A.B.A., reports that the Military College is represented by a strong Quint this year, and is scheduled for 6.30 p.m. and will be preceded by a preliminary game between a team of Albert College Boys and the Y.M.C.A. Midgets.

Not one case of parrot disease (psittacosis) has been reported in Ontario since May when the embargo date the importation of parrots has been banned.

INAUGURAL MEETING WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY AT CENTENARY

Centenary, Jan. 14 (By Mail)—The Women's Association of the Women's Missionary Society held their joint postponed annual meeting at the Church on Thursday, Jan. 8th, with a goodly number attending. The meeting had to be postponed on account of illness in the neighborhood. The Ladies of the Young Men's Own Lower Second provided a bountiful dinner which everyone enjoyed.

Women's Association was then opened with the Pres. Mrs. Roy Thrasher in the chair. The hymn "Jesus Saviour Hear us" was sung followed with prayer by Mrs. J. Wellman and the minutes by Mrs. J. Kelly. There were many to answer the roll call and Mrs. Jas. Parr and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton were appointed auditors both for the W.A. and W.M.S., 1930 treasurer's work. A few matters of business were then disposed of. Next came election of officers for 1931, which resulted in the re-appointments for their hearty support in all the association's undertakings but wished to withdraw as Pres. for another year. The members were loathe to part with so able a leader but in Mrs. Robt. Hall found a guide out o'er the rough places in 1931 and we confident we shall find one who will prove equally as capable. Mrs. Milton Vandervoort continues as Honorary Pres., and Mrs. Jas. Ray as 1st Vice-Pres., and Mrs. J. Kelley as Sec. Mrs. C. Herman who has been a worthy treasurer asked to resign—and Mrs. Harry Roblin will take over her work. Mrs. Ray was required for 1931 will be Mrs. Geo. Shortt.

The W.M.S. meeting was opened by singing Hymn 154 and prayer by Mrs. Jas. Radford followed by the Lord's Prayer The Roll call was taken and reports from the different departments were heard, also the minutes were read. The allocation has been met this past year and taken as a whole the year has been most successful. Mrs. Roy Thrasher with the alternative Mrs. D. A. Thrasher was appointed to attend the Presbyterial Convention in Picton this month, lately rainless.

STIRLING HIGH LOST TO MADOC

Fast Game Resulted in Victory for the Home Team

Madoc, January, 14 (By Mail)—An exhibition game played between Madoc High School boys and Stirling Junior team in Madoc Skating Rink on Monday evening resulted in a score of 2-0 in favor of the home team. The ice was sticky, therefore the game was slower that it otherwise would have been, but a good game was put up by visitors and home team alike.

The best plays were made in the first period, and goals were made by Rinkert and Ross for Madoc, with no penalties for Madoc, and one for Stirling.

In the second period the play was much rougher, with several penalties awarded to each team. Stirling got five penalties in this period, and Madoc boys three. No score was made for either team.

No score was the result of the third and last period, though several long shots were tried by the Stirling lads, also several fast rushes attempted by both teams. Penalties were awarded for Stirling to the number of three, Madoc earning a like number.

For the visitors, Bain starred his playing by long many trips to the "Cooler." Lohnes, Stirling goalie, improved as the game progressed. The two goals which beat him were pretty combination efforts and it would have been highway robbery if he had got either.

As a whole, Stirling team were made up of good players and the best feeling existed between the teams. The soft ice had much to do with many of the penalties awarded.

For Madoc, it would not be fair to single out any individual player. Their team play was the main cog, both goals being the result of unselfish passing. Nickle, in goal as the score indicates was unbeatable. Ashley, as usual was a "Stone wall" on defense, while Wolf did nice rushing. Our reliable Alex was good, as usual, while Whytock and Akey completed a fast, effective line. Ross, forward is a fine stick handler, and Nickle with a few practices will fit in at defense well.

Final score, 2-0, for Madoc.

DUKES DEFEATED KITCHENER TEAM

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Marlboros, by their 4 to 1 victory over Kitchener Flying Dutchmen in last night's O.H.A. senior game at the Arena Gardens, moved up to a tie with Hamilton in the standing and now have the cheery prospect of facing the men in the Tigertown on the latters' ice in their next game a week from today to break the tie. Critchlitters evidently do not work in the cold weather. Last night's game was an ordinary affair in which there was little crinkilling. Which practically to determine the result of the injury. In any event it is unlikely that he will be able to take the ice against the Toronto Maple Leafs in the Garden tomorrow night.

Les Patrick, Ranger manager, says the Rangers would have beaten Boston Tuesday if Bill had been able to shoot. There or four times he broke through the Bruin defence but when he tried to make a shot he was helpless.

The first forty years of life furnish the text, the remainder theirs the commentary.—Schopenhauer.

A book is good or bad according to whether it makes us want to do better or worse.

RANGER FORWARD IS LOST TO TEAM

New York, Jan. 15—Bill Cook, one of the greatest wing men in hockey, may be lost to the Rangers for weeks. The veteran forward's right wrist and hand are swollen to twice their natural proportions. It was injured in a recent game with Detroit and the injury was aggravated Sunday and Tuesday nights in rough set-tos with the Hawks and Bruins.

It is feared that Bill's wrist may be broken and an X-ray will be taken today to determine the extent of the injury. In any event it is unlikely that he will be able to take the ice against the Toronto Maple Leafs in the Garden tomorrow night.

OSHAWA PATS AND NIAGARA FALLS TIED

Oshawa, Jan. 15.—Playing ten minutes' overtime Oshawa Pats failed to break a three-all tie with Niagara Falls in an exciting Ontario Hockey League match in the Motor City last night. The game was rough, both teams being handed many penalties.

Teams:

Niagara Falls—Goal, Fisher; defence, Moore and Kwasnie; centre, Manners; wings, Smith and McLeod; subs, Laroche, Matte, Lowery and Sullivan.

Oshawa — Goal, Paught; defence, Davey and Green; centre, Rice; wings, Joyce and Gilmore; subs, Lott, Mellwain, Murphy and Lickey.

Christian warfare needs now as ever a brave and earnest heart.—Selected.

STRATFORD BEAT GUELPH LEAFS

Stratford, Jan. 15—With Big Steve Yankoski back on the defence here last night the Stratford Nationals atoned for their 3 to 0 shut-out at Guelph last week by trimming the visiting Maple Leafs by the same whitewashing method and for good measure added one counter to Guelph's total in Guelph.

The final score was 4 to 0 but this does not show the trend of the play as the visitors passed up several glorious scoring chances. Stratford deserved to win and on the form shown will give the rest of the teams in the loop plenty of argument from this on.

In addition to Yankoski on the defence, Kuntz was also a newcomer to the Nationals and turned in a mighty smart effort, giving two assists. He stick-handled prettily and beat the Leafs defence with ease, but was unfortunate when it came to beating Prentone in the net. This chap, by the way, saved his mates from a worse trimming. Norfolk, in the other game, was equally as good, in fact some of his saves bordered on the sensational.

LONDON TRIMMED SYRACUSE TEAM

Syracuse, Jan. 15—London Tecumsehs defeated the Syracuse Stars by 6 to 2 in an International League hockey match here last night. Long Starr's few scoring opportunities in the home's rugged defence permitted only sporadic periods while the Tecumsehs consistently rocked through with their faster attacks. One goal, early in the third didn't count because the Londoners had taken Farrell out of the net with a football block. With two minutes to go, however, the Tecumsehs broke through for one that did count. Farrell made two fine saves on a pass at the net, but on the rebound from the second save Goldsworthy tapped the puck in before Farrell could recover himself and Moore and Rommes were credited with assists.

London—Goal, Stuart; defence, Hollway and Hicks; centre, Pettinger; wings Groh and Quanneville; subs, Laughlin, Rommes, Goldsworthy, Reinhardt, Kuntz, Connors and Moore.

Syracuse — Goal Farrell; defence, Hughes and Paddon; centre, Holmes, wings, Markle and Klein; subs Brown Hland, Pelangia, Teasdale, Pournier and McKnight.

Referee—Mike Rodden, Toronto.

CHARLES HANNA IS RE-ELECTED

the hearty co-operation of each and every director during the past year. The exhibitors were thanked for their support also the municipal councils adjacent to the city, the County Council and also the City Council. "The Belleville fair is established beyond a doubt," said Mr. Hanna and "is one of the best fairs per capita in the Province. It only requires the same thought and executive ability that has been given in the past to bring the fair to a standard now held by Toronto, Ottawa, London and other large centres. We have every advantage in this district for a bright and up-to-date fair and the public now knowing that everyone has the interest of the fair at heart will make a determined effort to bring the fair up to the required standard."

Financial Statement

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, H. H. Ketcheson and confirmed by the meeting after which A. C. Datoe, the treasurer, gave a financial statement that was greeted with an outburst of applause. The treasurer stated that nearly $2,000.00 profit was made last year, which was a wonderful condition considering the state of the country at large, last fall. Lumber to build new sheds and other equipment is included before the profit was arrived at and with no expenses like this for next year, daylight can be seen by those in charge. I might say that the fair board has enjoyed a prosperous year, and the whole executive is to be congratulated on their achievement said Mr. Datoe in conclusion.

It was decided to affiliate with the central and Provincial fairs associations and the required fees will be forwarded to these bodies. The decision to conduct a field crop competition in connection with the fair will be left to the incoming directorate. The meeting was unanimous that departmental judges be secured at least for the main classes. It was announced that the Central Ontario Fairs Association would meet in Belleville on January 28th, Mr. H. B. Stock, of this city, is the energetic president of this body. The meeting endorsed the president, secretary and treasurer as delegates to this meeting as well as to the Provincial Fairs Association which will be held in Toronto on February 5th and 6th.

Hanna Re-Elected

The next important business to transact was the election of officers for the ensuing year and this was done by ballot, Fred Chamberlain and C. D. Tice being appointed scrutineers. Mr. Hanna, R. M. Mitchell, H. E. Fairfield, C. J. Symons and David A. Thrasher were nominated for this office with, all withdrawing excepting Charles E. Hanna and Robert M. Mitchell. The ballot was close but Mr. Hanna won again the choice of the members to lead them on to greater effort. In accepting the honor conferred upon, him the newly elected president stated it would be his aim to work hard along with the directors to make the fair a success. Five were nominated for first vice-president, but all withdrew in favor of R. M. Mitchell, the incumbent of the office last year. H. B. Stock in a contest with Earl Benter for the office of second vice-president was victor. It was decided to elect directors that receive more than fifty per cent. of the vote cast and this required two ballots to determine the board. Mayor George A. Reid was elected by a vote of the whole meeting and in thanking the members present made an important announcement with regards to work to be done in the vicinity of the fair grounds. The complete board of Directors elected were Earl Bonter, Earl Weese, Dr. O. O. Reed, H. E. Fairfield, C. J. Symons, David Thrasher, C. L. Babcock, A. B. Symons, Fred Denyes, D. W. Valleau, W. Bamford, Harry Ketcheson, F. M. Rutherford, J. Hitchings and Mayor George A Reid. Other directors will be appointed by the new board as well as the secretary and treasurer. An organization meeting of the new board will be held on Monday night next in the fair board room on Front Street.

Many old veterans of the fair board were missed from the meeting, one being R. J. Garbutt and a resolution was packed expressing the regret of the board on the illness of his wife to be accompanied by flowers. A letter of sympathy was also sent to Mrs. (Dr.) Hay of Campbellford, secretary of the central association in the death of her husband, also Charles Panter, who is ill in the hospital. The meeting then adjourned.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

"One moment, please Mr. Tyrell. Your action would be merely wasting your time and that of the court. I shall remand the prisoner immediately to the Superior Court, with a request to the judge thereof that her case be taken up immediately. I sentence this prisoner to ninety days in the county jail, but the sentence will be suspended during her good behavior for one year from date. A bailiff will conduct you, your expert witness and the defendant at once to Department Number Six of the Superior Court, and I will immediately telephone to the judge and request that he listen to your expert witness."

As they entered the Superior Court, the judge glanced at a document which evidently had reached him from the police magistrate's court. "Mr. Tyrell, I understand you desire to present some expert testimony in an effort to prove the mental irresponsibility of this defendant, Nance Belden. I may state that I have already been in telephonic communication with Dr. Blethen, and have had a complete report from him on this case. You may proceed, however, to present your side of it. Who is your witness?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt, your honor," and Tyrell indicated Stephen.

"I know all about Dr. Burt," the judge said pleasantly "I had him in my court a year ago as an expert witness in the matter of the Carter Will case." he added to Stephen. "This court is very much interested in getting at the facts in this case and it is obliged to you for your voluntary attendance. What is your professional opinion of this girl's mentality?"

"I have not had a fair opportunity to study her, Your Honor," Stephen replied, "hence I am not in a position to give the court more than a snap decision."

"How long have you studied her?"

"About thirty minutes, your honor."

"Hm-m-m! Dr. Blethen examined her on three different occasions, his examination embodying a total of about six hours' time."

"With all due deference to my distinguished colleague," Stephen replied with his singularly charming smile, "six hours is not usually considered more than sufficient time to form an approximate opinion, which subsequent investigations may set at variance. If this girl were to become a patient of mine today, I should devote many weeks to an effort to demonstrate that my original opinion regarding her was in error."

"Is she crazy, Dr. Burt?"

"Not in the sense that we customarily employ the term, Your Honor. I should rather, that her psychology is abnormal, that she is neither moral or immoral, but unmoral. For instance, when I asked her why she stole silk stockings, she told me quite frankly that she did it because there were runs in all her old stockings. That reply was very illuminating. As I talked further with her I noted her variant, moods and quickly came to the conclusion that she is suffering from dissociation by reason of shock. In other words, this girl, who doubtless in happier days possessed a single personality and that a normal one, has now acquired a secondary personality In plain English, two entirely different people inhabit the one body.

"The first personality, which I shall call A, is the result of acquired instincts, habit, education, and repressions imposed on society by convention and the code of procedure which we call morals. This has been submerged wholly or in part by a second personality, which I shall call B, and when B personality rules her she has amnesia for what I have termed her acquired or normal instincts. Out of her unconscious mind then emerge, as definite impulses to action, the old antipathies to such action, which we mental men term complexes.

Let me illustrate. We will assume that at this moment she is possessed of her personality A, and in this state she realizes he has run in all her stockings—that she must have new stockings. She also realizes that she has no money with which to purchase new stockings, but she sees some stockings which she can readily steal. Normal people often have impulses to steal, Your Honor, and Nance Belden has an impulse to steal the stockings she needs.

But here a factor intervenes. She has been taught, from the day she reasoned, that it is wrong to steal, and this moral lesson has impressed itself upon her conscious mind. With repetition, the thought, becoming a habit, dropped out of her conscious mind to become conserved in her unconscious mind. Concerning there, it became a definite part of her personality—her soul, if you will. Thereafter, it was not necessary to remind herself that it was wrong to steal. She knew it was, without having to think about it at all, and this unconscious knowledge was her protection in the fleeting moment of temptation, crossed by her definite need and the knowledge that, lacking money to buy the stockings, and faced with the absolute necessity for acquiring stockings, the sole alternative was to steal them. She got no further than that vague, conscious thought. Immediately the knowledge that it was immoral to steal—that nothing could possibly excuse her—rose out of her unconscious mind and became a dominating conscious thought. Now, right there appeared the mental phenomenon known among psychiatrists as a complex or conflict. In all conflicts the stronger wins—and in this particular mental conflict, the will not to steal won instantly. It was an older habit of thought. It was an acquired instinct, whereas the impulse to steal was not a habit of thought, because she had never indulged in theft! We say we do a thing on instinct, but really we act after due, if fractionally brief cogitation, based on reason, which is the result of habituation to doing certain things.

"This defendant, Your Honor, is a healthy girl as far as I can judge from outward appearances. But she is what you often hear referred to as hysterical. And she is so unusually intelligent that I readily realized there must have been a very potent reason for the commission of such an unintelligent act as theft. So immediately I commenced to question her as to her family, her past.

"She could tell me nothing. She is not at all sure that her name is Nance Belden, and I am satisfied that her inability to throw any light on her genesis was not born of a desire to withhold that information. I believe she has amnesia for a certain period of her life, and we know that such a condition is usually the result of a severe mental shock. In such cases the patient usually has an intense desire to forget absolutely the unsavory, unpleasant or terrifying episode or person that produced the shock, and so intense is the power of will in certain highly sensitive people, women particularly, that not infrequently they succeed! Thus amnesia is produced. It is, in a sense, autohypnosis, and Your Honor undoubtedly is aware that people who have been hypnotized remember nothing of what occurs during the hypnotic state."

"I believe I follow you," the judge murmured.

"I have shown you why the normal personality, Golden would not steal. But now comes that mental shock I spoke of, with consequent amnesia for all of her life that has preceded it; or it may be a part of that life With the amnesia comes what we term dissociation or mental disintegration. The unconscious overwhelms the conscious, the acquired instincts of morality—social usage—drop out of the conscious into the unconscious, and the thoughts, and impulses that have lain dormant and defeated in the unconscious are now in the saddle. Unfortunate who have acquired dual personalities or a dissociated personality from one personality into the other and back again, with no memory amnesia for the preceding state.

"At a time when Nance Belden's second personality (B) ruled her, and she decided to steal those stockings, she was acting under the impulsion of an idea that could not be combated. To steal had become an acquired instinct, or at least a very strong instinct. There may have been a certain amount of repression against the act at first but gradually that repressive instinct, or her moral instincts, once part of her conscious mind but now relegated to her unconscious mind, grew weaker until finally the stronger instinct won, and the result is, we have Nance Belden up before Your Honor for commitment to San Quentin penitentiary on a suspended sentence for grand theft."

"I have a very definite theory as to what prepared the ground, so to speak, for the mental shock but I have not the slightest idea of the nature of the shock."

"This is most interesting, Dr. Burt. Pray explain."

INSTALMENT V

"Look carefully at this defendant, Your Honor. You see a young woman about five feet, five inches high—normal height for a woman of her age, which I imagine to be about twenty-one or twenty-two. How much do you weigh, Miss Belden?"

"A hundred and twenty-eight, Steve."

"A hundred and twenty-eight. He took the girl's hand and counted her pulse. Then he took a stethoscope from his pocket, placed it against her left breast and listened. "Her pulse and heart beat normally, Your Honor, and from her appearance of general good health we have no reason to suspect pulmonary trouble. Her skin is clear, soft and smooth; it is free from blemishes—another indication of good health. Her face is fine and lustrous; not dry and lifeless, as is the case of a person of pronounced psychopath ic tendencies. Her eyes are full, luminent, kindly, intelligent. Her brow is full, broad and of medium height, her head a little larger than that of the average woman, and she is broad between the ears—because, as she has perhaps she remembers, or used to remember herself as beautiful, or attractive; then this accident occurred and she became an ugly duckling. She brooded upon her misfortune; she wept over it, doubtless she thought it very hard that God should afflict her so. Doubtless the knowledge that she was an object of curiosity or derision to strangers and repugnance to her friends made of her a gloomy, depressed recluse. Who knows what wild, desperate and desolate thoughts she became a prey to? Mental conflicts undoubtedly were at work—an impulse to run away, to hide herself, countered by the natural impulse to make the best of the situation, to be brave, to pretend she was not different.

"Have you any theory as to what this mental shock might be, Doctor Burt?"

In the case of a girl whose mind and nerves had been thus harassed over a long period, a new sorrow, constituting a definite mental shock, even if of no great magnitude might nevertheless be sufficient to bring about the condition of dissociation or personality which I have described."

"Anything else, Dr. Burt?"

WHEN WINTER COMES

Whether mild weather and the usual type of winter provide youth and childhood with the fullest benefits of winter is to be doubted. Winters are supposed to bring a heavy fall of snow in which the young children and those others growing up will disport themselves to the consequent enrichment of their bodies and minds. For sledding there is not uniformly enough snow, for ski-joring there is as little, for snowshoeing there is much less and as for skating in the open there is very little owing to the lack of water in the creeks.

Snow has a powerful lure to those who are not blessed to live in a land where snow is an ordinary winter accompaniment. The Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau reports an unprecedented number of inquiries from United States citizens as to whether there is or is not ample frost with snow for visitors.

But the outsider no more desires snow than the native Canadian child who loves to think of games and snowhouses and frolic. He likes to have his winters accompanied by snow and sufficient frost to make his games snappy like a real winter climate.

THE FILTER

In less than three months it is expected that the new filtration plant for the purification of the water supply of Belleville will be ready for operation, As a purified water supply is of the utmost importance to a community, it is also one of the signs of a healthy community development. Belleville will welcome drinking water from the most modern of plants.

A QUESTION OF CLIMATE

Is the climate changing, is the winter moderating year by year, is the glacial ice cap receding in the Arctic north of Canada? If the last question is answered in the affirmative, the others can be answered in the same word "Yes." Recent explorations in the far north of Canada have brought back records of forest growth much greater than prevailed several generations ago by explorers in the same areas, and also stories of the now grown with sturdy trees where once seemed mostly barren rock. Such surveys may prove that the climate of Canada is getting warmer though it is hardly be expected to show radical changes from year to year.

THIRD MOTOR MANUFACTURING COUNTRY

Canada stands third in the production of motorcars according to the Canadian Pacific Railway, quoting the 1929 record. There was an increase in the number of complete passenger cars and complete trucks, in that area over 1928 figures. As the production of trucks jumped from 17,527 to 50,293 in 1929, the general notion in the public mind that they were more numerous is substantiated. this is the natural turn to the truck to oust the horse and wagon from the delivery business.

With the increase of cars and trucks in 1929 in manufacture to $177,315,000 the imports declined six per cent. to $84,195,000.

"CHIEF" CITIZENS

The police of Sheffield, England, have been ordered to salute the lord mayor, lady mayoress, members of the council and "chief citizens."

The "poor" police will have to know their Burke's peerages and their would-be peers with a vengeance, so as not to offend the important folk I mthat city.

They say the lord mayor of that city is a socialist and if so this will probably be called social democratic salute, where it is anychirp but folly is difficult to see.

While the policeman is saluting a "chief" citizen as hurriedly scanning a list to see if the seemingly important man approaching is one of the leading citizens, he has to take his eyes off the street and the crowds, but what's that as long as the policeman salutes those dressed in a little brief authority!

In a small city like Belleville, policemen would find it easy enough to salute the chief magistrate and council but where would they draw their lines between "chief" citizens and others. Do others mingle in this class category. But then Mayor Reid's council could not be so silly as this Sheffield Council.

Deerfield want its police to play favorites, what does it want them to be stalwart men or sycophants?

THE RECOVERY

The papers are carrying these days notices of annual meetings of many corporations and one and all point the way to a revival of trade and the stabilization of industry in the not far future. Though Belleville and district have known the strain of the past year of generally unfavorable conditions, it has been burdensome in the larger centres and in western Canada where the grain situation is very complicated. The picking up of business and the solution of western problems by the diversification of agriculture are two points made by Sir John Aird in his address to the Bank of Commerce shareholders. He believes Russia will continue to play a large part in the wheat and coarse grain situation of the world. Price fixation is declared a futile effort at solution. Sir John does not look for a sharp from depression to full-fledged prosperity, but he sees recovery certain, with hard work, lower production costs, new man power, and the development of the country's resources.

SIDELIGHTS

LURES

Life would defeat us
As we go by;
Yet, can she cheat us,
Though she may try.

Though she forget the Promises made,
Think, can we yet be Wholly betrayed?

For all her scorning
Of hope's bright gleams,
In youth's glad morning
She set fair dreams.

She gave us laughter
And love's sweet cheer;
Then what comes after
We need not fear.

Though youth must perish,
This boon endures
Brave hearts still cherish
Bright, bygone lures.

IT IS DOUBTFUL if many people realize the opportunities afforded by present low prices in almost all lines of commodities. Conditions have caused the pendulum of price to swing low and ere long the pendulum of price will begin to rise as it always has and always will in the very nature of supply and demand. It is not suggested that people should buy things they do not need but if they have good cash or good credit, or both, the future may be discounted and purchases made now when more good can be purchased for less money than at any time since the war. It is a case of spend and save, sure enough, a happy time for the thrifty shopper.

NEWSPAPER ODDITIES

SOME QUEER THINGS appear in newspapers and there are some queer newspapers. The "Agony" columns of London England, newspapers, in which every sort of thing is advertised, personal and otherwise, have often been regarded as a choice form of humor. United States newspapers have some amusing advertisements. Here's one from a Pittsburg paper:

Newspaper Opinions

THE NEW JOURNALISM

Boston Christian Science Monitor: (The London Daily Telegraph has reduced its price from 2d. (four cents) to 1d.) There is little doubt that the failure of the supposedly "high-brow" newspapers in England corresponds to an actual and profound change in public taste. Public opinion is due not merely to unwillingness to pay the high price. Still less is it due to dislike of information about serious subjects. It arises from a different conception of public affairs and a new relationship between writers and readers.

JEWS-HARP

The Jew's-harp has fallen in esteem. So far has it dropped in popular favor that two brothers in Rensselaer, New York, according to a recent news dispatch, produce all the jew's-harps made in the United States. The industry to them was an inheritance. Their father apparently was a pioneer in his line, even fashioning the tools to make the twanging instruments. On juvenile tastes he throve, gauging the size of the dime sums in the pocket, and the ability to fit the purse.

Then came the onsweep of the radio. The jew's-harp lost its grip. It faded like the sweetness of many another boy's treasure into the mists of "antiquity." And now, but for an occurrence in almost all lines of conditions have caused the pendulum of price to swing low and ere long the pendulum of price will begin to rise as it always has and always will in the very nature of supply and demand. It is not suggested that people should buy things they do not need but if they have good cash or good credit, or both, the future may be discounted and purchases made now when more good can be purchased for less money than at any time since the war. Tomb Backs Bible Record

Berlin—Dr. Eleazar Lipa Sukenik, archaeologist of the University of Jerusalem, relates that the recent finding of a tomb inscribed "Jeshua Bar Johoseph" (Jesus, son of Joseph) does not warrant the conclusion that the tomb contained the bones of Christ.

Dr. Sukenik previously had told the Archaeological Association of Berlin that the ossuary, inscribed in Aramaic did not necessarily have a connection with Christ, and later he explained the discovery further in an interview.

"The inscription is extremely interesting," he said, "but there is no direct evidence as to the identity of the man whose bones are in the ossuary.

"The important point is that the inscription in the New Testament is reinforced in that we have found on this and hundreds of similar ossuaries many names that occur for the first time in the New Testament but of which we hitherto had no proof that they were current names at the time of Christianity's birth.

"Meanwhile, the inscription 'Jeshua Bar Johoseph' is to be regarded as a mere coincidence, as no further particulars of the time of entombment or of life of the man are available. There names are also much more scratched, not chiseled. Apparently only the wealthy could afford sculptured inscriptions.

"The Jewish University of Jerusalem proposes to conduct systematic excavations and researches in the old Jewish cemetery necropolis. We expect to find much valuable material concerning life in Palestine at the time of Christ."

Returning to the matter of names on various ossuaries, Dr. Sukenik continued:

"Lately we have frequently found New Testament names, such as Maria, Johanna, Martha, Elisabeth, Salome and Sapphira; likewise, Simon, Jacob (James), Levi, Johannes (John), Matthias and the like.

"Inasmuch as these names appear to have been current in those times it is impossible to speak of identifying such remains, but, at all events, we have authentic evidence that people then used the names with which we are so familiar today."

Dr. Sukenik said these limestone ossuaries, dating from 100 years B.C. to a similar period afterward, are often found in the Jerusalem necropolis since the middle of the last century.

They first puzzled scientists because they were too small for sarcophagi and were made to accommodate the largest human bone—the thigh bone—but later examinations determined that most of them contained human bones collected after the decomposition of bodies (a rapid process in that dry country) for interment in the family graves, so long prized by ancient Jews to which otherwise would have been overcrowded.

One ossuary, Dr. Sukenik continued, bore chiseled records by which the manufacturer had recorded the names of his workmen and their wages. Others had inscriptions such as "Our Father the Ancient," which was interpreted as meaning that he was a member of the Jewish Sanhedrin, or high council.

Don't Wait For Luck

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Nothing is more tempting than to wait for luck to carry you through to success. Nothing is easier than to sit back, fold your arms and adopt a do-nothing policy in expectation of what Americans call the "lucky break." It is certainly a most efficient soporific. It soothes the fears of the battle of life. It lets one down so softly. This idea of luck can provide an everready excuse for all disappointments and failures.

Yet luck is far from being what the mind so fondly wants it to be. It is not the result of man's progress, whether in the forging ahead of a business career, in climbing the social ladder, or in the attainment of the ideal love-life.

A tortuitous set of circumstances certainly has pushed many an individual forward and often with a great and long leap, luck surely can be a mighty great help.

But how can he can really afford to depend upon luck—and who wants to?

Man is happy when he shapes his destiny, when he controls it, when he is the conqueror and by his own efforts. For there is such a thing as the feeling of self-respect which is not to be ashamed of your achievements, to feel that you have developed yourself to the fullest extent. Call it pride if you like. It is, however, a healthy and stimulating sort of pride. It is the driving force and often the compelling force that has made for superlative achievement.

One hears a great deal about influence and inspiration as reasons for landing a good job, making a lot of money, or creating something that is exceptional.

Well, suppose Dame Fortune does knock unexpectedly at the door. What chance has the lucky one of actually making good—of holding his advantage—if he or she is not alible of the very stuff that succeeds without luck?

And as for inspiration, art, any creative artist—be he writer, painter, designer, inventor—neither he waits for inspiration to glow before he sets to work and he will tell you that if he did so he would jolly well starve to death.

Even geniuses must kuuckle down and work.

And if, by chance, you happen to be one of those born to wealth or prestige that is no reason for taking it easy, either—for resting, as it were, on your luck. For wealth and prestige, and the power they carry, place a greater responsibility upon those naturally befalls the average person Such forces can do tremendous good or direct him the right way. Properties, also, do great harm if misdirected.

In any case, the luck element must never be considered except as a challenge to its possessor—a challenge to make the most of a marvelous opportunity.

Waiting for luck has ruined many a man who started out with a fine mind and unlimited possibilities. Many made him grow stale. Then laziness leaded in. Later came discouragement and indifference.

Be careful, lest hoping for a lucky break usurp your best years.

THE FROZEN GREENHOUSE

"There was a frost
Last night," the said,
"And the rose was frozen
When we went to bed,
And the greenhouse plants
Are frozen dead!"

By the breakfast blaze
Blank-faced dame spoke she,
Her scared young look Seeming to be
The very symbol
Of tragedy.

The frost is fierce
Than then today,
As I gaze place
Of her once dismay,
But the greenhouse stands
Warm, light and gay.

While she who grieved
At the sad toll
Of her pretty plants
Cold, iced, forgot—
Herself is colder,
And knows it not.

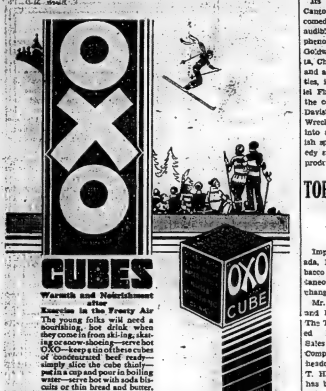
ON TREATING GOITRE

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Many persons have a goitre. For, technically, a goitre is merely an enlargement of the thyroid gland—situated in front of the neck and its enlargement does not necessarily mean that it is a serious condition.

Normally, the thyroid does not show. In women, however, it may become somewhat enlarged at times of the monthly cycle and during pregnancy. Such an enlargement is temporary.

As regards thyroid enlargements which may require medical or surgical attention it may help to make the matter clear if some conception is obtained of how the thyroid gland is built. One may look upon it as the steel and brick construction of a house—in which framework the tiny thyroid glands lie and function.



An enlargement of the gland may be caused either by an extension of the framework or by the fact that the tiny rooms become bigger due to an increase of gland tissue.

This distinction is not without significance. For, if the entire gland enlargement is largely a framework increase the resultant goitre may give very few, if any, symptoms. On the other hand, if the goitre is caused by gland increase—even if it sometimes, be slight—the goitre may give mild or severe symptoms which require attention.

In cases of lesser enlargement of the gland substance, so-called "toxic" symptoms are apt to appear. These range from a mere feeling of high tension, mild excitement and general nervousness to such severe symptoms as those one sometimes are produced in between the two are finds many goitre cases with a rapid palpitating heart, profuse sweating—the high bone—but later examinations determined that most of them contained human bones collected after the decomposition of bodies (a rapid proless in that dry country) for interment in the family graves, so long prized by ancient Jews to which otherwise would have been overcrowded.

One ossuary, Dr. Sukenik continued, bore chiseled records by which the manufacturer had recorded the names of his workmen and their wages. Others had inscriptions such as "Our Father the Ancient," which was interpreted as meaning that he was a member of the Jewish Sanhedrin, or high council.

'Whoopee' Greatest of Ziegfeld Shows Now a Sumptuous Comedy Film Spectacle

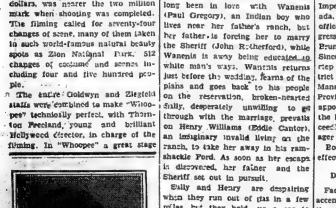
Eddie Cantor and Great Cast Coming in Great Screen Success

One of the great events of the picture year comes to the Capitol theatre on Saturday when "Whoopee" the Samuel Goldwyn-Florenz Ziegfeld musical riot, starring Eddie Cantor, makes its appearance in Belleville. This famous pair of producers, kings of the screen and the stage respectively, have exhausted every angle of their art to make "Whoopee" memorable. Already known to the entire United States as one of the most successful Ziegfeld musical shows ever produced in its stage form, the greater freedom of the talking color screen has developed it into a hilariously thrilling picture.

The cost of the production originally estimated at a million and a half dollars, was nearer the two million mark when shooting was completed. The filming called for seventy-four changes of scene, many of them taken in such enormous natural beauty spots as Zion National Park. 512 changes of costume and scenes including four and five hundred people.

The entire Goldwyn and Ziegfeld staffs were combined to make "Whoopee" technically perfect, with Thornton Freeland, young and brilliant Hollywood director, in charge of the filming. In "Whoopee" a great stage success becomes one of the pictures that make history.

A scene from Whoopee starring Eddie Cantor



Sally Morgan (Eleanor Hunt) has long been in love with Wanenis (Paul Gregory), an Indian boy who lives near her father's ranch, but her father is forcing her to marry the Sheriff (John Rutherford), while Wanenis is away being educated in white man's ways. Wanenis returns just before the wedding, fearful of the plains and goes back to his people on the reservation, broken-hearted Sally, desperately unwilling to get through with the marriage, prevails on Henry Williams (Eddie Cantor), an imaginary invalid living on the ranch, to take her away in his ramshackle Ford. As soon as her escape is discovered, her father and the Sheriff set out in pursuit.

Sally and Henry are despairing when they run out of gas in a few miles, but they hold up a car to steal gasoline and get to the next ranch for food. Ignorant that this very ranch is owned by the people they have held up. The foreman of the ranch is expecting the owner and family, and is desperate because he has neither cook nor maid to take care of them. Sally and Henry volunteer for the jobs, only to discover, on their arrival, that the people they are to wait on well surely recognize them. Henry blacks his face with soot as a disguise and proceeds to cook in his own sweet way.

All is going well until Sally, father and Sheriff arrive, looking for the fugitives. Sally and Henry escape just in time and dash off in the Ford, after Henry has gone he-man, knocked out the Pseudo-owner's son and wrecked the garage. They start in pursue in the Indian reservation, and learn that Wanenis has determined to abandon white civilization and go back to savagery in his despair, believing that his race makes his love for Sally impossible.

Sally's father and the Sheriff take the pair to the reservation and are about to carry Sally off, when the Indian chief reveals that Wanenis was a white baby abandoned in a deserted hut, and reared by the chief as his own son. Immediately Sally's father consents to Sally's marriage to Wanenis, and everyone is happy except Henry, whose domineering nature takes charge of him again.

Its cast includes not only Eddie Cantor, none famous of New York's comedians in his first full-length audible picture, but also Eleanor Hunt, phenomenal discovery of Samuel Goldwyn's, Paul Gregory, Ethel Shutta, Chief Caupolican, Dorothy Knapp, and a host of gorified Ziegfeld beauties, including Jeanne Morgan, Marie Finley and Virginia Bruce. In the course of adaptation from Owen Davis' hilarious farce, "The Nervous Wreck," "Whoopee" has been made into a series of breath-takingly lavish spectacles, interspersed with comedy such as Eddie Cantor alone can produce.

Conservation Begins at Home

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

The recent White House conference on the conservation of the child, will go far toward focusing public attention upon a subject beside which no other could be more important. Nothing matters so much as our children. Industry, agriculture, inventions, art, science—not one can compare in magnitude or value with the bringing up and training of little ones entrusted to our care.

We will, in short, hand ever to them the civilization we inherited and which we, ourselves, developed still further. It is the future which our children not only will have to face, but which they will have to control.

But are we adequately preparing them for it?

Are we teaching them as we should? Are we building character adequately? Are we making them practical, yet at the same time idealistic enough?

What are we doing so that they may profit by our mistakes. How are we to reduce the possibilities of error on their part to a minimum?

In summary, are we fitting them for the realities of life in the very best possible way?

All this might be called the educational side of the problem. Then there is the health side. The healthy vigorous child is an asset to himself as well as to the community. The sick child is neither; rather definitely he becomes a liability.

Perhaps nowhere in the world do we stress the need for health as much as in America. In the public and private schools health posters are tacked on the walls, the children are required to write health slogans for home work, there are regular health inspections and health talks, and doctors and nurses make regular visits.

Talks by experts are given to mothers' club and parent-teacher associations. Magazine articles are written on health. A few magazines are devoted exclusively to the subject. Newspapers employ doctors to write daily articles so as to inform the public how to combat disease and preserve the health.

Yes, yes, yes! Much is being done by leaders everywhere. Even the Federal Government has stepped in to help push the good work forward. The American parent and the American child are not last thousand strong. But do they follow it? Do they take to heart the lessons that are pointed out? How much really do they profit by what is being done in their behalf?

For, in the last analysis, all the talking and preaching in the world does little good unless the principles be translated into action in the home. The task of conserving our children begins there.

The mothers especially are the ones who must see that physical and mental hygiene are practised by their children, that their minds are being unfolded in a way that will best safeguard the future.

The programme of preserving and enriching our most precious stock let us be careful lest we allow too much of the responsibility to rest with the school authorities and other civic agencies who try to help us.

Let us learn from them to be sure. But let us at the same time take a real pride in doing most of the job ourselves at home.

DR. BISCH'S HEALTH HINT

Your Imagination

By F. J. Mundy

Imagination is a wonderful thing to have if it is not carried too far.

None of the great inventions could have been discovered if they had not been worked out by men with sufficient imagination.

Of course you don't discover an invention but discoveries are made that lead to inventions.

Hard work has to use commonplace materials come from persons of originality and high in imaginative power.

Imagination denotes thinking.

But there is morbid imagination that makes mountains out of mole hills and sees the results of accidents that never happen.

Be careful how you let your imagination run.

Happy and cheerful one minute and down deep in mental depression the next is often due to an overactive imagination.

Try to control these flights of imagination when things don't go as you expect or think they should.

Use imagination for practical invention if you will but don't apply the principle to magnify an illness or misfortune.

This is an easy habit to get into.

ADVERTISEMENT READING PREVENTS ALL THE TROUBLE OF EXPERIMENT

We know a seed house that proves each season's crop of seeds in their own trial garden before they offer them to the public. Flowers and vegetables grown from these seeds must measure up to definite standards, or else the entire crops from which the samples were taken are burned.

We know a manufacturer of dry batteries who tested a new product two years before he sold a single battery to a single dealer.

We know a manufacturer of an anti-freeze solution for automobile radiators who spent two years testing his product under all conditions before he said a word in advertising about the merits of his goods.

We know a manufacturer of household pharmaceutical products whose self-imposed standards of purity and efficacy is even higher than that laid down by the United States Pharmacopaeia and the National Formulary.

If we mentioned their names you would recognize them immediately. You probably would say, "I plant those seeds," "I use that battery," "I use that anti-freeze," "My medicine cabinet contains those products."

The 4 instances cited are typical of every reliable manufacturer in America. Millions of dollars are spent annually to develop, to improve, to standardize and to take the guesswork out of merchandise. Other millions of dollars are spent in advertising to tell you about them.

All of which is to say that in putting your trust in advertised merchandise you save yourself the bother, the expense, the disappointment—yes the danger—of experimenting and discovering for yourself which make of soap, breakfast food, radio tubes, lingerie, gasoline, tea, electrical device, stationery—or what-not—gives you the most service for your money.

INSTITUTE HELD A FINE BANQUET AT PLAINFIELD

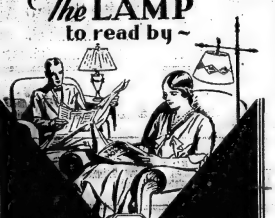
A very enjoyable evening was spent in Plainfield Hall on Thursday, Jan. 8th, when the ladies of the Women's Institute entertained their husbands and families to a banquet. About one hundred and forty were present and all sat down to the daintily decorated tables at seven o'clock. The menu cards placed at the plate gave each one a slight idea of the task ahead of them—it was arranged thus—

Cold meat and dressing, escalloped potatoes, pickles, salads, jellies, berry pie, tea, ice cream, salted nuts, Canadian fruit, candy.

The usual amount of fun and laughter was had during the supper and later ample justice had been done by everyone a short programme was conducted.

Mr. Eric Denyes very kindly and ably acted as toast master and proposed for the first toast, "Our King and Our Country," responded to by Rev. M. Wootten.

Instrumental music was then played by Messrs. Clayton Hall and Jack Gowe.



Toast to "Our Home" was responded by Mrs. Clarence Hall and was touching to all.

Reading by Mrs. Harry Harrison was greatly enjoyed causing much laughter.

Mrs. Nelson Beatty responded to the toast to "Our Institute" followed by more instrumental music by Messrs. Hall and Gowe.

The next toast to "Agriculture" was well responded to by Mr. Harry Harrison. Mrs. M. Wooten then gave a vocal solo very fitting for the occasion. Mrs. W. Simmons proposed a toast to our guests and was both humorously and seriously responded to by Messrs. Wilbur Elliott and Fred Bellis.

For the closing number Mr. J. Gowe sang "For I was born one thousand years ago," and all joined in singing the "Maple Leaf."

TOO MUCH SALAD FOR THIS FATHER

By Dorothea Fairfax

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Can you boil a potato?

Do you know how to make a cup of coffee—drinking coffee — not a muddy liquid that turns navy blue when the boiled milk or cream is added?

Can you make a piece of crisp brown toast—not something that suggests the half-soling of shoes?

Can you fry an egg, boil a roll meat to keep the juices and flavor in, not cook it any old way and get something out of the pot or oven that suggests a sponge?

Listen! All you college and high school girls who feel that housekeeping is beneath your notice, that being a wife has to do with cooking, and all the mysteries is just another of your triumphs! It begins to look, my dears, as if you have to know some thing of these "deadly uninteresting things" before you are permitted to be graduated at all!

For the president of the American Chemical Society, Dr. William McPherson, who is also a member of the faculty of the Ohio State University, says if he had his way no woman should ever get a degree from any school or college unless her course included a certain amount of home economics. And all over the United States, deans of universities and high school principals are taking up Dr. McPherson's idea on the theory that a man being no stronger than his weakest link—and homes are the chains that hold this country together.

A father, a widower with three daughters, has written me a pitiful amazing letter, one thing I gathered about Dr. McPherson and his scheme of making girls fond—not before they get their diplomas. The father's plea is that if the schools and colleges take up the McPherson plan, girls should be taught something practical in the culinary line, that the average family eats every day is a boiler to, for the country than the blackthorn given to the occasional gunman.

It seems his three daughters, who all attended the same high school cooking class, started learning how to make mayonnaise—that appetizing salad dressing often concocted by Cardinal Richelieu of old, eggs and other ingredients. Mayonnaise is hard for the amateur cook to make, it's said to curdle, and good mayonnaise may be had for 25 cents a jar at the corner grocery. Millions live and die without having had recourse to it any way—why, asks this widower father, did they begin teaching my children this stuff?

He says his daughters, having learned to make the salad dressing, fed it to him morning, noon and night; that his felt himself lucky if he didn't get it with his oatmeal at breakfast. And he concludes by asking, "why in thunder" the girls weren't taught how to boil potatoes, make good tea and coffee, and an occasional pan of biscuits?

The "mayonnaise" martyr" as he signed himself went on to say that after he had had finished with that "yellow paste stuff," they were put on fancy salads much of which he propounded "refined garbage."

When I answered father's letter, personally, I urged him, inasmuch as he seemed to know quite a bit about cooking, to help out the kickshaw class at school by teaching the girls some practical things at home. For all said and done, there are to date a back-to-home movement, men have to co-operate. They've got to lend a hand here and there, and not look a meal a woman has cooked, and then rush to the movies or some where else. Such men are knocking the heartstones from under their feet. They should be just homemakers rather than star boarders, remember that.

Miller's Worm Powders will eradicate the worm evil that bears so heavily on children and is believed to cause many fatalities. They are an acceptable medicine to children and can be fully relied upon to clear the food channels thoroughly of these destructive parasites and restore the inflamed and painful surfaces to healthfulness. They are an excellent remedy for these evils.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Advance New York style news has this to say about spring coats:

"An early and, to say the least, startling rumor to the effect that there were to be practically no Spring coats this year—only jackets—has been successfully flouted by the appearance of as grand a collection of Spring coats as one could wish, and as decidedly new-looking that the "perfectly good" one left over from last Spring had better be agile in dodging their revealing company.

"Generally speaking, the 1931 Spring models in coats are more like dresses than coats. Indeed, there are most attractive hybrids that may be either—but may be worn as coats in chilly weather and as dresses on warmer days. Cloths are, for the most part, very simple, but cut and fit are so smooth and so suave that the result are more distinctive than any amount of embellishment could produce.

"The educated eye will recognize the influence—and frequently the original design—of Vionnet, Patou, Bruyere and Chanel occurring most persistently in Spring coats. Vionnet, for instance, is partial to the coat skirt that wraps well over, and the diagonal closing, features adapted by a great many coats. Patou has introduced quite wide box pleats, running from collar to hem in the back, stitched down to a point about the back of the knees and then released. Bruyere's scarf-collared coat, the big hit of the French collections of last February, is not without its successors and adaptations in this Spring's collection. Chanel's coachman coat, one of her most successful designs, shows its influence in wide -revered, notch-collared, well buttoned effects in Spring sports coats.

"Patou introduced collarless coats that promise to lead all the rest in popularity. And, for those who prefer a collar, he showed separate scarfs and little pelerines of fist fur.

"The simple, narrow roll collar is one of the smartest of the Spring. The array of scarf and jabot effects is quite breath-taking. And there are numerous interpretations either of both or of fur that are cut to fit just over the top of the arm.

"About sleeves, there is less elaboration than in Winter coats. One of the most popular sleeves is a Vionnet conception, perfectly plain, cut slightly wide at the wrist, a very modified bell. There are some long, narrow cuffs, cut almost to the elbow. Occasionally a band or a cuff appears just around the elbow. Sometimes a row of buttons up from the wrist to the elbow. Modified gauntlet cuffs are fairly frequent.

"When fur is used on Spring coats the chances seem to be that it will be baby fur. Certainly this sleek and shining pelt is leading the lot at present. Other flat furs, such as caracul, gazpin, broadtail, baby leopard, are represented.

"The color story for this Spring starts, as it has for so many seasons with black leading numerically. But not by much, for navy blue, always a Spring color, is very ahead of all its previous records both numerically and fashionably, and is giving black a very close run for its money. Both of these colors appear in combination wit hwhite frequently. Next would seem to be beige, then greens, ranging from soft, almost olive shades, to a bright, turf green, and then—well represented—greys. This last color after threatening to become popular for several seasons, seems very likely to do it this Spring."

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE

SPEED CRAZE

The growing craze for reckless speed
Has seized upon mankind,
And lives no longer seem to count—
To danger we seem blind.

The law forbids the motorist
Beyond a certain speed.
They flout the law and rush ahead,
Few giving any heed.

Pedestrians who have to walk
Store dare to leave their hearth,
For Juggernauts are everywhere
To crush them to the earth.

This globe would be a happier place
If speed could be controlled,
And youth and age could walk about
As in the days of old.

Rural Milk Supply

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

In connection with the movement for a system of county health units in Ontario, the statement has been made that urban centres enjoy better health conditions than the rural districts. The Canadian Social Hygiene Council, which is sending out material in advocacy of health units, submits this proposition:

"Why should rural Canada have a typhoid fever death-rate many times as high as the rates of most cities? The answer is simple and obvious. City water and milk are held are safeguarded by excellent public health departments. The "healthy" countryside is not so protected, and so rural death-rates from typhoid and other diseases are up—away up."

Among these safeguards is the pasteurizing of milk sold for human consumption. This is required in Woodstock and in most cities where the milk comes from accredited herds. On the ground that milk from accredited herds is safeguarded only against tuberculosis, the board of health the other evening recommended that the city council require 100 per cent. pasteurization. At the same time it was intimated that new provincial legislation is in prospect.

At any rate, legislation is demanded by no less an authority than the Ontario Milk Producers, Toronto, organ of the dairy-field milk trade and dairy farmer. The January number contains four allusions to the subject, two based upon the Kirkland Lake epidemic of septic sore throat. The editor writes:

"While evidence accumulating as to the spread of disease, such as that at Kirkland Lake a few weeks ago, through drinking raw milk, the hesitancy of governments and those responsible for the health of our citizens, in regard to making pasteurization of milk sold for human consumption compulsory, is hard to understand. . . . Compulsory pasteurization must exist some day. Why not enact such legislation at the beginning and get rid of outbreaks traceable to the milk supply, such as we have had recently? Proper pasteurization of the milk supply is the only safe method of preventing the spreads of Cattle through milk. We have compulsory legislation today compelling the pasteurization of all whey in cheese factories to prevent the spread of disease among hogs. Is a hog's life worth more than that of a human being?"

The Milk Producer quotes Dr. Fred W. Routley, director of the Ontario Red Cross, as follows. "There are just two kinds of milk with are safe to use, pasteurized milk and canned milk." Germs in milk that has not been pasteurized, he declared, can lead to such diseases as streptococcic infection of the throat, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, diphtheria, most of the contagious diseases, and even bovine tuberculosis. Hazy, unpasteurized milk, he asserted, was "the most terrific cause" of intestinal and other diseases of infants.

All of which brings us to the point for which we started out. Why is nothing said about rural milk consumers? Last census showed the rural population of Ontario as 1,236,279. Drop out a considerable number of unincorporated villages and it is still somewhere near one-third of the population of the province. In that million odd there are several hundred thousand children who drink milk, even if their elders do not. It is not pasteurized milk, and therefore, presumably, may contain germs of all the numerous diseases listed above. But even the proposed legislation making compulsory the pasteurization of milk sold for human consumption would not affect that used on the farm. About 40 per cent. of all the milk produced in Ontario is consumed fresh, with great potentialities, evidently, for spreading disease if not pasteurized. But one-third of the population, at least, is using milk that is not pasteurized, and the agitation, from the part of the Milk Producers' Association, is to tighten up the regulations in urban centres, where the greatest safeguards are already in existence, and do nothing as all about rural Ontario.

Since boiling is not quite the same thing, and kills one of the vitamins in milk, somebody is due to point out that pasteurizing facilities cannot be installed in every farm home, and that it would be almost impracticable to require farmers to take the domestic supply to and from a milk plant for pasteurization. We are not striking blood it at all, but merely pointing out that if unpasteurized milk is going to cause streptococcic infection of the throat or scarlet fever, it will do it just as promptly in the family of Bill Smith, out in the tenth concession, as in the home of Mr. Jim's city cousin. Furthermore unpasteurized milk is sold to some extent even in urban centres, whether to neighbors of a one-cow dairyman, or as milk of accredited herds, or where the municipal by-law may be enforced.

One distinction is obvious. Contagious disease in a rural community becomes an epidemic, if not effectively cheated. Contagious disease out in the country is not likely to effect more than a few persons. Nevertheless, they may die as a result. If Dr. Routley's statement of the situation is correct. And, after all, we do safeguard the health of hogs.

STIMSON OFFICIALS ARE PLACED UNDER ARREST ON CHARGES OF FRAUD AND CONSPIRACY TODAY

Attorney General Orders Probe Into the Affairs of Company

MIS-STATEMENTS ALLEGED

Johnston and Clarke are Held on $50,00 Bail in Court

TORONTO, Jan. 16. — Four officers of the O. A. Stimson and Co., Ltd., bond brokers, which with its four subsidiary companies were placed in the hands of liquidators Wednesday last, were placed under arrest at their homes today by provincial police inspectors, charged with conspiracy to defraud, under section 444 of the criminal code.

W. J. Dow, secretary, and H. H. Thomas, are the former sales executive of the concern.

The prosecutions were initiated on instructions of Hon. W. H. Price, attorney general of Ontario.

Johnston, Clark and Dow appeared in police court later today. The charge against Dow was not proceeded with and he was remanded on bail of $3,000 as material witness.

Johnston and Clark, however, were remanded to Jan. 23 on bail of $50,000 each, which they did not succeed in raising at once.

It is understood the provincial police have not sought cooperation of Boston authorities in tracing Thomas, as it is expected he will return here after concluding the business which took him away.

Attorney General Price stated holders of Stimson securities had charged mis-statements by agents of the bond house and on the basis of allegations it was decided to lay conspiracy charges. Investigators found the books "quite a puzzle", he added.

TORONTO FACTORY WORKERS ARRESTED

ROYALTY LANDED SAFELY IN PARIS

Little Moth Plane With Precious Cargo Arrived at Le Bourget

London, Eng., Jan. 16—The Prince of Wales got off to a flying start today on the tour to South America. With his brother, Prince George, he left the Hendon airport in the plane bound for Paris on the first leg of the four which will take them over 18,000 miles.

The little moth plane carrying two English princes came down in a perfect landing in rather poor flying weather with low visibility threatening clouds and some fog. The trip from Hendon took two hours and eighteen minutes. Thus the first leg of the Prince of Wales' and Prince George's South American tour was safely negotiated.

WALKER STORES MARK BIRTHDAY

Walker Stores Limited in Belleville has been having a birthday. This year the firm is celebrating its sixth anniversary of its establishment in the city and has been marking the event with an Anniversary Sale. In the six years of its inception the Walker Stores, Limited, has progressed steadily and has been a worthy factor in the business life of Belleville. The friendly atmosphere of the store has made warm friends of those who patronize the many fields of activity.

The purpose of the meeting was to revive the Red Cross in Belleville and those who had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Vinton were impressed with the great need that the Red Cross is filling, especially in Ontario.

Mr. John Elliott was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker of the evening.

Before describing a few of the phases of the peace time programme of the Red Cross, Mr. Vinton told of the splendid calls that came constantly to the organization. In Canada the government had just recently called on the Red Cross to distribute, throughout the Dominion war-time clothing and bedding supplies to the needy.

Last June, as part of their northern relief work, the Red Cross was able to come to the assistance of fire-swept settlements in the Thunder Bay district. Fifty or sixty families saw their homes and possessions completely wiped out in a bush fire and through the Red Cross thousands of dollars in articles of clothing, food and building material were distributed to them.

Mr. Vinton described the Red Cross settlement where four Danish adults and eight children were housed in a log cabin that had been vacated for their use by a young Danish man. The settlement of these people had been ravaged by fire, and although the adults could speak no English, the children who had been attending the

PASSION PLAY AT OBERAMMERGAU DESCRIBED BY REV. E. C. HUNTER

Villagers of Highest Moral Character and Gift are Chosen

1930 PASSION PLAY

Oberammergau Passion Play which was played in 1930 was described by Rev. E. Crossley Hunter of Toronto at Holloway Street United Church on Thursday evening at a meeting held under the auspices of the Epworth League. Mr. Hunter was in Europe last summer and saw the world-famed presentation which has been given every decade since the year 1634 with two exceptions during the Franco-Prussian War and the Great War. It was held in 1922 instead of 1920 on account of the recent war. Mr. Hunter brought back pictures autographed by Alois Lang, the Christus of last year, of the Mary Magdalene, of Anton Lang, the former Christus for thirty years and of others. The pictures of the play showing actual scenes, were thrown upon a screen.

Mr. Hunter, son of the evangelist, the late Rev. John E. Hunter, has particular appeal for older Bellevillians on account of the close relationship of the family with Belleville during the great days of the Crossley-Hunter revivals. Rev. E. C. Hunter resembles in many ways his late father, his voice has traces of the magnetic voice heard here a generation or so ago, and his manner of speech, his gesture and deliberation suggest his father. In fact with the deep interest in the play filled both body and gallery of the church.

As the black plague was striking the heart of Europe in 1633, it was felt that Oberammergau would escape if there were no intercourse with the region about but suddenly it struck the settlement and one man died within a

DESCRIBES WORK OF RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME

N. R. Vinton of Toronto, Speaks at Reorganization of Local Branch

24 HOSPITALS

John Elliott is Elected President— Assistance to Veterans

Urging the local branch of the Red Cross to co-operate in carrying out the peace time programme of that organization with the same dauntless spirit and zeal that had made this branch stand first of all in Ontario and in its war time work, Mr. N. R. Vinton, Toronto, field secretary of the Ontario Division of the Red Cross, gave a stirring account of present day Red Cross enterprises in his address in the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

To those who might ask "What is the Red Cross doing in Peace Time?" Mr. Vinton's address is illuminating, showing its far-reaching ministrations to the many fields of activity.

POULTRY SHOW WAS SUCCESSFUL

Judge Herbert Warrington of Cornwall Complimented Exhibitors

Last night the 17th annual show of the Belleville Poultry Association was brought to a close after the most successful exhibition that has ever been staged in Belleville by this organization. There were over eight hundred of the finest birds that could be found in Ontario. Exhibitors sent fowl from as far west as Toronto and entries also poured in from the north and east.

That the exhibition was an unqualified success is testified to by the crowds that thronged the show rooms at all times. The visitors, according to Judge Herbert Warrington, of Cornwall, Ontario, were very fine.

Of especial interest to the children was the display of rabbits and pigeons. Many fine examples of both were on display. Walter Turner's exhibition of wild game and wild ducks was another great drawing card.

FAREWELL SAID TO RAY OLIVER STORE MANAGER

Delightful Evening Was Spent at Bleecker Ave. Home Last Night

After being associated with the Dominion Stores in Belleville for three and a half years as manager of the downtown store, Mr. Ray Oliver has announced that he has acquired a business at Thomasburg. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and their two children will leave next week for their new home.

Last night the staff of the store entertained Mr. and Mrs. Oliver at a delightful party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Bleecker Avenue. All members of the staff were present as well as some other friends. Cards were played and a splendid social evening enjoyed. Mr. J. Wheeler rendered some lovely Irish songs. He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Darrah.

Mr. Robert Miles was successful in winning first prize at euchre, while Mrs. Naylor captured the first women's prize. A delightful feature of the evening was the presentation of a bridge lamp to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver. The presentation was accompanied by the following address which was read by Mr. Robert Miles:

Belleville, Jan. 15, 1930

Dear Mr. Oliver;

The presence of all your associates of the staff of the Dominion Stores at Belleville here tonight to pay tribute to you is proof sufficient of the high place you occupy in our affections. Your three years here as manager have been most pleasant ones for those who have been favored to be associated with you in the local branch of the Dominion Stores. We have learned from you that a man may be a successful man of business and possess a very likeable disposition and self sacrificing character as well. Your many endeavements with all its worries and attentions cannot suppress the good nature of men or the type of yourself. Our relations have always been cordial and we venture to think that the principle which you have shown in the conduct of the branch and in your relationship with the staff both as employees of the firm and as individuals and friends are the principles which work out to the best advantage in business the world over.

We know your devotion to your duty; we had not long been associated with you before we found that you were the true and tried servant who gives his best and capably fills the office to which he is called. Your interest in the welfare and growth of the business of the company augurs well for your success in the new field you have chosen for the conduct of business on your own responsibility. If you show but a small proportion of the attention to your business that you have to that of the company your success is assured. Our relations with you also indicate that those who reap the most change in your new undertaking will learn to love you as we have.

We have but one regret, that your decision to leave necessitates your separation from us and from Belleville and the breaking of the daily ties which have bound us but we realize that one owes a responsibility to one's self for his development for life.

You have shown that you are a capable manager and business executive, you have shown that you have a great heart and are only waiting for an opportunity to serve or to do a good turn as we know by our experience.

On this the eve of your departure and of your entry into a business of your own, we have tried to make you feel happy in our company as we believe you have been tonight, and as a small indication of our indebtedness to you for your kindnesses to us, we desire to present a slight token of our regard and best wishes for your future in the business world. We shall watch your future with keen interest and your success you may be sure will be a source of pleasure to us, we desire to present a slight token all the kind words and acts we have had from you. In these wishes we include Mrs. Oliver and your family.

With best wishes for your future and for your success which alone would warrant your leaving our midst where you will be greatly missed as a friend and business man.

We remain,

Signed on behalf of the Staff.

PASSION PLAY AT OBERAMMERGAU

day and soon many followed. The pastor, priest called the villagers together to the church and they vowed if spared they and their descendants would play every ten years the Passion of Christ. Tradition says, the ravage of the plague in Oberammergau stopped that day. Next year the first Passion Play performance was given.

The village nestles at the foot of the Bavarian mountains and contains fourteen hundred souls. It possesses no hotels and no jails. The visitors to the Passion Play are accommodated in the homes and nearly half a million come on Passion Play years. The village is on no highway, trains have to back into the place but by its art and devotion it is known to the whole world. The village is agricultural in its pursuits there being 700 cows around about in the fields. There are only two large buildings, the theatre and the Roman Catholic Church.

The theatre consists of a covered auditorium but the actors play under the open sky in front of a concrete background as stage. Here often in storms during the performance will the actors go forward even though the lightning flashes and the rain comes upon them. The theatre will hold 5,000 or 6,000 people each performance lasting from eight in the morning until noon and from two until six o'clock.

How near the world came to losing its religious actor of last year was told by Mr. Hunter. Alois Lang, who played the Christ in 1930 lay at death's door for months with a wound from a rifle bullet during the great war. Mr. Hunter commented on the tragedy of war as he remarked "And we sent our men over to shoot him on Calgary during the war." Mr. Hunter told that the healers of the home where he stayed felt a little shy as most of her guests were English-speaking. After a few days this wore off and she said in broken English, "We did not know what the war was about. Our men were conscripted and had to go. We had so much abhorrence to war." Mr. Hunter's remark was that war was an utterly insane, godless, way to settle international differences.

Alois Lang is principal of the woodcarving school in the village, and is probably the greatest carver in the world. Like Anton Lang his predecessor in the role of Christ he is devoted to his art. Anton once said "I have tried to live the life." While he was acting the part of Jesus in previous productions he was five times taken from the cross unconscious. In 1922 he received in Canadian money $3.37 for the season of forty performances. At that time he lived on black bread and when offered a million dollars to act before the moving picture camera, he said: "I will not play Judas to our tradition".

The present Christus Alois Lang is a very striking man and has remarkable powers of intonation. Stars seen one noted twenty-five years ago in his hearing that he might act as the Christ he has lived in that hope. The visitors ballot on the choice of actors in the play and none but a villager of unimpeachable character can act. The whole population is Roman Catholic. Outside the church is very large and ornate and the villagers are faithful members. The Passion Play is now by suggests peculiarly Roman Catholic customs, for it is a record of the passion scenes according to the scriptures.

The actors are allowed no makeup, no wigs, old men must play old men's parts and young men young men's. The Mary Magdalene must be a young girl. The choice this year was a quiet village girl who had sold stamps in the local post office. Her acting was supreme among that of the women though she hird never had experiences in playing before.

Caiaphas Judas was called the greatest of the actors though the Christus by Lang was marvellously portrayed.

"Where will you find a group of actors anywhere else in the world who will go to church before the performance and take the communion and at the close of the season, finish with a thanksgiving service," asked Mr. Hunter. He described the main scenes from the Triumphal Entry until the Resurrection. The story ends not in death but in life! It was not drama, it was lifted out of acting into life," said the speaker.

Rev. Harold B. Nesl introduced the speaker, and Mr. Alex Gordon played on the organ a number of religious selections. Rev. H. Merrick of Canniton offered prayer.

Appointment of W. R. Patterson to be deputy general auditor, Canadian Pacific Railway, is announced by E. E. Lloyd, Comptroller of the Railway. He is succeeded as the late position of auditor of disbursements by Charles B. Gordon. Mr. Patterson is one of the youngest men holding important offices in the Canadian Pacific Railway, having been appointed auditor of disbursements from that post at the age of 36. Mr. Gordon was comptroller of the Halifax Electric Railway in British Columbia, prior to his new appointment.

A motor cycle and side car carrying two men and sewing a man on skis, awoke the silence of Lake Louise recently when at nearly 6,000 feet altitude it roared around an improvised track at a speed above 50 miles an hour. It was the first time in history that a motor cycle has been on Lake Louise; the motor cycle and side car which has taken place there and the first time a motor cycle has travelled under its own power from the Prairies to Lake Louise in the dog of winter.

On the stroke of midnight of December 31st. last one of the most remarkable careers in the old Maritime Provinces ended with the retirement of Charles H. S. Henderson, dean of Canadian Pacific Railway conductors. Mr. Henderson became a train conductor in 1878, at the age of 17 on the New Brunswick line of the late Mr. Stephen and Edmundston. He completed 54 years of service with the railway and the C. P. R. December 31, 1930. He successively ran the trains of three successive presidents of the Canadian Pacific.

Scheduled to play at least 25 games in less than three months in practically every capital of Europe the Manitoba University graduates hockey team sailed from Montreal on the Canadian Pacific liner Melita for Liverpool, January 2. They will return to Canada from Liverpool at the end of March.

The "Corn Belt" of North America has in the last few years slowly pushed its way north and today large parts of the agricultural districts of Canada are producing corn of the finest varieties and of high quality. At the fifth corn show under the auspices of the Ontario-Western Corn Growers Association, one of the finest exhibits of corn in the history of western Canada was on display.

A recent official report states that over 25,000 lbs of the eight-armed octopus were caught in 1928 and over 28,000 lbs in 1929. The fish is eaten chiefly by Orientals in British Columbia and brings between five and ten cents a pound on the market. The catch is the incidental product of other fishing operations.

Since the opening in 1909 of the New Brunswick School of Agriculture, 150 young men have attended the annual fall short courses in practical agriculture. Attendance at the 1930 courses which closed December 19, was the largest on record, the number of students registered being 35, half of them being sons of farmers or people in livestock and poultry clubs. The silver cup for general proficiency was awarded to Ralph H. Colpitts, of Petit Codiac.

So fine is the quality of the turf produced by Best Grass seed, a comparatively new variety produced in Canada, that during the past five years between 50,000 and 75,000 pounds of the seed have been exported to the United States each year. The best quality is produced in Prince Edward Island and is used for lawns, golfing and bowling greens.

Motor tourist traffic to New Brunswick from the United States was 41 per cent. greater in 1930 than in the previous year, this percentage of increase in tourist business being the greatest shown by any province of Dominion during that year, it is claimed by the New Brunswick Government Bureau of Information and Tourist Travel. Value of the trade is placed by independent estimates at $18,000,000 in 1929 which must have been fully maintained if not up to $20,000,000 in 1930.

Retirement Closes 53 Years' Service

Over 53 years ago, a 14-year-old boy joined the old Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway as an apprentice in the Motive Power Department. Today, the retirement of Robert Preston, superintendent of motive power, Eastern Lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, closes a career which is something of history in the history of Canadian railroading. He has extended his service from one end of the line to the other in many distinguished appointments. Starting his actual railroading with the C. P. R. as soon as the T. G. and B. was taken over by the great Canadian system, then in its own infancy. Mr. Preston, from machinist in 1884, served in various parts of the Dominion, successively as locomotive foreman; master mechanic and superintendent of motive power on both Western and Eastern Lines. He intends to make his home in Toronto, where he is well known and saw many years of his long service.

R. Preston

He is succeeded by George Whiteley, who has been his assistant since 1918 and who has a long record in the service of the company, having started as fireman, at Fort William, Ont., in 1902. His employment in various points of the Motive Power Department, successively, has taken him all over the Eastern Lines and Eastern Division.

G. Whiteley

The post of superintendent, of the Eastern Division, is filled by Alexander Peers, who received the appointment as master mechanic of the British Columbia District to come to Montreal for his first experience of service in the East. He joined up as a machinist in the Winnipeg Shops in 1909, and his various posts, hitherto, have all been West of Fort William.

So popular was the evening of light opera music from the works of Edward German, formerly of Gilbert and Sullivan when it was given over the Canadian National Railways Transcontinental Radio net work several weeks ago, that requests for a repetition have been received from all parts of the country. The delightful music will be repeated tonight.

Unforseen technical difficulties have made postponement of the first of the "Romance of Canada" series of Radio dramas advisable. R. A. Weir, Director of radio for the railway announces, the story of Henry Hudson will therefore be played on Thursday January 22nd and the drama of Madame La Tour set over one week. The singer in this evening's broadcast will include Jean Henson, Mrs. Franklyn West and Mr. E. W. Brown all well known to radio audiences.

MARLENE DIETRICH NEW SCREEN "FIND" SEEN IN "MOROCCO"

Gary Cooper and Adolphe Menjou in Love Spectacle at Belle Saturday

In Paramount's new production for Gary Cooper, a powerful and tempestuous story of love and conflict entitled "Morocco" an actress new to the motion picture public makes her initial appearance. And whereas new person alities are constantly appearing on the screen (and disappearing too), this particular young actress is given (by those in the "know") more than an outside chance to win public favor.

Her name is Marlene Dietrich. She is a product of the Berlin stage, a discovery of Josef Von Sternberg, who directed "Morocco". Miss Dietrich is what is commonly called a gorgeous blond. She is sphinx-like, alluring; a bit aloof and mysterious. Her costuments and gestures are graceful. Her voice is low pitched, fascinatingly deep toned. And, as a rather important added point, she speaks without an accent. Aside from her undeniable physical attractiveness, Miss Dietrich is a talented actress. She possesses an acute sense of the dramatic, a keen and sympathetic understanding for emotional qualities. "Morocco" is her first American picture. Those who have seen her in this colorful love story believe Miss Dietrich has more than talent. The, of course, is a question the public must decide. However, Marlene Dietrich is a distinctive and interesting personality. She will be the subject of many interviews. Her photograph will appear in numerous magazines. She will be talked about.

One may hazard a guess, a very confident guess for that matter. But perhaps it will be more appropriate to let Miss Dietrich's performance in "Morocco" speak for itself.

"Morocco" is a vivid, detailed story of romantic, unrestrained love that reveals a ruthless adventurer and a beautiful woman of the world into a whirlpool of mad desire. Imaginatively directed, with each set imparting authentic atmosphere for the plots development, "Morocco" emerges as an arresting picture that commands and deserves attention. In it, Gary Cooper, Marlene Dietrich, Adolphe Menjou and a fine supporting cast are seen in well drawn roles.

"Morocco" will be shown at the Belle Theatre, Saturday and Monday matinee daily.

CUBS NOT EXTENDED IN WINNING FROM R. M. C. BY 10-4 COUNT

Locals Outskated, Outgeneralled and Outscored Cadets from Kingston—Defence Pair, Ethier and Sherry Were Effective, While Second Front Line Turned in Great Game—Bigelow in Nets for R. M. C. Was Standout of Pastime—Kelly and Gagnon Showed Best of the Remainder.

Goal goals in large quantities can be scored under the amateur code of hockey was amply proved at the Arena last night when the Cubs defeated Royal Military College junior septet of Kingston by a 10-4 count, the personal score being 6-4, 2-2. It was just a matter for long men at Surgeons and they demolished the play from the opening to the closing gong. The Cadets did not have the speed to cope with the locals and their thrusts on goal when they did get possession was crude and better defensive play would have earned for them a shutout. The Cubs showed a clever passing and fast skating that featured their work earlier in the season and probably the defeat that was handed them in Kingston has had the required effect to bring them down to earth.

Bigelow a Real Goalie

Professor Galley, mentor of the Cadet team, is building for the future and he has one or three boys that will have their names in headlines before many years have passed. Particularly so is this true of Bigelow, their net guardian. He stood manfully to his task through the encounter and saved his team from an awful drubbing. The locals were making sure of their counters and they held possession until they were in the top of the goalie before letting them back ramble for the twine. This youngster kicked, batted, smothered and went through all sorts of P. T. drills in blocking the rubber. Some of his saves were remarkable and through it all he was as cool as the proverbial cucumber. He is the best goalie to show his wares in the city this year and received many a hand for the display he gave against unfavourable odds. On the front line Kelly is another fine prospect. He bolstered two counters and was able to hold his own in the matter of speed with the locals.

Locals Outsmiled Cadets

As a whole the Cubs could not skate fast enough to be effective. Many times they seemed in their own defensive area and although they broke fast, the puck carrier was overhauled before he reached the centre of the frozen surface, which helped the defence pair to cope with the offensive. The locals checked back better last night than they have shown this season, which made their system, which Burgoyne is trying to perfect, look much better. Ethier and Sherry led the skaters and their rushes were always timely and carried them far into the scoring zone. When the Cadets wheeled and skated with the play which Belleville had possessed, they looked more dangerous. Their backchecking in centre was not brilliant and the locals travelled through centre lane almost at will. The defence of the locals was much better than formerly and it was a rocky road to travel. The second line combined very first-class on the sheet, Gagnon, H. Morgan and McGuire, all turning in a fine game. They played the best combination and broke faster and worked well in for their goals. McDonald was hurt in the first few minutes of play, when he collided with a Cadet in centre ice and his usefulness was impaired and he was also told to put on the brakes. St. Denis played a steady game and marred his good work with outbursts of temper. He did much hooking and blocking that would have cost him on the first penalty of times in a tight game. The rule act was read to him by the coach and he went back to play hockey.

The Play

Belleville got the jump on the visitors in the first period when four goals were notched without a reply from the opposition. J. Morgan took a pass from McDonald and cleanly beat Bigelow while later St. Denis and the same player combined with St. Denis on the scoring end. "Pete" Morgan turned in his best game of the season, although he was inclined to hog the rubber and probably the team could have had more goals if he had looked up to see where his men were placed for the Belleville goal. Sherry and McDonald both scored on individual efforts, while McGuire and St. Denis combined for one. Ellis got a fine goal, the rubber hitting a Belleville stick and gliding into the net. Runion was handed a nice pass by Sherry for Belleville last goal, while Kelly and Griffith ended the scoring for the Cadets. The game was exceptionally clean and well handled by the referee.

The lineups and summary follows:

Belleville—Goal, Morgan; defence, Ethier and Sherry; centre, McDonald; wings, J. Morgan and Runions; subs, H. Morgan, St. Denis and McDonald.

R. M. C.—Goal, Bigelow; defence, Mather and Kennedy; centre, Kelly; wings, Gagnon and Ellis; subs, Piers, Griffin and Hall.

AMERICANS BEAT SENATOR SQUAD

Ottawa, Jan. 16—New York Americans tossed a systematic attack and close-knit defensive system in the face of Ottawa Senators' defenders and defeated them 2-1 in a National Hockey League encounter here last night.

The Americs exploited both tallies in the second frame on combination thrusts and the fact one of them caromed into the net off a Senator skipper's stick was not denied from the smoothness of their team work. Patterson drove an angle shot and got credit for the goal that tossed the game into the win column. Vernie Himes scored the other for the winners after a three-man passing thrust with Dutch Gainor in on a setback which was produced by Art Gagne's neat goal for Senators.

The lowly Ottawans drove hard in the third frame but the phenomenal work of Roy Worters in the Gotham goal and the tight defensive system of the team mates held off the threatening efforts. Ottawans were short-handed through injuries suffered by two of their defencemen in previous games, and with their four substitute players to bolster their regular ranks, were a leg-weary crew at the finish.

EWENS TURNS DOWN PROFESSIONAL OFFER

Woodstock, Jan. 15—Although he has been approached on two different occasions, George Ewens, centre ice star for the Woodstock intermediates and one of the leading group players in goals and assists, will not jump to professional ranks with the London Tecumseh, of the International Hockey League.

Ewens when questioned this morning stated that he had been approached by Roy Brothers on two occasions and that he had turned down both offers. "I have no intention of jumping into pro ranks this year," he said.

This statement should set at rest any fears that the local sextet will lose a player, whose departure would mean a big blow to local championship hopes.

Fright, anxiety and other emotions are liable to cause bald patches on the head, says a European hair specialist.

4'y" Alleys

In the Teacher's League Albert "B" took all four points from O.S.D. "A" in a real humdinger of a game, in the Inter-Group series. When Albert and O.S.D. meet there is always plenty of excitement and this occasion was no exception as it was very even all the way. A glance at the scores will show many nice singles.

The ladies' Mcosse teams locked horns in their three-cornered match with team No. 3 amassing 7 points and No. 2 5 points. Some very good scores were made. Miss M. Doran topping the list with a nice single of 203 closely followed by Miss P. Burke with 197 197 183 n nice 3-string 577.

In the ladies' Junior League the C.N. Ladies, known as the Nationals won three points, U Bees 1. These teams did exceptionally well and U Bees third games of 803 was fine rolling.

TRADE PLAYERS IN ONTARIO LOOP

Guelph, Jan. 16—A deal whereby Babe McLeod, speedy forward of the Niagara Falls Cataracts, will come to Guelph in exchange for Norm Burrows, centre, has been completed between the two Ontario Professional League clubs and the local management has been informed that McLeod will be sent to Guelph at the end of the week when Westwicks, the Cataracts regular left winger gets back into action.

Burmister, who was alloted to Guelph under the zone rullin, failed to come to terms with the local club and was allowed to play with Niagara on the understanding that Guelph would get a player in return. The Falls team has also strengthened the defence of Tab Johnson, former Buffalo International League right winger, and Babe Morrison, who was with the old London Panther club.

Earl Killoran husky substitute has been sent on loan to Kitchener. Manager Al Skinner is at present discussing terms with the Kitchener officials for two more players to strengthen the Leafs.

NEWMAN LEADS DAVIS

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Tom Newman was still leading in the semi-final match of the international billiards tournament at the close of play today. He closed with 26,700 points to 22,430 for Joe Davis, English champion. The winner of the present fortnight's game, which ends on Saturday, will meet Walter Lindrum Australian cue wizard.

On The Sport Trail

Fred Beaudry, spieling editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, writing in that journal yesterday expressed the opinion that the Kingston intermediates were looked upon as section winners on account of their win on Wednesday evening. The Limestone City sextet, it must be granted, is a nice looking team, and after Harry Ingram and Lorne Lewis have played one more senior game they will be ineligible for intermediate play. Without this pair Kingston undoubtedly will win the group, but it is doubtful if they can trim the class of another section because none of the three teams in this group are really high class.

Beaudry at the same time takes a crack at McCarthy, who handled the game Wednesday. He says in part: "While McCarthy was an improvement on his usual Toronto standard here, he has a long way to go before he can be called N.H.L. will be clamoring for him. McCarthy missed a bad one when he failed to hand out a penalty to the Belleville man throwing his stick to stop a goal. McCarthy claims he didn't see the incident. Well, if Mr. McCarthy didn't see that offence, he wasn't following the play, and if he wasn't following the play the place for him is in an optician's care."

As a matter of fact the offence in question was glaringly apparent. McCarthy appeared to be looking at the play when one of the Belleville stalwarts threw his stick across the goal mouth in order to save a goal. Ten minutes in the cooler is the sentence imposed for this playful little habit.

Queen's Senior "B" team are out to trim Belleville on Wednesday next, according to Kingston despatches. They have been practising persistently every day, it is said. Well, if the old jinx cast on every Belleville team that plays in the Jock Harty arena holds out they won't need to practice. It is few games that any Belleville team has ever won in that ice palace.

Belleville juniors will play at home on Tuesday night of next week, when they take on the Tricolor juniors from Kingston. This team has not been defeated having won from R.M.C. and Gananoque. If scores can be any judge, the locals should stand a win to their credit for Queen's were only able to defeat R.M.C. 2 to 1, while Belleville gave the Cadets a 10 to 4 trimming last night. The juniors travel to Gananoque one week from tonight and if the team can take the same game next week, they will be right in the running. All they have to do on Tuesday night against Queen's is to play back to the game they showed last night.

The Kiwanis Club is endeavouring to organize their bowling league again and to date fifteen members have signed up. Tonight at seven-thirty the players will meet at Demetrio's alleys for a practise game and to draw up the schedule and standing. This will keep the members busy and assist in better sportsmanship within the club. Every Kiwanian, who is interested in this league is requested to be on hand tonight and put the league over.

The first big curling match of the season will be played at the local rink on Monday night, when the return game with Kingston juniors will be played. Kingston won the first game shot in Belleville by a narrow margin and are reducing this margin. "Ted" Orr, W. A. Harden and F. O. Pitney will be the skips and all the players who took part in Kingston are requested to be on hand at the rink early Monday evening. The Kingston players will come by motor.

TORONTO LEAFS TIED RANGERS

Bill Cook Played Usual Good Games Despite Broken Wrist

New York, Jan. 16.—Seventy minutes of top speed last night failed to bring a decision between the New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs and they wound up their struggl ein a 1-1 tie. The single point, the Leafs gained by the draw put them in a tie with the Montreal Maroons for second place in the Canadian division of the National Hockey League.

Toronto had the better of the early part of the action, scoring two and a half minutes after the game started but the small Leaf squad could not hold the margin. The continued rush of the Rangers. A great defence held the slim margin for more than 40 minutes and through two perilous sessions when the Leafs had two men in the penalty box but a four-man Ranger drive finally tied the score in the third.

Neither team could break through again although Murray Murdoch of the Rangers was awarded a goal for the goal that was disallowed for interference shortly before the overtime period ended.

Great play starting behind the Ranger net with Andy Blair taking Ace Bailey's pass for an unhindered shot brought the Toronto goal. The assist went to a similar play, Frank Boucher passing to Bill Cook, but had the added advantage of an extra man near the net to trick the Toronto defence.

Leafs Score Early

Bill Cook started in his usual place at the Ranger right wing despite a broken bone in his right hand, and according up his regular custom was threatening the Leaf net, from the beginning. The Leafs also were shooting from the start, and crushed through for a goal. Bailey got around to the end boards and Toronto's defence men after him and passed out neatly to Blair who was loafing in front of the net with no one covering Ehle. Pa, in the Central League last season, while Simmons won four and lost four for Quincy, Ill., the Three-Eye League.

CANADIENS HAND MAROONS BEATING

Montreal, Jan. 16—The Canadiens outskated, outchecked and outpaced the Montreal Maroons last night and handed their local National Hockey League rivals a 4 to 1 beating. The game was dull at the opening, but gradually opened into an exciting display in the second and third periods as the fans became unnerving. Both Maroons twice and have drawn once.

They had a decided margin on the play last night in all departments. The Maroons as one stage of game looked like possible winners. They seemed listless. They could not get started, and their shots failed to connect. Thatcher and Wilcox, relief defencemen, went up in the third period and scored the only goal for the Maroons.

The most effective player on the ice last night was Pete Lepine, relief centre for Canadiens. His rapid thrusts in poke-checking and back-checking in centre ice ruined many a Maroon attack, and his stickhandling and skating proved a dazzling display. He scored two clean goals unassisted. Joliat, diminutive Canadien left wing, was also in rare form and combined well with centre iron with his sig-zagging and trick shots.

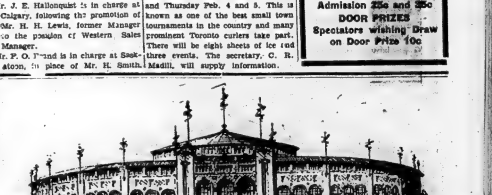
BROCKVILLE PAPER BOASTS OLD-TIMERS

The Toronto Globe is stroking its long white whiskers with glee over the fact that two of its employees, who are retiring, have given 57 years and 54 years, respectively, of service to that paper. This service aggregates 111 years, which is not so bad considering the troubles they must have experienced in the latter.



But these men are but infants in service compared to W. J. Reynolds and W. J. Moore of the Recorder. The former has pushed open the front door of this shop regularly for 58 years and W. J. Moore has done likewise for 56 years or an aggregate of 114 years. So far from thinking of retiring, these Brockville youngsters are just really getting on to their jobs. The R. and T. atmosphere is not only conducive to long life but to a peppy one. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

Attendance at movie theatres has more than doubled in the last three years.

BROUGHT FIRST FILM TO CANADA

J. C. Green Introduced First Motion Picture Machine in 1896

"The daddy of them all", in the moving picture and film industry in Canada is in Belleville today, no less a figure than John C. Green, who is staying with the Jackson and Green indoor circus at the Capitol Theatre.

Mr. Green today told The Ontario Intelligencer a story of his first association with the movies. It was away back in the year 1896 and it was on June 15th of that year he brought to Ottawa for the Ottawa Street Corporation the first moving picture machine ever brought into Canada. Those were the days of four fifty foot reels, linked together to form an endless chain.

The first moving picture machine in the State had been shown at Orange, New Jersey, at the Edison plant in January of that same year. This second machine came to Ottawa in charge of Mr. Green, West End Park, Ottawa, was the scene of the early movies in this country.

It was in the fall of the same year that the Lemaire machine came out at Lyons, France.

In the first days of motion picture the pictures were without titles and the announcer stood on the balcony and announced the film. Everything was in the experimental stage then. The first machine was a seven foot one Edison Kinematograph was the early name in the industry and the Biograph brought the first wide film in.

Mr. Green has had a wide experience in entertainment and introduced motion pictures to Canada he was in vaudeville and has been in vaudeville for the past six years. He recalled the state of the films about the time they opened up in Belleville about the year 1906 or 1909. He has been associated with large companies in the industry.

Asked as to what he thought of the future, he stated the belief that "the third dimension" was not far away. It is he believed almost perfected. He also looks for television to play a large part in the entertainment of the future.

Mr. Green is an artist in magic as his work at the Capitol last night showed. Last night he did four excellent tricks. Jackson, the handcuff king, put on a clever act, the sharp shooting by Mrs. Jackson and the trained bears and monkeys made a hit. The indoor circus which created a stir in Trenton is creating a stir here.

little school in the settlement acted as interpreters and through them the visitors announced that food, clothing and furniture would be sent immediately. It was a great thing, the speaker said, to be able to stand on the threshold of the home of these new Canadians and offer them the right hand of fellowship. It gives them a better view of Canada. The kind of thing is happening all the time.

Mr. Vinton told of the twenty-four Red Cross outpost hospitals in Ontario of which there are two in this county—at Coe Hill and Bancroft. These the visitor is rendered in the virgin bush by one lone nurse is stupendous.

The Junior Red Cross, the club of school children who band themselves together to observe a certain code of health rules is a very vital part of Red Cross work. Every Friday afternoon in various school rooms the children have their meetings, which they conduct themselves. They contribute a few pennies at each meeting and Mr. Vinton said that two thousand crippled children in Ontario have been helped owing to the high regard to health by these contributions to the Junior Red Cross since its five years of inception. Some mighty fine Nationians and Klwanians will come from the Junior Red Cross. Dr. Loretta O'Connor who is in charge of this particular activity was very proud of the Belleville branches of the Junior Red Cross.

One of the most important features of Red Cross work is that which is being done for the returned soldiers. Mr. Vinton, who had recently spent twenty months as a patient in Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, gave a compelling picture of the work of the Red Cross workers there. The war is not over for thousands of soldiers, he pointed out. Many young veterans who have been getting along well in the world are finding that their constitutions are suddenly breaking down as a result of war injuries, years after they were pronounced physically fit. The figures telling the number of patients treated at Christie Street Hospital alone showed that there was an increase last year of over one-third to one-half and the report of the clinic patients showed an increase of one hundred per cent. over the last five years. Hundreds of young men who had found their niche in the world who had had good positions were today suddenly faced with the problem of finding down of their health and the smashing up of their careers and homes through their illness.

What is the Red Cross doing for these men? In Toronto the women are doing fine work. Each week they visit the hospital, befriend the patients, learn if there is anything causing them mental anguish, and try to help them in a practical way to overcome this worry so that their recovery will be swifter.

The speaker said that he had no doubt that there were many returned men in this community who were having great difficulties, to whom the co-operation and help of the Red Cross would mean a great deal. He asked all to co-operate to help find these individuc mtion relations to Canada he was in vaudeville and has been in vaudeville for the past six years. He recalled the state of the films about the time they opened up in Belleville about the year 1906 or 1909. He has been associated with large companies in the industry.

Asked as to what he thought of the future, he stated the belief that "the third dimension" was not far away. It is he believed almost perfected. He also looks for television to play a large part in the entertainment of the future.

CREAM DEALERS TO PASTEURIZE THEIR PRODUCTS

City Council Will Lay Concrete Floor in Fire Hall

A number of important recommendations were placed by the city council in committees last night at a parleyation for the regular meeting on Monday night. The most important matter was the authorization to prepare a by-law making it unlawful to sell or offer for sale any milk or cream, which has not been pasteurized, but provisions in the pasteurizing law not to apply to certified milk or cream as defined in the Milk and Cream Act, R.S.O. 1927, chapter 280, said by-law to come into force on and after June 15th. This recommendation was passed in accordance to a resolution sent out from the Board of Health late last year.

A clay slab will be placed on the north side of the Sidney Street entrance to the new upper bridge in the city of Belleville. This sign was used while the bridge was under construction but was removed but the public works department thought the sign should be replaced to control the traffic.

A concrete floor in No. 1 Fire Hall will be laid at once according to recommendations of the committee and the Chairman of Fire. The special fire committee was also authorized to deal with the purchase of new uniforms for the firemen and report at the next meeting of the civic body.

Mayor Reid, Aldermen Woodley Walker, Tree and city treasurer were appointed as a committee to confer with J. O. Herity respecting the get-together banquet to be held on or about January 27th and that the usual grant be given.

The council will deal fully with the matter of collecting taxes in instalments at the next meeting.

Aldermen Armstrong, Woodley, Griffin and Wotten were appointed as a committee in the matter.

THEIR FINE WORK

Lord Willingdon has said goodbye to Canada, his office ending before the completion of the usual term in order to permit him to answer the call of service in another part of the Empire. Lord Willingdon and the Vis-countess Willingdon have come into closest touch with the Canadian people and there is regret at their departure. It is however a tribute to Canada that her governor-general has been called upon for service in India, where important duty remains to be done.

In his term as governor-general Lord Willingdon has come to know Canada intimately. He can never forget the Canada he learned to know so well during his term as vice-regent. He is of such an appreciative turn of mind that Canada will hereafter stand in still closer relation to the Empire through his knowledge, a man of such understanding as having left a friend in every part he met. The departing governor in touch with affairs at home. The more men of the Willingdon type who understand and appreciate the aspirations of a young country, the better for Canada and for the Empire.

Lady Willingdon in her sphere has brought the Old Land of Britain and this Young Land of Canada very close together with her understanding through her kind sympathetic appreciation of the ideals of all Canadians and particularly of Canadian women.

REMEMBER BELLEVILLE

Karl B. Conger of Ottawa, a Belleville native, and head graduate of the local public and high schools, has been honored with the presidency of the Eastern Canada Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers' Association who met in convention at St. John, N.B. Karl retains a close relationship with Belleville and is a frequent visitor in this city as is his brother Colonel William Conger, than whom this city knew no more enthusiastic booster.

It is a good sign to see these two Bellevillians keep their hearts in the same place with regard to their old home town, though business has called them to another centre. Vice versa Belleville folk remember them.

A GREAT MAN'S MEMORY

Ten thousand people stopped work in New York to attend the funeral of one man. Humanity in more than wealth and a good man's memory is more than material things. People showed they believed this at the funeral of the philanthropist, Nathan Straus.

This was the farewell tribute to a man who according to Prof. Phelps is likely to become "the last among his people to be a legendary figure." So much for a great good man. In his death he was not forotten, his influence will go on for generations.

THAT MOB ACT

Those in a Southern State who burned a negro bound with chains to the roof of the school house of a teacher in whose killing he is supposed to have been implicated may have thought they were doing justice and performing poetic justice to burn the man on the spot of the crime, but they broke the law which had already the man in custody pending to visit the law to take its time and give the man a fair chance of defence. Mob justice and lynch law are too dangerous to be condoned. A great number in that mob were doubtless influenced by the outrage and acted in passion but some probably acted in a mere desire to do something unlawful and to escape punishment because all could not be punished.

How much better to have confidence in the channels of law, the courts of justice!

There are of course a number of reasons to account for lynchings: the evident feeling that the negro is inferior to the white; the fear of whites of negroes breaking over the barriers of law and creating lawlessness, and the act of striking terror into their hearts; mob psychology, which beats back to prehistoric instincts when primitive human passions were excited; the feeling that the negro's alleged offence is a reversion to the barbarism of his ancestors of the jungles of Africa and is to be met in a like reversion of civilized whites to the primitive passion of vengeance by the mob. Under such a condition law itself cannot be a very active guard of the victim of vengeance.

Oshawa is about to have a decision on the question of a reduction in water and electric rates of ten per cent if a recommendation of Commoner Conant is adopted. The Hydro Commission of Ontario has to ratify the electric rate cut proposed.

A freak bill introduced in the Georgia House of Representatives must be the work of a slave of wage. It will levy a tax of one dollar a day upon wearers of red neckties, variegated sex, decorated and colored "shorts" and ones with runs in them. Evidently the bill expects to be real game for the comedians in the House have already referred it to the Game and Fish Committee. Sponsors of such a bill ought to be allowed to have their little wit and see what would actually happen if the bill became law.

A GARDEN

What a thing a garden is
For sweet dreams and quietness!

Roses and lilies,
Narcissus, daffodils,
Irises and phlox and stocks,
And the Sultan Hollyhocks,
Love-lies-bleeding—love in a mist—
Pansies tawny and amethyst.

What a thing a garden is
For medicinal heartsease.

Lilac white and lilac blue,
And a bird song in the dew
Appleblossom white and rose,
Blue forget-me-not and those
Pinks that have a spicy smell,
Honest lavender as well.

What a thing a garden is
For the birds and for the bees.

Oh, from the dark earth to hale
Tulips and the primrose pale,
Hyacinths, all that run before
The full flowering of the golden store
For to create, for to bid live
These so sweet, so fugitive!

What a thing a garden is
To bid grow to increase!

The contest was held in a downtown window with a radio as the prize. More than 60 contestants entered.

Massachusetts: Cultural news from the incomparable Boston Herald:

A correspondent has suggested to Dr. Frank Chouteau Brown, Celebrations Frank B. Howland that all male lineal descendants of the Pilgrims and purists forego shaving during the tercentenary celebration. During a recent historical observance in California many of the men who claimed to be related to the original '49ers raised beards. Howland believes the suggestion to be worthy of general recognition.

Newspaper Opinions

DELINQUENCY

At a time when analysts are given to asserting that humanity is more or less depraved and that the normal are in the minority, it is comforting to be told by Dr. William Moodie, Medical Director of the Child Guidance Clinic, Islington, England, that there is no such thing as a "criminal child." Even among delinquents, he says, his experience showed him that 95 per cent were absolutely normal in outlook, the reasons for their delinquency being quickly apparent and easily removed. The remaining five per cent were cases of sick minds, and such abnormality could only be treated by medical psychology. Dr. Moodie's deductions will please the ordinary public which has grown tired of some of the probers into conduct and their speculations.—Toronto Globe.

HOLLYWOOD LIKES TO WALLOW

It is common knowledge that the film magnates of Hollywood have a habit of taking a good novel or drama and tearing it inside out to suit their conception of what a good film story should be. They have also a penchant for taking perfectly nice titles of nove's and dramas and altering them so as to make a meaningless but perfectly pleasant story wallows in a muddy, sexy pool. Thomas Hardy sold the screen rights, at an insane price, of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" he [pulated that the end was to be exactly as he wrote it, but with the most contemptuous disregard for the reputation of the famous author, the sanctity of contracts, and the integrity of the story, the producers mutilated it in the most abominable manner, the denouement showing a reprieve coming to the unfortunate Tess in the inflictively exciting style of cheap melodrama, and showing her living happily ever after. Now we are treated to the same home such as Hollywood likes to show us. Sir James Barrie's "Admirable Crichton" was bowdlerized into "Male and Female." It suggested passion, illicit love, anything to tickle the jaded appetites of the moron masses.—Brockville Recorder.

BORROWING

Borrowing on a large scale means a heavy outlay for interest charge, and that means additional taxes to be paid. It might be worth while for the finance committee of the council to consider adopting some method such as is in effect in Toronto, whereby a large amount is paid in cash in advance, the ratepayers being allowed a discount for advance payment. This discount, it seems, is much less in cash than the interest which is charged by the banks, and if a similar plan were adopted here it would be a very desirability reduced very considerably the circle borrowings and have some effect on the interest payments. Oshawa Times.

BIG SICKNESS BILL

A recent estimate made in the United States revealed that the people of that country spend approximately $2,000,000,000 a year for illness and of this amount the doctors receive less than one-fourth. The major portion of this outlay goes to drug stores, including patent medicines, for hospital care nursing expenditure and similar service. And quacks, with whom the United States seems to be overrun, have a revenue approximately one-fourth as great as qualified physicians. The conclusion seems inescapable, showed, is spent on preventive medicine and the point is made that if the money has been spent in this way securing physical fitness and on the prevention of disease, the returns would be enormous in benefit to the people.—Hamilton Spectator.

ATTACKING TUBERCULOSIS

The remarkable success of the annual campaign against tuberculosis in Britain have been effectively summarized by Sir Robert Philip, Professor of Tuberculosis at Edinburgh University, in an important announcement just made. The number of sanatoria has grown from six to three hundred in thirty years. During the same period the death rate per hundred thousand has dropped from three hundred and thirty-six to ninety-seven. Moreover, the decrease has been at a consistently increasing rate. He holds out hope that within the next generation—that is to say, the next thirty years—tuberculosis will become as much an obsolete as typhus, which a century ago decimated the land with an annual death toll of hundreds of thousands, and which is now virtually extinct. But it is only if the fight is continued that such result can be obtained—Montreal Star.

Earth's 30 Foot Wobble

Adelaide, S. Aust.—The discovery that the earth wobbles as much as 30 feet in six months is causing astronomers concern, not because of the wobble but any cataclysmic development, but in view of the interference with the work of surveyors who must have very accurate data. This phenomenon is to be investigated by the observatories' staffs at Adelaide and La Plata, Argentina, which have been specially selected as points for study in the Southern Hemisphere.

These places are on the same parallel of latitude, within one minute of arc, and halfway round the world from each other. The director of the Adelaide observatory, George H. Dodwell, who is Government astronomer, and his staff, have undertaken the important work as an honorary contribution to science. Hitherto it has even erected the building for the telescope which has been lent to Adelaide for the purpose. Professor Comstock of the Minnawa Observatory, Japan, The Commonwealth Council of Scientific and Industrial Research is also helping the observatories of Australia in this world-wide astronomical survey, and the State Government has given its sanction to the work at the special request of the international astronomical authorities.

Mr. Dodwell says the astronomers of the world have long known that the earth's axis moves. "The theory of Wegener is that, owing to the viscosity of magma some distance beneath the earth's surface, the crust, solid as it is, is not in the stable position of the rest, but undergoes deformation. In the course of ages, therefore, the equatorial portion of the crust may slip around to the poles, and bring glaciation to parts which are now in a temperate climate. At any rate, it is certain, Mr. Dodwell points out, that latitudes of places on the earth's surface do show a change in the course of time.

At present the motion is very small, and the earth pole moves in an elliptical sheet. It will feel long once in about six months.

Mr. Dodwell explains that the phenomenon of latitude variation was discovered by Chandler in the United States of America, and Kustner in Berlin about 1888, and since 1899 a continuous series of observations for the study of variations of latitude have been carried out on the parallel of 39 degrees 8 minutes north latitude in Japan, Turkestan Sardinia, Maryland, Ohio and California. It has been found that the motion of the poles is round clockwise. There is an annual effect which is thought to be the result of meteorological causes, and follows the seasons.

Cows Prefer Wild Life

Can cows go wild and become so alert as to be able to protect themselves by flight and in finding food, their dietary dependence upon man? A history coming from Ridgewood, New Jersey, is true, it is possible, though there is little explanation given as to how the animals are able to maintain a steady food supply and escape the rigors of winter. This village has 28,000 residents.

"Ridgewood, N.J.—This village has had an open tea on on cows for the past two and a half months and although posses, a force of policemen, health department of squads, and finally a mounted troop headed by Sheriff Harold V. Reilly have taken part, nary a cow has been caught.

"But the season is not open for all cows. There is a black cow with white spots and white cow with black spots which have been living the lives of carefree bovine of the wild since last June when they ran away from Morris Blender's farm at Fairlawn on Oct. 21.

"A traveling butcher, sizing them up with too efficient an eye, scared the two cows into leaping over a barbed wire fence into the woods beyond. They disappeared in the woods and became cunning forest-dwellers the likes of which few men will be able to follow the chase all Winter."

Their neighboring woods and the cows raided orchards, gardens and lawns on Van Emburgh Avenue, Ridgewood, on Westervinus Road in Hohokus, and in Washington Township and Westwood. Mr. Blender offered a $25 reward for the cows, then raised it to $50. Enthusiasm was aroused.

"Posses chased them, but the cows always developed fleetness of foot. Ridgewood policemen pursued them vainly. The Board of Health enlisted squads of unemployed men on three-day relations but the cows eluded them. Sheriff Reilly led a band of horsemen, including Mayor John Pospisil, Councilman Peter Dykstra and two other citizens dressed in the latest cowboy fashion, to the chase. There was none; the cows did not appear.

"Some one told Farmer Blender how he had trapped tigers in Africa. Last night he set a trap baited with fresh fruit. He would make any cow's mouth water. He and friends lay in ambush till early this morning. When they gathered up the hay again this morning, they had a glimpse of the prey. The two wild-looking cows were led by a wilder-looking calf, a white and black one, dodging from the pace the frisky youngster set. Mr. Blender hopes the recaptured cows will be able to

Trend of Dairying

(Woodstock Sentinel Review)

When public speakers quote production statistics to show progress in agricultural output, they do not, as a rule, go into particulars, but give the total of cereal production, the value of field crops and so on. A decrease in barley or an increase in oats does not appear to strike them as significant, and hence the general total holds up. It is somewhat curious, therefore, that decline in cheese production does not appear to have been noted, and should be subject of so much comment, when milk production shows little change. The official figures for 1930 are Canada 14,349,023,000 pounds of milk, compared with 14,512,898,000 in 1928. In other words, more milk is being used by condensed and dry milk factories, more milk and cream for city consumption, and even more milk and cream by creameries, for production of creamery butter was up 2,800,000 pounds in 1929. The figures for 1930 are not, of course, obtainable as yet.

The emphasis laid by some speakers upon the decline in cheese exports has been subject of comment in these columns before. By some it is represented as almost a scandal that our hold upon the British market should be receding. It is with much satisfaction, therefore, that we quote Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion dairy commissioner, in a review of the dairying industry presented to the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario at Cornwall last week. Forty-two years in the public service and with no private axe to grind, he describes the situation in plain words and gives food for some country as an example to illustrate his argument:

"Let me begin, by stating this principle, that you cannot estimate the status of the dairying industry of Canada by considering only one or more products. You must take the industry as a whole. It is the total production of milk that really matters.

"It is misleading for us to estimate the progress of the industry on the basis of exports. Exports bear no definite relation to dairy production in any country. For example, New Zealand's total production of milk is only a little more than one-third as large as Canada's, yet the exports of New Zealand are the largest of any country in the world. With a small population and consequently small home consumption, more than 80 per cent, of what is produced is available for export. In Canada our home consumption is so large that the gross surplus for export is not more than 10 per cent. of total production. . . . The making of butter and cheese or any other product is only a means to an end, that end being the most profitable disposal of milk. Milk production would be very foolish not to choose that channel of disposal which gives the best return for the time being.

"The decrease in cheese production since 1926 is often commented upon with frequency by those who know little who take that view do not tell us where we could find a market for another 17 million pounds of cheese. The quantity is not roughly, the difference between our present export and that of the maximum 25 to 30 years ago. They overlook the fact that the world's market is already fully supplied.

"We have made the statement many times, but it cannot be made too often, that it was a very fortunate circumstance that better cheese quality sets were found for a proportion of the cheese milk at the time when New Zealand cheese began to come on the market in quantity.

"So long as Canadian cheese retains its superiority and sells at a premium, it appears not possible, no doubt, to find a market for a larger quantity of cheese than we now have available for export. But any increase of supply on a market already well supplied would have the effect of reducing prices, because in this regard is quantity, not quality, which counts.

"New Zealand cheese has not displaced Canadian cheese in the British market—quite the opposite. The decrease in Canadian has opened the way for the increase in New Zealand.

"The milk producers who continue to make cheese of the best quality suffer a decline in production. Their position is infinitely better today than it would have been had there been no cheese and those who continue who have turned their milk into other channels are also better off."

PORNOGRAPHIC LITERATURE

There can be little or no argument however, concerning the baneful effects of harmful literature and the wisdom and necessity of keeping it out of the country. This poisonous stream pours in with destructive effect. At present there is no check by the unscrupulous people engaged in this foul trade to pander to the prurient instincts of young people of the impressible period of their lives. One cannot touch plith and remain undefiled and it is the plain duty of the government to see that the corrupting influence is not permitted to continue its evil work among our young citizens.—Toronto Globe.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

"I have given a concise and genuine outline of the case as it presents itself to me, Your Honor. The defendant should have treatment. It is quite possible to cure her and I am morally certain I could do so. Her saddle nose can be repaired. I have a very good friend, a specialist in plastic surgery, and I know he would be willing to help without charge, to make a swan of this ugly duckling."

"And you think you would make her over into a responsible moral citizen?"

"I think so, Your Honor."

"Then would she support herself during the period of treatment? By theft,—or worse?" The judge glanced at Nance Belden. "How do you support yourself, young woman?"

"I carry my own Check-book," the girl replied.

"You have a private income?"

"Sure old thing."

"What is its source?"

"I don't know. On the first of every month somebody puts some money in the bank for me and I check against it."

"And that's all you know about it, eh?"

"Sometimes I can remember, but I cant now. It's the times I can't remember that raises hell with me, Judge. I don't know what name to sign to my checks so I forget to sign them at all. They say she is intelligent as checking account. Then I get hard up and steal."

"How truly remarkable, Miss Belden. Have you ever issued any checks that bounced back on you?"

"Say, are you trying to kid me, Whitkers?"

The judge ignored this obvious contempt of court. "I suppose you have many sweethearts, Miss Belden?"

Nance Belden's normal laughter filled the court-room. "Oh, Judge, you're precious. What sort of a man would pick me for a sweetheart, I ask you? Be yourself, Judge. Now you tell one."

"Why not?" the judge pursued remorselessly.

"Well, maybe because nobody ever asked me," the girl assured him, with simple directness. "I don't mind admitting I like to have a little sweetie for fun if I could find one, but what the hell's the use trying? I'd only have him a little while; then he'd get ashamed of me, what's the use bothering oneself? I know a blind fellow that's mad about me. I've often thought of taking the poor greenie on for my steady sweetie but he makes me so sad I know it wouldn't last. He has that funny staring look, and when he walks with his head straight out it just breaks my heart."

"Where does he live?"

"God knows—now. I was taking care of him when I got pinched, You see, Judge, I took him to a doctor to see if something couldn't be done for his poor eyes, but the doctor said he could be cured, but it would be expensive. He'd have to go east to a very noted specialist, who would charge a lot for the operation. Well, I pals' doctor that bill and that left me broke so I was forced to go out and get some more jack. I'm a good scout, Judge, and I'm not going to let a blind pal down."

"Did the same doctor say anything to you about your nose"?

"Yes, he said he could cure that himself, and it came in when I was ready and he'd get me in a hospital and operate. Gosh, it's some baby is it not, Judge?"

"How did it happen?

"I don't know."

"You don't know anything, do you?

"Yes, I know something."

"What is it?"

"You haven't the slightest intention of agreeing with Steve. That sheep-faced mutt, Stephen, has given you an earful. You're one of those jokers that believes what he wants to believe. Steve's told you I'm nutty, but Steve's nuttier. I'm not. Steve's just a good fellow trying to give the little girl a hand."

"So you believe you're quite sane?"

"Of course I am. There's nothing wrong with me except a bad memory, and a beak like the American eagle."

Stephen sighed and shook his head resting white. Nance crossed to his side and put her arm around his neck, and laid her cheek against his. "Steve, darling you've been awful nervous lately," she murmured him, and laughed.

"Your Honor," Stephen pleaded, "can't you see she's—"

"Yes, I can see that she's as intelligent as checking account. Then I get hard up and steal."

"How truly remarkable, Miss Belden. Have you ever issued any checks that bounced back on you?"

"Say, are you trying to kid me, Whitkers?"

NO TRACE FOUND OF BIDDLE BODY AT THE OUTLET

Kiwanis Club of Picton Erect Open Air Rink on the Bay

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 16—Though searches are being made from time to time, no trace has been discovered of the body of Elmer Biddle, drowned during November, while hitting nets in Lake Ontario off the Sand Banks. It will be remembered that Biddle, a young man in his twenties, and a companion named Jackson, both of Bloomfield were hitting nets at night when their boat capsized and the men plunged into the icy waters of the lake. Jackson made his way safely to the nearest distant shore, but Biddle disappeared after clinging to the upturned boat for some time.

Though the shores of the entire district were searched by scores of people no trace of the body was found, but a pair of trousers, believed to be worn by the missing man, were found on the Outlet beach some miles distant from the scene of the tragedy. Biddle was a nephew of Chief of Police Ben Biddle of Picton.

The Town Council will hold its inaugural meeting on Friday night. The swearing in of the new mayor, Reeve, Deputy Reeve and Councillors will take place Monday night. There were no speeches.

Providing Greater Value at Lower Cost

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business—design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of many thousands of motorists throughout the Dominion—and providing it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

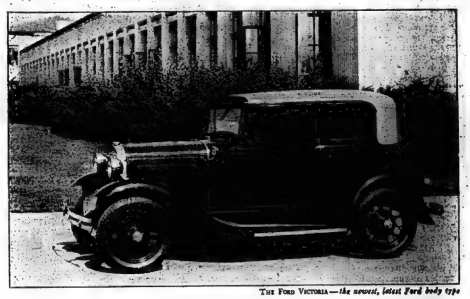
The search for better ways of doing things is never-ending. There is ceaseless effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing.

The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before.

The story of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is the story of greater and greater value at lower price. The first Ford two-door sedan in Canada sold for $1150. That was in 1914. It now sells for a list price of only $595, or practically one-half of the 1914 figure. Within the past fourteen months, the price of this car has been reduced $85. Other body types show proportionate decreases.

At the same time, the quality of the Ford has been constantly improved. Large production and Ford methods of manufacturing have made it possible to put more and more value into the car without extra cost to the purchaser.



That the public appreciates the substantial worth of the new Ford is shown by its widening use by people in all walks of life. Today the new Ford leads every other car in Canada by a large and constantly increasing margin.

In many sections between fifty per cent and seventy per cent of all cars sold are Model A Fords. Everywhere you hear enthusiastic praise of its alert, capable performance, safety, comfort, reliability, economy and long life.

Throughout, the new Ford is an example of fine automobile engineering and craftsmanship in volume production—a value far above the price you pay.

The Company Behind The Car

The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is one of the largest industrial organizations in the Dominion. The plant at East Windsor, Ontario, covers many acres and gives employment to thousands of men. Assembly branches are maintained at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, and sales branches at Saint John, London, Calgary and Regina. All Ford cars for the British Empire, other than for Great Britain and Ireland, are made by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited. Affiliated in its world-wide activities are the Ford Motor Company of Australia (Pty.) Limited; Ford Manufacturing Company of Australia (Pty.) Limited; Ford Motor Company of South Africa, Limited; Ford Motor Company of India, Limited, and the Ford Motor Company of Malaya, Limited.

MCBRIDES GAIN REDUCED TO 7 PROTEST HINTED

Startling Errors in Counting and Tabulation Discovered in Recount

LAWYER'S STATEMENT

Shortage of Ballots in Some Boxes and Excess Number in Others

Toronto, Jan. 17—Possibility of the mayoralty election being protested by Sam McBride, the defeated candidate, loomed last night as the fifth day of the recount at the city hall showed further instances of sub-division where the number of ballots in the ballot boxes did not coincide with the number issued by the deputy returning officers.

"It is my opinion, based on my observation of the recount," said Joseph M. Singer, K.C., counsel for Mr. McBride, at the close of yesterday's sitting, "that the total number of ballots involved in the variations between the numbers cast and the numbers recorded is issued, would equal Mayor Stewart's New Year's Day majority."

Mr. Singer declared he was confident that the recount had disclosed ample grounds for a protest of the election. He would make no definite statement, however, as yet, as to whether a protest would be filed.

Startling errors in the counting and tabulation of the votes were disclosed as yesterday's sitting, which ended with Mr. McBride's gains reduced to seven votes. The defeated candidate had started the day with a total reduction of 62 in Mayor Stewart's majority of 313.

Mr. McBride left at a blow 44 of his hard earned gains.

Difference of 44 Votes

A mistake found in the counting of the ballots cast in Sunderland Ward, Duke of Connaught School, Ward 3, was responsible for a difference of 22 votes that should have gone to Mayor Stewart. When these were credited to the mayor, a difference of 44 was made in the McBride gains.

According to Mr. Singer, in the Soldd Ward Eight subdivision checked yesterday, there were at least 20 instances where the number of votes cast did not balance with the number of ballot papers recorded as having been given out.

A noticeable instance of this was seen in Sudivision 22, Roden School, Ward Eight, where ballot boxes contained 187 votes of which 135 were for Stewart and 52 for McBride. The poll book showed that 196 mayoralty ballots had been given out. Accordingly nine ballots had disappeared and had not been accounted for.

In this and some others, there was a shortage of ballots. In many cases there was an excess of ballots. The box would contain one or two more slips than the poll book showed to have been handed out.

The brothers will be fifty-one years old tomorrow.

Thomas Peters, as the brother Athanasius now is known, came out to Canada eleven years ago. He lived for six years in Cobalt and was in business there. COMMITTEES NAMED AT INAUGURAL MEETING OF BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. A. E. McCutcheon Proposes a New Temperance Lecturer Come Here

PLUMBING ACCOUNT

Bleachers Will be Placed in the Gym at the Collegiate

William Harvey will be the chairman of the Belleville Board of Education for the ensuing year. Last night he was chosen unanimously by the board members at the inaugural meeting of the new Board.

There are several new faces on the Board this year. Jack Allin, Victor Graves, Dr. W. S. MacNaughton, Fred Henry, and George P. Lent are the new members. Missing from 1931 meetings will be Arthur Jones, last year's chairman, J. H. Weir, Rev. A. E. McFee, William Fairbairn and the late Henry Freeman Ketcheson.

He did not take long for the nominating committee to name the standing committees for this year and each standing committee elected its own chairman. It is interesting to note that John Elliott for many years the capable chairman of the Board, will retire this year from the various committees while Harry W. Ackerman will be chairman of the School Management. Perhaps one of the most important of all committees is the Sites, Building and Repairs, and L. E. McLean will be chairman, replacing William Mahoney. Colonel W. N. Ponton and Ernest A. Geen will be chairmen respectively of the Music Committee and the Collegiate and Technical-Commercial committee once again this year, while George F. Catrom is once more chairman of Printing and Supplies.

DEACON, STOKES, FAIRFIELD, HANNA LOCAL CHAMBER COMMERCE BOARD

G. A. Stokes, C.N.R. Superintendent, is the New Director Named

The final election for directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce which was concluded at four o'clock yesterday afternoon resulted in a three election for a two-year term of the following well known citizens:

C. H. Deacon, H. E. Fairfield, C. E. Hanna, G. A. Stokes.

The election was the closest and the most uncertain in the history of the Chamber of Commerce. Two Scrutineers and the election committee were in a state of uncertainty until the last ballot was counted. At first one was in the lead and then another but at the end it was ascertained that the four mentioned above had secured a small majority of the ballots cast.

Mr. C. E. Hanna is re-elected from last year's board of directors. Messrs. Deacon and Fairfield have both served on the board before, Mr. Deacon being an ex-president.

Mr. George A. Stokes is new to the board. He holds the important office of divisional superintendent of the Canadian National Railways and came to Belleville about three years ago as the successor to Mr. J. D. MacMillan who was then retiring from active service. To be elected to the board after this comparatively brief residence in the city is indeed a fine tribute to Mr. Stokes' personal popularity and to his public spirit as a citizen. In connection with the transportation interests of the country should make him a useful member.

There had been recurrent reports recently that strange machines had been flying between Gaspe and the United States border and it was presumed the distressed machine had some connection with these.

ROSEDALE HOME IS THREATENED BY RED ELEMENT

Patrol of Policemen Guard the Home of Judge Emerson Coatsworth

SPOKE TO DAUGHTER

Unknown Man Advised Cadi to Watch His Home and Himself

Toronto, Jan. 17—The usual quiet calm and decorum of May Street in Rosedale, was broken last night by the presence of police motorcycles and service cars, and by the crunch-crunch of the feet of the leather of plainclothesmen and burly constables in the snow about the house of Judge Emerson Coatsworth.

A patrol of from two to six or eight men was kept throughout the night in the vicinity of the house after a man proclaiming himself to be a Red had threatened to burn it down. It was placed there at the instance of Chief Constable Draper and Inspector of Detectives Murray, the former of whom was telephoned by Judge Coatsworth after he received of the threat. Miss Sounding Voice.

The author of the warning declared himself to be a member of "the standing voice," telephoned His Honor's home about 6 o'clock last evening. The telephone was answered by Miss Helen Coatsworth, the Judge's daughter

The girl reported the short conversation which ensued were received. According go police officials, the man declared that he was "fed up" and to set fire to the house, accompanying his declarations with somewhat vitriolic and abusive language. Judge Coatsworth subsequently held a conference and to a reporter at His Honor's house last night from a slip of paper on which he said he had written down what his daughter told him, referred only to burning of le house.

The man resorted to no profanity, the Judge said, aside from advising his daughter to tell His Honor to only to burning of the house.

Not at All Afraid

His Honor declared that he was not at all afraid of the portended holocaust and had only telephoned Chief Draper after consulting friends. Members of his family were not unduly alarmed either, he said, although his daughter was "serious and concerned" and was annoyed when she told him about it.

"I thought however, that it was better to be on the safe side, for you never know what these crazy fellows might do" he explained.

NINETEEN HURT IN SUBWAY JAM

New York, Jan. 17—Smashing into a concrete wall in a dark tunnel between Bush and Avenue, a Hudson tube train inbound from Jersey City was wrecked yesterday causing injury to nineteen persons. By a seeming miracle there were no fatalities.

The first car of the Jersey train split a switch, swung broadside, and ramming into the concrete barrier, carved through its centre like a giant cleaver. The cars behind it mashed and derailed as they, too, thought the first car was high off the ground. Several were injured in the leap.

The wrecked train was not travelling fast when it hit the switch otherwise, investigators said, the loss of life would have been appalling.

A London woman summoned for nonpayment of income tax wrote her regrets to the collector, explaining she had been on the "dole" since last April.

Two Prince Edward Cheese Factories Are Amalgamated

Mountain View cheese factory as Mountain View and Hyland Cheese factory at Roblin's Mills, both of which have been running cheese for many years, have amalgamated, and manufacturing of cheese will take place at the Mountain View plant.

Mr. Lorne Bedford is the president of the amalgamated factories. Both Mountain View and Hyland have been producing an equal amount of cheese annually.

The reason for the merger of the factories is to economize on overhead charge. This year the production will it is expected run to about the same as the two factories' production in 1930.

These two Prince Edward Counties factories have been in operation about as long as most residents of Ameliasburgh remember.

POULTRY BREEDERS PLEASED WITH RESPONSE FROM LOCAL MERCHANTS

Splendid Attendance Featured the Annual Show This Week

"Hats off to Belleville . . . Merchants and Citizens".

Here is a message from Mr. R. J. Messervey representing the Belleville Poultry Association.

On behalf of the Belleville Poultry Association we wish to thank the merchants and citizens of this city who so generously donated specials and cash prizes which helped to such a large extent in making the show such a success. It goes to prove the sporting spirit and the good wish to help one another that is in the Bellevillians' hearts.

"Because of the merchants and citizens helping to make the show possible past, such a success, it is the means of having the outside world look upon Belleville as a sporting and enterprising city. We trust the goodwill of outsiders and this was one step in that direction."

Judged at the show Mr. Messervey said it has been the largest held here in the last few years with the quality of the birds in general being the best that was ever shown in Belleville.

There were outstanding specimens on all of the popular breeds and very many of the birds were Royal Winter Fair, Canadien National Exhibition and Ottawa winners which proves their quality. Birds that win in any of the above shows means that they are the best in Canada.

SEEK TO BLOCK MOVE TO OUTFIT SCHOOL CADETS

Trustee Fred Smith is Opposed to Purchase of Uniforms

Will the cadets at the Collegiate get their splendid new uniforms this year, after all? At one time everything looked very far been and it was thought that this Spring they would appear in brilliant scarlet jackets.

Last night a monkey wrench was thrown into the machinery by Trustee Fred Smith. Mr. Smith rose to his feet at the end of the meeting and stated that he had a notice of motion. The following was the wording of his motion:

"Moved that the recommendation of the Special Committee on the new uniforms as passed by the Board of Education on December 1926, be rescinded and that the estimates for such uniforms be not included in the requisition to the city council".

Trustee Geen said that he didn't approve of Trustee Smith putting that notice of motion. "We did have to discuss a notice of motion at all," replied Mr. Smith, briefly. This means that the question will probably be thoroughly hashed and rehashed and voted upon at the next Board meeting.

WILLIAM HARVEY 1931 CHAIRMAN OF SCHOOL BOARD

Has Missed One Meetin in Ten Years as a Member

POPULAR CITIZEN

Asked for Co-operation in Making New Year a Successful One

Ten years on the School Board, having missed one meeting during that time is the proud record of William Harvey, chairman of the Board of Education for 1931. Mr. Harvey was last night unanimously chosen by his fellow trustees to occupy the position held last year by Arthur Jones. When nominations were thrown open, his was the only name to be mentioned.

Mr. Harvey is a retired employee of the Canadian National Railways. He is a married man; has two children, both attending school.

Previous to his ten years on the Board of Education, Mr. Harvey spent four years on Vocational Board, so he has considerable experience in educational matters. For the past two years he has been chairman of that extremely important committee Sites, Buildings and Repairs, and also was a member of the committee during the trying times previous to the building of the new collegiate institute and vocational school.

"I ask for your co-operation," said Mr. Harvey when he began assuming his thanks to his fellow members for electing him to the position of chairman. "If we carefully cooperate, I am sure that we will go through this fine-ing." Mr. Harvey also put forward the worthy suggestion that the members should endeavour to be at the meetings promptly at eight o'clock during 1931.

Mr. Harvey is an enthusiastic member of the Rotarian Society. He donated the Harvey Cup for competition in the Public Schools and gives medals each year to the winners.

Mr. Harvey is a member of Belleville No. 123 A. F. and A.M. and belongs to L.O.L. No. 1962, Port Hope.

TRENTON DEFEAT WHITBY SQUAD IN JUNIOR GAME

One Hundred Spectators Witness Fast and Exciting Exhibition

(Special Correspondence)

Trenton, Jan. 17—Whitby Junior O.H.A. representatives were taken in to camp here last evening by the local sextette by the score of 5 to 3, the winning combination having won in the last four minutes of play. Bohan was the outstanding player on the ice with Hall of the visitors a good second.

Play opened fast in the first period with both teams striving hard for the honor of first blood and the moral victory which goes with same. Trenton missed a fine opportunity when Bohan, playing on the extreme rear centre ice, wiggled through the enemy defence only to shoot wide of the nets. Penalties were common in the Trenton area but a stalwart defence kept the Whitby sharpshooters at long range. The Bonedders finally broke away with Dolan taking Bohan's rebound and shooting into the far corner of the Whitby net. Whitby's combination of a new forward line Whitby evened the count when Hall outsmarted goalie Chambers with a fast, low shot from close in. Taking the puck from the face-off at centre ice Jordan came down and notched Trenton's second count with a shot from the far the blue line. Scott and Brown both missed splendid opportunities to score when breaking away from the centre on the count with a shot that bounced of the net guardian's stick into the net.

Stiff Bodying

Play in the second period was featured by stiff bodying on the part of both teams and the period ended with neither team being able to ring the button, the players began to rough things up and in the bodying of Belleville, had things well in hand and penalties to Yorke and Bohan of Trenton as well as Bodying of Whitby.

Spode Dinnerware

It opens a far cry back to the stately days of the Eighteenth Century—when life was less hurried—when the leisurely tea-party was as much the fashion as the fine English pottery which graced the tables. Quality was valued as much then as it is now—and it speaks best for the worth of Spode Dinnerware that when it was first introduced in 1770, it at once won a wide circle of fastidious admirers. Such a high stand ard of excellence could not have been maintained for over a century and a half had not the manufacturers steadily refused to let any save the best materia's and the finest craftmanship go into their products.

Today Spode Dinnerware ranks high in the opinion of those who use Fine English semi-porcelain. It combines to the fullest degree—beauty of shape—artistic decoration—good body—reasonable price—and a wonderful name for quality.

We now have Spode Dinnerware in three beautiful old patterns: Wicker Lane, Buttercup, and Fairy Dell. They make ideal breakfast or afternoon tea sets.

Come in and see them. Quality considered, the prices are most reasonable.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

D. Floyd Ashley, of Pexboro, a farmer, was among the appointees for returning officers for the Federal elections. Mr. Ashley will preside over the elections in South Hastings. Twenty changes were made throughout the Dominion. The changes are announced in a current issue of the Canada Gazette.

COLLIE PUP IN POUND

A splendid little collie puppy, about two months old, was picked up by Mr. Thomas Thorne, the city's dog-catcher yesterday. If the pup is not claimed by somebody by Monday, he will have to be "put away." There is one cure in the pound at present, a wire-haired terrier, and if he is not claimed by tonight, will be painlessly killed.

LITTLE CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

There is only one case of contagious disease in Belleville at the present time, according to the M.O.H., Dr. G. S. Cronk. This is a case of measles and was not "caught" here. COLLEGIATE DRAWS BYE

Belleville collegiate has evidently got all the class in the hockey in this district, from it to classy in fact, that there aren't one town, east or west, would enter a team against them. Therefore the Collegiate draws a bye, which is a decidedly mixed blessing. They won't have a chance to get in much hockey, only exhibition games, and they pay the winners of the north em. group. The northern group does not finish until January 31st, so they won't get any real hockey until February. Albert College has agreed to play some exhibition matches with Coach Shorty boys but an exhibition game is never as good as a league fixture.

Turcotte, Canadian Government Exhibition Commissioner, stated only five spaces were still available in the Canadian section of the Fair at London and thirteen at Birmingham.

Exhibition space in the Canadian section of the British Industries Fair is made available to Canadian manufacturers at the low rate of $250 per square foot, which includes transportation of exhibits from Canada and return. Another rate of $1.00 per square foot is made available for Canadian exhibitors who have their material already in Great Britain.

There was considerable business done by the 1931 board at its inaugural meeting. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, of Tabernacle United Church, was presented last night to request that Dr. W. D. Bailey, Director of Temperance Instruction in Manitoba, be given one day in Belleville next month, in order that he might give instruction in temperance to the public and collegiate students. It will cost $50.00 for the one day, and the Board will not pay that money. Rev. Mr. McCutcheon, however, said in this event, that if the Board would let them have the collegiate auditorium in the evening, a silvir collection could be taken up, which would help to defray the expenses and that he could probably raise the rest of the cash. Colonel Ponton said that the Board was not allowed to allow any organization or person to use the auditorium and charge admission or take up a collection. It was contrary, he said, to government regulation. The question was finally referred to the school management committee and Dr. Bailey will be able to address the school children if the request is O.K.'d by the Department of Education.

A Bill Paid

For many months a bill owing to Charles L. Hyde has been held up by the Finance Committee. The committee thought that it was too high. The bill amounted to $240.30 and was for work done at three public schools by Mr. Hyde. One trustee last night stated that he could have employed a competent man, with helper, to do the job for $30.00 a school, or a total of $90.00. The Board, however, will have to pay the bill, so it was finally agreed last night after much discussion, some of it bitter, to pay the account.

Victor Graves went on record last night as being against the employment of married women. The question came up when a teacher was employed as one of the public schools to fill a vacancy. It was explained that the teacher in question was supporting her husband, who was out of work.

Dangerous to the children are the traffic conditions at King George school, a report from the principal, Mr. Kells, explained. Mr. Kells asked that sidewalks be built. The letter will be forwarded to the city council without comment.

H. W. Ackerman will represent the Board at the Urban School Trustees' meeting this spring.

John Elliott will be the delegate to the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association meeting in the near future.

The parents desire so, mentally defective, backward or nervous children will have a chance to be examined by alienists when Dr. C. H. Lewis and Miss M. Dafoe will come to Belleville from Kingston. They will hold their clinic in the school nurse's office.

H. J. Clarke was reappointed to the Board of Management of Corby Library by the School Board.

1370 cases of absence were investigated and reported by H. D. Ransom, attendance officer during 1930.

It was recommended by the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee that benchers be installed in the gymnasium, the students doing the work themselves.

Hubert A. Frise was recommended by the School Management Committee to fill the position of teacher of English in the Collegiate. Mr. Frise is now teaching at the school at a salary of $2300 a year.

Mr. Lecil Sutherland, Miss Ethel Williams, Mrs. Yeleman and Mrs. Carswell have been placed on the Supply teaching staff.

P. C. MacLaurin's Report

There is very little sickness at the Collegiate at present, the principal stated in his report. Attendance, both from the country and the city, has been excellent, he said.

NEW INDUSTRY IS PLANNED FOR TOWN TRENTON

St. George's Young People Name New Officers — Council in Session

Trenton, Jan. 16 (Special Correspondence)—While full particulars cannot be ascertained, it is learned on good authority that a Canadian Company holding patents or a process to manufacture a fire-proof wall-board from Mica, is about to locate here.

For the past several days, Company representatives have been looking over the sites which Trenton has to offer. Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the second unit of the former Dominion Combing Mills and it is also can be completed the building will be dismantled and the steel used in the building of a plant on the site of the old Consumtator being just east of the river, mouth.

They would employ in the neighborhood of a hundred hands and the mica would be shipped here from their mines in the northern part of the county.

LEAGUE REORGANIZED

Last evening the St. George's Young Peoples Club was reorganized to form a branch of the Anglican Young People's Association with the following officers being elected:

Pres.—Mayor C. W. Lott, Drs. T. S Parncombe, W. J. Johnson and Messrs. C. M. Richardson and Frank Smith.

Pres.—Roy Smith;

2nd Vice—Francis Little.

Secretary—Miss Helen Galna.

Treasurer—E. Wiggins.

Election of officers of the Holy Name Society of the year 1931 placed H. LeClair in the president's chair with H. Doyle and H. Chase 1st and 2nd vice presidents respectively. F. J. Delisle was elected secretary-treasurer and Chas. Allore, L. Lesprance, J. M. Hennessey, T. Gauthier consult ors. Marshall, A. Findlay; Sentinel F. Carroll.

Some fifteen men in charge of Mr. Ernest Wilkins are engaged tearing down the damaged portions of the King St. United Church which was badly gutted by fire just prior to Christmas. Messrs. N. J. McNair, A. E. Cull and E. L. Fraser are the respective chairmans of the Building, Heating and Organ Committees which have been appointed to inspect the building, when all debris has been removed and arrive at an approximate estimate of the cost of restoration. Their reports will be made to the Church Board the latter part of next week following which contracts will be let and the work rushed to completion.

Approximately 120 gals of water per head is used daily by the residents of Trenton. This means that between 300,000 and 400,000 gals must be pumped each day, and while the present supply is adequate for all general purposes the Town Fathers considered it advisable to protect against any and all emergencies. With this end in view three new springs were discovered and the water galleries are being extended to catch their flow. It is roughly estimated that the supply will thus be increased some fifty percent.

The Council met in special session last evening to pass the various by-laws necessary for the New Year and to further take up the problem of unemployment. Work has already been confinenced in the laying of sewers on Byron St., employing between fifty and sixty men. As soon as possible these operations will be carried on more extensively in order that all wishing employment may be provided with same.

GROWTH CHEESE INDUSTRY TRACED

Canadian Product Has Climbed to Position of Pre-Eminence

LONDON — Since the institution eight years ago of a cheese grading system, Canadian cheese has gradually climbed to a position of pre-eminence in the markets of the world, Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, declared in an address before the annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario. On the world markets, he said, the Canadian product has been selling at a premium of nearly three cents a pound over that of its chief competitor, New Zealand.

Tracing the history of the industry over the last fifty years, Dr. Ruddick described its growth from 1881 when there were only forty-six factories in the country and reviewed the accomplishments of the pioneers in cheesemaking. From the beginning in 1884, when only the first factory went into operation, the industry had seen a steady growth until in 1910 when the total of all establishments manufacturing milk products had been 3,684. The trend in late years had been to-ward a smaller number of factories with larger average outputs.

In the meantime, the growth of the consuming public and milk powder industry had been partly at the expense of cheese production. "But it does not follow," said Dr. Ruddick, "that the consumption has been a decrease in the number of cheese factories, or in the total output of cheese, that there has been any slackening in the dairy industry in the old cheesemaking districts. The facts are quite the opposite. These districts are producing more milk than they ever did."

Turning to modern trends in the industry, the commissioner laid emphasis on the value of grading. The 1923 New Zealand cheese had been selling nearly one cent higher than Canadian cheese on the Old Country markets. That year grading was inaugurated in Canada and since then, Dr. Ruddick declared, the average premium for Canadian cheese had varied from one-half cent a pound in 1923 to 2.70 cents in 1929. The high point had been reached early in December last when the difference was four and one-half cents.

"Now," Dr. Ruddick continued, "we have not made these comparisons to belittle the New Zealand cheese. My object is to encourage Canadian cheese makers to stick to the policy of producing its close, firm bodied, clean flavored cheese of the true Cheddar type, for it is that quality in our cheese which secures the premium and which no waumounts to at least $2,000,000 a year.

"It would be a great mistake to assume that the New Zealanders will not find means of overcoming some of their present difficulties. It seems clear, however, that we in Canada have some inherent advantages which are of great value to the cheese industry if fully utilized. It may be something in the soil or the character of the feed, but in any case Canadian cheese possesses the characteristic qualities of the true cheddar seldom if ever found in New Zealand cheese.

"The grading returns show that the quality was well maintained in 1930, but it should never be overlooked that the standards of quality in the world's market tend to become higher year by year. There must be no relaxation of effort to produce nothing but the best. The result can be attained only by co-operation and team work on the part of the milk producer, the factory owner and the cheesemaker. It is encouraging to find a noteworthy growth of this spirit during the last few years."

"WHEAT MARKET DOOMED;" CUTTEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Arthur W. Cutten, Canadian born grain trader, said last night that the Chicago Board of Trade's wheat business is doomed, "as long as the United States Government stays in the market."

"It is only a matter of time," said Cutten, "and I like any other business man would do, am transferring practically all of my activities in that line to the Winnipeg market."

Cutten who bought a seat on the Winnipeg Board of Trade, is to go there Tuesday in person to apply for admittance in accordance with their rules. Several other Chicago firms have bought seats in Winnipeg in the last two months.

WINNING STREAK OF STIRLING IS FINALLY BROKEN

Tweed Pucksters Take Red and Whites Into Camp by 3-0 Score

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

Tweed, Jan. 17.—One of the most exciting games in the Trent Valley League was that played in Tweed last evening, when Tweed defeated Stirling 3 to 0 in a game that was marked by some exceptionally fine hockey. The game was fast and clean, only one penalty being handed out and this a late-minute one to Harry Ingram for trimming.

The Tweed rink was packed with fans, and so close and interesting was the game especially in the last minutes of play, that the spectators were on their toes most of the time. The game started with some fast playing and the first goal was scored by Cripps on a pass from A. Gerald to Campbell to Cripps. The second goal was also scored by Campbell on a pass from A. Gerald. The combination of both teams was splendid. . .

In the second period Stirling forwards made desperate efforts to get past Campbell, Tweed's brilliant centre player, but he stopped them again and again. In this period Campbell received an injury to his neck and was taken off for the rest of the period.

The third period was faster than ever with Tweed rushing the goal and Morton had some narrow escapes. He allowed only one other goal to get by this when Max Gerald passed from the blue line to A. Gerald who passed to Campbell for the score. Players of both teams played a fine game throughout, Morton and for Stirling, perhaps Davis was the most outstanding.

MCGUIRE LEADS BROCKVILLE IN SCORING HONOURS

Brockville Jan 17—Brockville Magedonians nosed Smiths Falls "Meoses" out of the Ridgeau group leadership here last night when the locals blanked the invaders by eight goals. Smiths Falls never found the nets all night and were out-skated and outplayed at every turn by the Magedonians who exhibited their best hockey of the year and were at the top of their form which carried them to the intermediate championship of Eastern Ontario last season. The play was fast and fairly clean, nine penalties being handed out by G. A. Devlin Kingston who ruled firmly and impartially.

McGuire led in the scoring with three goals while Dexter and Hueston recounted for two each. Henderson scored Brockville's eighth goal shortly before the game ended. The contest attracted the largest crowd of the season. The teams were as follows:

Smiths Falls—Goal Gillespie; defence Moffitt and Biggs; centre Hamilton; wings Kelly and Latimer, subs, Cookman, Moulton, Coppian, Sparks and McCarthy.

Magedomas—Goal Murray; defence Rooney and Dexter; centre, Kennedy wings, McGuire and Hueston; subs, Walsh, Henderson and Shorey.

NIAGARA FALLS BEAT KITCHENER

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 17 — Niagara Falls here added further to the Ontario League ladder here last night when they scored a 5 to 0 victory over Kitchener Silverwoods. A crowd of 1,000 witnessed the tilt, an increase of 600 over any of the previous pro games here this season.

The Canucks showed much speed, displayed an abundance of inside hockey and had a goodly margin over their opponents.

It was a game in which team play by the Fallsers featured and there were no particular outstanding stars. The defence of the home boys was much too strong for the visitors' attack and as a result the Falls' goal was seldom in real danger.

Both Lamb and Malle of the Falls drew the only penalty.

The Cataracts scored three goals in the first period. LaRoche drew first blood after seven minutes' play when he took the pass from Sullivan and placed his shot. Ben Maunders netted two more counters, taking Lorney's pass for the first, while McLeod provided the assist on the other.

The visitors made their best showing the middle period in which no scoring resulted but even in this session the home team had a slight edge on the play.

OSHAWA LOST TO STRATFORD TEAM

Stratford, Jan. 17—With one minute of the second overtime period told of last night's Ontario pro fixture, Sammy Foxworthy backhanded a shot into the net on a pass from Butch Kitchener to give Stratford Nationals a 4 to 1 verdict over the Oshawa Pats.

Play, which began fast in the first period soon slowed up owing to close checking and the latter part of the first and part of the second chuckers were slow.

After Oshawa took the lead through a goal by Gilmore, on a pass from Rice with five minutes of the second period gone, the play speeded up.

Both teams battled hard and feeling ran high among the players. Kelleher and Gilmore being banished for engaging in a fist fight. Six penalties were handed out in this period by Referee Johnny Jones of Guelph and on two different occasions, Oshawa was playing two men short but the Nationals could not score.

LAKEFIELD BADLY BEATEN BY PETES

PETERBORO, Jan. 17.—Peterboro St. John's won their third game of the week when they defeated Lakefield 12 to 0 in an O.H.A. junior game here last night.

Lakefield had a bigger share of the play than the score would indicate but lacked system in their attack. On the other hand St. John's showed clever combination and worked in on top of Stewart for practically all their goals.

The winners scored four times in the first period, came back with three more in the second session and wound up with five in the final 20 minutes with Calli-dine and Gardner as the leading marksmen.

Ellis on St. John's defence was the individual star of the battle. Northey, Kennedy and White were prominent for Lakefield.

Lakefield—Goal, Stewart: defence, Wingett, Stenner; centre, Wells; wings Jewell, Northey. subs., Wannamaker, Elmslie, Kennedy.

Peterboro-St. John's—Gord, Miller; defence, Ellis and Howe; centre, Callidine; wings Gardner and Wilshaw; subs., Merrin, Milliken, Burks.

Referee—Ray Rose, Peterboro.

PORTS STRENGTHEN HOCKEY POSITION

TORONTO, Jan. 17—Port Colborne again defeated Varsity seniors by 3 to 1, but it was not until 30 minutes of overtime had been played on the latter's ice here last night, that the visitors were able to score their third overtime triumph in six starts in the O.H.A. senior race, serving to lengthen their lead in the standing to such an extent that they seemingly are now sure of a play-off position. The Students are having plenty of luck this season, but it is all bad. Their team is badly weakened by several injuries, was further handicapped last night by the loss of "Red" Whitehead, stellar defencemen, who is ill with quinsy. Considering this, the Learners gave a remarkable display against the Navigators from Port Colborne and the game could be rated as one of the most pleasing to be seen here this season. The goal was anything but heavy, both teams unloosing a continuous stream of attacks that kept play open from the start to the finish. Interest never lagged in spite of the extra time that was necessary to declare a winner. Despite the close checking of the Varsity team it was the Students' most effective weapon smoothness was one of the features of the contest.

Drunk with the sense of organization, the Romans forgot that in the time of Hadrian, suffered from being too well governed. A decline of human spirit and too much idleness among the wealthy were also causes of the downfall of Rome, he said.

TRENTON DEFEAT WHITBY SQUAD

laught the boys the error of their ways.

Ice Was Soft

The ice was inclined to be soft and sticky in the third chucker and both teams were finding it difficult to manoeuvre the pucks with accuracy. Brown made a lone rush up the ice only to come a cropper in the boards. Fiva A. Rowde-Lilard combination was foiled by Gashe Chambers. Donnelly made a miraculous save on Mattie Shot from a pass by Bolan. Whitby went into the lead when Hall slid one by Chambers from a scrimmage in front. The goal mouth but the lead was of short duration as Bolan made it three all with a shot that just wiggled through between Donnelly's legs into the twine. The fans were looking forward to an overtime period as the minutes slipped by and neither team was able to break the deadlock. With but four seconds of the game remaining Begin came down the ice to be stopped at the Whitby blue line by Scott. Passing in by the Trenton wing men Scott passed to Thompson who attempted to get away and overstated. Marsh pounced onto the loose disk and after drawing Donnelly out of the net slipped him and drove home the winning counter.

The lineups:

Trenton—Goal, Chambers; centre, Bohan; wings, Mattis and Dolan; defence, York and Ruttan; subs, Kidd, Jurgan and Begin.

Whitby—Goal, Donnelly; centre, Ward; wings, Rowden and Brown; defence, Thompson and Scott; subs, Hall, Hodge and Mayne.

About a hundred curious spectators witnessed the trial day yesterday of Trenton's latest in the way of aircraft, a boat pulled along by an airplane propeller driven by a four cylinder Cherrolet engine. Besides the hour manoeuvring about the bay and river mouth the owners (a group of men from East Trenton) declared it would be necessary to shorten the ice runners in the hope of attaining more speed.

Dr. Sutton, Medical Health Officer of Peterboro, was the guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club last evening.

Mrs. Jerry Squiers, Jr., is host to some sixty of her friends at a bridge and tea at Parliament Manor this afternoon.

POULTRY BREEDERS PLEASED

As one would view the show in the Main Building upon entering the door one was held displays, then down the centre aisle were the beautiful Golden Buff Orpingtons; then there was the beautiful Light Brahmas, always attractive in any show room, the contrast of colour being so pleasing to the eye.

For those who have a love for game cocks, there were allo-colours, shapes and kinds and some tougher than they looked! A wonderful display.

Then there was the Barred Rocks, nicely barred—the Jersey Black Giants—beauties outstanding— the Leghorns good in all colours — the Bred-to-Lay pens of Barred Rocks, the special pen owned by Arthur Ellis of this city.

Then a glance around at other breeds too numerous to mention. They were rood in all classes. Special mention of the Bantam pens and rabbits. Real fine display not forgetting the geese, ducks and turkeys, also outstanding in quality.

The display of Wild Ducks by Walter Turner was worth walking miles to see.

Walter Moore, Supt., left no stone unturned to make the show a success and his courteous treatment of exhibitions and patrons was the source of favorable comment. The show was a pronounced success from very single

THE LIBRARY CORNER

Volumes dealing with biography, aviation, psychology and health are among the additions to the Corby Public Library this week.

Two outstanding biographies, differing widely in subject are John Drinkwater's "Peyps, his life and character" and "Mahatma Gandhi, his own story" edited by C. F. Andrews. Mr. Drinkwater rescues Peyps from the unheroic position he has in his diary and discovers the man who managed to found a great navy under many difficulties; the statesman whose three-hour speech in parliament shook all England; and the quiet and determined yet genial gentleman. The autobiography of Gandhi reveals him as the central driving force of India political life and relates the circumstances that brought him to such a prominent place in world interest. The editor of the volume, C. F. Andrews, who has lived for twenty-six years in India is Gandhi's most trusted friend outside his native followers.

"Canada's Fighting Airmen" by Lt.-Colonel George A. Drew records the war-time careers of twelve Canadian airmen. Drawn from every corner of the Dominion and representing almost every province, many of them had interesting boyhoods in aviation before the "Great Adventure." Col. Drew shows how their early experiences in reamanship and horsemanship combined with their aeronautical training accounted for the fact that Canada, with one-tenth of the white population of the Empire, supplied one-third of the pilots in the Royal Air Force at the end of the war. The twenty-eight illustrations in the volume add to its historical value. "The book or gliders" by Edwin Teale, member of the editorial staff of "Popular Science" is a manual presenting the history of gliding, the construction and operation of gliders, information as to how to obtain a pilot's license and how to organize Glider clubs. This book should prove of particular interest since Belleville boasts a Glider Club in the making.

"Storing up Triple Reserves" by Roger W. Babson presents the data collected by the Babson Organization over a period of twenty-five years, and is a summary of the methods for developing financial physical and spiritual reserves in order to acquire success. Mr. Babson in his preface sums up the points of the book in the statement: "It is not the amount a man earns that counts, but what he saves and invests in a constructive way." "Insomnia; How to Combat It" by Dr. Joseph Collins is a reassuring book to victims of this malady since the author shows that the habit can be reformed by exercise of will power and perseverance.

Radio Fans Corner

Well, well, Saturday night again, isn't it a caution how it does sneak around? Hope the reception has taken a turn for the better though because last night it was a shining example of what reception should not be, fading predominated but numerous other annoying noises were getting their foul share.

The Pickard Family are on the air tonight at 7.45 over station WJZ and Ann, the smallest, sings "Alice Blue Gown." Other numbers on the program include "Brown Taier Pudding," "Wait Till the Sun Shines Nelly" and "Old Rugged Cross."

WEAF starts off with the Tea Timers at 5.30 followed by the Rex Cole Mountaineers at 5.45. Uncle Abe and David must appear on our horizon at 6.45 and tonight is the night of the pageant, don't forget when David delivers his famous cannibal chief's address, the school teacher looking proud by on from the third row.

The Varieties at 8.15 with Welcome Lewis, Sammy Herman and the rest of the gang including "Bugs" Baer, the voice with the schoolgirl complexion. The program of the Silver Flute follows at 8.30 and then Floyd Gibbons takes the air. When he gets through talking Walter Damrosch says things in a musical fashion with the symphony orchestra.

B. A. Rolfe at ten, Troubadour of moon at 11 and Horace Heidt at 11.15. Then the program we've been waiting for all evening, Little Jack Little, yes, sir, 11.45 WEAF. Rudy follows at midnight. WJZ offers the Jesters with Pep, Vim and Vigour at 7.15 and we take them up on the offer. Phil Spitalny holds our attention exclusively at midnight.

The Davey hour at 5.00 tomorrow afternoon from WEAF is a highlight for Sunday afternoon, at 8.30 same station Chase and Sandborn, the Champions at 8.15 and at 10.45 Sunday at Seth Parker's and Sammy Herman at 11.15. Don't forget, Little Jack Little at 1.45 from WJZ tomorrow either, small danger of that, eh fans? Well, I'll be seeing you.

Miller's Worm Powders will eradicate the worm evil that bears so heavily on children and is believed to cause many fatalities. They are acceptable and feline to children and can be fully relied upon to clear the food channels thoroughly of these destructive parasites and restore the inflamed and painful surfaces to healthfulness. They are an excellent remedy for these evils.

WILLIAM HAINES IN PERFECT ROLE

Star Gets Chance to Reveal New Bag of Comic Tricks In "Remote Control"

If you like laughs combined with mystery you will enjoy William Haines in "Remote Control", his new Metro Goldywn-Mayer talkie which is the feature offering at the Belle Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday matinee daily.

In this picturisation of the New York stage hit Haines plays the part of a radio announcer who gets his station mixed up with a gang of bandits who use the broadcast plant as a means of communication. A "dictvoyphant" who conducts radio talks acts as the master mind.

Haines, in one of the most hilarious scenes ever filmed, finds his station short of talent. In desperation he puts on the whole program himself offering a bedtime story as well as impersonating Amos 'n' Andy. It is this discovered ability as a vocal mimic that enables him to extricate himself from disaster and lead to the arrest of the bandits after a sensational scuffle in which he finds himself implicated.

In directing the latest Haines opus Edward Sedgwick apparently spared no pains in keeping the plot moving at a fast pace. The director deserves considerable credit for his astute handling of the comedy situations which in less capable hands would have interrupted the continuity of the narrative.

Haines has never been seen to better advantage in a role which called for as much straight dramatic acting as comedy. The supporting cast is uniformly good. Mary Doran in the leading feminine role showing herself to be not only one of the most attractive players on the screen but an actress of no small ability; Charles King scoring with the rong hit of the picture, "Just a Little Closer"; Polly Moran being her usual riotous self as the radio beauty expert; John Miljan as the villain; J. C. Nugent as "Smedley" and Edward Nugent, Wilbur Mack, Edward Brophy, Warner P. Richmond, Russell Hopton and James Donlan in minor roles.

TALKING OF MOVING PICTURES

A whole world is summed up in the change from the days of the firs: moving picture machine introduced by J. C. Green to Canada at Ottawa. The movie has since reached a standard of perfection, it has passed into a second stage, with sound pictures and will undoubtedly soon reach the third stage of the third dimension or depth, according to Mr. Green who is in the city.

Belleville for instance has seen practically the whole of the moving picture industry to date. Many yei recall those early days of 10c or ten cent picture shows when in hastily transformed stores the early pictures were exhibited. That was about the year 1908. Those early films and machines seemed to accomplish a great deal, and since then has come a new world of actors, Hollywood with its one hundred story instead of the mere inevident. Movies have even been used for the distribution of ideas. With the coming of sound there was an interruption of the development and the movie has hardly got to the form it is likely to follow but it is certain of course it it ever runs its course which is doubtful.

Men like Green and others who took an early start in the movie industry back in 1896 could never have dreamed of its importance, so great has been the romance of the industry for its overshadowing practically every form of amusement and entertainment.

And if the pioneer could not tell what the development would be, it is probably as the development would be, it is probably as unlikely that movie fans of today will be able to guess with any definiteness the trend of pictures. Marvels greater than have been accomplished may remain to be developed.

ILLUSION

Somebody is always taking the joy out of life by robbing us of one of our cherished illusions. The latest gloom-caster of this type has just established—to his own satisfaction—that King Arthur of Round Table fame never had a castle at Tintagel-by-the-Sea. His name is Jenner, and he is a Cornish antiquary, so a good many people are reaching no little weight to his words. But Mr. Stanley Cassson, a well known writer, has taken Mr. Jenner to task for his argument that no traces can be found of a castle at Tintagel that dates back to the fifth or sixth century. It is, says Mr. Casson, not a castle of which traces must be found, but a Romano-British castle. Arthur, if he existed—was undoubtedly a leader of the Romano-British people and would therefore, naturally take over many Roman military works that lay to his hand. He suggests extensive excavations at Tintagel to see if any such camp or military fortification remains are to be found.

But why? Is there any reason why we should be robbed of that delightful legend we have been cherishing so long, of Arthur in his castle by the sea, planning Round Tables and behaving in a manner altogether too unworldly for Guinevere, his fascinating spouse, to endure? The whole Arthurian legend must stand or fall by Tintagel, it seems since our poets and dramatists have so identified it in that setting. Thomas Hardy even went to Tintagel and reconstructed from the existing ruins the sort of castle he imagined Arthur lived in. Certainly the present ruins are picturesque enough to have been the remains of Arthur's home. People have travelled from all around the world to see them, and will doubtless continues to do so. They have provided inspiration for some of the most beautiful and inspiring poetry ever put into the English language, and even foreign poets have not scorned to sing of Lancelot and the naughty wife of Tintagel.

Even the shattering of illusions is a bad thing for the imagination of the masses. It creates a general feeling of distrust in all historic tradition, and it upsets a lot of applecarts that have become part and parcel of public belief. Of course it does not really matter whether Arthur had a castle at Tintagel or not. The Arthurian legend will live as long as Time itself. But these antiquarians who go about trying to destroy our faith in old romances must be a sorry lot of misanthropes, after all, for they are destroying something infinitely beautiful, infinitely comforting, infinitely fine. Ayaunt, iconoclastic meddlers with legendary lore!—Montreal Star.

GOLD AN ANTI-CORROSIVE ALL RIGHT

Gold remains the ideal anti-corrosive, according to a McGill professor in speaking this week of the difficulty scientists have faced in securing an anti-corrosive metal which is sufficiently cheap to be in general use.

There does not seem much hope even in "alchemy" which still hopes to be able to transmute metals into gold. If this is achieved, it is believed that the cost will be too high to permit of the use of transmuted gold.

SIDELIGHTS

ENIGMA

Love is not new. When did it dawn,
This wonder that transforms all things,
This dream from which all dreams are drawn,
To lend to plodding thought bright wings?

Love is so old. Since time began
Through Earth's uncounted dynasties,
All lovers have thus joyed to plan,
All have built castles fair as these.

Love is so frail. A word may blight
The sweetest bloom on all life's tree,
A look may quench the soul's delight,
A sigh may end its ecs.asy.

Love is so strong. No space or time
Can kill that clear, enduring spark;
Enigma, frail or strong, sublime;
Its light alone illumes Earth's dark.

— Aline Michaelis.

A STORY SONG OF OTHER DAYS

Back in the 'nineties, May Irwin sang a song called "After the Ball," in a show known as "The Poet and the Puppet."

The show was nothing much, but the song saved it.

Probably the winning personality of the favorite comedienne of former days did a lot.

Now that the writer of the song, Charles K. Harris, has just died, many recall the strains that were sung on every hand:

After the ball is over,
After the break of morn;
After the dancers leaving
After the stars are gone.
Many a heart is aching
If you could read them all,
Many the hopes that have vanished
After the ball.

Newspapers all over the country pay tribute to the departed song-writer, the Boston Herald, as usual, has all them helping to put us back into Mr. Harris's milieu:

"Charles K. Harris had the good fortune to compose the most popular song, which calls 'the golden age' of the moral, and when melody was smooth and pleasant to the ear, with no insidious syncopation. Those were the days when the piano, tastefully decorated with a crocheted cover, was the centre of every well-regulated home, and songs sold by the million.

"'After the Ball' was Mr. Harris' first and greatest triumph. The poignancy of its tragic theme of faithless love swept all before it."

GOLDEN DAWN

PETER B. KYNE

Lanny pulled up to the side of the road and got out, leaving her hanging beside her on the seat. Instantly her guest opened it, embraced the lethal blade and struck. Lanny ducked it and with Lanny surveyed the flat tire.

"I'll help" she promised eagerly. "The least I can do to repay your hospitality."

Between them they shifted the wheels and resumed the journey. At Greenbrae the girl got out and thanked Lanny; no sooner had her little car disappeared behind a curve than the girl waved to a sedan parked in back of the little station and climbed in beside a young man who sat behind the wheel.

"Well?" he queried, apparently without interest.

"It worked," she replied. "Let's go."

INSTALMENT VII

Arrived at the little bungalow she occupied in St. Francis Wood, Lanny put her car in the garage, entered her home, and sat down to read Nance Belden's letter. And when she failed to find it she did some of the logical thinking of which she was so eminent by capable in situations where her emotions were not being preyed upon.

"Good work," she decided finally. "That girl I picked up on the road to Greenbrae stole it out of my handbag when I got out to look at the flat tire. She must have visited Nance before I got there. An underworld hussy doubtless; doubtless, too, known to the police. So Nance had no opportunity to slip her the letter. The matron watched too closely. Nance feared that would be the case, so she had an alternative plan. What a shrewd Judge of human nature that girl is! She knew she could work on me, and oh, what a fool I was to permit it! Why, I'm as lawless as she is, only I'm a responsible member of society and she isn't. Nance knew I wouldn't fail to visit her; so she described me to her confederate, who spotted me when I drove up to the main gate and parked my car.

"When the confederate saw me coming back she could as well shout on inch into my rear tire—simple as two and two are four. The nail was driven all the way in and the air was out before we'd gone a mile. Oh dear, dear, dear, what a simpleton I am! I suppose I ought to do something about this but then if I do, how can I, in my conduct to the prison officials?

She realized thoroughly now the extent to which she had been an accessory before the act. What act, she wondered. Well she would have to keep the details of this adventure to herself. Even Stephen Burt could not share her confidence in this, for Lanny was justly proud of her intelligence and integrity and loathed the thought that a suspicion of either might obtain in the mind of her beloved Stevie. She feared, should he learn of her adventure that he would never quite trust her again. And that would be unbearable.

That slick minx—telling her she could read the letter before mailing it, this if she did not approve of its contents she was free to destroy it. That was the point upon which she susceptible Lanny had impaled herself.

"Well, it can't be anything so very important," she decided finally. "It couldn't be part of a plan to escape, because escape from that place is impossible. Besides no woman convict has ever succeeded in escaping from San Quentin. In all probability it was just a private message to one of her old underworld friends. That girl is too intelligent to dream of formulating plans for escape. Why she couldn't get out of the front gate. She'd have to swim the bay to escape, even if she succeeded in getting through the exit from the woman's quarters and past that suspicious guard in the little house there."

So Lanny made herself a highball and resolved to dismiss all thought of the incident. She also resolved to give Nance Belden a piece of her mind if and when she decided to visit her again. And she was not at all certain she would make Nance another visit.

Two weeks later, while she was sitting before the fire, reading her telephone ring and a man's voice said:

"Is this Miss Rebecca Lanning?"

"Yes. Who is this?"

"Never mind. You wouldn't know me if I told you who I am. I'm a friend of Nance Belden's."

"Oh, indeed." Ironically. "And who might Nance Belden be?"

Lanny was nobody's fool. On the instant every sense was alert, for if this was a trap set by the authorities who, in some mysterious way, had gotten wind of her escapade, she was resolved not to walk into it.

"Are you going to be at home for an hour, Miss Lanning?" the voice purrued. It was a pleasant enough voice, Lanny reflected.

"I am, but what business is that of yours?"

"Oh, well, if you're going to be such a cutup," the voice rejoined, "I'll not bother to argue with you over the phone. I'll come out. Goodbye."

He hung up leaving Lanny in a state of acute mental perturbation, which did not subside until she heard her door-bell ringing some ten minutes later. It subsided then. Her courage always mounted when there was an immediate situation to face. "Nance Belden's friend," she decided instantly.

For a moment she considered telephoning Dru McNamara, then decided the worthy fellow might prove an embarrassment. So she got a pistol from her bureau drawer—because she was a practical soul and dwelt alone she had purchased the pistol as a precaution—and went to the door. She cocked the pistol, took a long breath, threw open the door suddenly and raised her weapon.

"Put 'em up," she commanded harshly.

"Don't be silly, Lanny dear," a soft voice entreated her wearily. "It's only me."

"Nancy Belden—you little devil," Lanny almost shouted. "Come in here this instant."

Nance Belden reeled in and Lanny closed the door behind her, turned the bolt, switched on the hall light—and screamed.

"Pipe down." Nance commanded, in that queer, faint, weary voice. "I'm not a corpse but I'll tell the world I came mighty close to being one just before lock-up time this afternoon, Lanny, dear, I crashed the gate."

"Well, you'll crash out of her in a split second, you little hellion," Lanny cried sharply. "We as a dish-rag and your hair like a witch's, and covered with blood. Where are you hurt?"

"Bullet through my left arm, high up near the shoulder. That guard could shoot and he did! If my boy friend hadn't shot back at him and made him hunt his hole I'd be fish-bait this minute."

"You've got to get out of here, Nance." Lanny was terrified. "How many visitors have you had since you've been in San Quentin?"

"Just me, Lanny."

"The authorities will look me up and they'll come here. Understand? They'll come here—there, they're on the telephone now. Oh, my good lord, what have I done to deserve this?"

She dashed into her kitchen and took down the telephone receiver. And again a masculine voice said:

"Miss Rebecca Lanning?"

Lanny controlled herself. "Yes," she said calmly. "Who's speaking?"

"Dan McNamara."

"Oh hello, Dru. How are you?"

"Fine, Lanny. How's yourself?"

"Well, I might be dead for all the interest you've taken in me since you swallowed that good highball you graffed off me the day you came to Dr. Burt's office with that Nance Belden girl." She added feebly—"You egg!"

Dan McNamara laughed. "Can I come out now?"

"In very idea. Of course not. Its almost ten o'clock and I'm just about to retire!"

"This is business Lanny. I've got to see you at once."

RHEUMATISM?
Lame Back? Painful Hip?

T-R-C's are a family remedy in the Winnipeg home of S. Massey. A relative got so much benefit from them for rheumatic pains that Mr. Massey, a railroad man, tried them too. He says: "Now I have T-R-C's I have little to worry about. They seem to drive the Rheumatism right out." Equally good for Neuralgia, Neuritis, Lumbago, Sciatica. No harmful drugs. Sold at 81 everywhere. Try them over-night and see the difference.

T-R-C's TRIPLEX RHEUMATIC REMEDY

"I didn't know the police were after me."

"The police aren't, but the chief is. Lanny, that Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon. She got to San Francisco all right. We know that because we found the speed boat she crossed the bay in tied up to the yacht harbor at the Marina. There was blood all over the cockpit and bullet holes in the hull."

"All of which proves, Dan, that God's in His Heaven and all's well with the world. Are you seriously trying to recover the girl and send her back to the penitentiary?"

"I'm not. I'd give two of my big buck teeth to see her make a clean get-away. You know that. But the wardens—naturally. It seems you visited Nance two weeks ago and smuggled a letter out for her and mailed it." Dan, I regret to say were not sure if neither mailed a letter for her nor passed it to somebody else to mail. Nor did the girl discuss with me any plan for escape. If wouldn't have been kind not to do so. The girl is mentally irresponsible and it would have occurred to me that, in any such attempt to escape, a guard might shoot at her."

"Well a gured did, and he his her, too. But he didn't stop her. Her outside gang opened on him with a Tommy gun from a speedboat off the rocks and made him hunt his hole. Nance swam out to the boat under cover of their protective fire; they hauled her in and beat it. Reported dead in her bunk across San Pablo Bay and headed up toward Carquinez Straits, while daylight lasted. After dark they doused their lights and sneaked back. The warden telephoned Central Office here and gave the alarm. I wasn't on hand, but of course the report was that they had the watchfront covered at once. He had two men at the St. Francis Yacht Club and another one at Sausalito and one and across the little harbor to a vacant berth on the Marina side.

Before the cops could hurry across the bay the girl was long gunned out and into a waiting car. The cops followed in a police car as soon as they could, but one of Nance's friends decided their front tires with machine-gun bullets and the trail was lost."

"How exciting. Dan!"

"Yes, it will be far more exciting for you, Lanny. I got home about two minutes ago and my 'phone was ringing. It was Central Office trying to report to me. They're just starting a couple of dicks out in a cruiser to watch and see if Nance tries to make your house. You're a trained nurse. The Warden's found out that much—matter of looking you up in the San Francisco directory. So he thinks that she'll head for your house to receive medical attention. She go hit you know. And you must be a friend of hers—otherwise why did you call upon her?"

"Dan," said Lanny desperately, "she's here now."

"Into your car with her, Lanny, and beat it out to my house with her." He gave her the address. "That's the best place on earth she would herself would hunt for an escaped convict."

"I've just heard a thump and a crash in my bathroom, Dan. I think she's fainted. Telephone Dr. Burt to come to your home— that he will have to probe a bullet wound and dress it. Tell him to bring plenty whisky and two or three hot-water bags, and be on hand yourself to let me in. I can't leave here until I've mopped up my bloodstains and we have left on the sidewalk and my front steps. Goodbye."

INSTALMENT VIII

Lanny was right. Nancy Belden lay on the floor of the living-room in a dead faint. She picked the girl up in her strong arms and carried her down a short flight of stairs that led from her kitchen to the garage below. She heaved her into the car, ran back up stairs got a wet mop and by the light of the electric lamp over the front entrance searched for drops of blood. She found a few and followed them to the side—walk eradicating them with vigorous sweeps of the mop, then dashed back into the house, jammed on her hat, and coat, ran outside again threw open the garage door and backed her car out. She paused again to shut it, then swung up the street just as the half-red lamps of a police cruising car turned the corner. She swung wide to give it a clear berth, turned the first corner and spurted. She followed at a zigzag course until she felt sure she had thrown the police car off her trail—provided they had became suspicious and started to follow her; then turned up a residence street that she felt reasonably certain would not be patrolled by traffic officers at that hour of the night, and speeded up.

Dan McNamara was standing on the sidewalk in front of his house when she drew up. He reached into her car lifted Nance Belden out and ran with her down an alley alongside the house to the basement entrance, which he kicked open. Lanny followed. Up the stairs to the kitchen the big chief ran, through the kitchen and on to a rear bedroom. Lanny jerked a small rug off the floor and threw it on the bed. "Let her bleed on that for a while" she commanded. "No sense in messing this nice clean bed all up. There must be blood in my car. Dan. Take a wet towel and go out and clean it thoroughly, please, while I'm undressing this poor lamb. Get me one of your wife's clean nightgowns.'

BEAUTY BOX

By Helen Follett

Physical beauty isn't enough. It is nice to have, like money, but that should hold something more than the ambition to look so grand that you simply every other woman's eye out. A beautiful woman who hasn't any brains, whose selfish and inconsiderate, who hasn't nice manners, who bores conversation and her sweet warmth that radiates from spirit gaiety, friendliness, good fellowship, and toleration can be just as tiresome and uninteresting as the ugly frosed dumbell afflicted with warts and warts and what-nots.

Obesity is sometimes hereditary. A fat pa and a fat ma are likely to have a fat baby. But when the baby grows up and gets a husband and children, losing will be tougher going for her than for others, and by following the correct exercise regime that no one need be cut down to normal. The trouble with candidates for eliminations is that they haven't patience. They want to take off five pounds quickly. It cannot be done with safety to health. Two pounds a week are the limit, or should be.

Nervousness is expressed by movements of the hands. That woman who can sit down comfortably into a chair, let her muscles go limp, fold her hands gracefully, usually has a nervous system that is worth bragging about. Picking at the cuticle about the finger nails is a bad habit. It "nervouses" other people and it breeds hangnails.

About the best way to get rid of facial colors is to jump the fat off. Get a jumping rope and see what can be done. Lifting up on the toes is helpful, but it doesn't get down to business as happens when rope jumping is the medium for giving slenderness. High kicking is recommended. All right, but felt feels kicking isn't easy.

Don't fail to have the little jar or bottle of hand lotion standing in the bathroom. They keep it there to keep the hands from chapping thus to get them back in order after a state of disorganization has set in. Use a mild, bland soap and dry the hands thoroughly after washing.

In 1930 Germany shipped many agricultural implements to Argentina and South Africa.

FOR ANY CHILD

CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just what is wrong but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it's constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood, Castoria is a mother's standby, and wise mothers do not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the youngster's stomach sweet and the bowels in good order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature: Chas. H. Fletcher.

IDENTIFY WOMAN BY BULLET SCAR

Pair From Western United States Convicted in Hamilton Court

Hamilton Jan. 16.—Mrs. Nellie Brotemarkle, alias Nellie Pearl Long, alias Lorrain, has the scar of a bullet wound in the chest the local police were informed today after jail matrons had examined the prisoner. Last night local authorities had been advised that the woman sought on a white slavery indictment in Elkins, Wes Virginia, could be identified by such a wound.

Norval Clay Brotemarkle and Albin Upfinger, who, with the woman, were arrested in a raid yesterday at 19 Northcott street were convicted before Magistrate Burbridge today on a charge of being in possession of fire arms unlawfully and were remanded for one week. They are being held at the request of the Department of Justice, Pittsburg, and Canadian immigration authorities are also investigating the case. Further word regarding the American charges is expected within a few days.

Brotemarkle denied that he and his wife were wanted across the border. He said he was legally married in Ohio.

The prisoner declared he did not know that it was illegal to carry guns in Canada without a permit. He boasted of his ability as a marksman, and said he could bring down a running deer at 150 yards with his German Luger pistol.

"Apparently they carry guns in the United States like we do matches here," observed the magistrate.

Charges of a breach of the Inland Revenue Act laid against the above mentioned also Frank Lindow, owner of the house, after mash and an alleged still were found, were laid over for one week.

"Cluck" Says the Pratt-Fed Hen

There's as much difference between a chicky-boy hen and an ordinary pick-up feeder as there is between a scrub bull and a great big, beefy prize-winner. The hen-laying hen and the heavy weighing bull are made that way by the feed they get. Heavy egg producers must have the feed that encourages egg-laying. While ordinary feeds supply ordinary needs, the secret of egg-producing is in the supplying of certain essentials which ordinary feeds do not supply. There are 8 vitamins and minerals in Pratts Poultry Regulator that science knows and practice proves will make hens lay more eggs, and those are the ingredients which added to the daily feed, we guarantee will make your hens lay more eggs.

Pratt's POULTRY REGULATOR

"MAKES HENS LAY MORE EGGS"

This famous preparation has been in use by poultrymen for many years and research work on experimental poultry farms only emphasizes the value of this remarkable discovery. A spoonful for 10 hens—daily in the feed is all that is required. Do not let a day pass before you start your hens on the road that leads to profit.—the Pratt way—makes them pay.

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 16—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMahon, Black River Bridge celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on Tuesday by entertaining a number of relatives and friends. Cards dancing and music whiled the happy hours away. A most appetizing lunch was served later in the evening.

In Toronto on January 12th, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Patterson, celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary. They were married in Picton by Rev. Mr. Loucks, the bride being attended by her sister, the late Mrs. Edward Parker and the groomsman was the late William Seeds of Belleville.

For the first three years of their married life they lived in Belleville later going to Toronto where they have since resided.

LIVED ON SALMON FOR TWO MONTHS

Montreal, Jan. 16—Living on a daily diet of salmon and potatoes, unaccompanied by such vitamins as milk, fruit or green vegetables, in a colony consisting of two families the mothers of which were sisters, teaching the children not only the three R's but also how to play with a ball and the art of singing, also doing pioneer work in introducing applause, was the experience of Miss Jean Graham during the past summer.

Miss Graham, who addressed the Nolan-Cornell Chapter, I.O.D.E., described her volunteer teaching experience at the tiny spot on the Canadian Labrador coat called Rocky Bay. The Quebec Provincial Chapter makes a grant towards the travelling expenses of teachers doing volunteer educational work in Labrador.

During the two months she was at Rocky Bay Miss Graham received mail from home only twice, for there is no mail boat service. The two families, with one of which she stayed, consisted of twelve persons, six children composing her educational establishment, classes of which were held in one of the homes. None of these youngsters had even been to school, and only one could read a little. There was of course, no equipment. Miss Graham remarked, and teacher and pupils sat around a home-made table for lessons, one little girl having the special distinction of using the family sewing machine as a desk.

Games were an entirely new idea to the children, and the ground did not lend itself to sports, being rocky and lacking level places. However, Miss Graham had taken a ball with her and she taught the children to play with it. Prior to her coming they had never sung, yet to such good purpose did they absorb her teaching of songs that a concert was given to wind up the school season, with music and recitations. It was on this occasion that the colony learned what applause was. Its reception came astonishment when Mrs Graham clapped her hands after the various numbers on the program.

Salmon fishing is the only industry a river, although cod is the usual at this spot, which is at the mouth of Hamilton Inlet, Labrador coast. No farming of any kind is possible because the territory is all rock, said Miss Graham.

PRISONERS IN TORONTO JAIL STAGED A RIOT

Wholesale Delivery of Inmates Was Planned by the Ring-leaders

SCHEME FAILED

Seven Chief Offenders Were Given the Strap Following Rebellion

Toronto, Jan. 19—Smouldering embers of rebellion among prisoners in the Toronto jail were fanned into a blaze Saturday night when more than 200 took part in, a riot which required the combined efforts of the entire jail staff four hours to quell. According to an official statement authorized by Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Provincial secretary, the outbreak had its basis in a plot to effect a wholesale delivery of prisoners by overpowering the guards.

Shouting and yelling and stamping their feet in the cells and corridors, the prisoners, among them many hardened criminals, created such an uproar that for a time Governor Herbert Basher and his staff faced a situation of great difficulty. It is believed the object of the plot was to have one of the jailers unlock a corridor door and then overpower him. But the scheme failed. Aided by his entire staff, Governor Basher weeded out the ringleaders, placed in isolation cells and, backed up with weapons, forced the remainder to subside.

Ringleaders Strapped

Seven ringleaders, young men between the ages of 17 and 21, were each given five strokes with the strap last night for their part in the affair. This was the first time there in many years that prisoners have been strapped at the Toronto jail.

At the time of the outbreak on Saturday night shortly before six o'clock all the prisoners were in their cells with the exception of a few sleeping in the corridors for lack of space. There were 347 male prisoners and 17 female prisoners.

From what can be learned from authoritative sources, the storm broke suddenly without any previous rumblings of disorder. Strict enforcement of the jail regulations prohibiting the use of tobacco and resentment at the lack of proper accommodation are said to be some of the reasons for the bedlam of noise which preceded Governor Basher's rushing from his nearby home to the jail in response to a telephone message from the jailer.

Starting in one of the corridors in the east wing, the wave of rebellion spread throughout this wing and through the west section of the building. That the outbreak was not some thing impromptu but was the result of a carefully-laid plan could be indicated by the stubbornness with which the prisoners resisted the attempts of the guards to restore order. Using every movable article in the cells, the prisoners banged on the walls, shouted abuse at the guards outside the grilled doors, and made every demonstration within their power against authority.

PARDONS PROBABLE FOR POLITICAL PRISONERS

London, Jan. 19 (by Canadian Press Cable)—Around the Indian Round Table Conference today gossip was rife that amnesty is probable for the thousands of political prisoners in India who have not been sentenced for crimes of violence but rather for agitation against the authorities.

INJURIES FATAL TO HENRY BRUCE

Bancroft Man Died in Hospital Here of Serious Hurts

WEATHER PROGNOSTICATOR SAYS MOIRA WILL GO ON THE RAMPAGE

Ice is Freezing to the Bed of the River — Water is Low

Possibility of a flood in the spring was discussed about the city today as the opinion was given by one bird-ten that the city was likely to experience a raging breakup late in March.

His opinion is based on the following facts: the ice in the river is freezing to the bottom of the stream, and that water from Canniton is daily overrunning the ice, where it is freezing and building up thicker ice. He thinks that there may be an unprecedented fall of snow. On these conditions he founds his belief that the breaking may be a flood.

City Engineer Mott stated that it was rather early to have thought of a flood but said that the condition was interesting and worth investigating.

Other citizens gave the view that there is not enough water to cause a flood condition from which ice can be made and a body of water dammed up to move the ice field.

This season the water is unprecedentedly low and the bed of the river is visible in a number of place.

A citizen remarked regarding the pieces of rock from the old piers which are banked about the new piers of the concrete bridges that the ice would carry out most of this in the springtime.

CLEARING AIRPORT AREA SOUTH OF HIGHWAY, REMOVING ORCHARD

Diamantle Buildings — School-House Will be Used as Emergency Hospital

Trenton, Jan. 19—While no definite date has been set it is expected that the clearing and leveling of that section of the Government Airport lying between the Provincial Highway and the Bay of Quinte will commence by the first of the month.

There are several acres of orchard on this part of the property, all trees of which will have to be uprooted. Many yards of stone and gravel will be required to fill in the swampy lands near the bay shore. Some of this yardage will be obtained from the promontory just south of the Quinte View school.

Very few buildings stand on this land and two of these have already been sold to private individuals. The Joe Megrrion house one of the first homes to be built on the Front of Sidney was sold on Friday to Mr. W. Dafoe. He will dismantle the building and transport the salvaged pieces to Point Anne for building. The Stan Jeaners house was purchased by Mr. P. Downey. The building will be moved intact to his property west of the forty foot road.

The school which is of cement-block construction will be left on its present site and used as an emergency hospital and field-dressing station.

On the field north of the highway one hangar is in the course of construction. With the putting on of the roof bearing the doors, and the erection of two sixteen foot towers, one at either end, the building will have been completed. About thirty men are engaged in finishing the pouring of cement for the foundation of hangar number three.

Tenders for the steel and brick will be called today. Work on the building of the observation and water-towers will not begin until after Parliament has met.

It was decided that no inquest was necessary and Mr. Valleau's remains will be laid to rest in Belleville cemetery on Wednesday next.

D. W. VALLEAU, PROMINENT FARMER FATALLY INJURED, WAS KICKED IN THE HEAD BY HORSE TODAY

Tragic End for Well Known Holstein Breeder and Fair Director

NO INQUEST HELD

Was Alone When Accident Occurred — Died Within Short Time

Kicked in the head by a horse late this morning, Dorwin Wesley Valleau, sixty-nine years of age, prominent farmer and cattle buyer of Prince Edward County, died a few minutes later of the terrible head injuries that he received.

Nobody was near at the time and it is not known just what happened. It is thought that perhaps Mr. Valleau might have tripped and fallen against the horse, frightening the animals, so that it kicked out and caught him on the head as he was lying on the ground. A doctor was called immediately, but nothing could be done and Mr. Valleau's death is summed up in two words, "fractured skull."

Prince Edward County loses one of its most highly respected citizens and most successful farmers in the tragic end of Mr. Valleau. He had lived in the Garden County all his life and on his present farm in Massassagi for forty years. It was only last week that Mr. Valleau attended the annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society and was elected a director of that organization. At that time he was in the very best of health and spirits and looked forward to a successful year from both his cattle and his farm.

As well as being a member of the Fair Board and director, Mr. Valleau was a member of the Holstein-Friesian Breeders Association and was well-known figure at the annual sales held at the rear of the Belvidere Hotel here. He knew Holstein cattle as well as any man in this district, perhaps, and possessed one of the finest herds of these cattle in Prince Edward. In politics he was a Liberal and a staunch supporter of that party. He attended the United Church.

Mr. Valleau is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. I. A. E. Nightingale, of Prince Edward County, three sons, J. H., of Oshawa; Roy of Toronto and Arnold E., at home in Massassagi; two sisters Mrs. Fred Redner and Mrs. - George Huffman, both of Prince Edward.

Poslong, members of Toronto's one time leading mining brokerage house. The sentences ranged from two and half to three years.

PROMISED WORK TO DEPOSITORS

HAMILTON, Jan. 19.—An alleged racket which victimized gullible readers to the extent of many dollars was promised in newspaper advertisements as opportunity to earn money at home by sewing, has been uncovered here with the arrest of Jacob Miller, alias George Miller, the police believe.

Miller, who was apprehended in his Bay street south boarding house by Detective Digby Sharpe, was charged with conspiracy in police court on Saturday and remanded for eight days.

Letters received by readers of the Dominion in which pathetic pleas were made for work, were found when the office searched Miller's room. In the post steady employment at a living wage was promised, it is charged. Unsuspecting victims related in the letters tales of privation and hardship and in one instance $3 was enclosed by a woman as proof of her honesty. She explained that she did not possess the required $6 but was willing to have the balance deducted from her first pay allowance. Mothers of large families were victimized and some of them actually deprived their children of the necessities of life to meet the payment which they thought, offered a steady income.

Mr. Cole was returning from a district meeting of Kiwanis accompanied by Mrs. Percy Cole and her son Dick, when the car left the road and struck a pole. Mr. Cole was proceeding over an incline when a horn appeared directly in front of him. In order to avoid striking the pedestrian, he veered the car and it plunged into the ditch. The occupants were pinned in the wreckage until assistance arrived and they were taken to a farm house and afterwards brought to Belleville. The car was badly smashed. Mrs. Cole was shaken up and received a bad gash in her scalp while Mr. Cole was slightly injured.

MAY REMOVE "ISLAND"

Heavy traffic on the upper part of Front Street may in time lead to the removal of the "island" park in the centre of the street a little to the east of the upper bridge. As the bridge is now a portion of the highway No. 14, Pusbore, to Picton, the traffic proceeding south on Station Street must stop at the north approach of the bridge and congestion is likely to become more marked than ever. It is understood that there has been some talk of the removal of the "island."

MAPLE LEAFS WON

In the Ki-Y League a start was made in the junior section on Saturday when the Maple Leafs engaged the Pirates at the arena in the first match of the season, the Leafs winning by 2 to 0. Mr Jack Trusdell was referee. WILL DELIVER SAND

City Engineer Mott stated today that the city department of public works was looking after the sanding of Front Street and the business sections of the city and asked the citizens to look after the sidewalks on the residential streets. WILL NOT BE CHANGED

An announcement from New York has stated that the garbage wagons in that metropolis are to be painted a brilliant green, orange and black. Belleville's wagons, it was stated at the city hall today, will still retain their sombre green colour, which is the result of anything at all. By the time several streets of ashes have been "picked up" the wagons might almost be called white.

POWER WAS NOT OFF

It was announced by the Hydro on Saturday that between the hours of two and four p.m. on Sunday the power would be turned off. Hydro owners in the city, who operate their sets, practically all the day, were disappointed in the announcement. But something must have gone wrong with the plans. The power was not turned off at all at any time during the afternoon.

MAYOR COULD OCCUPY SEAT

At the meeting of the Belleville Hydro Commission today, Mayor Reid asked if there was anything in the regulations which would prevent the mayor of the city, if voted to the seat from taking the chairmanship of the commission and was informed that there was no such regulation nor rule of this kind. The question arose over published statement conferring the inaugural meeting that the chairmanship was understood to pass alternately to the commissioners who were elected solely as commissioners, the inference being that the mayor could not hold the seat. This year Commissioner Hanna is chairman and last year Commissioner Fairfield was the chairman.

APPROVES OF MEMORIAL PARK AS SITE FOR WAR MEMORIAL

Suggests Adding Machine for Those Opposed to Northern Site

SAY TRAFFIC HEAVY

War memorial site issue has attracted attention from a number of quarters, the latest letter to the press favoring Memorial Park site, "A Citizen" gives his reasons for the site in the following words:

"Belleville, Ont.

"January 17, 1931.

"Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,

"Would you kindly reserve space for this article in an early issue for which I thank you in advance.

"Having followed with interest the discussion by the City Council and several prominent citizens, re the proposed monument on Memorial Park, I wish to say that I also noticed an objection to the site, in Saturday issue. "In my opinion, together with many others, the proposed site could not be improved upon and I'm positive with no really compared this park with this several hazards, including the Canada Cement Co., Lane and Stoney Lonesome corner have had the pleasure of viewing this location.

"Veteran's letter he suggests asking the opinion of the Belleville men who left here in uniform. Their opinion was asked years ago and they preferred a building in the form of Memorial Hall in preference to a monument.

"If not misinformed $10,000. was, at that time, granted by the City Council to aid in the purchase of this building and now it has according to their own statement, become a burden to the veterans.

"If this veteran thinks no one would see the monument if placed on Memorial Park, I suggest that he along with a couple of friends spend a day at the corner of Hamilton Road and Station Street and count the number of cars and pedestrians passing this point daily. I might also suggest that should he wish for each one to bring in adding machine as one individual would fail to record, even with the help of an adding machine, the number of citizens and the travelling public passing this point in one day.

"Signed—A Citizen".

Search for Musk-Ox Vividly Described by A Government Official

OTTAWA—A great story has recently been released by the Department of the Interior. It is a true story, being the day by day experiences of W. H. B. Hoare as he rambled about the 15,000 square miles that make up the Thelon game sanctuary in search of musk-oxen. The sanctuary is east of Great Slave Lake along the Thelon and Hanbury rivers. Canada and Greenland are the only countries in the world where the musk ox exists in its native state and, as these animals are being exterminated much as the buffalo were some years ago, the Dominion Government set aside this sanctuary. Musk-oxen are about the size of the small Texan and Scotch cattle and look like buffaloes. Mr. Hoare with an assistant, A. J. Knox, was sent out by the Northwest Territories branch of the department to see how they were getting along. He spent most of 1928 and 1929 in the north.

The report Mr. Hoare made to the minister is a gripping narrative. Much latter-day fiction deals with life in the north but it is doubtful if any of it covers in interest the modest, matter-of-fact records of what Mr. Hoare and his assistants did, the lives they led, the dangers they encountered and the hardships they endured. It gives some idea of what men suffer often alone and unnoticed to serve Canada.

After a description of the journey to the Thelon sanctuary he tells of a blizzard which fell himself and his companions on Dec. 26, 1928. After it was over they proceeded and discovered a bed of peat between Peel Lake and Artillery Lake. The heat was frozen but some of the peat they dug up burned well in the camp stove.

The diary tells of the long tramps the men took, their contact with the caribou and their winter spent at Reliance. Early in March they were back in the sanctuary. A cabin had been erected by Mr. Hoare and Mr. Knox and while Mr. Knox remained bringing in food supplies Mr. Hoare started out alone on the trail. He reports: "May 11 saw me again on the trail. This time I went down Thelon river for a distance of sixty miles from the mouth of the Hanbury. Every likely place on either side of the river was examined for signs of musk-oxen. At Grassy Island a small herd had been feeding about a couple of weeks previously but had then disappeared and could not be located as the wind had drifted snow over the tracks they made when going.

"The end of my trip was the cabin where John Hornby and two companions had starved to death two years before. The remains of one of the men were still in the cabin and those of the other two outside under the snow. I secured the diary and left things undisturbed so that the police would not be hampered in their investigations during the summer."

"The mounted police later reported on the deaths of Mr. Hornby and the two young men who accompanied him into the North."

Continuing his journey alone far from any other human, Mr. Hoare describes many difficulties he encountered and the many things he saw. Here is one of them. He calls it "musk-ox balls in camp."

"About nine o'clock on the night of June 26 I was resting my pack on a big rock about three miles up Hanbury river when I saw three large musk-oxen feeding in a bay meadow across the river from where I was. They had not seen me so I quickly got behind the rock and went into camp by getting into my sleeping sack. From there I watched them very comfortably without being seen. After some little time two of the three animals stopped feeding, lay down and then slowly rose to some higher dry ground and began circling one another with lowered heads as if for battle. Each then placed its heavy, horn-protected head against that of its opponent and tried to force it back by main strength.

"After a while of this, with little success to either side, each animal backed away a few paces and ran with lowered head at the other. They came together with considerable shock. Three times they met with the advantage to either. Then each backed away until they were about twenty-five paces apart. In their new positions they stood glaring at each other for a few moments, as if at a given signal, each bounded at the other on the same instant, gathering speed as they went and met with such impact that both were knocked back some distance, one on his haunches. The victor stood in fighting attitude for a short time, then, receiving no further opposition from the vanquished, went and lay down. The other soon followed suit. The third musk-ox which seemed to pay not the slightest attention to the battle but went on feeding in the meadow.

"When the battle was over I looked down the river and saw twenty-six musk-oxen also on the opposite side of the river and not far from the shore. At the same time as the 26 were visible to me I noticed forty-seven other musk-oxen slowly walking past the base of a hill about half a mile back from the river bank. These were followed a short while after by seventeen others. With my field glasses I made out that there were medium sized and large animals but I saw no small calves.

"After more than a year of very strenuous efforts to locate the musk-oxen with so many disappointments the sighting of ninety-three musk-oxen at one time was very gratifying."

Another interesting incident was when he discovered an uncharted river which emptied into the Hanbury river. He proceeded to follow up this river seeking a ford, having left his rifle and canoe behind in order to facilitate his progress. The report continues:

"On July 3 I went up several miles more and found two branches which contributed to the main stream. I got over the first branch by crossing some ice in a lake then swimming an open lead. I attempted to ford the second branch at a rapid and was more than half way across when the strong current washed me off my feet and forced me to swim a dozen yards when I brought up against a boulder from which I was able to walk ashore. In this mishap I had lost the little food I had left and my fishing tackle, which was the only means I had of replenishing my food supply. Fortunately I had taken the precaution to put my matches inside my hat and had thus kept them safe and dry, so was able to kindle a fire from some moss and twigs and dry out some of my wet clothing.

"I had gone north about ten or twelve miles and west between eight and ten so started to walk south. Many lakes across my path forced me miles out of my way and I reached the bank of Hanbury about eight miles above the canoe at 1:30 next morning, very hungry and weary. I made a bed in the dry sand on the river bank and slept until a strong sun awakened me, then I went on. So many detours had to be made around lakes that it was necessary to walk about fifteen miles that morning to go the eight miles to the canoe. I had the good fortune to find a ptarmigan's nest with seven eggs in it so helped myself as I was very hungry.

"Some little time was necessary to patch several holes in the canoe and while so engaged a band of caribou began swimming across above the fall from the opposite bank. I was in need of food so lay in ambush close to where I judged they would land and had a couple of large stones at hand with which I hoped to stun one in the hope that it would be washed over the fall and I could pick it up below with the canoe and so solve my pressing food problem. One caribou tried to scramble out on a shelf of ice at the exact spot where I waited. At what I considered the opportune time I let my first stone go with all my strength. I struck one of the antlers and glanced off as the animal turned to go back to the other bank. My next stone struck it on the shoulder. It was swept over the fall but managed to regain the opposite bank." The investigator had to continue without food. It was midnight on July 5 before he reached his food cache and "was shortly enjoying a good meal."

Mr. Hoare estimated that there were 250 musk-oxen in the sanctuary. He had seen about half that number, all bulls, and concluded the cows had not yet left the calving grounds. Arrangements were made to protect the animals from hunters.

Musk-oxen have much courage and hard instinct, Mr. Hoare does not mention it in his report but the Eskimos who have flown over the northern district attest to this. They say that when a musk-ox scents over a herd of caribou, the frightened animals dash away in every direction. When the plane roars over a herd of musk-oxen the animals at first run but soon the herd forms up, the bulls making a ring on the outside with the cows and calves in the centre of the circle. They do not know what the noise is all about but they are ready to fight it out — the herd instinct.

ACTRESS' BEAUTY FLASHES TO FAME IN COOPER HIT

Cooper Foreign Legion Film Recalls Sweeping Emotion of "The Shiek"

"Morocco," a love story of improbable vividness and exotic charm, was shown at the Belle tneatre Saturday night. Here is a vital and fascinating story of human passion and conflict of an overpowering love that sweeps a ruthless man and woman of the world into a mad, relentless maelstrom of desire. "Morocco" is the story of a magnificent love beside which all other emotions seem petty and inconsequential.

Behind the absorbing story of "Morocco" is the fascination which is to ably created by the realistic, authentic atmosphere of the entire production. Paramount, and the director, Josef Von Sternberg, have combined practical and imaginative resources to bring to life the colorful, shadowy mystery of Morocco, city of twisted, darkened streets, veiled, stealthy women, loud, swaggering Legionnaires; city of wretched, indescribable poverty, and incomparable, glittering wealth and beauty. Such is the background of a great emotional story; of a pulsing, human drama whose intensity and startling dramatic effects command and deserve attention.

Seen in one of his best roles, as a reckless and ruthless soldier of fortune, is Gary Cooper. Master of the situation through the restraint and sincerity of his acting, Cooper creates a role that should win instant public favor. Also prominently cast in an important role is Adolphe Menjou, making an auspicious return to the sudable screen.

The leading feminine role is portrayed by an actress who has never been seen by the Canadian theatre-going public. She is Marlene Dietrich, an ivory chiseled, fair haired, exotic actress who achieved a startling triumph on the Berlin stage the past two years. A discovery of the director, Von Sternberg, this German actress who speaks without a trace of accent is made to order for her role in "Morocco." Miss Dietrich is an unusual actress. She is subtle, mysterious. She is soft spoken. She has been called one of the most beautiful women to come to the screen in some time. Marlene Dietrich assuredly is a name to watch.

Included in the strong supporting cast are Ulrich Haupt, Francis Mac-Donald, Albert Conti, Juliette Compton and Michael Visaroff.

"Morocco" is an unusual picture, distinctive in treatment, fascinating in detail. It is a picture that deserves your attention. It is being exhibited for the last times at the Belle tonight.

WILL BRITAIN'S HIGH SPEED FLIGHT PILOT MOTHERLAND'S SCHNEIDER CUP PLANES?

In view of the fact that a third consecutive Schneider Cup victory for Great Britain means the permanent possession of the world's air speed trophy, the British Air Force may rescind its previous decision to bar active members of the Force from piloting planes in Schneider Cup series. NIAGARA FALLS IS ALTERED BY GIGANTIC SLIDE

Rift Observed Late Saturday Night or Early Sunday Morning

RUMBLINGS HEARD

Change is Easily Apparent to the Eye — Cave of the Winds Not Damaged

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 19—Giving way to the erosion of water, thousands of tons of rock broke away from the parapet of the United States part of Niagara Falls some time between darkness Saturday night and daylight Sunday and caused the greatest change in the contour of the cataract within the memory of living man.

The breaking away of the huge mass created a gigantic U-shaped indentation in the brink, estimated by observers to be 150 to 200 feet deep by about 150 feet wide and beginning approximately 300 feet from the bank of Luna Island.

Accurate estimate of the extent of the erosion will not be possible until aerial photos have been compared with the previous contour. The rest of the American Falls is 1,020 feet wide with an average depth of 1.5 feet of water. The broken-up rock formation is piled in immense blocks halt way up the 167 foot cliff at the base of the U incision.

Reservation officials reported that several rumbling noises were heard between 10 p.m. Saturday night and 6 o'clock Sunday morning, while customs and immigration officers on Falls View Bridge reported they heard a rumbling crash at 5.30 a.m.

New Contour of Cataract

The new contour of the cataract to the experienced eye is apparent at once.

News of the change spread among residents of Niagara Falls. First official report was made to police headquarters by a patrolman at 2.30 p. m. Meanwhile, tourists from all parts of the world were photographing the cataract. The average erosion of the American falls is estimated at one inch a year.

Cave of Winds Not Damaged

The Cave of the Winds, known to practically every tourist who has visited Niagara Falls, does not extend out as far as the gouged-out part of the cliff, and was not damaged. About eight years ago a fall of rock in the Cave of the Winds injured several persons.

From Prospect Point, on the American shore, the new indentation is not sharply defined because the observer's eyes are almost on a level with the brink. However, from Luna Island and the Canadian side, especially the latter, the change in appearance stands out plainly.

The most noticeable scenic aspect is the addition to the rock debris at the base of the American Falls. At the point of the latest erosion gigantic rocks, some of them larger than houses, are piled up.

TALKING OF YOUR ILLS

You magnify your ailments to the point where you have very few days free from worry about your condition.

Any slight indisposition you feel indicates a serious outcome.

You think of your physical condition to the exclusion of other things.

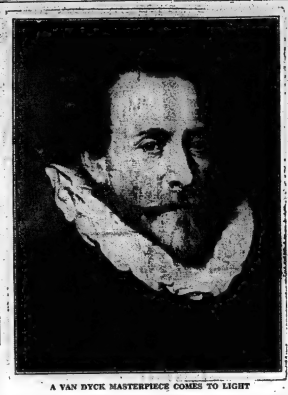
Centering your mind, as you do, upon your mean feelings, the symptoms become greatly magnified in your mind.

Your pain increases largely because you think of it so much that your nerves become taut and cannot let down to rest and recuperate.

Scores of people are courting mental weakness because they fear that they may go insane.

It is true that frequent physical warnings of disease should be given attention.

Have your case diagnosed and follow a good physician's prescription.



Many little pains may be local as a result of infractions of health laws, but should not cause forebodings.

Cease to talk about your ailments for others have troubles, too.

Everyone thinks his or her trouble worse than the next one and your family is getting pretty tired of constant complaints. Get a doctor and follow his instructions, but don't talk about yourself all the time.

Accidents on the baseball field mostly on the amateur field, are more numerous than any other kind of recreation accidents, even more than swimming and bathing.

A VAN DYCK MASTERPIECE COMES TO LIGHT

The portrait of a nobleman by Sir Anthony Van Dyck, that has just been discovered by Paul Lazren in London, England. It has already been passed by the foremost experts and is considered as one of the most interesting discoveries of recent years.

Try This Eye Test on Your Lighting Arrangements

By Hannah Wing

Place a bridge lamp by your favorite chair. When seated, if the light shines in your eyes as you read or look up, the light is not properly placed. Either adjust the shade, so that it is in a more perpendicular line, or move the lamp back a little, perhaps behind your chair, so the light shines over your left shoulder. It is imperative that the light shines on the work and not in the eyes, if eyestrain is to be avoided. A sixty watt bulb is suitable for most lamps.

Table lamps, to be useful, should be tall and have spreading shades which will cast a wide circle of light, and the shades must be deep enough to shield the bulbs. Low decorative lamps with small straight-sided shades confine light to a close circle and shine for beauty alone.

The best colors for shades are the fire tints, gold, peach and amber. They give an effect of warmth and diffuse the light to best advantage. If you are not sure of the right color, use natural tints. They are always appropriate. Solid-colored shades of dark red, blue, or green should never be used; they absorb too much light and are too heavy to be cheerful. If these colors are needed as a link in the decorative scheme they may be introduced in the border or binding of the shade.

Very often the outside of a lamp shade looks lustrous enough, but your husband frets about a lack of light when he is reading his evening newspaper. You will usually find that such a shade has a dark - colored lining which is absorbing most of the light. And, worse still, there may be an amber colored incandescent bulb in the socket. Reline the shade with cream colored china silk, and screw in a sixty watt bulb, and there'll be no more complaints about poor reading light.

Wall brackets should be considered, as auxiliaries since they do not furnish sufficient light to read by. Theirs is a soft glow to animate an evening's conversation. Use only frosted bulbs and be sure that they all match in color. And even though they are frosted, every bulb should have a shade.

Creates Vitamin D

Discovery of how to irradiate vitamin D by the application of selective ultra-violet rays, regarded by experts as likely to have an important bearing on the increase of the nutritive and health-building properties of foods was announced yesterday by President Herman Schneider and Professor George Sperti of the University of Cincinnati.

The discovery made by Dr. Sperti and his assistants during three years of research on animal poultry, plants and food substances, at the Basic Science Research Laboratory of the University of Cincinnati, of which Dr. Sperti is the director, consists in the determination by him that vitamin D is produced not by the entire band of ultra-violet rays in the espectrum, but by only a small fraction of that band. Below a certain limit the wave-lengths are destructive instead of beneficial, while above the "critical wave-length" the effect is negligible.

Dr. Sperti Explans Researches

Dr. Sperti Explains Researches

terday, "It has been known for some time that the milk from present-day indoor cows is deficient in vitamin D because, among other reasons, the cow does not get enough sunlight. Many attempts have therefore been made to introduce the vitamin in milk artificially by exposure to ultra-violet radiation, but all these attempts had to be abandoned because milk so exposed became offensive to the taste as well as mal-odorous.

"Similarly the treatment of milk by ultra-violet light for sterilization purposes has resulted in decomposition or changes in various compounds in the milk which completely spoiled it.

"The present discovery has made it entirely practicable to irradiate milk without deleteriously affecting its taste or smell, and thereby to sterilize and at the same time to increase the vitamin content of the milk."

A consideration of the Quantum theory of radiation, Dr. Schneider explained, and the application of its principles to biology, has led to the basic discoveries regarding the control of ultra-violet light in getting the desired effects either of activation or sterilization, or both. Dr. Sperti found that there is a "critical wave-length" at which biological and other reactions begin, and that these reactions do not take place at all at longer wave-lengths than the critical one, while they continue for shorter wave lengths down to a definite limit, after which other reactions begin that are harmful.

Once this was discovered, it became a comparatively simple matter to filter out all the unessential and harmful rays so that only the beneficial ones would be irradiated. When this is done, Dr. Sperti said, the production of the vitamin goes on indefinitely, while all harmful bacteria can be destroyed in a few seconds without any deleterious effect.

Effect of Different Rays

"For example, Dr. Sperti added, "in the formation of vitamin D by the irradiation of the pro-vitamin known as ergosterol the vitamin begins to form at the critical wave-length around 3,100 angstrom units and continues down to 2,900. Below these wave lengths the reaction becomes harmful. By eliminating these shorter wave lengths which cause the undesirable reactions, while retaining those which form the vitamin, an anti-rickets substance is obtained which is essentially pure vitamin, of much greater potency than anything heretofore produced."

Dr. Walter H. Eddy, professor of physiological chemistry at Teachers College, Columbia University, and one of the leading authorities on food, said yesterday he regarded Dr. Sperti's work as "a decidedly important discovery" and that he "had no doubt about the soundness of his selective ray theory."

"Dr. Sperti has learned," said Dr. Eddy, "how to use special wave-lengths to accomplish certain beneficial effects and how to avoid certain harmful effects by the elimination of other wave lengths I am familiar with his work and feel that it will have an important bearing on the food problem."

STUDENT PARTY A WILD AFFAIR

Moral Lapses on Part of Young People Aboard Pleasure Yacht

SEATTLE, Jan. 19.— The number of high school students involved seriously in charges resulting from a yacht party which they attended here recently, grew today to seven.

Two boys and two girls chose banishment from the State of Washington as an alternative of serving terms in the state training school.

One boy and a girl were sentenced to serve indeterminate sentences in the state's institutions which care for wayward children.

A fourth boy was put under court supervision.

The severe action was taken by juvenile court authorities as the result of a sweeping investigation into a party held on board a yacht by the students last Fall.

From bits of testimony given by several detained youths, court authorities were able to piece together a story that told of continued juvenile delinquencies over a long period of time. Incidents of students having "passed out" from liquor while the yacht parties were in session, and of other serious moral lapses, were related by several of the students.

At one time it was said, the mother of one of the youths involved called upon her son while he was at school, and gave him a bootlegger's telephone number.

Those students banished from the state were so treated in an attempt to separate them.

The investigation involved scores of students at various high schools in Seattle. Parents were asked to give closer attention to their children's activities.

EVIDENCE WAS NOT CORROBORATED

James Hunter was charged before His Honour Judge Deroche Saturday with being the father of a child to be born out of Wedlock. Evidence was given by the girl and her sister. The Judge stated that he believed the evidence of the two girls and therefore believed Hunter to be the father of the child, but as the law now stands corroboration of the act is necessary, and there being no corroboration the charge was not proven in law.

MADOC WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY IN FIRST SESSION

MADOC—The first meeting of the New Year for the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held at the home of the President, Mrs. S. S. Ashley, on Wednesday of last week, with Mrs. M. Mayhee and Miss A. Wood in charge of the program, and an attendance of twenty-four.

Devotional exercises consisted of the hymn, "Just As I Am," the repetition of the Creed in Unison, brief prayer led by Mrs. Mayhee. An interesting reading on "systematic giving" was given by Mrs. Mayhee and Miss Wood took up chapter IV of the Missionary Study Book.

Mrs. S. S. Ashley took charge of the business meeting, and reports were given by Secretary and Treasurer, showing a total membership of twenty two, and a life membership of eleven The allocation for the past year has been exceeded by about forty-five dollars, and plans and finances in good shape for the business of the New Year. It was decided to have the West Huntingdon Dramatic Club to put on their play, "The Road to Life City," about January 26th. This club has played to crowded houses and a great treat is in store for the members.

The Study Leaflet was given by Mesdames Wellman, Hough and Wood and Mrs. Lowry gave the Devotional Leaflet, "Forgive Us Our Trespasses."

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. A. Thompson, after which a social half hour was enjoyed.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception misbehaved terribly over the week end, kicking up its heels disgracefully. Saturday night it was as noisy as it was possible to be and still be able to bring in a station and the latter part of yesterday afternoon and earlier in the evening was just as bad. From ten o'clock on until midnight it was showing a steady improvement.

Sam Herman put on a smart program for the fans, that is the xylophone fans, last night at 11.15 and opened with one of the smartest pieces of them all, "My Sing-Song Girl." With the xylophone and piano accompaniment it sounded mighty sweet. Heard Little Jack Little Saturday night at 11.45 and the wheezes of the old broken down bar room piano were heard again. Our luck was out yesterday afternoon though WEAF refused to come in at all and even to faintly hear him it was necessary almost to hug the speaker and believe me, I did.

Don't miss the Jesters tonight at 7.15 because Pep, Vim and Vigour promise to provide us with just a little more of these three ingredients and the most of us can stand them. Vim has a nice little story all lined up for us, too, so let's go. The Tea Timers are on of course at 5.30 from WEAF followed by the Mountaineers. Amos and Andy next stop and then the Jesters.

x x

The Gypsies go on the air from WEAF at 8.30 and the Family Party at 9.30, two cracking good programs. Symphonic Rhythm Makers at 10.30 and at 11.00 listen very closely for "Sweet Lady" heralding another half hour and dance music by Florence Richardson.

11.30 brings us to Horace Heidt and his orchestra, WEAF of course, another peppy program and at midnight Phil Spitalny. Everybody knows the superior brand of music Phil and his orchestra provides for the fans.

Roxy's program from WJZ at 7.45 and the Maytag Orchestra at 9.00. Real Folks are going to have a lot of fun from WJZ at 9.30 and midnight Duke Ellington treats us to a little lively music guaranteed to shoo the blues, well I dunno about that but I'm willing to give it a try.

COLLEGIATE, OIL COMPANY WERE HOCKEY WINNERS

Seven Hundred Braved Cold Weather for Fast Double-Header.

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

PICTON—The cold weather on last Tuesday night did not stop seven hundred or more fans from attending the hockey games at the local arena and those who did venture out were repaid with some fine hockey.

The collegiate and Milford staged a real battle and it was not until the last period that the collegiate managed to score one and this decided the game. Milford couldn't get a single one past Paterson in the collegiate goal. George McCaw in a similar capacity, did good work for Milford. The play was featured by close checking and during the first two periods many solo attempts were suddenly blocked. The last period saw both teams trying hard and the collegiate managed to score, Bill Rorke being responsible. Penalties were few. Final score 1-0 for P.C.I. With this win Collegiate has won all of their games to date.

The Demonstrative - Imperial Oil fracas was a more exciting game of hockey than the other. The Imperials won 5-1. Combination was the keynote of their victory. Randall Brooks (2), Claude Cole, Arthur Storms and Fred Stafford scored goals. David Young was in the Imperials' net but had very little to do. Ollie Young in the opposite net was a busy man and did some excellent work.

Charles Bedbough handled both games in a satisfactory manner.

The game has been provided with a box, but a Wellington member of the executive complained, though there was nothing against the reporter, and to satisfy him a box for them was suitably filled up.

Dr. G. W. Morden of Napanee who is supplying at the Picton Collegiate, spoke at the Veterans' meeting Tuesday night, his subject being "Venice". The address was illustrated by lantern slides and was much enjoyed by all who were privileged to be present.

This will be the busiest week of the season for the hockey teams representing Belleville in the several groups of the O.H.A. The big game of the week for the fans at home will be played tomorrow night when Queen's Juniors make their appearance at the local Arena. The juniors are in the position, where they must win every game to stay in the running with Kingston and from reports they will be extended to beat the summary with the Tricolor. This team has yet to meet defeat and it is said they have the heaviest defense in junior hockey, both their rear guard men tipping the beam over the 200-pound mark. They have a fast forward line and are well coached by Wally Elmer. They have rounded into condition and are coming up determined to give the locals a battle. Stan Burgoyne believes he has hit the right combination and the game they turned in against the Cadets has justified his optimism. There are some rough spots to rub off, particularly the combination but the boys are coming along and it is expected they will give a good account of themselves tomorrow night.

x x x x x

On Wednesday night the senators face the stiffest game of the winter, when they tackle Queen's seniors in their own ballwack. It has been many a day since a Belleville team won a game in the Jock Harty Arena but Wednesday night a desperate effort is going to be made to lift the game and break the jinx. It is the game that will practically decide the group. All the Cheerios have to do is play back to the form they displayed in winning the first game and they should still take a good Queen's team to defeat them. The locals will be better fortified for this game as Bob Scott will be used on the second line at left wing in place of Hull. George Mulvihill, who received a torn ligament in the shoulder in the first five minutes of play in the last game, which rendered him nearly useless, has greatly improved and is ready to go the route. The remainder of the team is in the pink of condition, the practices putting them on keen edge. It is expected a large number of the fans will be in the Jock Harty rink when the referee calls the two teams to centre ice for instructions.

x x x x x x

Tonight the intermediates will journey to Trenton and it looks like a tough battle from this angle. Neither Davis nor Ingram will accompany the team as they are performing in Stirling against Frankford. The best team available will be taken up and the boys have given the leaders in this group a battle. Trenton and Kingston have not met as yet and it is expected from the game that Kingston showed they will defeat Trenton both games, therefore it will be necessary for Belleville to win tonight and defeat Kingston here to tie for group honors. A number of the fans will go up to the western metropolis tonight for the battle.

x x x x x

On Friday night the juniors make the long jump to Gananoque for a battle in that town. The summer town have a good big junior squad and although they have not won a game to date they are a team to be feared. Belleville has to win and if they do not lose two games this week they are going to "bring en Kingston." Of course if both Kingston and Belleville win all their remaining games, the big game of the local season will be on February 13th with Kingston and Belleville meeting in this city. It looks as if the ice palace will have to be enlarged for that setto.

x x x x x x

Although Kingston junior curlers are enjoying a cne point margin over the locals it is expected that margin will be wiped out tonight when the rinks meet at the local curling rink. Three rinks will be sent from Kingston and anyone interested in curling is invited up to watch the game. The Kingston curlers will be at a disadvantage as they have been curling on artificial ice but the locals were in the same position when they went to Kingston as the members had never curled on the artificial brand of ice.

Y'S MEN WINNERS OVER R. M. C. IN OPENING BASKET BALL GAME

Locals a Little Too Fast for the Cadets from King-ston

Outplaying their opponents decisively in the first half of their league fixture against the Royal Military College basketball team the Y.M.C.A. representatives of the Y's Men's Club were able to coast through to victory Saturday night when the second half. The local team scored 24-8 in favor of the home team while the full time counts registered 28-21.

The Cadets started out most impressively with McAsity, their pivot man sinking the first field goal to go scored. In addition to an aggressive attack the visitors established a strong defence which the local players found difficult to penetrate during the opening minutes of the game. A series of long shots by the Club Men however found their mark and also helped to rather disrupt for the time being the hitherto consistent defence of the military men. Before the game was many minutes old the Y's Men assumed the lead which they maintained unto the end of the battle without a break. Nevertheless, had the Club Men not acquired a substantial lead in the opening stanza it would not have been well for them as in the final session they were not as prominent in the picture being outplayed 13-4. Possibly their commanding lead in the initial half caused the winners to become a bit overconfident but in any event they were not able to play as effectively as any time during the final period. In their big half the Cadets counted four field goals and a free throw before the Y Quint made any addition to their previous standing and thereafter the best the Club Men could do was to obtain an even break with either team scoring two more field goals.

In sinking free throws both aggregations were decidedly weak. The Y's Men failed to convert any of their five chances into points while R.M.C. with three opportunities for single points were able to add but one point to their total. In this department alone the Cadets might have won the game had they been proficient.

One of the pleasing features of the Y's Men is their general proficiency in shooting field goals. Every member of the team is a potential scorer as demonstrated in Saturday's game when six of the Club Men participated in their teams scoring as against three members of the visiting team.

The game was capably handled by Andy Reekie of Albert College.

The teams:

R.M.C.—McAvity 10; Bisson; Ward; Robertson; Kirne 6; Schreiff; Coles 5.

Y's Men—Davison 2; McFee 8; Faulkner 4; White 2; Weir 10; Buck; Walters; Bray 2; Allan.

Albert College Boys Win From Y Boys 13-8

Albert College boys proved a bit too capable for the Y Midgets in a game played at the Y.M.C.A. gym Saturday to the R.M.C. vs Y's Men's fixture. The Albert Quint put up such a strong defence the Y players were unable to connect to attempt shot at likely shots from well down the floor and it did not appear to be their night at this style of game.

The teams are in the process of building and in a few weeks time will show to much greater advantage. The College apparently has abundance of material and their coach Andy Reekie should experience little difficulty in building up a strong team from the boys at his disposal.

With both the Y's Men and a senior ladies team to be provided for the younger members have not been given much chance to date so would them into a strong team but arrangements are being made to provide the necessary coaching and practice periods in order that a strong juvenile contingent may be developed in the Association.

Albert College—Higgins, Hoorigan Beattie, Cadman, Isaac Budd, Moore Butchers Martyn, Muir.

Y.M.C.A.—Ostrom, Sinfield, Cole, Harris, Counsyman Henry.

In the Ladies' Afternoon League the Hustlers hustled right along, to take four points from the Athletics, in a well played game. The Athletics are mostly beginners but they make them all step to beat them. High bowlers were Mrs. Geraline for Hustlers and Mrs. Madden for Athletics.

This league is away to a great start and promises to have a very interesting season, as all the teams are fairly evenly matched.

"WHOOPEE" WITH EDDIE CANTOR LAUGHS A-PLENTY

Big Laugh Show at the Capitol is Creating a Big Sensation

"Whoopee"

"Whoopee", and then some.

Crowds visited the Capitol Theatre Saturday matinee and evening to laugh with Eddie Cantor in his Goldwyn-Florenz Ziegfeld presentation of The Saturday Evening Post's story of "The Nervous Wreck" as expressed in the picture as "Whoopee."

Laughter long and loud, greeted Eddie Cantor and his associates, the cast being very capable while Eddie, himself, was never better as a funmaker

"Whoopee" is a beautiful production done in technicolor throughout and presented with scenery and costumes which make it bright and pleasing beyond measure.

"Whoopee" sustained its reputation elsewhere as being the big picture of the year, and explained why Loew's Toronto theatre kept it an extra week in order to get all the wisecracks which are exploded with machine-gun rapidity.

MONTREAL TO HAVE ADVERTISING SHOW

MONTREAL—For the first time in Montreal there is to be an advertising show, which will be held from January 13 to 15. As advertisers next year expect to spend huge sums to promote more sales, advertising will come into its own and the show is said to be particularly opportune.

The show will be a well-rounded exhibit of the best that there is in the entire range of advertising. The club will have a "direct mail leaders' exhibit," which attracted so much attention in Milwaukee a month ago at the Direct Mail Advertisers convention. The first Montreal exhibit will also exhibit several mail campaigns and feature the services which they can render advertisers.

Exhibit space will be taken up by the following groups of advertising services: Advertising agencies, advertising services, commercial artists, printers, magazine publishers, business and paper publishers, newspaper publishers, sign manufacturers, display stand makers, paper interests, printing ink interests, advertising photographers, lithographers, engravers, electrotypers and stereotypers, labels, containers, advertising compositions and envelope interests.

SENATORS TAKE BEATING AGAIN

Beaten by Maroons, 3-2 — Kilrea Draws a $15 Fine

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—Despite a desperate last-minute thrust by speedy Senator forward, the Montreal Maroons turned back Ottawa's National Hockey League team 3 to 2 at the Forum here Saturday night.

It was a somewhat mild encounter, with the heavy checking of Hooley Smith and Nels Stewart smothering Ottawa attacks in the centre zone. Defensive workers were outgeneralled, with Finnegan playing the best hockey for the visitors. Hec Kilrea drew a minor penalty in the third and then went off for the rest of the game a few minutes later when he passed Bert Corbeau when the arbiter chased him for the anti-defence rule. Hec rated a $15 fine.

Babe Siebert started the scoring in the first, feinting at the defence. Then he drilled a goal right through the fence of sticks. It looked like a soft one. It was the only solo effort resulting in a score. In the second frame Jimmy Ward swept up centre, passed to Stewart, who faked a shot and then whipped it back to Jimmy who drilled Connell out of the net to poke the puck in. Half-way through the third Earl Roche and Bill Phillips combined in a pretty scoring play, with Roche finally banging home Bill's rebound.

IN MEMORIAM

GROSS—In loving memory of Arnold Cross who passed away January 19, 1928.

Three years have passed since that sad day
God called the one we loved away
Forget him no we never will
While memory lasts we shall still.

We little thought his death so near
And only those who have lost
Can tell the pain, the parting cost.

Oshawa Contributions to Church Disappeared

OSHAWA, Jan. 17. — Charges of forgery and of theft have been brought against Mrs. Julia Dubyk of Clark street, by Rev. Father John Chrustawka, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church here, as the result of collections which were accused made for her church and failed, it is alleged, to turn over to the congregation.

Mrs. Dubyk volunteered several months ago to raise money for the Greek Orthodox Church, although she is not a member. Given the necessary authority by the priest, she called upon prominent citizens of the city and also industrial concerns, enlisting their financial aid to assist the congregation. One local manufacturing firm, Fittings Limited, presented the accused with a cheque made out to Father Chrustawka.

Mrs. Dubyk, the priest charges, forged his name on the back of the cheque and then endorsed it with her own name.

Mrs. Dubyk is also charged with the theft of a sum of $20 which W. E. N. Sinclair local member of the provincial Parliament and at that time Liberal leader donated toward the church.

The accused left the police court before her name was called yesterday morning and the case has been adjourned until Monday.

NO INTERPRETER WILL ACCOMPANY

Students of Ontario School Will Worship Like Others Henceforth

With city congregations yesterday morning the students of the Ontario School for the Deaf worshipped, but members of the congregations could not have been able to distinguish them from other visitors unless mention had been made of their presence.

Congregations of the churches will hereafter every Sunday morning have with them scholars of the "Ontario School for the Deaf who will worship as the congregation worships. In the past when students attended from the school an interpreter conveyed the sermon by way of the sign language, but under the instructions of Mr. H. J. Beverly, superintendent of the institution no interpreter will be used. The students will go through the service as other members of the congregation absorbing as much of the spirit of the service as possible. That will not be a small amount either for the students of the school is of an unusually observant nature and his training developing the eye to offset the handicap of the ear. Through the eye much of the service will pass into the experience of the children. They know the hymns which are sung they have the Scriptures before them, and they can undoubtedly pick up a great deal of the sermon by observation of the movement of the lips of the preacher.

Superintendent Fetterly has decided to have the scholars attend in this manner as worshippers who can hear otherwise he does not want the students to be treated as other than the usual attendants on services. To put an interpreter before them would disgust them and lose the congregation. Mr. Fetterley's plan is actuated by the hope that they will more and more learn to have access to the hearing section of the community, among whom they ultimately have to live and play their part in life, personal, social, industrial and financial, in order that they may have no feeling of inferiority when they come into contact with hearing folk.

Yesterday children attended services of the city church of their choice and demonstration for the first time under this trial. At one church the minister asked the congregation members in any way possible to make the children feel at home and to make them understand that they are a part of the congregation.

POETRY

WE THANK THEE
For nature's laws and Thy rich providence;
For all Thy perfect processes of life;
For all the minute perfection of Thy work,
Ears and unseen, in each remotest part;
For faith, and works, and gentle charity;
For all that makes for quiet in the world;
For all that lifts man from his common rut;
For all that knits the silken bond of peace;
For all that lifts the fringes of the night,
And lights the darkened corners of the earth;
For every broken gate and sundered bar;
For every wide-flung window of the soul;
For that Thou bearest all that Thou hast made;—
We thank Thee, Lord!
—John Oxenham, in "A Little Te Deum of the Commonplace."

PICTON COUNCIL HELD INAUGURAL 1931 MEETING

Condition of Fred Newman Said to be Extremely Serious

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

PICTON, Jan. 19.—The inaugural meeting of the Picton town council was held Friday evening in the Council Chamber, Mayor George A. Welch gave the following address:

Citizens of the Picton.—

Gentlemen of the Council—

As the beginning of another municipal year, I desire to congratulate Reeve Vincent, and Deputy Reeve Blakely upon their election to these important positions. They will, no doubt, be worthy representatives of the town on the County Council.

I also desire to congratulate the several members of the council upon their election by acclamation. The past experience of Councillors Collyer and Thibault will prove a valuable asset to this year's board; while Messrs. Collier, Cannacy, Cox and Huff with their business experience, will bring mature judgment to bear on the problems that will come up for consideration during the year.

At the December meeting of last year's council, a by-law was passed providing for the opening of a channel through the marsh with a view of relieving the very unsatisfactory conditions that existed last summer approaching the grant for unemployment for that purpose.

I need not dwell here upon the necessity for relieving conditions at the marsh. But I am not sure that this work can be successfully carried on during the winter season. Should you decide to let the matter over until I suggest that the proposal of Councillor Thibault to open the quarry for unemployment relief be given serious consideration at once.

Referring again to the marsh problem, Mr. Collyer, the local M.P.P., was in Toronto, this week, and at my request took up the question of a grant with the Crown Lands Department, and he had Deputy Minister Kane's assurance that if we would submit suitable plans to the Department, a reasonable sum would be granted. In view of this it would be possible to spend a portion of the unemployment Grant on the quarries, reserving the balance to use at the marsh, putting the Department's Grant against it as the town's share and thereby getting this work done at little if any, cost to the town.

One other matter in regard to the town—the present situation has arisen through persons dumping refuse into the old channel, and thereby blocking it. I am requesting the property committee to give this matter their serious consideration and endeavour and if possible to work out a system whereby all material dumped in the marsh would have proper supervision.

Another matter for consideration this year is sidewalk repairs. My opinion, as expressed at the nomination meeting, is that one half will spent on walks would put them in a very favorable state of repair without putting extra burden on the tax-payer. I am also asking this Board to consider the purchasing of a small dump truck to be placed at the disposal of the Street Committee. Personally, I believe this would effect a material saving to the town on street work.

I would also ask this, Council to discuss at some convenient time the question of adopting the Hydro System. Without going into the matter in detail, I note that his system has proved a money saver to municipalities that have adopted it.

The important question with the ratepayer, aside from the efficient management of the town's business, is what will the mill rate be. Owing to present economic condition, I feel that I will have your co-operation together with other municipal boards to the end that a reduced mill rate will be given to the ratepayers this year.

I trust that our deliberations during the year may be harmonious and that the town as a whole may enjoy a happy and prosperous New Year.

Calories That Food Contains

By Louis R. Black, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

In this column mention has often been made of the caloric value of food, namely its heat and energy-producing properties.

The fact has also been stressed that in planning our menus we should think of the number of calories which the various articles of diet contain.

It is not necessary that our calories intake be figured out too closely. Approximate amounts suffice in average healthy individuals.

A person leading a sedentary life requires about 3,000 calories a day. If doing light work 3500 calories. For hard work 4000 calories or more are necessary.

Below is given a list of ordinary foods and their caloric value. The figures are taken from charts of food values by Edwin A. Locke.

SONG AGAINST REGRET

But I will sing songs of the morning
Nor be loth to remember
My lost April lark
That dreams in the dark
Old earth of November.

Let misery mope and pretend;
I'll but laugh in recalling
My bright-laughing love
Whose cloak flis like a glove
'Neath russet and red leaves falling.

Come away! Knowing death for a jester
That gets a fool's pardon,
Nor regret nor lament
Shall touch my content
In the snowdrop that sleeps in my garden.

Time "Only Seems"

Pasadena, Calif.—When one studies a subject for nearly 40 years his classes become quite advanced.

So finds Dr. Albert Einstein, who is attending the California Institute of Technology and seminars of the most advanced astronomical class at Mt. Wilson Observatory.

The question of how long is a day becomes quite a complex one when the theory of relativity is applied to it. For instance, Dr. Einstein watches the most accurate clock in the world, the mercury atom chronometer of Dr. Roy P. Kennedy here. It ticks off intervals of a million-billionth of a second. That is the lifetime of a mercury atom, which is described as having a complete little solar system of its own.

Then Dr. Gunnar Stromberg of Mt. Wilson gives a class lecture, with Dr. Einstein as one of the prominent students. He tells of the Galactic day, just a mere 250,000,000 years as time is generally figured. The galaxy is another solar system.

Hence time is not constant, but merely just what it seems. As relativity explains it, it depends upon where you are going and how fast—velocity.

The solar system pales into atom-like insignificance when compared with the galaxy. The galaxy is the observable universe, consisting of a great nebulae system in which our solar system is a small part. Another name for it is the milky way.

And it is just 12 days old, galactically speaking, so Dr. Stromberg revealed. His lesson subject was "rotation of the galaxy." He told how the whole galaxy rotates, just as does the earth, but its day is not the 24 hours by which the man on the street checks time.

The 12 Galactic days embrace six during which astronomers say the galaxy was in the process of evolution. The evolutionary period was 1,500,000,000 years long. The second six were the 1,500,000,000 years which geologists say is the age of the earth in solid form, otherwise known as geologic time.

Sun-Tinted Glass

Oakland, Calif.—Prospectors of the days of '49 roamed the deserts in search of gold. Behind them, on long-forgotten trails—in camps silent a half century or more—on dump heaps at the back of shack-towns—they left the untidy debris of their reamings.

Today, amid the rubbish of those seekers after fortune, other searchers are finding new treasure in the form of old, s n-tukrd glassware, humble in use and plain in design, but transmuted to objects of art by the alchemy of the sun.

City stores feature modern glassware, delicately tinted in the process of manufacture. But the delicacy of this man-made tinting is as nothing compared to the mauve and purple found on the common glass, handblown by workers 50, 60 or 100 years ago acquires as a result of long years of exposure to the heat of the desert sun, collectors declare.

Recently there has arisen a collectors' fad for this sun-tinted glass, and high prices have been paid for well-colored and intact specimens. Bottles cast carelessly at the side of old trails, their contents of sauce, pickles or jelly gone, today fine a value in the collector's eye.

Chemists say that it is the reaction of impurities chemicals in the sand used in making the glass—oxidization of iron, manganese and other impurities—when exposed to the steady rays of the desert sun for years, that causes the glass to take on the unusual tints.

Collectors declare that it takes anywhere from 20 years up before common white glass, exposed to the sun, commences to take on the tints which make it so much sought after. They point out that a well-colored specimen may have been exposed for 50 to 60 years, but after that time it takes on no deeper shade of color, no matter how long it remains in the sunlight.

Another interesting fact, according to collectors, is that only glass made by the old processes seems to color. Glass made within the last 20 or 25 years does not take the tints.

Radio Hunts Baronet

London—British radio systems paged Sir Francis Barrow, English baronet, who mysteriously disappeared eighteen years ago and has not since made his whereabouts known. A broad cast ordered the urgent appeal of friends to come home immediately because his eldest son, Wilfred John Wilson Croker, heir to his title is seriously ill.

The broadcast was the first revelation to the general public that the baronet, who is the fourth of his line, was missing. Lady Barrow, his wife, and other members of the family declined to discuss the disappearance or other circumstances of the case.

If still alive Sir Francis would be 68 years old. He was married in 1900 to Winifred Sarah Steward of Cartgate, Whitehaven, who bore him a son and daughter. There are seven grandchildren. One of two sisters is a Franciscan nun.

The missing baronet succeeded his father in 1900. He is the grandson of the beautiful Miss Croker, subject of the famous portrait by Sir Thomas Lawrence.

The first baronet, Sir John Barrow, for many years Secretary of the Admiralty and founder of the Royal Geographical Society, was distinguished as an author, traveler and public servant. A monumental tower 100 feet high was erected to his memory by public subscription at Ulverston, his birthplace. The second baronet was chief clerk at the Colonial Office and the Secretary and registrar of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, of which he was a companion.

TO-DAY'S VERSE

NOW YOU ARE IN YOUR COUNTRY

Now you are in your country,
And I, locked fast in mine,
Watch the white roads in silence,
And see my sun decline.

I see the whole west breaking
In flame again, tonight;
And earth to peace receding
Through valleys of delight.

Sleep in your pleasant country,
Lie down at last, content.
The hills of ecstatic heaven
Your dream's bright battlement;

Know that the stars you talk with
Have eyes on fields at home,
Or buds on banks you dream of
Now break in scented foam;

For death has hung no silence,
Nor spring withheld one sign,
Since you turned to every country
And left me locked in mine.

The Canada Life keeps well ahead of the times, and its policy of "fair and square dealing", which began with its founding, 84 years ago, has been continuous.

Never has this Company contested a claim on a technicality, and from its inception it has paid dividends to policyholders every year.

Even during the Great War and influenza epidemic, not one dollar of reduction in dividends was necessary, and for the past thirty-one years its high dividends to policyholders have never been reduced but, on the other hand, have frequently been increased.

Summary of Remarks of the President, Mr. Leighton McCarthy at Annual Meeting of Canada Life

Canada's potential resources have not changed, and we are assured by our financiers that our basic conditions are sound. We therefore can surely look forward with courage and faith to a greater development and expansion, as soon as world conditions become settled.

Never before has life insurance been as large a factor as it is today. In no previous period, not excepting the War years and the influenza epidemic of 1918 and 1919, has it rendered a service so large, so immediate and so necessary as it has rendered in the year 1930. Its vast reserves have lessened the force and effect of the depression on all citizens, as well as upon the individual policyholders and beneficiaries directly benefited. It has been and is radiating confidence, dispelling fear and stimulating prosperity.

Life insurance statistics have been an outstanding source of encouragement. They have furnished striking evidence of the sound common sense of the people, their vision, courage and abiding confidence in the future.

Approximately one hundred and twenty-five billions of dollars of life insurance are now in force on this Continent, nearly seven billions of which are in Canada.

It is estimated that Canadian Companies paid approximately two hundred millions to policyholders as beneficiaries during 1930. Out of this sum one hundred and thirty-five millions were paid to living policyholders.

The Canada Life in 1930 passed the One Billion dollar mark of insurance in force. Surplus earnings of six million two hundred and sixty-eight thousand dollars in 1930 were the greatest in the Company's history. This surplus was earned after making appropriations for possible depreciation of any securities.

The investment policy of the Canada Life is founded upon security of principal, stability of earning power and diversification of investments.

Values on the basis authorized by the Government, or even at the low of the year, the investments of the Canada Life show a very substantial surplus of market value over values at which the securities are taken into the statement. The special Contingent Reserves now amount to $1,658,000.

The total assets of the Company now exceed One hundred and eighty-eight million dollars, having increased in 1930 by Fourteen million four hundred and seventy-seven thousand dollars.

The new Head Office building is nearing completion, and will be occupied during the early part of 1931. It is urgently needed to accommodate the expanding business of the Company.

SECTION OF LABOR WILL DISCUSS TARIFF

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 19—Lord Olivier, who had much administrative experience in West Indies in former years and has since championed its cause in England, the cause of the West Indies producers, has returned here to find out how they have been carrying on in the last year and how the sugar assistance scheme has worked out.

Though he could see little brightening in the prospects for marketing the great sugar crop at more remunerative prices, Lord Olivier mentioned that a section of the British Labor party was willing to consider tariffs for the benefit of Empire producers.

"My own opinion that some portion of Imperial policy should be taken to mitigate the over-pressure upon our sugar industry and protect our producers," he said.

"The present Labor Party is officially committed to free trade. There is, however, a increasing strong feeling in the Party that there should be a regulation of markets. A section of the Party is also prepared to recognize the question of tariffs either for home industries or Imperial industries, provided certain conditions are observed.

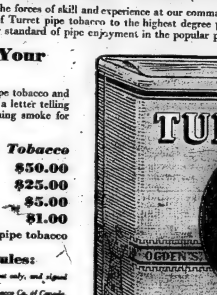
"There must be a limitation of prices and proper conditions observed for the workers in the industry. In other words, if the factories are kept up it must not be at the expense of the cultivator. You must have some sort of reasonable price for cane. It is a necessary principle otherwise the factories might be able to carry on although the growers and cultivators are squeezed down. In England we have the bulk of free trade consumers against us. The feeling against dumping has been very much strengthened by the action of Germany and Czechoslovakia. They are subsidizing their agricultural industries. They therefore able to dump their wheat in competition with our farmer as well as their sugar in competition with our Colonial producer."

"The consumers in England are getting cheap food at the expense of the Colonies. They are swelling their fellow laborers in the West Indian Colonies. Sugar is bought as twopence and sometimes fourpence a pound in England, including nearly a penny for duty, and the cost of refining. The production of raw sugar gets 1-8 of a penny, far below the cost of production," he declared.

Lord Olivier also spoke Lord Olivier saw for sugar in Trinidad and other West Indian Colonies was the implied promise from Lord Passfield, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the Home Government would do nothing to reduce the preference not three years.

So long as the present over-production in Cuba continues, and the consistent dumping by Continental nations, the sugar outlook in the West Indies, however, could not be regarded as hopeful, he said.

Lord Olivier thinks that the West Indies should have been represented at the recent Imperial Conference held in London. "The Community of the West Indies is quite big enough to have joint representation at the next Imperial Conference in Ottawa," he said. "If I were a politician in the West Indies, I would press for joint representation. We cannot get the representation we want from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, for he is a subordinate. He is 'snowed' under by Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer and dominated by the Board of Trade. The views he expounds in Parliament, are those of Mr. Snowden.



"People in England are getting to know more of the West Indies," Lord Olivier declared. "England cannot do without the tropics. I think you are progressing towards the idea of a High Commissioner for the West Indies."

Say Appointment Is Constitutional Change

CAPE TOWN—Much discussion has occurred in England and South Africa since the recent announcement of the appointment of Sir Herbert Stanley as high commissioner to South Africa. Hitherto the Governor-General has acted as High Commissioner.

The situation here is not the same as in other dominions where British high commissioners reeve, such as Canada, for instance, where the high commissioner deals with trade matters. Here the chance will make the separation of South Africa from the crown dependencies of Basutoland, Swaziland and Bechanaland complete.

The union has long wanted administration of these native territories locally identified with it as possible, though the three are protectorates under the British Colonial Office. Hitherto the colonial office has acted through the governor-general of South Africa, in his capacity as high commissioner of the British government.

Now the duties involved are transferred to the separate high commissioner.

A clear explanation of the situation was given by General Jan Smuts in the assembly three years ago. "It is to our interest," he said, "to have the native territories as closely identified as possible with the policy of the union, which they are accustomed, and if they do come to understand, this change will affect their outlook unfavorably. Lord Buxton may be right. But surely it is not quite correct to say that Sir Herbert Stanley will be a representative of the King. As delegate to the Imperial Government, he will hold the King's Commission and represents the King, though only in a minute. Praised by thousands. Don't be a dope. Herbert Stanley accompanied him as Private Secretary. Returning later to Britain, he came back with Lord Buxton. After six months, however, he was appointed resident-commissioner of Southern and Northern Rhodesia, then under the Chartered Company, an office he filled for three years.

After this, in 1918, he returned to South Africa as Imperial Secretary under the Governor-General (Lord Buxton) in the capacity as High Commissioner, and continued to hold his appointment under Prime Minister Botha, and the present Governor-General for a month or two before he went, in 1924 to Northern Rhodesia, when the Protectorate was taken over from the Chartered Company by the Crown.

Three years later he assumed the Governorship of Ceylon.

Educated at Eton and Balliol, his first appointment was to the British Resident Minister at Dresden and Coburg, as Private Secretary.

He was created in 1913, and K. C. M. G. in 1924. In 1918 he married Miss Reinera Cloete, of Alphen, Constantia, and they have two sons and two daughters. Sir Herbert Stanley is 58.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

Fourteen years of service, ten on the Board of Education and four on the advisory board—have resulted in the selection of William Harvey for the chairmanship of the Board of Education.

A member with such a record may perhaps be able to exert an influence for larger unity for more prompt attendance at meetings, in years of service count (and they should count) Mr. Harvey's years should be one of the most progressive years in the annals of the Board of Education.

Mr. Harvey in a good example and other trustees may be expected to follow his fine record.

The work of the year ahead is important. It was thought that with the completion of the four public schools and the collegiate the attendance problem would be solved but it still is one for solution. Mr. Harvey and is associates will have this as one of the issues to be wrestled with in the coming months.

CHAMBER'S ELECTIONS

Once again four new members have been added to the executive of the Chamber of Commerce, Messrs. W. B. Deacon, H. E. Fairfield, C. E. Hanna and Superintendent George A. Stokes of the Canadian National Railways. All but Mr. Stokes have previously been members of the directorate. The return of the first three is warrant for continuance of the per adventure which has been shown when in office and the addition of Mr. Stokes to the board brings to the Chamber of Commerce table a man of the greatest influence and experience, which is of particular interest in view of the relationship of transportation to industry, and of the large proportion of railway employees who live in Belleville.

THE SOUL OF HONOR

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, who has directed as premier the affairs of the Empire and whose family has been associated with industry for generations, yet possesses an attitude towards business that ought to be the envy of business men all over the world. He has recently given out a story of his life which proves him the possessor of the soul of honor.

What he does, Mr. Baldwin has done is only what a man of highest principle, whether he be rich or poor ought to do but few do it. The story is this. The Baldwins have been associated with the iron industry since the days of Charles Second, and most of Mr. Baldwin's possessions are in the shares of the Baldwin industry. The shares were worth fifteen dollars each when he took office but today they are worth 40c. He did not sell out. His reason is clear when one reads his own words:

> "Many modern business men would say I ought to have realized at the top of the market. But when you have an old name in a business against which nothing has ever been said, and when you know the public come into that business on the strength of that name, it is an impossibility to throw your shares on the market when you know that in all human probability the loss will fall on them, not on you."

A good name is more to be desired than great riches and surely the name of Baldwin is an honored name. But it is more than that men see the ligh: as Baldwin sees it. Many a fine name has been linked to the wrecks and businesses which have failed utterly dragging down, not the name but what gave his name for he has "got out" but the innocent buyers of shares who could not be expected to know what the head of the firm knew.

Baldwin's is high idealism in business. It is omething to have had a man who represents this in so marked a degree. Any country or any tradition which can bring a man up to the high standard and to this pinnacle of honor is a maker of men.

Baldwin thought of others, not of himself. Whether he took that course himself or losing for he had a name he prized above wealth.

Mr. Baldwin came of a noble family the traditions going back to sterling ancestry outside of business entirely, though business is often the best test of a man. He has been intimately associated with religion in his ancestors and he has been linked with the free and open country—two elements in his makeup which stand him well in his public and private life.

The fine thought running through the story of Mr. Baldwin is that at no time did he ever think he could be justified in selling his shares. The thought never entered his mind that he would be justified, and so he could not deceive himself.

Sentiment spans languages, oceans and continents leaps across years and attaches itself to events, places and to persons. This is the story of the two Greek brothers, Thomas Peters 'Athanasius Chiericoudes) living in Sellevelle and Antonios Chiericoudes, resident in Greece, twin brothers who yesterday marked the fifty-first anniversary of their birth. Human sentiment is worth more than fortunes, lands, and power, it is the best thing in the world.

AMBERLEY WILDBROOKS

by John Galsworthy

By this bright river bordering the mead,
Deflagged by reed and rush and willow tree,
Where dragonflies across the water lead
The winged rout of noonday revelry.
I stand ecstatic, silent, with a brain
Bemused as stand bemused the lawny kine,
And watch high summer sink and lift again
And feel its spirit stealing into mine.

Here when in winter-time the wild brooks brimmed
And with their salty flood annulled the earth,
Till with a lake the dreaming Down was rimmed,
And wandering water-beauty came to birth
With floating birds, and the green icy sky,
And far the sun so pale and pitying shone;
Here on this bank no less bemused stood I
Until the winter's mood and mine were one.

Man is a dreamer making for a day
Until the wildbrooks of oblivion brim;
'Tis well his waking self should slip away
And momentary dreaming, comfort him;
For so he learns, before the long sleep comes,
That in himself revolves the starry scheme,
In him the wildness is mute, the summer hums,
Just as it will be in the endless dream.

BRITISH BUSINESS MEN

BRITISH BUSINESS MEN have a reputation for conservative methods of deliberation of the most aggravating kind of "procastination" of the "Mañana" type, but the British business man has a fashion of getting there with both feet just the same. For a long time the British business man studied newspaper advertising, hence advertising over there grew gradually but surely until today he is sold 100 per cent. One instance may be given in the fact that the British Radio Manufacturers Association spent $5,000,000 in newspaper advertising and admit that this investment has a wonderful effect in retail business to the extent of $80,000,000. The British Radio Manufacturers Association represents the leading radio allied manufacturers of Great Britain and the five million dollar investment in newspaper advertising was made in 1930, during which period the manufacturers themselves spent 40 per cent. "Scientific market research," said an official, "reveals that this investment of $5,000,000 in newspaper advertising has yielded dividends in retail business to the extent of $80,000,000." Advertising pays for itself and returns big dividends, and yet though it has been proved time and time again that these facts apply to all lines of business you hear some business men kidding themselves with the theory, oh, it's all right for the other fellow but I can get along without it. Sure he can get along without it but he would be much better with it; especially when it pays for itself.

RUBBER CHECKS were stretched to the limit during holidays and some business men report the sickening sensation of bounding, bouncing bank checks, disfiguring their bank balances with red ink. Twas ever thus, do some one a favor and feel a righteous glow at being of service, such as cashing a cheque— then the glow turns into a cold chill when the check comes back, dishonored and unsung.

The passenger paid no attention.
"Fare, please!"
Still the passenger was oblivious.
"By the ejaculatory term, 'Fare-" said the conductor, "I imply no reference to the static condition of the complexion of the admirable blonde you observe in the contiguous seat, nor even to the quality of the service vouchsafed by this philanthropic corporation, I merely alludeto a manner perhaps lacking in delicacy, but in conciseness to the monetary obligation set up by your presence in the car, and suggest that you liquidate before.—Ottawa Citizen.

At this point the passenger emerged from his trance.

Jimmy is very hard on his boots and trousers and naturally his mother remembers this when she goes shopping. One day while out with a friend she was buying cloth for a pair of trousers for the boy, and ordered a good deal more than was necessary.

"Why do you buy so much?" asked the friend.

"Oh," responded the mother, "this is for the reserved seats."

IRVING

But, though Irving came a full thirty years to soon to leave a permanent record on the talking films, his art has received a more adequate literary presentation than has that of any of his predecessors. By the vivid descriptions in his recent biography, Gordon Craig has made it possible for those who never saw Irving on the stage to watch each slow, tremendous detail by which he built up the most famous and effective part—that of Matthias the innkeeper in "The Polish Jew"; to feel something of the terrific enthusiasm that Irving's entrance always provoked, and to understand the genius which enabled him to make his most curious mannerisms, especially that of his careful mispronunciation of the English tongue by which he hoped to proclaim a more melodious language than Shakespeare's. There is no actor today who dominates the English stage as Irving used to do, no equal to him in sheer histrionic genius. But on a long view this is title to be regretted. The actor's relatively great size is too prone to make the play merely a vehicle for the exploitation of his own personality, and consequently he tends to appear in inferior pieces which he can molded to his own devices. He is there fore a luxury than the theatre can afford only rarely. The state of the stage today, in which the average level of acting is high and that of the drama probably as nearly ideal as possible for the best interests of the drama.—Christian Science Monitor.

VOCATIONAL FARM FOR WESTERN ONTARIO

The proposal of Hon. T. L. Kennedy to establish vocational agricultural schools in border parts of the province has attracted wide attention. These schools are intended to give young people a two years' general education suitable to their environment just as the technical school gives a preparatory education to the boys and girls of the city who wish to follow a trade or profession.—Mail and Empire.

WINE TRADE

Sir Henry Drayton has wisely ruled that liquor control means control of wines as well as other liquids which cheer and make merry. Also the wine permit stays end helps to pile up revenue for the Province just like any other source. It is admitted that the more wine sold the better for the grape industry. But if memory serves aright the brewery was capable of giving that fine old barley crop while even the strong waters that come from the distillery were a bit of a help to the farmers' market. "Wine, men and song," are the traditional joys of the youth of our country, and the consumption of wine in the past takes of first sometimes accumulates the other two. Consequently if a halter is put on the first the other two participates

Ontario Man Speaks With Great Enthusiasm

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbetton, Ont., Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been working at it pick and shovel work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty stiff work on the back. Kidneys and bladder, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following results—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. Eat lots work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills is my maxim. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers:

"It does not seem to matter how many flowers I buy for this room; it never looks as though there were enough. They don't make any show," said a hostess.

"I can explain it," said the visitor; "indeed, I saw from the first that the room would be a bad background for flowers. The carpet is wrong. Although the centre is beige, an excellent color, there is too much solid rose pink and blue in the border. With color spread rather heavily in patches all over the floor like that, the light and delicate coloring in a bunch of flowers is more or less submerged.

"In deciding the color scheme of a room it is important to see that it is something that will not detract from the beauty of flowers but will form a good background for them. If a room is so arranged that the flowers dominate it, it is possible to give a sense of constant change and variety simply by arranging in distinctive vases skilfully chosen and well-placed blossoms.

"Flowers, both growing and as house decoration, are today being more and more appreciated. The great popularity of beige, pale yellow, stone, and grays for walls is an almost instinctive recognition that all of these are colors against which practically any colored flower looks lovely. The harmony of a pot of scarlet field poppies against a cream-colored wall will never be forgotten. Even white flowers contrast delightfully with this warm, deep creamy yellow.

"But with regards to carpets, how few people when choosing them have the claims of flowers in thought! As with walls, most plain-colored carpets are safe from this point of view. The Persian type of design, which is so intricate and small as to give a general all-over effect with no particular color predominating, always produces an unobtrusive sense of harmony.

"Too many ornaments in a room always detract from the effect of flowers, as do too great a number of pictures—for flowers should never be placed so that they cut across pictures.

"Flowers generally look delightful in a room with chairs covered in floral cretonnes. Such a room often gives the appearance of out-of-doors, the real blooms and the woven ones combining to impart a sense of the abundance and variety of a herbaceous border in an Old-World garden."

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Treated with kindness are the new little knitted caps that we hear so much about just now. Very suitable for teen or country is a cap of brightred knitted wool with a star pattern on top. It has a brim of black Persian lamb that is low at the neck nape.

A Tight Hug is given to the figure by some of the very new evening coats. We have in mind a coat of rose-colored velvet which is cut on the lines of a man's redingote, very tight and long with buttons marking the double-breasted effect. It has a collar of white fox.

A Good Imitation is used to make some of the new coats. Furs are so well simulated, especially broadtail, that they are seen in combination with the smartest women. And so we have a coat-dress made of ratteen imitation black broadtail that is glorified by the addition of a real white ermine cravat and silver buttons.

In the Net there is still a wealth of smartness. Again this Winter we are to have net evening frocks, but another thing is to be much favored. It is tarred net that looks like dull spangles. This material in black is used for an evening frock which has its flare skirt and tunic edged with black crepe de Chine.

Purse Personality is to be found in certain handbags that stand out from the rest. Such a bag is a model of black suede lined with amethyst satin. The mounting of the bag is in the form of a band of large amethyst links in the centre of which is a tiny watch. The amethyst mounting can be detached and worn as a novel watch bracelet.

The Neck is Raised to new importance with the demand for original necklaces. Worth offers a necklace made of fine dark blue beads offset by strass and oval sapphire stones. It is a triple strand model.

How to Get Relief From Catarrh.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness, or head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength); take this home and add to 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to make tastes pleasant and costs little. Every one who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

GRANT FLEMING, M.D. — ASSOCIATE SECRETARY.

HEALTH SERVICE of the CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION—THE STAFF OF LIFE

Bread is an important article of diet. It provides us with the cereals we require in a satisfactory and acceptable form. We consume it regularly and in considerable quantities. Bread because it is made from cereals is essentially a carbohydrate or energy food. It also contains proteins and minerals.

Bread is not a complete food. In order to secure a properly balanced diet, it is necessary that we eat a wide variety of foods, of which bread or cereals form an important part.

The wheat grain consists of a white inner part known as the endosperm which has a dark outer covering. The germ of the wheat is at one end of the grain and lies between the endosperm and the outer covering.

The entire grain is milled to produce whole-wheat bread is made. For graham flour, the outer layers of the covering are removed in milling, leaving the inner part and the endosperm; graham flour may contain the germ. White flour consists entirely of the endosperm; the covering and the germ are removed.

The covering is bran, a form of carbohydrate not digestible by man, but largely digestible by cattle and is a valuable food for them. In the human diet, it supplies bulk and roughage, which for some persons, assists in regular elimination. The germ is rich in vitamin B.

The practical advantage of white flour is that it has excellent keeping qualities, and so it can be distributed without loss as it does not become rancid after milling.

If the diet were to be restricted to a few articles, it would be preferable, from a dietetic point of view to use whole-wheat flour. The diet, however, should not be restricted. It should always include a wide variety of foods and if it does there is no reason why white bread should not be used if it is preferred. Where, for any reason, the diet cannot be widely varied, it is preferable to use the whole wheat. Whole-wheat and graham bread make a pleasant change in the average diet.

Whole-wheat flour is not a complete food. If it is used, it must be supplemented by other foods in order that the diet may contain all the essentials to proper nutrition.

Deficient as it is in many dietetic qualities, bread is a desirable food, because it provides energy food in a form which is pleasant to use and which is readily digested.

The most important point to be remembered is that a proper combination of foods is always required to furnish the balanced diet necessary for the maintenance of a condition of health.

FEMININE HEARTS IN JAMAICA ARE BEATING RAPIDLY

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 19—Feminine hearts in Jamaica including those of many young American women here for the winter season, are beating at a faster rate and there is much flurry in official, legislative and society circles over the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales on February 3. The heir to the throne is to spend one day in Jamaica on his way to Buenos Aires where he will open the British Empire Trade Exposition on March 14.

Aside from the brief formalities in connection with his reception here, the Prince has only one official engagement on his Jamaica programme. He will play a round of golf over the new 18-hole course of the Constant Spring Golf and Country Club to open the course. The Governor of Jamaica also has cabled an invitation to his Royal Highness to attend a British-American luncheon at the new Constant Spring Hotel just built by a group of Canadian and American business men.

Not a little of the flurry over the Prince's coming revolves about the question of who will be privileged to play the round of golf with him. Society leaders hope that this may be made a society affair with one of the season's debutantes — as the Prince's golfing partner. They fear that instead of a debutante the Prince may choose George Cummings the club pro. George is former open champion of Canada and was associated with the Toronto Golf Club for twenty-five years.

Publication of the Prince's itinerary showing only a single day's stop in Jamaica, caused much disappointment here and the Kingston Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution asking the Governor to communicate with the King expressing the hope of the people of the Island that the Prince's visit might be prolonged so that the Island might extend its him "a welcome commensurate with the devotion of the people to the Throne and the members of the Royal Family."

"NOT HEARERS ONLY"

(Minnie Leona Upton in Our Dumb Animals)

They call from the wood and the field,
From the cage and the kennel and the pen—
The worldless cry of the dumb!
Do the hearts of the people of men, and men;
And you hear—you can but hear!
And many a heart is stirred.
"Be not hearers only,"
But doers of the word!"

Harried from homes they love,
In hopeless misery
They are bound and prisoned fast,
And haled across the sea;
Pent in a narrow space
They face hard human eyes
Till gentle Mercy comes,
In Death's ungentle guise

This for the caged. But ah,
What of the "trained?" They go
From terror to terror, sped
By the dread that well they know!
And what of their daily fate,
Who laugh? And children, too!
Children, taught to enjoy
Menagerie and zoo!

And what of trapped? Oh, God,
What terror, and what pain,
That women may walk in beauty,
And men pile up more gain!
You hear—you can but hear!
And many a heart is stirred;
Oh, "Be not hearers only,
But doers of the word!"

GOLDEN DAWN

"Ain't you no wife, Lanny. Use one to mine."

"Just as good as any. Get it. Who takes care of you here?"

"My mother."

"Can she be trusted?".

"I've sent her to the country for a month," he evaded. "I'm sleeping here and eating down-town."

"God bless your home, Dan. Clear out —and watch for Stevie and let him in."

She ran to the kitchen, turned on the hot water and set an enameled skillet under the faucet; then returned, undressed the girl. In an adjoining bathroom she found clean towels and placed a cold one on her head. When she returned to the kitchen, the enameled skillet was sitting in the midst of a cloud of steam, so she knew it had been thoroughly disinfected; she filled it with warm water, carried it into the room and with the wet towel mopped the two holes in Nance's arm and examined the wound.

"Missed the bone", she decided. "Shed like a city pig, of course, piece of her dress probably carried into the wound."

In the medicine closet Lanny discovered an small bottle of iodine. So she doused the wound with it, wrapped a cold towel round the girl's shoulder and tucked her into bed.

In the living-room she found a brass box with cigarets in it, so she lit one and sat down beside Nance, who, not capable fingers on the girl's pulse. Evidently the count was satisfactory, for Lanny scowled at the girl and growled "You devil! And I scratched the gate," says she proudly. Well, if you aren't the little hell-bend girl You've got the nerve of a bloodtamer!"

She found a comb and brush on Dan McNamara's bureau and combed and rescued the dank, tragic black bob and when that was done she unbent long enough to implant a kiss on the white brow. "Poor lamb!" she murmured. "Nobody's poor lost girl-ing!"

The girl's eyelids flickered.

"Is that you Lanny? the girl murmured faintly

"Yes dearie. And you're all right, so don't worry. Nobody's going to take you back to San Quentin."

"The cops chased us at the boat landing Lanny. Are you sure we shook them off?"

"Of course you did—the big boobs! New Idaten dearie. I'm going to tell you something and don't let it disturb you. Take my word for it you're safe. Do you remember Dan McNamara, the chief of police?"

"Of course. Old Daniel's my boy friend."

"Well, you're in his bed. The cops were on your trail, dearie. They suspected you might come to my house, so Dan tipped me off they were coming and to beat it with you out to his house."

Terror shone in the girl's dirk eyes. "I'd never trust a cop that far," she said ed. "Oh Lanny, Lanny you've let him make a sucker out of you. She began to weep hysterically.

"If you dont stop that" Lanny promised, "I'll bat you over the head with this skillet," and she picked that homely utensil up and shook it at Nance. "Dan McNamara's your friend."

"Yes, and chief of police, too. Lanny I'll die if they take me back. They'll put me in the dungeon.—I'm afrid of the dark."

"Shut up. Youre not afraid of anything. You've got your little red badge of courage, you scaramouche! You afraid? My fool! Didn't you run the gain and even for that speed-boat under fire?"

"Machine-gun fire, at that" Dan McNamara supplemented, from the doorway. "They opened on her and the boat from the towers.' He came to the side of the bed and grinned down at the scared face. "I'm glad you worry, Nance. You're safe. I'm a cop, but I'm not without some sporting blood—your pint-sized arms length rousing cheers from old Dan'l McNamara."

His big hand strayed over her face.

"You're a good old hunk of cheese," the smirred him.

She turned her head toward Lanny. "Am I going to die, Lanny?" she asked

"No, unless I kill you—which I'm liable to do if you don't buck up and believe what I tell you. You've been shot but it doesn't amount to much. You'll be all right in a week or two."

"Then I'll be good, Lanny." The tired eyes closed, and while Lanny stood by, wondering what to say next, Nance sank into a sleep of profound exhaustion.

"Let her alone until Stevie comes," Dan suggested. "The wound has stopped bleeding. Come out into the living-room and if you're as crooked a sec'p as you ought to be you'll have a drink in the house and I've got to have a drink of it. Her middle-aged face was very serious.

"Dan, you and your house will stick around, Lanny and when you return they'll want to know where you've been. What are you going to tell them?"

"Tell them nothing. Let those two cops sit in their car in front of my house til night and watch it. What do I care? At least they'll keep burglars away. And then finally they do round me up and waltz me down to Central Station to be questioned, you'll do the questioning will you not?"

"Lanny," said Dan McNamara, "if you were a man and on the force I'd make you a detective sergeant. You're a bear-cat, that's what you are. But you smuggled that letter out of San Quentin for Sapphire Suzie!"

"Indeed! Well, let me tell you, Dan McNamara, that I'm a respectable woman and I never associate, if I know it, with ladies know to the police by such names."

"Maybe you didn't know it but you were Sapphire Suzie's pal in the car from the main gate at San Quentin down to Greenbrae. The guard remembers seeing her hanging around the gate as if she were waiting for somebody; later she got into a Ford coupe with a middle-aged lady, who looked as respectable as look amiss. look at the pass she had just surrendered to him and remembers that the name on the pass was yours. The pass entitled you to visit Nance Belden. Guards may not remember such Incidents until something happens. Then they're fast on their feet, Lanny."

"And who if you please is Sapphire Suzie?"

"She's did a stretch at San Quentin for blackmail. She was discharged a week before you visited Nance, and before Suzie left the Big House, Nance lited it with her to lend a helping hand. Apparently Nance didn't want to confide the minute details of her plan of escape to Suzie. Suzie's a swell looker but little bit dumb—she levied blackmail through the mail, understand, and signed her name, instead of hiring a smart shyster lawyer. So Nance decided to send her written instructions out by you, and Suzie agreed to pick you up pinch the letter and deliver it."

"Dan, I assure you I wasn't in any plot to effect a prison delivery I'd thought for an instant I was doing and thing wrong why, Nance told me to read her letter and if I disapproved of its contents, to destroy it. I didn't see any harm in that."

"You violated the rules of the prison and you could be punished for it by a term in the same prison."

"I'm a respectable woman—"

"Thre get you nowhere, I was a respectable chief of police once—And now look at me. If your part in this leaks out you can only be punished—and you cant be convicted unless you talk in your sleep. If my part in this should leak out I'll be punished and disgraced and thrown out of the best job I've ever had. However—I've raised his glass to her "mud in your eye Lanny."

"Happy days Dan, you gorgeous softy."

The door-bell rang. Dan opened it and Dr. Burt stepped in. He paused in amazement at sight of Lanny, glass in hand; she motioned him with it down the hall. "First door at the end Stevie. Youll find your patient there."

"That girl with the dissatisfied personality, Nance Belden, escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon, Chief;" Stephen Logan, and handed him a telegram. "Big story. First woman to escape from San Quentin." He grined severely upon Lanny. "What are you doing here, Lanny?"

"All I'll to pay, Stevie dear, and no pitch hot. That Belden girl is here with a bullet-hole in her shoulder; she's suffering from shock and submersion and chill and loss of blood and she's acted as a penguin's tail. I've given her stiff nezgin of Dan's terrible beome and a fortieth of a grain of strychnin and an alcohol rub. She's sleeping. Did you bring those hot-water bottles?"

"Yes", he said humbly, indicating a bag she carried. Lanny fell upon the bag and retired to the kitchen to fill the hot water battles and tuck them in alongside her chilled patient. "Lucky if she doesn't develop pneumonia, Stevie."

Dr. Burt stood looking down at the sleeping Nance "Out of the women's terms and straight into yours. You guessed she'd call on Lanny, eh? Dan, you're an old fox."

"No, Doc, I'm not. A fox has brains."

"He's a lamb, Stevie, just a big risn lamb."

INSTALLENT IX

While Lanny was assisting Dr. Burt in dressing Nance Belden's wound, Dan McNamara sat in his old by the living-room and read the story of her escape from San Quentin. It appeared

ARE YOU AN EXPECTANT MOTHER?

Mrs. MYRTLE McFARLAND
St. Catharines, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the tonic my mother had me take during expectancy. I was then suffering with consciousness backache and my health was failing. It did not take long for the 'Prescription' to strengthen my body and nerves and to relieve me of the backaches. From then on I had no further distress. Motherhood was easy and my baby fine and healthy. He has always been the picture of health. ASSISTANCE TO WHEAT GROWERS

Sydney, Australia Jan. 17. — State aid for wheatgrowers is under way in New South Wales, Victoria and Queens land.

A meeting of the New South Wales Primary Producers' Association today sent forward a resolution to the state government, calling attention to the serious plight of farmers and cattlebreeders. It demanded reduction of state expenses, taxation and transport charges, and urged suspension of the industrial wages awards and a remodelling of the tariff.

The New South Wales government announced that legislation would be shortly introduced fixing the minimum price of wheat for local consumption at about 90 cents a bushel. This move is made under the wheat advances act, which empowers New South Wales, Queensland and Victoria to fix an interstate transfer price.

Where is expected to fall in line without delay while Queensland went a little further. The Queensland Government announced measures to cover the sugar equalization act to enable the government to purchase all the fruit in the state. This was necessary if the farmers were to be relieved from financial ruin, it as declared.

ADOLESCENCE AND THE HOME

By Constance Cameron

A friend of mine says in the mother of a lovely little girl going back at school, had H2ed forward to the winter holidays with the keenest anticipation. Now, she looks back on them through eyes that somehow can not keep from filling with tears.

Janice came home. Oh yes, she came home all right, for two weeks during Christmas time. That is, she was at home to sleep and eat on a while she shared a meal with the family.

But Janice is young, lithe, popular and sweet. Daytime was only a preparatory void in which to recuperate from last night and make ready for tonight. She talked to Mother in a left-handed manner, the rest of her mind busy with what flower to wear with the coral velvet dress and which Mother ask sister Lucile if she might borrow her white fur jacket for the dance at the country club, etc.

"I've lost her entirely," the mother told me in hopeless tones on the third day of the girl's visit.... "She cares nothing for me, for any of us, in fact. Home is just a detour she makes until she can get back on the 'Party Highway.'"

I think many mothers made the same discovery during the holidays. Daughter was no longer interested in helping mother stir up cakes, to plan table decorations, to arrange flowers, in the living room or play three-handed bridge with Mother and Dad for even one evening.

But don't despair. It is only a phase of life wherein sons and daughters are realizing themselves as entities apart from friends and family. It is independence in the making and sometime it has to come out and take shape and "jell" for life. When that has happened, the thoughts of the young people will again come home. They will come with a rush, making mother and dad dizzy with delight. The "every man for himself" creed of the outer world will make them appreciate all the more than they can always be sure of HOME, sure of love and sympathy and warmth and unity.

It is a time when mothers particularly must be patient, never for a minute hinting that the young girl or boy has forsaken the home. Wise these mothers have toiled so patiently to establish through bib-and-tucker days.

Youth is a selfish time, but youth doesn't last. Be patient; be ready to co-operate when the youngsters discover home again. Do your part, knowing that it is only the period when the young birds are so busy trying their wings that, momentarily, they forget the nest.

CANNIFTON

The annual congregational meeting of the Canniffon United Church was held on Wednesday evening, January 14th in the Sunday School rooms. One delightful feature of the evening was the excellent dinner served by the Ladies' Aid to the splendid audience assembled. Following the dinner a short song service with prayer was conducted by the pastor. He then in a few words explained the business of the evening.

The following organizations then presented their reports as follows:

Mission Band, Miss Aletha Bird.

C.G.I.T., Miss Margaret Hamilton.

Trail Rangers, Clarence Bird.

Sunday School, Charles Mills.

League, Miles Benedict.

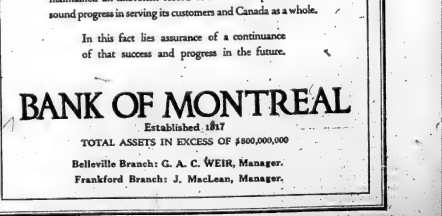
W.M. Society, Mrs. Empson.

Ladies' Aid, Mrs. Callery.

Trustee Board, Mr. Ed Brenton

The pastor then followed with a summary of his pastoral and circuit work, also giving a financial report of the missionary and maintenance funds which showed receipts up to date to be $1300.

Interspersed among the above reports were some splendid entertaining numbers: An instrumental piano solo by Mrs. H. Farnham; reading by Miles Benedict; duet by Mrs. Harry Pound and Mrs. C. Weasels; reading by Mrs. Merrick. These numbers added much to the pleasure of the evening. Likewise in all the reports given there was a note of optimism and cause for sincere thankfulness for the success of the past year. Also it was a matter for rejoicing when it was found that, through the splendid response of all members and loyal co-operation of the Ladies' Aid; the final payment of the repainting debt upon the S. S. rooms of $400 and interest was paid off. The church property is now free of debt.



The pastor in closing the meeting expressed his thanks and personal appreciation for the splendid showing of all the work of the organizations during the year and wished each department every success during the coming year hoping that the flourishing condition of all the organizations may be continued.

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT JAMAICA

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 19— The Prince of Wales, on his way to Buenos Aires to open the British Empire Trade Exposition, will arrive here on February 3 to open the new 18-hole course of the Constant Spring Golf and Country Club. There is much rivalry among local and visiting American golfers for the honor of playing the opening round with him.

The recent loss been laid out by Stanley Thompson, designer of famous American and Canadian golf courses including that of the Jasper Park Lodge in the Canadian Rockies.

He claims that it will be one of the finest in the semi-tropics, rivaling the famous Inter-Ocean at Bermuda. The club is affiliated with the new Constant Spring Hotel just built by a group of Canadian and American business men. Their avowed purpose is to make Constant Spring a parallel to which all good golfers will turn when the weather up north gets on their nerves. To this end regular cup tournament fixtures are being planned and golfing tours by airplane between Constant Spring, Havana and the Florida resorts are also contemplated.

Germany's natural supply of helium is so limited, German scientists say, that it would take 400 years to fill the Graf Zeppelin with helium from Germany's four known deposits.

PRESS COMMENDS ATTITUDE OF PRIME MINISTER IN REGARD TO SELF-GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA

Nationalists Well Satisfied With Achievements of the Conference

FEW EXCEPTIONS

Hon. Ramsay MacDonald is Praised for Important Steps

London, Eng., (CP)—The policy of the British Government on self-government for India, pronounced by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald as he closed the Indian round table conference yesterday, received wide commendation in the newspapers today. Liberal, Labor and Conservative organs alike, with only scattered exceptions, praised the Prime Minister for his most careful review of the highly important steps that may be undertaken.

Further consultations will be opened in India and any section of the population that desires to participate, will be allowed to do so

Reports from India today indicated that the Nationals were still unwilling to throw in their lot with the majority of other parties who had come to London and had expressed themselves as well satisfied with the large measure of progress achieved.

SANITARY SEWER WILL BE BUILT TO CONNECT WITH NEW FAIR GROUNDS

Milk Pasteurization Bylaw is Still Under Fire in Council

An announcement was made by Mayor George A. Reid at the annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society, which was fulfilled by him and his colleagues in council last night when they submitted a by-law for the construction of a sanitary sewer on West Bridge street from Yeomans St., to 300 feet west of Sidney street under the local improvement act. This sewer will run past the fair grounds and will relieve the Fair Board of a considerable expenditure, but will allow them to make improvements within the grounds as to sanitary conditions, which are badly needed. This matter has been a bone of contention for some years and considering the period of depression and the number out of work, the council considered it good business to pass the by-law and the work will be proceeded with, immediately. The directors of the Fair Board it is understood will tap the sewer at the West Bridge Street entrance and lay their pipes about the grounds.

This was the only business of importance to come before the council last night, although several matters were discussed in committee at length and action will be taken in the near future. All the recommendations which were passed at the Thursday night committee meeting were confirmed by the council, and all outstanding accounts were paid. There were no new recommendations or motions introduced. The by-law respecting the pasteurization of milk is being prepared by the city solicitor and will be introduced into council in the near future. It is expected this by-law will come in to effect by the first of June.

MOTOR ACCIDENT ON COLEMAN ST.

Parties Fail to Reach Settlement Following Auto Crash

An automobile accident which might have resulted seriously, occurred on Coleman Street shortly before midnight last night, two cars being involved, with one having been considerably damaged. The accident was due to the slippery condition of the pavement, the driver of one of the cars going across the sidewalk and striking a telephone pole in an effort to avoid striking the other car. Constable Evans investigated the accident but to date neither of the parties has come to a settlement respecting the damages.

William McKenzie, 166 Ontario St., Sarnia, Ontario, was backing his car from the west to the east side of Coleman street, when Fred R. Wardle, 82 West Moira Street was driving north on the same thoroughfare. When Wardle saw the car backing across the street and not being able to avoid striking the same he continued on his course, pulled left across the west sidewalk missing one telephone pole but striking another breaking the left front wheel and the wind guard. Wardle took this change to avoid a serious accident. Had he continued on his course the MacKenzie car would have been struck broadside. Constable Evans stated in report that Wardle could not have stopped in time and that the street was slippery.

DISCUSS RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH

Toronto, Jan. 20—The protest by 68 university professors against the Toronto Police Commission's alleged infringement of the right of free speech and assembly has certainly started something.

Today comes an announcement by Rev. Canon Cody, chairman of the Toronto University Board of Directors, that the governors may take up the question at their meeting on Thursday, he said nothing further to add. At the same time the undergraduate paper, "The Varsity" announces of straw vote among the students to determine their opinions on the issue. Much independent public comment has been aroused.

GIGANTIC EROSION CHANGES PART OF NIAGARA FALLS

Over the weekend the straight, classic lines of that part of Niagara Falls which flows over United States territory, was changed, when part of the brink crumbled away and sent thousands of tons of rock tumbling to the bottom of the falls. The appearance of the falls is completely altered by this rock-slide, which has caused a cleft a hundred feet wide and fifty feet deep in the brink of the precipice. Never in the history of the white man has there been such a large fall of rock and it is the first real change in contour for hundreds of years.

CLEAR THINKING, THRIFT, HARD WORK AND SIMPLE LIVING ARE PRINCIPLES FOR NEW PROSPERITY

E. V. Illsey Was Speaker at Weekly Meeting of Local Y's Men

Members of the Belleville Y's Men's Club of this city heard a splendid address last night from Mr. E. V. Illsey, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce on "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Mr. Illsey said he was prompted to his subject by the query of a young man who, questioned him as to the possible return of prosperity for 1931. "As young business men, you may wish to know the whys and the wherefores of this present condition of business, who and what has brought about the depression, could it have been prevented and must it recur" said Mr. Illsey. He went on to point out that the possible return to the former conditions rests entirely with the individual, and that only through personal sacrifice, hard work and integrity will the depression disappear. The speaker urged his listeners to take the Great Architect of the Universe into all plans, business affairs and social contacts.

Mr. Illsey laid the blame for the depression at the door of the sensationalism of the press, the love of luxury, underwriting and capital inflation, and mergers and combines. "We chase rainbows to find satisfaction for our minds and rather than sit down and think things through for ourselves, we accept the ready-made word of others. We are fearful of being conspicuous by treading the independent road.

"Rich and poor, farmer and manufacturer, capitalist and laborer and unionist were deceived into believing that dollars were the power of life. One does not need to remind you of the recent orgy of speculation both in securities and commodities."

Investment Stocks

Mr. Illsey flailed the stock and bond salesman who went about the country describing the virtues into buying stocks and bonds that were greatly inflated beyond the earning power. He deplored the fact that worship was largely forgotten on Sunday when one was devoted in a large measure to

STRATFORD NAME NEW INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER

L. J. Salter Will Receive Salary of $4,000 Plus Travelling and Office Expenses

Stratford Ont., Jan. 20—L. J. Salter has been employed as industrial commissioner for the city of Stratford for a period of one year at a salary of $4,000. Mr. Salter was a successful bank manager until he went to France with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in 1913. On his return he became secretary treasurer and second in command of the McLagan Furniture Company here, a position which he is retaining to take over the industrial Commissionership.

The above is the result of a meeting of the Committee of the Whole recently when the entire matter of the appointment of an Industrial Commissioner was threshed out and the motion, made by Ald. W. E. Goodrim passed unanimously, no member of the Council opposing the move. The recommendation to the Council that Mr. Salter be given the appointment comes as a result of a recommendation from the Board of Trade to the 1930 Council which was later passed on to the 1931 City Council. The Board of Trade last year heartily recommended the appointment of a Commissioner and they felt that it was the only way Stratford could get in on the ground floor in respect to having new industries settle in Stratford.

TAKES COURSE AT KEMPTVILLE SCHOOL

CABINET TACKLE ELECTORAL REFORM

London, Eng., Jan. 20—(Canadian Press Cable)—Parliament reassembled today without ceremony and in the mood for battle. The fighting is most likely to turn on: (1) The trades disputes bill, (2) Electoral reform and the alternative vote, 3) Unemployment. Coupled with these is the ever present possibility of conflict between the house of Lords and the government. The trades disputes bill for dissolution is not far off, the government is determined to prevent such an eventuality. In any case a stiff battle is assured.

FIVE NOMINATED FOR REEVESHIP IN HUNGERFORD

George E. Jordan and Thomas Mouck Will Likely be Opponents

Tweed, Jan. 20 (Special) —At the nominations yesterday held here for the township of Hungerford to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of George H. Stokes, the reeve, on his appointment as sheriff of the county of Hastings, and of George E. Jordan, deputy Reeve, who is likely to contest the reeveship, the following names were proposed.

For the reeveship—John L. Nowlan, Fred Blakely, George E. Jordan, Dalton Clarke, Thomas H. Mouck.

For the deputy reeveship—T. H Mouck, Dennis Fleming, George E. Jordan, Dalton Clarke and Fred Blakely.

The nominees have until tonight at nine o'clock to determine whether to enter the field or not.

Today it would look as if there will be contests for both posts, and that George E. Jordan, who has been deputy and Thomas H. Mouck will be rivals for the reeveship and that Dalton Clarke and D. Fleming will run for the deputy's office.

At the nomination meeting there were about thirty or forty ratepayers of the township in attendance.

UNITED STATES LIQUOR SUPPLY IS NOT CUT OFF

Washington, D.C., Jan. 20—Returns by the Canadian government of clearances for cargoes of liquor bound for the United States has not resulted in cutting off the supplies of Canadian liquor to this country, according to the report of President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement. The situation at Detroit has been improved however, it was stated, if only to change the locus of smuggling.

St. Pierre de Miquelon has been growing rapidly in importance as an exporting base for both Canada and France.

A survey of Indian children in 46 countries of 61 shows showed that nine out of ten of the children were in school.

YOUNGSTER AFTER SEVERAL MONTHS IN HOSPITAL IS NOW RECOVERED

After lying in the hospital here for several months and in the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto, for a long time seven-year old Margaret Boules, daughter of Mrs. Isabel Boules of Point Anne, is now completely better and has been brought home. Margaret was severely burned on November 1st., 1929, when her clothes caught on fire from burning coal oil, the severely burned little hope was held out for her recovery.

The Rlwanis Club took an interest in the affair and paid every cent of expenses for the little girl's many operations and hospital bills. She was operated upon several times in order to graft skin upon the terribly burned parts. One of the most famous specialists in the United States operated upon her and never charged one cent for his services although he had just finished charging a woman from Toronto a mere $4,000 for performing a similar operation.

Margaret's hurts are now all healed. She is as happy as any other child, due to the generosity of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, the skilled surgery of United Church Deaconess Hospital specialists and in time, it is hoped, will be robs to forget her terrible experience.

MAKING WHOOPEE

Principles of Character Must Remain Dominant Force in Life

"Man Power vs. Horse Power" was the title of an interesting address delivered Monday afternoon before Belleville Rotary Club by Dr. W. H. Sedgewick, pastor of Metropolitan Church, Toronto. Kipling's "Mcandrew's Hymn" formed the basis of the address which was thought awakening as well as entertaining, and the ruminations of the old Scot deep sea engineer at the amazing changes following the introduction of steam to ocean packets when the wonder of ten pounds of steam gave way before the amazing head of 150 pounds carried in the demand for one hundred per hour. This is a machine age and an age of speed and no previous civilization had anything which even approached it present conditions, said Dr. Sedgwick, who went on to illustrate his subject by pertinent facts relating to the history of today. Ancient civilization was based on agriculture and handicraft, while science and machinery dominate the present age. Human power, supplemented by meagre animal power sufficed for ancient civilization, and the Romans with of speedy transportation was the galley manned by slaves chained to their oars. Civilization today is concerned chiefly with cheap mechanical power and speed and more speed.

When the nineteenth century began the horse was the speediest form of locomotion and speed possibilities have increased ten-fold during the past ten decades.

One of the most brilliant of the season's social functions took place last evening when officers and members of the Belleville Council Knights of Columbus entertained at their annual At Home in St. Michael's Academy. This was the first time an affair of this nature had taken place in the new Academy and the stately auditorium was a charming setting for the dance. Shields bearing the insignia of the K. of C. decorated the walls and the flowerlike gowns of the women were seen to advantage in the brilliance of the beautiful chandeliers.

The guests who included many from out of town numbered about two hundred and fifty. They were received by several of the patronesses of the evening. They were Mrs. P. Donavon who wore a gown of black lace; Mrs. J. E. Butler who wore apricot satin crepe; Mrs. J. F. Dolan whose gown was of orchid satin and lace with rhinestone trimmings; Mrs. W. N. picnics, sports and reading of sensational Sunday newspapers.

He observed that man must return to the old principle of earning his living by the sweat of his brow, business men must give up pleasures to which they have been accustomed and superfluous business executives must be cut off and told to find other employment.

Thrift and wholesome family simplicity of living must be combined, it the social fabric is to be sustained. Why were the Ten Commandments given to us?—for the physical, moral and spiritual salvation of mankind—no other reason whatever. The old laws still govern, they are unchanging and that being true, what of the new year? The young man who wants to make good, must get back to clear thinking and the sound and practical education of thrift, we must practice integrity and have faith in ourselves, our city, our country and our God.

In conclusion Mr. Illsley said that the future rests largely in our own hands to make or to mar it. "How soon we shall throw off depression and recover prosperity lies pretty much in our own hands. Make sure your course is charted and make your way, there is no royal road."

President Elmer Wallace was in the chair last night. Alfred Evans gave two solos accompanied by Alex. Gordon. The speaker was introduced by Sam Curry while the thanks of the club to Mr. Illsey was conveyed by Walter Harden. Y's Men are laying plans for the annual ladies' night which will take place on February 16th.

LEISURE IS NOT USED LEISURELY

illustrated by the speaker in pointing out that the battle of New Orleans in 1812 was fought for two weeks after peace had been declared in London, because it took that length of time news to reach America. Now a man can pay a Toronto debt in London, England, at two o'clock in the afternoon and have it paid in Toronto the same day at ten o'clock in the morning. Such is one phase of the speed age. The business man of today, the professional man, the physician is affected by happenings of yesterday and today in all parts of the globe.

Old Family Doctor

Consider the old Family Doctor, said the speaker, who used to sit down and visit and was almost one of the family. Contrast him to the speedy young medical specialist of today who has no time to visit and has every minute of his time arranged days in advance by appointment—no time to visit there and become acquainted, an age of specialization, the machine age and age of speed, fast trains, fast motors and the rapid growth of cities.

A feature of the age is the fact that many doors have been opened to the women, almost as many as to the men—as a matter of fact the women are running the men, as the man said when asked where he met his wife, he didn't meet her she overtook him.

After quoting interesting incidents of the speed age and comparisons with the past Dr. Sedgewick questioned if the safeguarding of personality keeps pace with the speed age. If the higher things of life held the same position in the hearts of men as many miles an hour as they did at twelve miles.

Whither Bound?

Where are we going.

What are we going to do when we get there?

Are we going uphill or downhill?

The important question in the opinion of the speaker was whether the tendency of the age was toward more kindness, justice, more compassion, or was there danger of becoming hardened, cantankerous, and mechanized. There is a danger that mankind will lose part of the worthwhile spiritual values in a machine-made civilization. There is a danger that the machine may be given more importance than the man.

Making Whoopee.

Men work all day at high speed and are keen bordering on the edge of nervous exhaustion, living on their nerves, and they seek relaxation nobly, feverishly and in manifold "whoopee", which being translated means "raising cain." In an age when machines make for more leisure time for the man leisure time is not taken leisurely. Men "step on it" all day and find it difficult to settle down at night, coffee, tobacco, booze, a wild time generally results. Jazz music the reaction to the nervous age. The "gogetter" type of man must get so many [illegible] away he goes at high speed all day long; at night he cannot rest normally, so steps the same mad measure to jazz music.

Man or Machine?

Question is, shall man control the machine or shall the machine control the man. Should the machine be scrapped or the man? Control is needed, character control, lest the speed age run away with everything worth while. This is the motor age as contrasted with the slower more methodical horse and buggy age and there is added strain in consequence. Character must be developed to contend with conditions. Youth must be implanted with inherent principles of character and life adequate to the conditions they will face in the world they will help to make up. Institutions must be maintained that are the drill grounds and seed beds of character, the home, the school, the church. It is inconceivable that the home may degenerate into a mere lodging house and eating house, schools mere factories turning out boys to feed machines, churches degenerate into places of comfort for souls. Can youth become as sons of God under such conditions?

Character and Creed.

Teach the youth respect for the laws of character, said the speaker, he runs respect he has for the laws of mechanics, science. Morals and religion should not be mere guess work, they should have the same respect as science and mechanics which are exact and must not be trifled with.

Present day conditions are not encouraging, lawlessness and careless moral values seem to be increasing to an alarming degree. The laws of honest purity, morality should be kept as inviolate as the law of gravitation, and physics. Laws of character just as important as mechanical laws, to the end that truth, honesty, justice, charity shall live and flourish, and transgression there is to be damned physically and spiritually just as surely as disaster attends those who do not obey the laws of chemistry and mechanics.

Life Insurance Day - Wednesday Jan. 21st

F. W. HOBSON, TORONTO

who addressed a joint meeting of Kiwanians and members of the Belleville Life Insurance Underwriters at the New Queen's Hotel on the subject "The Investment Value of Life Insurance."

F. W. HOBSON IS HEARD TODAY BY KIWANIS CLUB

Explains That Insurance as an Investment is Best in the Long Run

Speaking on "The Life Insurance Investment", Mr. F. W. Hobson of the head office of one of Canada's largest insurance houses delivered an interesting address to the members of Belleville Kiwanis Club today. He said:

In the few remarks that I have to make, it would seem necessary that some explanation be given to you of the so-called "Life Insurance Day". At the present time, with Mother's Day Father's Day, flower days, Rat weeks, Brush weeks, Onions weeks, Chocolate weeks, it does seem to me that this continent is "done to death" with weeks and days for the purpose of urging the sale of merchandise.

It is quite probable that, in this Dominion of Canada particularly, it is not a matter with most of us of having some funds to invest so much as it is a matter of picking out a wise investment where in our funds will not shrink or possibly be lost altogether.

There is a science to the investing of money, and a long and careful business training is required before one is capable of becoming a competent investor, and even then, losses are inevitably bound to happen.

First Standard Security

Now, Mr. Chairman, what are the standards by which we should grade an investment? It seems to me that the first standard set up should be that of security. It is a common expression of the investment market that the interest return is the gauge of the security, and this is why the highest class government bonds find a ready market at a reasonably low rate of interest; whereas if requires a glittering rate of interest to induce us to put our money into some more or less unknown industry.

Guarantee Protection

The next heading upon which I would gauge investments is guarantee of the completion of our investment plan. Right for a moment and consider the case with which one creates a life insurance estate - through the channel of a self-completing investment or endowment, plan. One sets aside annually approximately 4 per cent. of the capital and has a self-completing plan absolutely guaranteed if he lives to complete the years of payment required, and equally guaranteed should death intervene. And in view of the fact that the completion date of such a plan is well within the maximum earning years of a man, he may rest assured that old-age or sick of earning power will not, in the ordinary way, cut off the completion of his scheme... And death can not cut off this completion. And with the introduction into life insurance of disability benefits, the loss of earning power through this channel does not affect completion of the investment, but turns it into what establishes a fund for his maintenance throughout the period of disability without affecting the completion of the investment at its maturity either at the end of the endowment time or by prior death, I believe this is so obvious that it needs no enlargement, and I believe you will agree with me that this is a guaranteed self-completing investment plan not equalled in any other market.

Mr. Chairman, it seems to me life insurance has another great investment advantage—the function a life insurance company performs in connection with its contracts which very greatly enhances their value as an investment medium, and I refer to the trusteeship that is offered by life insurance companies on all policies, regardless of the type of contract issued.

One having a matured endowment policy need not draw the cash, but may elect to have all the proceeds converted into a life income for himself and his wife. And as I think of a man who might retire at age 65 having in mind the things he would like to do for his life partner, I can see no happier solution for his investment programme than the knowledge that a regular guaranteed annuity would come to the creator, or the assured and his life partner, or beneficiary, and that if either one was to die, the income would continue to the other; and should both die the income would go on to the next of kin for a given number of years, say 10, 15, or 20. Is this possible in any other investment? Or, is there any other investment which upon its maturity or upon the death of the buyer can be made to pay $2,000 or $3,000 as an adjustment fund, an interest income for a number of years, and division of the principal at the end of that time; or, is there any other fund that a father can create, by way of investment, for his family by which he could say, "that in the event of my death and until my children are twenty-five years of age, I want the interest upon this investment added to the principal and the whole compounded year by year? If you think there is, try to get compound interest in principal from a bond company. Yet this is only one feature of a life insurance fund. In fact, while I am in the subject may I say that the life insurance company offers the only type of investment which has compounding privileges.

INSURANCE DAY WAS CELEBRATED BY KIWANIANS

A. B. Collins Presided —Prepare for Carnival —Visitors Welcomed

Over entire Canada, residents are this week observing Thrift and each day of the week is set aside for some particular occupation. Today is Insurance Day, and it was marked most fittingly at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Queens Hotel the Club being hosts to the Life Underwriters' Association for this district Over 60 Kiwanians and Life Underwriters met around the festive board with A. B. Collins, vice-president, in the chair, owing to the absence of George Cole, the president, through illness received in a motor car accident last week.

Seated at the head table were Harold Holton, president of the Life Underwriters' Association, and Fred V. Hobson, the speaker of the day.

Ross Hunter presided at the piano and Russell Wotten led the community singing with P. C. MacLaurin leading the several Tunes. The meeting was snappy and some important announcements were made in which the Kiwanis Club was interested. Ernie Fahey announced a meeting of the Carnival Committee tonight at the Y.M.C.A. to start plans for the held ing of the ice carnival some time in February. Russell Wotten told the Club that Ladies' Night would be held next Tuesday night and it would behoove all members with their wives and sweethearts to be in attendance for it would be worth while.

The Rotary Club are bringing to the city the Hart House Quartette and J. O' Herity passed the information along to the meeting. Harold Holton in assuming the gavel for the remainder of the meeting thanked the Kiwanis Club for the privilege and expressed regrets of the inability of President George Cole and Mayor Reid to be present.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Harry Hunt, charter member of Calgary Kiwanis Club, and branch manager of the insurance company to which Mr. Hobson is connected.

Also a Belleville old boy, being the son of Mrs. Belle Hunt of this city, Mr. Hunt expressed his pleasure in being honored in introducing the speaker of the day and stated he had been associated with Mr. Hobson for the past 14 years. Mr. Hobson is a native of Canada, District Governor and a Vice President of International, also past president of the Life Underwriters' Association, besides being a hale fellow well met. "He knows the problems of life insurance", said the speaker, and "will deliver a timely message on the subject".

A vote of thanks was expressed at the conclusion of the address by M. C. Burgess.

PRAYER

Lord, I am such a graceless fellow that my prayer
Will very likely vanish in thin air;
But should it pierce the heavens and reach Thee,
I pray Thee, bend Thine ear and harken unto me.

Lord, Thou hast filled my days with this and that—
With friends, acquaintances, and foes, and idle chat—
With joy and sorrow, brave deeds and cowardice,
With love and hate, wild laughter and hot tears.

With work and weariness....and still more work...
Far be it from me, Lord, to ask that I may shirk;
But this I ask Thee, Lord, and nothing less,
Let this day be a day of perfect

Radio Fans Corner

Reception was rocky last night, fading occasionally but the chief draw back that we noticed was the ever present noise and that was no fun believe me. Sounded mighty like an electrical machine, one of the brand that Belleville specializes in and breaks out now and then to the sorrow of the fans.

Now if the reception will behave itself to-night we should have a good time because the programs are just suited to the king's taste. The Rex Cole Mountaineers claim our attention first from WEAF at 5.45 and we follow up at 6.05 with the Breck and Gold Room orchestra.

The Plantation program at 8 brings us Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit. Jack Shilkret is the director of the orchestra. The Frolic at 8.30 with Coon-Sinders orchestra means plenty to the fans that know this program and they need no urging to tune in.

From 9.30 on WEAF lines them up fast and furious starting with the Bakers bringing in the Singing Violins and the male trio. B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra swings on the air at ten and Duke Ellington goes him one better at 11. Vincent Lopez at 11.30 and Jack Albin at midnight.

WJZ sets us to tune in at 8 to Wayne King and his orchestra which is being featured during this program. Ruth Etting is the guest artist this week on the Household program at 9. Detroit will receive the Salute to-night at 10 from this station and the Cuckoo Lay at 10.30 with Frank Knight lending the pack it's going to be a great night to park beside the old set isn't it fans? Phil Spitalny greets us at midnight.

LANDMARKS BECOME PARK SPACE SITE

Belle Theatre Will Have Free Parking Space for 100 Cars

Two landmarks of Pinnacle St. will soon disappear. Such was the announcement of Manager G. M. Forhan of the Belle Theatre today when he stated that a free parking space for one hundred motorcars of patrons of the theatre will be laid out on their site. To make way for this the Rutlan blacksmith shop and a double frame house just to the rear and east of the Belle Theatre will be removed, demolition to begin about the first day of March.

This property has been owned by the owners of the Belle Theatre for some time and with the removal of the buildings the "house" will be accessible from two streets.

The buildings to be taken down are among the oldest in Belleville. Steadily the old Pinnacle Street that was is disappearing, no longer only in the memory and in photographs. The past few years have made remarkable changes in the appearance of this street. With the development of the city the transformation goes steadily forward.

PICTON POULTRY SHOW IS OPEN

Prince Edward County Was Swept by Blizzard Yesterday

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 20—The Poultry Show opened in Picton Armouries on Tuesday with a splendid entry of birds representing various parts of the province.

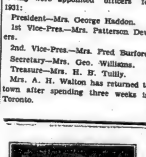
It is the seventeenth annual exhibition of the Prince Edward Co. Poultry Association and promises to be one of the best yet. It continues Wednesday and Thursday.

In addition to the poultry there are other attractive exhibits including Twenty-one motor cars representing the various makes; an exhibit by Picton public school which includes manual training, drawing, sewing, etc.

As each adult goes into the Armouries he is given a surprise grab bag while the children each receive a chocolate bar.

In connection with Poultry show days Picton merchants put on 'Dollar Days' and these attract large crowds to town and then to the Poultry Show.

There was a heavy fall of snow on Monday which turned into a blizzard for some hours. The roads were filled in some districts but cars are still running. So far this year there has not been a day that cars could not get about. It is usual to have blocked roads for a day or two each year.



Mrs. W. F. Johnston and Miss Bessie Johnston of Toronto are guests of Mrs. Alex. Carr, Grove Street.

BELLEVILLE AND TRENTON TEAMS IN GRUELLING THIRTY MINUTE OVERTIME STRUGGLE LAST NIGHT

Teams Were Still Tied After 90 Minutes of Fast Hockey

GOALIES IN FORM

Alex Weir Scored Lone Goal for Belleville—Anderson, Trenton Marksman

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 20—Ninety minutes of breath-taking hockey!

Seventy-five minutes without a goal being scored!

This was the brand of hockey served up to the cash customers here last evening when the Belleville and Trenton Intermediates clashed in an O.H.A. fixture that went thirty minutes overtime to a one goal deadlock. From start to finish the game was featured by close, hard checking and back-checking. Neither team had any monopoly on the rushes and bruises, and although the play was not unduly rough, eight penalties, divided on a fifty-fifty basis, were served out by the referee.

Belleville showed a well balanced, smooth working machine and it would be most unjust to the other members of that machine to designate any particular player as showing superiority on the night's play, and this goes for the subs as well as the regulars.

F. Bohan, who is the junior O.H.A. centre, was in the line for the Black and White, and on the evening's play shared honors with Blakely. These two players were a constant source of worry to the Belleville forwards. Bowen, in the nets for Trenton, put up a wonderful game. His performance was equalled only by Blakely of Buzzard who was between the sticks for the Maroon and Gold. Both these men kept their citadels intact at times when it appeared that nothing could keep the enemy sharpshooters from banging the button.

But a word about the play:

Bowen Marvellous

H. Canning grabbed the puck from the face-off and bore down for the Black and White nets. He was stopped by the defence man who passed out to Blakely who was driven into the corner by Green. The Maroon and Gold forwards came down three abreast only to have their threat followed by F. Pilton who turned the disc through the whole Belleville team only to shoot wide of the goal. Bowen was forced to slide clear across the goal mouth in order to save on Burke's shot. Green was penalized and Belleville stayed on the defensive. Mr. Green answered his return to the play by grabbing a loose puck from Rosenplot and, slipping down the right cushions, brought Bowen to his knees with a shot that bounced off his pads into the corner. Pointer drove Rosenplot into the corner whefe he let the puck fly. Bukard made a beautiful save when Schensel sent in a hot one from a pass by Parnell and Blakely contemplated the rebound. For the next few minutes play held centre ice, the Canning brothers finally breaking away only to find Bowen an impassable. F. Pilton was penalized for dumping Canning and Belleville took advantage of the one man superiority to rain shots on Goalie Bowen from all directions. How he managed to keep them all out not even he could tell. The locals finally cleared and with a shot just clear-high Anderson bulged the netting behind Goalie Bukard.

Weir Evened Count

Weir evened the count when he slipped one in on Bowen from a scrimmage near the nets.

While the first period was fast, the speed set by the two teams at the beginning of the second stanza was even faster. Canning came within an ace of putting his team-mates in the lead when he missed the corner of the net by inches. With F. Pilton on the penalty bench Canning missed a second opportunity of breaking the deadlock when he made a pass out in front of the goal by his brother, H. Canning. Bukard had to be good to save on Pilton's shot which came to him as a wicked angle. Belleville appeared to be standing the gruelling pace better than Trenton and during the latter half of the period Bowen was given a hot time. The session ended with Weir taking a rest on the penalty bench for interference. Anderson missed a golden opportunity at the beginning of the third stanza. Full Trenton had a pass play behind the own nets and Bohan rushed in grabbing the disc only to shoot high. Burke missed a wide open goal when Bowen was caught off his guard a moment later. The killing pace was telling on both teams and play became ragged around the edges. The sixty minutes ended with the teams both deadlocked at 1 to 1 and overtime necessary.

Team Play Forgotten

Ten minutes failed to decide the issue. Twenty minutes brought no better answer. The boys were tired; their tempers were not of the best and things began to nip. Team play was forgotten and individual rushes that were halted at the defence or herded into the corners became the order of the night. Passes were overskated and opportunities to score were missed by all alike. They were both big weary and arm weary. Neither team could garner that one lone goal that meant a win. Thirty minutes of overtime play and nothing decided other than these two evenly matched teams must fight it out all over again.

The line ups:

Belleville—Goal, Bukard; defense, Green, Pointer; centre, H. Canning; wings, J. Canning, Buck; subs, Weir, Baker, Hull.

Trenton—Goal, Bowen; defense F. Pilion, G. Pilion; centre, Blakely; wings, Parnell, Anderson; subs, Bohan, Schensel Rosenplot.

Referee—H. Jacobi.

THE OLD ARMCHAIR HIS ONLY AMBITION

But Wife Says "No!"

Wilkinson was a half-sick man—no energy—no desire to work—no ambition. But his wife was on the job—she told him the secret of how to attain that youthful feeling that makes life a joyous adventure. But let him tell the story.

"I owe you and Kruschen an apology. I used to smile at the clever ads. of Kruschen Salts, and have often remarked that it was no better than Epsom Salt, being of rather heavy build, I used to get up in the morning with not the least appetite for work, wishing all the time that I could just sit in an armchair and sleep—but my wife one day sent me Kruschen Salts, and persuaded me to try it. The effect was a revelation. I never miss it, and am a real live man, mentally and physically—keen all day and every day. I have been taking it now for about 3 months, and must confess that had it not been for Kruschen I do not know how I should have got through the worry and drive of business. I owe it all to "the little daily dose."

—L. Wilkinson.

If you have never tried this perfect blend of six natural salts that keep liver, bowels and kidneys in superb healthy activity, you've got the surprise of your life coming.

Kruschen is different from all other salts. It brings to half-sick, worn-out men and women that glorious feeling of joyous health—and keeps them feeling that way.

A quarter of a teaspoonful in hot water every morning keeps you free from constipation, biliousness, headaches, over-acidity, rheumatism and eye troubles. Millions the world over take it every morning to keep themselves in superb condition.

It's the little daily dose that does it. Kruschen is obtainable at all druggists. Drug Stores at 43c. and 75c. per bottle.

On The Sport Trail

It is a beautiful day and it will be a swell night to sit through a hockey match and one of the best games of the season should be seen at the local Arena tonight. The Cubs will tie into Queen's juniors in what might prove a crucial game. The Tricolor comes here with an unblemished record and Belleville fans will no stay in the running, if they can only play back to the form they displayed against the Cadets it will be all right and if they have assumed that spirit of please knock the chip off the shoulder it will be just too bad and they will be back where much is known of the Tricolor only that the team is big and fast. They defeated R.M.C. and Gananoque in their quest for section honors but on the dope Belleville should win for the Cubs gave the Cadets an artistic lacing. The prizes have been donated and should attract a big crowd. The same team that performed against the Cadets will take the ice under Stan Burgoyne's instruction tonight.

The intermediates are to be highly commended in playing their thirty minutes overtime struggle in Trenton last night. The locals were up against a better team on paper but reputations did not mean a thing and the boys gave a real display of hockey. Both teams were leg weary and tired when overtime ceased. This tightens up the group considerably with Kingston having the better chance to come through for the sectional honors. The Prontenacs have a game to play in Trenton and it will e no cinch to win in the western town. Kingston also have a game to play in Belleville a week from tonight, which game may practically decide the honors.

x x x x x

Many fans in the city are making arrangements to joirney to the game in Kingston tomorrow night, when the Senior B squad of Queen's take on the Cherries from this city. This is a game that has all the earmarks of a "classic" but the Cherries think they can turn the trick by means of the Tricolor. It is not known what team Wally Elmer will trot out against the locals but we have a hunch that probably Gib McKelvey will be included in the lineup. A lot depends on this game for if Belleville wins the group championship is practically theirs. The roads from here to Kingston are perfect and a motoring trip to reports and the boys will not want for local support.

x x x x x

"Huck" McGuire, of Magdeburg, is in Belleville and a player formerly residing in this city is setting the league afire down that way with his fine playing. Last night he scored the only and winning goal of the game and was the best man on the ice. McGuire wanted to come back to Belleville last spring but some of the experts about the city could not see him as a hockey player but he has lived to confound his critics. He knows his hockey and has abundance of courage so essential in this age of knock 'em down and drag 'em out affairs.

x x x x x

"Bill" Whitty has his Stirling team swinging out in front in the Trent Valley League and looked to be in for at least a playoff for the championship. This hockey rasptor has plenty of grey matter and has full control of his players at all times. He has built up a wonderful system for his team and this backed by a stout defence. Tweed and Madoc are the closest rivals but Stirling gave the Madoc team a sever jolt when they were in home and won 4-1. The best Madoc can do is tie on the season. The best Madoc can do is tie on the season. All the teams in the Trent Valley are receiving wonderful support and the game is being played to the limit. It is a good league any way one wants to look at it.

LOCAL CURLERS BEAT KINGSTON IN C.O.C.L. GAME

"Teddy" Orr's Rink on the Rampage Piling up Big Lead

SOCIAL PROGRAM

Belleville Win Trophy for the First Time in Some Years

Junior C.O.C.L. curlers from this city scored a distinct victory over the Kingston club at the local curling rink last night, when Belleville's three rinks defeated a like number from the east by 27 shot and won the round by 26, Kingston scoring 1 one-shot victory in the game in the Limestone City. The ice was exceptionally good and the local players were more at home on the frozen surface than the Kingston rinks who are accustomed to the artificial ice. Belleville won because their skips got the feel of the ice before the visitors, and piled up in the early ends an almost insurmountable lead. By the win the Belleville Club will have custody of the junior C.O.C.L. trophy for a year, an honor that has been denied them for some time.

"Teddy" Orr and his band of broom wielders were certainly on a rampage last night, when they defeated Stevens by 26 to 9 . It just seemed this Orr's rink could do nothing wrong, and Mr. Simmons' nothing right. Percy Pilton and "Billie" Anderson were led by the same score 17 to 13 and they were never headed in the game although Jackson and Harden made a real battle. Harden in the latter Some very fine shots were witnessed by the large gallery that followed the play, each rink striving closely in the draw game and at times the rings were full of stones. The biggest count that can be made on one end, eight, was accomplished by McClelland against Pitney. Had he moved one of Pitney's rocks out with his last stone he would have counted the full number.

After the game the party repaired to the banquet hall and enjoyed a sumptuous meal. Good natured banter flowed across the table and at the conclusion, R. J. S. Dewar, the president of the club thanked the Kingston club for their splendid game and the fine sportsmanship exhibited. Charles F. Jackson responded for the Kingston players and intimated that they would be on hand time before a Kingston rink could come to Belleville and go out with it win as the difference between actual and artificial ice was too great to overcome. The rinks and scores were:

STIRLING DEFEAT FRANKFORD TEAM

Last Period Rally Won for Red and White—Leading League

In a slow, uninteresting game Stirling defeated Frankford last night in a regular Trent Valley hockey fixture at Stirling by the count of 2-1. For two entire periods there was no score and the small crowd of fans on hand were politely trying to hid their yawns at the listless play. Early in the third period however, Gerald Bowen of Frankford, slipped one in past Mortson in the Stirling goal and the game began to wake up. Ten minutes after the final frame had rot under stronger attacks. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's way Jack Ackers evened the score, up Athlima Brimecky taken early will prefor Stirling when he beat Prevost and vent incliplent condition from becomsecond time in the game. about five minutes after that "Ty" ing chronic and saves hours of awful Little put the game in the log for suffering.

In the Bush League two more games were played when Ciaco met the Hydro Short Circuits and the notice about the power being off was all wrong as far as the Hydro crews were concerned. They splashed into the win column with 3 points and the Ciaco added two to their count.

In the second game the Alerts dropped four points to the Wild Cats. The Wild Cats were almost turned in the first game but were two strong in the other two. The Alerts are a new team and should not be discouraged the addition of one or two strong bowlers will make them a real threat.

CAMPBELLFORD IS BEATEN BY MADOC

Madoc added another win to the score sheet last night when the northern town scientists trimmed Campbellford in Madoc, by a score of 4-1. The game was played under protest by Madoc as Campbellford was using Fred Ingram, but as Madoc won, the protest doesn't matter. L'Heureux stood out as the best player for Madoc last night and captured two of their three goals. The other two were notched by Milne and Johnson.

The inimitable T. B. Hopkins played smartly for Campbellford and succeeded in getting their only goal, late in the third period. Board, of Peterboro handled the game.

Madoc: Smith; defence, Andrews and Brien; centre L'Heureux; wings Wilson and Johnson. Subs, Moon, McGuire and Henderson.

SAND DUNES

Sea waves are green and wet,
But up from where they die,
Rise others vaster yet,
And those are brown and dry.

They are the res-made land
To come at the fisher'men,
And may in sol-l sand
The men she could not drown.

She may know core and cape,
But she does not know mankind
If by any change or shape
She hopes to cut off mind.

Men left her a ship to sink;
They can but leave her a hut as well,
And be more free to think
For the one more cast-off shell.

LODGE NEWS

Last evening was a gala night at the local Moose Auditorium. Peterborough sent down a very fine drill team, who put on the initiation. These five Moose members certainly looked smart in their splendid uniforms, and great credit goes to the Litt-Lock city. Several visitors from Picton and Trenton were in attendance. Speeches were made by Bro. Dr. Wyatt of Picton, and also by Bro. Kennedy and Taylor of Trenton. Also a very interesting address was given by Bro. Baxter, who is in town in his official capacity as Moose Organizer.

Refreshments were served after the proceedings, when all voted the local lodge officers, and members "Jolly Good Moose".

ON GETTING THE SACK

To get the sack is a very severe penalty and a serious matter. It means the dislocation of a man's life. Instead of going to work as he has been accustomed to—maybe for years—he now has to embark on the weary quest for work, and it is possible that he may have to face the hazards and demoralization attendant upon prolonged unemployment. He may secure a job many miles away which will necessitate the removal of his home to a distant district, and the consequent interruption of his children's education; and it may mean many weeks of poverty and semi-starvation. —Cornhill Magazine.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

been anchored in the cove off Point that throughout all of Sunday afternoon two men in a motor-boat had been anchored in the cove off Point San Quentin, apparently fishing for striped bass, which abound at this particular point on San Francisco Bay. There were other boats anchored there also—eight in all. The guard at the entrance to the women's quarters had observed them, but as they were a common sight, he paid no attention to them, until about four-thirty p.m. Just before locking-up time a guard in one of the lookout towers on the hill had telephoned him that a boat had approached close to the shore.

The guard had thereupon stepped out of his kiosk and around to the rear of it, which faced toward the beach, less than thirty feet distant. He had shouted at the men in the boat and warned them to be off, that they were not permitted to approach that close, that they were within the dead-line. To this the men replied that they could not help it; that their motor had gone dead and that the tide had set them in; that they were trying to make repairs and would be off as soon as they could.

While the guard was in the rear of his station, engaged in this conversation, Nance Belden had approached the gate, kicked off her shoes and digging her toes into the quarter-inch wire mesh of the sixteen-foot gate, had scrambled to the top with incredible rapidity. She was just climbing down the outside of the gate when the guard in the tower on the hill saw her and immediately telephoned to the guard at the main gate; also to the guard arguing with the men in the motor-boat. Upon hearing the telephone bell ringing in his station, that guard had walked back into it; at the same time, keeping the kiosk between her and the approaching guard, Nance Belden had dashed down to the beach and commenced swimming rapidly toward the motor-boat, the motor of which instantly started, and the boat commenced edging in to pick her up.

When the guard in the kiosk, apprised of what was taking place, ran out with a rifle in his hand and shouted to Nance Belden to come back or he would shoot her, a machine-gun in the rocky fastness opposite the kiosk began against him. He had not been hit, but a shower of bullets had spattered the ground around and in front of him and another burst had gone over his head and through the sentry-box. The guard had fired once at the Belden woman and hit her, but immediately thereafter, fearful of being killed, he had thrown himself flat on the ground.

The guard in the watch-tower on the hill had thought he saw his machine-gun into action. His first burst had been short and drew answering fire from the machine-gunner in the boat. Although the range was four hundred yards, the first burst from the motor-boat tore through the wooden watch-tower, which rather distracted the aim of the guard there; nevertheless, the latter stuck to his gun and continued to fire, spattering bullets around the swimming girl and into the boat.

The men in the boat did not hesitate, but came on through the hail of bullets; the escaping prisoner had in the meanwhile either sunk or dived, at any rate a widening tinge of red appeared on the water. She was down about thirty seconds, then her head emerged close to the boat, and she swam with one arm to the side of it; a man reached over and grasped her under both arms and jerked her into the boat, which instantly turned, put on full speed and raced away close past two other boats. Fearful of killing innocent people, the guard in the watch-tower held his fire until the escaping boat was in the clear; then he and the guard in another tower came into action again. But a target moving at a speed of forty-five miles an hour is not easily hit; the fire was either over or short and the boat did not stop. When it was out of range, it turned, and in the rapidly fading light of the winter day, headed up into San Pablo Bay, running close to the south shore to avoid the chop of the heavy sea in this shallow expanse of water. They ran without lights.

While the course they had taken would seem to indicate a desire to run up Carquines Straits to the Sacramento or the San Joaquin Rivers, land and escape in a waiting automobile into Central California, the warden realized that his quarry was not lacking in intelligence; that, fast as they fled, they would realize that the telephone is faster; that the roar of their motor must betray them a mile away. He, therefore, taken the precaution to notify the chiefs of police of Pittsburg, Martinez, Sausalito, Richmond, Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco, leaving to these the task of notifying intermediate points. The warden had a suspicion the fugitives would double back to San Francisco—principally since the girl was wounded and must be hidden in order to receive medical attention.

"And here she is," Dan McNamara muttered. "Cripes, what a woman! Lord, how I love a woman with brains and courage. Just a little simple matter of taking pains and taking risks She didn't go in to the dining-hall for dinner with the other prisoners. Smart! Knew she couldn't make a race swim on a full stomach. Smart enough to notice the warden's overcoat hanging to fill in with barbed wire topping that eighteen-inch space at the top of his gate. Of course they figured they needn't bother with that, because no woman could climb a six-teen-foot wire mesh fence anyhow, and if she did she'd only drop down into the waiting arms of the guard, who is never absent, night or day, from behind Belden knew she could climb that fence all right, for knew she had thirty seconds to do it and a drop on the other side from the top of the gate. Her job was to induce the guard to turn his back—and her friends in the boat did just that!

"She knew she'd been seen from the watch-tower on the hill and the guard at the gates notified by telephone; as she returned from the edge of the beach, across the south side of the kiosk. Nance slipped by him on the north side and was in the water as the guard in the tower on the 'phone.

"Smart! She knew the guard will stick under machine-gun fire at fifty yards, merely to stop a woman convicts escaping from prison. Smart! Dashed and swam under water—and then the zigzag course between the bolts of the other fishermen, after they picked her up. Fine psychology—the engineered it all—and I know she's a nut! And then straight to Lenny for medical attention—straight to the one human being she knew she could trust—no, I'll not send her back. And I don't particularly want to catch her friends either. I'll say they are friends! Wish I had a couple of friends that'd come on through machine-gun fire for me! I had thought the world was selfish and cruel and thieving and lying —but there's nobility left in it after all."

Stephen Hart came out of the bedroom and sat down and stared at the chief of police with grave interest. "Well, my good Javert," he said presently.

"Your good what?"

"I called you Javert? Don't you know who Javert was?"

Dan McNamara shook his head. "I never picked him up, Doc."

"You wouldn't. He was a character in 'Les Miserables,' a novel by Victor Hugo. He was a fly-cop in Paris, and he pursued an ex-convict named Jean Valjean for twenty years, because he believed the man was a crook. Once crook, always crook, was Javert's philosophy. And when he discovered at last he had the goods on Jean Valjean and it was his duty to arrest him he discovered simultaneously that Jean Valjean was also a good and noble man, which proved extremely embarrassing to Javert."

"I understand how that could be. all right, Doc. What did Javert do then?"

"He climbed up on the railing of a bridge over the Seine, unpinned his shield threw it into the river and jumped in after it."

"He committed suicide in order to give his man the breaks."

"Exactly."

"Well," Dan McNamara decided after pondering this a half minute, "I wouldn't be good enough to do that. I should have made a good pigeon out of Jean Valjean and maybe he'd have gotten somewhere in his job."

Stephen smiled. He liked this heavy man, with the Celtic fire so unexpectable as a Chinaman's. As a specialist in mental diseases he knew the part that play in the formation of character, and one did not have to look at the chief twice to know that he came of courageous ancestry. No vague and honest they are sufficiently courageous to pay the price of instinctive how high, for the things they do with their eyes open—to pa yh cheerfully and refrain thereafter from whimpering.

"So you're going to protect this girl, Dan?"

"Yeah!" A throaty growl. "Got to, Doc. Got to protect society." Stephen looked puzzled, so the chief continued. "If I let this girl escape from the Quentin, she'll come out with a broader knowledge of crime and trickery and a greater contempt for society than when she went in. The only kind of criminal I fear is the smart one. I can always catch the boobs promptly but sometimes it takes a long time to get acquainted with the artistic genius of a real craftsman. They're like writers, Doc. They have a style all their own and you've got to learn their style. And about the time you think you've learned it, you pick up some bird-dog's guilty and he isn't the man you thought he was.

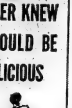
"He's just stolen his master's stuff. Nance Belden is too brilliant to turn loose in the world, Doc. She's a leader—a leader of men. She'd make the balls, and her crew would fire them and always be covered up."

He ruffled his pompadour. "Well, Doc, I've gotten—her away from her gang. She's lost them and they've lost her. And they must never get her back."

"Would you like to know who they are?"

"Of course. I'm normally curious."

"I can find out for you," said Stephen.



"How?" Dan McNamara looked doubtful.

"Nance will tell me."

"You're crazy, Doc. You don't know the code. They die but they don't squeal. There is honor in their dishonor, and in their weakness there is a strength, that amazes me."

"She wouldn't do it voluntarily, of course, but just now, in her weakened state, I'm sure I could hypnotize her. Get her to look fixedly into a mirror you know, like this. Once I secure control of her subconscious mind, she will answer my questions. And after I wake her up she'll have complete amnesia for the experience; she will never know she peached on her pals."

The chief smiled. "Of course I know that hypnotism is being used by advanced psychiatrists and particularly by Morton Prince and William McDougall. I've read their books. The modern chief of police isn't modern, Doc, if he isn't a pretty good lay psychologist and psychiatrist. I don't know what a criminologist is, but I suppose he's a bird that studies the criminal actions and tendencies of criminal actions and tendencies of criminal actions and tendencies of its lowest common divisor. That's the bunk. The thing to do is to know their minds and why they act like they do; if you can cure what snakes them so, criminology becomes a dead science.

"Yes, I know all about hypnotism and I know something you've forgotten. Your power of suggestion on a patient in the hypnotic state isn't powerful acquired instinct in the mind cannot murder if he's an honest man. His acquired instincts of morality which lie in his subconscious mind, are too strong for you. And the most powerful action disinfect in the mind of a crook is that he must squeal. That's this idea of immorality! You try it on Nance Belden and she'll tell you almost anything but who her friends are, where they live and how they make a living."

"Well, we shall see—at another time. Meanwhile, what are you going to do with this girl? You can't keep her here, because that's dangerous unless you have her watched. And whom can you trust to watch her?"

"How about Lenny?"

"Lenny is my office nurse and I cannot spend all my time with her. She's under suspicion now and we've got to kill that. She'll be watched, will she nilly!"

"I suppose so. Even if I rues the word to lay off her, I can never be sure one of my men won't watch her independently. On a case where it would be a big feather in his cap and mean a lot of publicity to capture a notorious criminal, lots of dicks prefer to work alone and in secret."

"Then Lenny must not come to your house again. And yet, this girl must have proper nourishment until her wounds heal. She's suffering from the shock of this emotional experience now; she's lost considerable blood and suffered some pain and for four hours she's suffered from exposure. Her gyms are soaking wet."

"If she doesn't get those men to bring some dry clothing for her to slip into, once she got aboard the boat, my guess will just about break. That would be about a perfect job—and I can't stand flows."

And Dan McNamara strode into the room where Nance lay with her hand in Lenny's. "Why didn't you tell your friends to bring you some dry clothes?" he demanded.

Nance smiled up at Lenny. "He thinks I'm a nut after all, Lenny. Why, of course I wonder about that detail. I changed my clothes, but then we crossed the bay it was rough and Nance and I got sick as the cat trail. He had to outrun them—and you do forty miles an hour through a mile of passengers and you'll all but drown in the spray!"

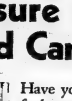
"Thank God for that," the chief murmured. "I'm proud of you and your friends, Nance. I hope neither of them was hit."

For the barest fraction of a second Nance hesitated, then answered. "No, they got through all right, but why they did it is a mystery. The boat was riddled."

Dan McNamara came back into the living room and on his heavy face was the faintest, most cryptic of grins.

"I'm going to get one or both of Nance's friends, Doc," he chuckled. "One of them was hit, and he'll have to have medical attention. Not that I want to lend either one of them for this job, but because I want to give them the once-over. At that they might be somebody were looking for."

"Did Nance tell you one of them had been hit?"



"No, but she hesitated half a second when she told me neither of them had been hit! She never hesitates ordinarily. Her coordination is lightning fast—well, you get so, Doc, that you know when they're lying. Go to the telephone call up your home and ask if you've had any telephone calls within the past hour.'

Stephen frowned and wri informed that a man, who refused to leave his name, had called up three times and had left word he would call again; that he had seemed very anxious to know when the doctor would return.

"I knew it—I knew it," Dan McNamara exploded in his own peculiar way. He was almost juvenile. "I figured Nance would tell them to go to you. And I'll make another prophesy. They'll admit they are friends of hers and they she sent them there. She'll told them you're her friend and that you'll not turn them in to me. A wounded crook is always an asset. Doc, unless he knows a crooked doctor. Then he's a ninety-nine and nine-tenths of the dangerous report to the police when they receive a call from a patient suffering from knife or gun-shot wounds. Says Visit Stimulates Canada-Orient Trade

Montreal, January 19—The present visit of the Canadian Trade delegation to the Orient was an immeasurable stimulant to trade relations with Canada and should increase materially the imports and exports of China and Japan, according to C. I. Barr, General Agent of the Canadian National Railways at Shanghai, China, who is in Canada on four months' leave.

Mr Barr stated that, although the high rate of exchange of Chinese money has undoubtedly hurt business in the Orient, an unusual degree of interest is evident in commercial circles. The war situation is improving and the government is stronger than it has been for many years. Mr. Barr's opinion is that the men in control of the country's welfare are the most capable leaders possible. The majority of them are graduates of foreign universities and take a broad view of Chinese relations with other nations.

The visiting official made an investigation commission of the railroad facilities of China with those of Canada. Although China includes an eighth of the area of the populated world and has a quarter of the population, more than 480 millions, the total mileage of railroads within her borders is only 7,033 and less than a third of this total is in operation at the present time. In this respect she has less railroad mileage per capita than any other country in the world. In vivid contrast is the condition Canada, with a population of only 10 millions, has a total length in railroads of 44,500 miles.

Cork has been put to use by man for more than 2,500 years.

Larger 1931 Pontiac Has Many New Features

A wide number of engineering advancements are seen in the improved 1931 Pontiac. The longer wheelbase of 112 inches lends itself to more beautiful body proportions and has permitted the designing of a larger, lower appearing automobile. Above are shown the standard coupe and four door sedan models. These characteristically display the external advances in styling. The chrome-plated screen conceals and protects the radiator core. A curved fender-to-bar supports the chrome-plated head lamps. Added passenger comfort has been attained through the larger, roomier Fisher bodies and a better ventilation development. The whole body of the new car is practically cushioned on rubber. The 1931 Pontiac is being offered for less than the price at which any previous Pontiac was introduced.

THE HIGHER GOOD

Father, I will not ask for wealth or fame,
Though once they would have joyed my carnal sense;
I shudder not to bear a hated name,
Wanting all wealth, myself my sole defense,
But give me, Lord, to behold the truth;
A seeing sense that knows the eternal right;
A heart with pity filled, and gentlest ruth;
A manly faith that makes all labor light;
A manly spirit to labor for mankind;
Give me the power to labor and be such as cannot speak;
Eyes let me be to groping men and blind;
A conscience to the base; and to the weak,
Le me be hands and feet; and to the foolish, mind;
And lead still further on such as thy kingdom seek.

RT. HON. G. P. GRAHAM, Senator, Big Business Man, Director of some of the most important and flourishing business enterprises of Canada, Journalist and Editor, shines brightest i nthe eyes of the Man on the Island City Street as just plain George Graham, editor of the Scout Family Journal which illuminates the homes of Brockville and vicinity with light and leading. Editor George recently chided the white-whiskered old Globe for boasting of having employees with half a century record of continuous employment. Just at random Editor George picked out of his own staff two members well on in the second half of the century mark of service on that newspaper—and that ain't only by a jugful, for if the Globe can back Editor G. P. has row on row of old faithfuls who never worked any place else and never wanted to.

But those old printers would rather work for George P. Graham than go fishin' and their experience dates back before George Graham's day when the ghost walked regularly and in installments, if you got a couple o' dollars on payday you were lucky and the balance of nine, ten or twelve weekly periods during the week as it happened to come in. Course George P. changed all that when he took hold and the boys got paid in full every Saturday night and sometimes he managed to get almost full too, occasionally with whisky at five cents a glass and a big shupper of Dolsen's pork pies free. It was always a miracle to the boys to get their wages in full every Saturday night under Graham regime and ever since they have looked upon him as a golden god and wouldn't think of leaving him. All joking aside, however, the real reason for the deep loyalty in the Recorder office of many years standing lay in the fact that George P. always left his plug hat and his titles at Ottawa and was just "one of the boys" back home.

LIFE CERTAINLY geared to high speed in this jazz and jousting age. Automobiles are getting up an unholy nability; passenger-trains are speeding folks hither and yon at a mile a minute or less, mighty steamships strive to break all ocean records and folks are flying at a rate of speed mania-like to wings and burn up distance in the airways—150 miles an hour and better. Where are we going and why? Times have changed since we hitched old Dobbin to the sleigh and covered ten, twenty, thirty miles in a day and counted it a fair day's journey indeed. We are now doing fast now, maybe going somewhere but gosh all hemlock we have just as much time as we ever had, except time deducted from our life on account of wear and tear, an incident to the machine-speed age. Let's slow up and find out where we're going and why.

TINFOIL ordinarily thrown away as useless waste matter is being turned into money to help crippled children to health and happiness in Belleville and other cities. The plan of collecting tinfoil has proven successful in other cities and Belleville is to give it a trial. Al Stillman is putting the plan in operation backed by the Rotary Club, and soon every home will be looked for the tinfoil can be placed in cigar stores and other places. Thousands of dollars have been realized by the systematic collection of candy and tobacco wrappers and many a crippled child made happy in consequence. 'Tis but a little thing in itself but big in possibilities.

The value of playgrounds has been stressed in Montreal by the presiding judge of the juvenile court, who declares that money spent for the provision of such parks serves a most useful purpose. Congested cities with no playgrounds mean large juvenile courts, while larger playgrounds mean healthy children in body and in mind. Providing of ample space about city and rural schools is surely one of the wise acts of the Department of Education.

SPIRITUALISM

Some Church of England clergy men believe that spiritualism is a great force in religion. The word is probably too loosely used. The late Dean Harris used to insist that the belief in immortality ought to be called spiritism, perhaps because he thought a more marked distinction should be made between it and spiritualism, the basis of all religions.—Mail and Empire.

CITIES AND HIGHWAYS

Brockville Recorder believes urban municipalities have a legitimate grievance in respect of the maintenance of permanent roads used by traffic from all parts of the province. There, it says, may have been established for the primary benefit of citizens, but they are, nevertheless, used by the public at large and in certain instances the surfaces on main thoroughfares have been worn in consequence of the through traffic over provincial highways that they are required to bear. Noting that the Township of Windsor, advocates division with the municipalities of the moneys collected by the province on gasoline consumption tax and liquor store store profits, the Recorder agrees that revenues from motor traffic form one direction of taxation which urban municipalities might very well come to the assistance of the municipalities. The argument is strengthened as the gasoline tax already contributes in large measure to all classes of road outside urban centres. Not only are city motorists payers-in-aid to carry their own legitimate load, but to help maintain a certain mileage of main thoroughfares—namely, those connecting city with the place where relief should be given. Abolition of the suburban area system, now overdue, would relieve the large annual expense of gas tax revenue, and quite as effective in assisting the urban municipalities.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

SELF-SACRIFICE OF RICHES

There is a certain noble in the self-sacrifice of a man who devotes himself to the task of getting rich. To do so he must deliberately forego the delights—the delights of philosophy, the delights of careless existence, the delights of extravagance, and the delights of benevolence. I envy him his riches, but not all his riches would tempt me to make his sacrifices. I would rather be a rich man than be a world-conqueror, but I would rather have small private means and freedom to do what I like than either of them.—The Statesman, London.

HUMORISTS AMONG THINKERS

Mark Twain's frustrated desire to be known as a serious thinker has been revealed by his daughter. It was not to be denied a secret in his attitude—is implicit in many of his writings. His book on Mrs. Eddy was no humorous effort. His acute speed mania due to wings and burn up distance in the airways—150 miles an hour and better. Where are we going and why? Times have changed since we hitched old Dobbin to the sleigh and covered ten, twenty, thirty miles in a day and counted it a fair day's journey indeed. We are now doing fast now, maybe going somewhere but gosh all hemlock we have just as much time as we ever had, except time deducted from our life on account of wear and tear, an incident to the machine-speed age. Let's slow up and find out where we're going and why.

TINFOIL ordinarily thrown away as useless waste matter is being turned into money to help crippled children to health and happiness in Belleville and other cities. The plan of collecting tinfoil has proven successful in other cities and Belleville is to give it a trial. Al Stillman is putting the plan in operation backed by the Rotary Club, and soon every home will be looked for the tinfoil can be placed in cigar stores and other places. Thousands of dollars have been realized by the systematic collection of candy and tobacco wrappers and many a crippled child made happy in consequence. 'Tis but a little thing in itself but big in possibilities.

The value of playgrounds has been stressed in Montreal by the presiding judge of the juvenile court, who declares that money spent for the provision of such parks serves a most useful purpose. Congested cities with no playgrounds mean large juvenile courts, while larger playgrounds mean healthy children in body and in mind. Providing of ample space about city and rural schools is surely one of the wise acts of the Department of Education.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

With Napoleon

(Toronto Telegram)

Forming a ring around the billiard room at "Longwood," Napoleon's residence to St. Helena on the afternoon of the 1st of September, 1817, were the officers of the 66th Regiment of British infantry, a corps which was stationed on the island or the last four years of the exiled Emperor's life. Arrangements had been made for them to meet their illustrious, if unwilling guest, and, officers and gentlemen all, they were torn with the conflicting emotions of curiosity to see the great soldier, and natural embarrassment at the rather painful circumstances of the meeting. Among them was the assistant staff-surgeon, Dr. Walter Henry, then 26 years old, who, in the year of Waterloo, immigration as a city lad34), was stationed with the same regiment here, and also engaged in private practice to a modest extent. He settled in Canada, became Inspector General of Hospitals, and died in Belleville in 1860. Not only was Dr. Henry a physician of more than ordinary ability, but a writer of merit, and his story of the events of a long military career, an absorbing interest. Of the historic meeting with Napoleon, he writes:

"Dressed in a plain, dark green uniform, without epaulettes or anything equivalent, but with the Star of the Legion of Honour on his breast, which hung an eagle in the centre, surrounded by a wreath of diamonds, and a cordon of gold, with the device of a mounted dragoon, in high relief; white breeches and top-boots; a small cocked hat, and under his arm, Napoleon's appearance was far from imposing. The stature was short and thick, his head sunk into his shoulders, his face fat with large folds under the chin; the limbs appeared to be stout and well proportioned. Complexion olive and expression sinister, forbidding and rather cowering. The features instantly reminded us of the prints of him we had seen. On the whole, his general look was more like that of an obese Spanish or Portuguese friar than the hero of modern times."

Bonaparte walked round the room with an attempt, as it seemed, of his old dignity, and addressed a few words to most of the officers. Colonel Nicol was first introduced by Sir George Bingham, he, and Marshal Bertrand acting as interpreters. "Your regiment has lately arrived from India," said Napoleon to the colonel. "Come, I trust that rich country you should wrest gold, and not silver. How many years does it take to acclimatize a regiment of Europeans? Did your officers save much money in India? How many servants did you keep there?"

Such were the kind of questions addressed by Bonaparte to Col. Nicol and other officers, which, with the replies, Henry has recorded in full, in almost every case, he displayed a keen knowledge about India.

"When he arrived at the point where I stood," the doctor continues, "Marshal Bertrand made me a bow of recognition, on which the great man stepped, and the marshal introduced me as the English physician who had recently attended his eldest son, Napoleon's little namesake and favorite. He then looked at me with a slight expression of complacency and said:

INQUISITIVE ABOUT INDIA

"You have served in India?"

"Yes."

"You had much professional duty there?"

"A good deal, certainly."

"Were diseases of the liver common in India?

"Indeed they occur there more frequently than in colder climates."

"Your soldiers drink an enormous quantity of brandy in India?"

"No, they are much fond of spirits; arrack is cheap, and the climate makes them thirsty."

"Opium used, and give large doses of calomel there, as the English doctors do here?"

BONEY FEARED THE KNIFE

"I believe the practice is similar. Are you, too, a devotee of the lancet? Ah, God defend me from it!"

"In my opinion, it is our most potent weapon."

"To kill or cure, eh, M. le docteur? 'It is our duty to cure.'"

Einstein's Cosmology

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 20.—The belief that Einstein has gone one step in his theory of relativity was expressed today by Dr. Howard P. Robertson, Assistant Professor of Mathematical Physics at Princeton University, in an interview here. Dr. Roberston said he believes the truth lies somewhere between the two theories—the "finite but unbounded cylindrical world," and W. de Sitter, German mathematician, with his "spherical world."

In explaining his belief, Professor Robertson stated that as has been shown by Abbe Le Maitre of the University of Louvain, Einstein's cosmology is not tenable because it is unstable, and the slightest irregularity in it would cause it to pass over into one of the other types. In this respect, Dr. Roberston finds the theory of de Sitter preferable, but stated that it is not entirely satisfactory.

Dr. Roberston gave the following explanation:

"The general theory of relativity considers the world of space and time as a four-dimensional continuum of events, the geometry of which is contingent on the actual distribution of the matter in the universe. Each observer resolves this space-time into a three-dimensional universe, and a period of time, in terms of which he is at rest; two observers will in general break up spacetime in different ways, as a result of which simultaneity will have only a relative significance.

'Cosmic Time' Introduced

"If however, we wish to discuss only the gross or large-scale phenomena of space-time, disregarding the irregularities introduced by the aggregation of matter into stars and stellar systems, we may introduce a 'cosmic time' which will serve as a mean proper time for all observers within a sufficiently large portion of the universe.

"The introduction of such a 'cosmic time' then allows us to separate out the three-dimensional space, leading to the approximation with which relativistic cosmology is concerned, will of the two analogue of a spherical space-surface—that is, it will be completely homogeneous and isotropic, any point and any direction being distinguishable from any other. This rough background of the actual universe may be considered as consisting of spherical space whose radius changes during the course of time. These considerations implicitly involve the assumption, first introduced by Weyl, that the matter constituting the actual universe has loosely speaking, a common origin.

"We may now proceed to a detailed examination of the possibilities thus revealed. If we require in addition that this uniform background be stationary—that is, that it is such that its properties are unchanged in time—we arrive at two possibilities, the 'cylindrical world' of Einstein and the 'spherical world' of de Sitter. The names by which these are known are derived from the fact that the former may be pictured as the four-dimensional analogue of a cylinder, distance along the axis of which measures time, whereas the latter is the four-dimensional analogue of a sphere.

"Einstein's universe is characterized by the fact that its spacial radius is determined by the total amount of matter in it; Eddington has concluded from this that if there were a star as large as Betelgeuse and as dense as the companion of Sirius, the space would close in on it in such a way that it alone would constitute the entire universe.

"Einstein's universe is such that a beam of light would be entirely around it, and, in time, return to its source, but Einstein's cosmology is not tenable, as has been shown by the Abbe Lemaitre of the University of Louvain, for it is unstable. The slightest irregularity would cause it to pass over into one of the other types.

"De Sitter's is far more satisfactory, for in addition to being stable, it allows us to conclude that the distant nebulae would appear to decede from us with speeds which increase directly with their distances from us; that this is actually the case has been known for some time, and recent work by Hubble and Humason at Mount Wilson has given further confirmation."

Opinions of Our Readers

To this column the Ontario Intelligencer invites letters on topics of public interest. The letters should not be too lengthy and should be of such a character as to interest the public. There are many problems on which the individual reader would be heard. Letters should bear the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a sign of good faith. SO MANY OFFICES

Belleville, Jan. 20, 1931,
Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

While there has been so much discussion about the payment of taxes in four instalments, I would like to know no one has argued in favor of a reduction in the number of places at which taxes and other moneys are paid. Why you kindly permit me to make a few suggestions in this regard?

Why is it necessary to have these moneys paid in at so many different places, the payment of taxes to the tax collector-water rates to the treasurer, gas rates to the gas department, dog taxes to the office of Police, hawkers and peddlar's licences to the chief of police, carters' licences to the treasurer?

Would it not be well to have all licences and taxes and gas and hydro electric rates paid into one office, the treasurer's, and save the people so much bother.

MEMORIAL

8 Campbell Street,
Belleville, 20th. Jan. 1931.

The Editor Ontario Intelligencer,

This is not 1931 but the war ended 1918, and again a pebble has been cast in the pond and a ripple says—Where are we at?

What is wrong with the people of this city? Did Trenton, Frankford, Stirling, and other rural centres show them, or are we to understand it is the fact that Belleville is unique in having no monumental display to her sons who paid the supreme sacrifice? If, as a citizen of Belleville, before and after the war, voice my opinion publicly, and say "Forget it," but if any person or persons privately desire to remedy the omission the public will or should rest contented. I quote when I say,

"Our eyes do not hate the dire aspect, Of civil wounds ploughed up by neighbor's sword."

Why be unskilled? The play ensues and the curtain falls, and now we want to rehash!

Before I close, I must voice my opinion that Belleville has done for those who returned, and it is my most earnest desire that the Memorial Hall remain as a rendezvous for many years to come.

We Canadian people now do not sleep.

"They are not dead but merely asleep.

"And in foreign clay their bones shall keep."

Mr. Editor, I appreciate your interest in this civic affair.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) C. A. Symons.

PRAISES PEOPLE OF NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Nfld.—The trait of natural ingenuity is more fully developed in the people of Newfoundland than in the natives of any other country, declares R. W. Bridgett, writing in the Evening Telegram on "The Inborn Genius and Heroism of the Newfoundlander." The writer refers to the manner in which the crews of ten vessels, driven off the coast a year ago in a terrific gale brought their craft to various ports or were rescued after many hardships, as evidence that as a people Newfoundlanders have no superiors in coping with sudden and unforeseen emergencies. And he lists a score or so of rescues at sea, carried out by captains and crews in the elder days, to testify that hardihood and courage were not concerned chiefly with self-preservation.

"Many causes have been assigned for that remarkable gift of planning, designing and contriving with which every Newfoundland fisherman is endowed," he writes. "Some attribute it to environment, others to isolation, and still others to their necessities. It may not be far off the mark to say that all these causes together contribute their share in making him what he undoubtedly is — a natural architect. He has no knowledge of technique as the science of angles and their degrees are mysteries to him.

"I speak now of the generation fast passing away — the old pioneers — the men who designed and built the staunchest and most graceful vessels that ever floated on the waters of our noble bays. These were the men who went into the forest, hewed down the trees, brought them to the seashore and fashioned them into ships capable to withstand the fiercest storms of the Atlantic and to battle with the ice-floes. Anyone visiting the principal or even the ordinary outport must be struck with the many fine buildings to be seen. Externally they present a beauty of design and symmetry of finish which one would never expect from men who had no opportunity of training the mind or eye in architectural science.

"One great mystery in connection with this natural constructive power of our people is the amount they accomplish with the minimum of tools. Their stock is usually a hatchet and saw and a plane or two. These with a rule and square constitute a fisherman-carpenter's outfit."

Remarking that the deeds and daring of Newfoundlanders "have from time immemorial been allowed to go unrecorded," the writer turns from the pasting of the home-built clippers and the coming of the steamers to a brief sketch of a few of the Ancient Colony's sea heroes and the rescues in which they were concerned.

For saving the crew of a German vessel in a heavy storm, the late Captain William Pitsgerald in the Rose of Towridge received a gold watch with a bust of the Kaiser in relief on the back. Captain Joyce in the Kestrel rescued the crew of the Busy Bee and received due recognition. In 1865, Captain Pumphrey in the Glide struck off the ice the crew of the Brisk, who had been on thirteen days on the wreck. Masses for the souls of five men drowned off shore while salvaging a wreck at Trepassey were being said when the five walked over the hill safe and sound. They had been taken aboard by Captain William Hennessey in the brig Belle.

Like instances are almost innumerable, but the one rescue unequalled in the annals of Newfoundland was consummated by Captain William Jackson, famous seal-killer, who on October 9, 1867, saved 37 men, women and children from death by his own efforts at Spotted Islands, Labrador. Time and again he swam to the wreck and returned ashore, battling with the turbulent cold water of the coast. The job done, he removed his underclothing and gave it to those most in need. His value was recognized by the Royal Humane Society.

FIVE HANDS WORK AT THE THROTTLE AS STEADY AS ONE

Montreal, Jan. 19—Steady is the hand at the throttle and the brakes work smoothly on the Canadian National Railways, according to a letter which has just been received from a grateful passenger, by Sir Henry Thornton. H. G. Melville, who writes the complimentary letter is in charge of the Melville-Nat-Rail Shows, which were at Sherbrooke, Quebec, during the exhibition there.

"That particular engineer," Mr. Melville says, in speaking of the trip from Rouses Point to Sherbrooke and return, "one particular engineer, whether or not he knew of Mr. Melville's illness, certainly handled the air brakes perfectly."

Operating officers of the railway are proud of the phrase "that particular engineer," because in this instance it refers to five different men. Five different engineers handling that locomotive as if they were one man, and a driver so careful that a sick passenger is grateful, means something approaching art in railway operation. It means consistency in skill, continuity of effort, a smooth-running machine.

MAGNIFYING GLASS UNNECESSARY HERE

Minot, Me., Jan. 19—The eyes of Alvah Mason, 25, a local electrician, are so focused that objects within a distance of eight inches are magnified more than 100 times beyond their actual proportions. For ordinary work Mason has to use glasses that demagnify and another person looking through them sees objects right just as well as gazing through the wrong end of a telescope.

Objects more than eight inches away from Mason's naked eyes appear blurred, but at a closer range he can read phonograph records by the difference in impressions made in the discs. Removing his glasses, he can point with unfailing accuracy to the recorded small scratches on the "Anvil Chorus from Il Trovatore." Mason does not have to hear a record to determine whether or not a song was sung in a staccato or crescendo manner. The sound grooves appear to him as the track made by dragging a finger through sand and seems to the ordinary naked eye.

Pores of the skin and the infinitesimal hooks in newspaper are quite apparent to Mason when he removes the glasses necessary for the greater part of his work.

The Pas, Man., Jan. 19—"In the public of way of Manitoba, The Pas, Flinflon and Cranberry Portage may be frontier towns, and the public may have its own idea of what frontier towns ought to be, but I found them surprisingly comfortable." Quits Life on Rails After 58 Years Duty

Montreal, Jan. 20— George Arnold should be happy for he has a comfortable income and all the leisure time he wants. But that is just what makes him blue. After 58 years of service he does no refire with a light heart and Arnold has just retired from duty with the Canadian National Railways. He has health too. He looks like a man of about 50, but he is really nearly 77 years of age. He is sorry but he says he feels his years these days more than he has ever done before. One finds it hard to convince him that it is the beginning of a quiet, comfortable existance.

Arnold lives in Montreal. He was born in Toronto in the days when trains were far from their present state of efficiency. He has in his system, the tang of steam and the joy of speed; for his father was a "railroad man" before him and so where his brothers. William, Robert and John, all of whom, with the sentor Arnold were employees of the old Grand Trunk, now the Canadian National system. One brother Robert has not been heard of since he went "railroading" into the Black Hills of Dakota.

George Arnold started as brakeman. He was no young that only a misunderstanding accounts for the fact that he was accepted at all. He has served in several capacities since then but always intimately in connection with the life of humming over the rails. He has been way-freight conductor, ticket collector, through-freight conductor, passenger train conductor.

His superiors speak of him of one of the most genial, conscious and popular men that have ever boarded a train. Witness to this fact are several articles which he keeps close to him and which are tokens of the esteem he has won from high officials of the Grand Trunk on more than one occasion. He was in charge of the trains which took Charles M. Hayes and similar high functionaries of the Grand Trunk across Canada and into the United States on period inspections. Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson president of the Grand Trunk early in the present century had a luxurious private car called the "Violet" named after Lady Rivers-Wilson) and it was Arnold's precious duty to say when the car should be stopped and started. That is history. C. M. Hayes sank with the Titanic. Arnold is still in Montreal and can tell you about these things and many more.

Advice to Lovelorn

DON'T LIKE HER BECAUSE SHE WORKS

DEAR MISS FAIRPAX:

I am engaged to a young man whose family do not like me, and for a long time I was puzzled too know reason, as I'm a self-respecting girl and, some say, not hard to look at. At last a friend told me the reason for my unpopularity. For several years I've had a good job and salary in a large department store, and it seems my fiance's family thought it wasn't stylish to work behind a counter. The women of his family do not seem very intelligent to me, and I hesitate to marry into the family for very different reasons from those which keep them from welcoming me.

INDEPENDENT.

The ladies of your fiance's family must be quite aged and behind the trend of modern ideas if they object to a girl working behind a counter. Don't they know that's what a large portion of college graduates are doing to fit themselves as buyers and other top-notch jobs in the economic world. Don't they know that an English girl, "daughter of a hundred earls," worked in a New York department store last Winter? Don't they know that it's the smart thing to have a job these days; that the daughters of many of our captains of industry and multimillionaires work? Do these ladies wear pantalettes ringlets and hoop skirts to match their antiquated ideas? If No. 1 wouldn't church the young man because his mother and sisters are out of step with the time.

SHALL SHE TELL SHE'S BEEN MARRIED?

DEAR MISS FAIRPAX:

I am writing this for my girl friend, and she wishes you would give her some advice. She is a girl of twenty-two and has been married but is separated from her husband. She has met a very nice man and she wants to tell him she is married and every time she starts to tell him there is some other subject brought up. Don't you think it would be best for her to tell him?

L.P.

Unless the young man you speak of has made the acquaintance of your friend in a very informal manner and they call each other by their first names, he must realize she has been married. On the she still call herself "Miss?" Yes, by all means, have her tell him that she's been married.

HE DRINKS AND BREAKS HIS WORD

DEAR MISS FAIRPAX:

I must come to you for a little advice. I am a widow, my husband has been dead over two years and I am in love with a very nice man whom I think the world of, but he has one bad fault, he will get drunk. I have begged him not to drink and he will promise me he won't, and then we'll turn against his own word, and yet he claims he loves me. I have come to you to ask if I should give him up. He is 31 and I am 24 years of age.

BLUE EYES.

I would as soon advise you to stand in the path of a locomotive as to marry a man of the type you describe. He promises you not to drink and hasn't enough backbone to keep his word. After he had married you, he would think less of keeping promises than he does now. Just go to a domestic relations court some morning and listen to the evidence of drunkards' wives. As you value your own peace of mind, please don't marry this man.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Furniture for 1931 is as varied and interesting in its many types as the new styles in costumes.

One house, it seems, may have many types of furniture living together amicably within it. A charming early American living room may be next a formal Georgian bedroom; A french Provincial dining room may let on to a most modern sun-parlor.

Early American furniture still vies with Provincial in popularity. The Swedish Exposition influence has been felt and many new 1931 styles for practical rooms incorporate the Swedish peasant designs.

Modern rooms often are combination living rooms, bedrooms, sunparlors or work rooms. Modern furniture is back in new and varied forms. Flat strips of steel lacking in springiness are shown in many types of chairs and tables.

Lamp are getting lower in their architecture. Period types of lamps match the furniture they go with. Lamp shades still use the favorite materials, tapestry, parchment, silk, but the metal shade, with colored glass or just the metal shade is modern and new.

For the woman who works there is a new modern desk that combines a St. Louis has been named the Lindwork place with a space for books; high Boulevard.

It is aluminum and composition, made light enough for any woman to move about without effort, and it has a chair to match. The new low modern lamp is matched up in design with bookends, a new ensemble idea in furnishings.

These new modern things just will have their color touch, and a blessing it is in many a room, too. One of the smart desk and chair sets has green used with black and aluminum, another has lipstick red combined with gray wood and aluminum, and a third has vivid black and white with a little gold checkered leather for the seat and back.

Another way of introducing the color note into modern rooms is to have the furniture rather subdued, in beige and gray tones, and then to have the lamps, book stands, desk trimmings and the rug in the new French blue-green.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Facts are always in the making. The human phiz is a design upon which the cinematograph of the mind thiows its pictures and reflections. Sometimes the brain hasn't any reflections. Result: the blank face. You see 'em all the time. Nice features, maybe. Bright eyes; ruby lips. Whole pulchritude works. But what of it? One look suffices and then the observer seeks out a countenance that is alight, animated, changeable, interesting. No reason why a woman should wear the tame old expression day after day. Unless it is a jolly nice one.

When nerves are tying themselves into knots, and bean aches and life doesn't look any too pleasing, have a hot bath and a shampoo. Hot water is relaxing to muscles, and relaxed muscles tell nerves to behave properly. Dousing the head with soap suds rinsing the glorious loop with warm water takes aches and worries away. Finish with a cold ducking and friction with a coarse towel. Great little pick-up treatment.

Sage tea will darken grey hair slightly. Make a strong brew, strain cool and to a pint of liquid add a tablespoonful of refining alcohol. If only a few silvery hairs shine out at the temples, they can be touched with mascara. Doesn't last any time, but is prompt-ary help when the occasion seems to demand that telltale years be hidden.

Shingy hair should get raining. They say the raisins—carry 100 nice fat calories to the ounce. They contain iron, which is supposed to be good for nervous ladies. Dates, prunes, figs and honey are swell-elegant food for the slimp who would add poundage to her frame. A quart of milk a day not only fattens, but provides material for tooth repair.

One of the most distressing results of ill-fitting shoes and high heels is the hammer toe. The second or third toe doubles up on itself. Sometimes the poor toe has to be amputated. Surprising in our modern civilization that women won't wear comfortable shoes!

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbetton, Ont., Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been working at pick and shovel work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty stiff work on the back, kidneys and shoulder, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following result—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. Yes, they work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills is my maxim. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

LONGEVITY

The child born today may be expected to live for several more years than the child born fifty years ago. The average span of life has been considerably lengthened.

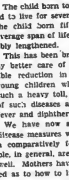
This has been brought about chiefly by better care of infants, by a notable reduction in the diarrhoeas of young children which, formerly took such a heavy toll, and by the control of such diseases as smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria.

We have now available to control disease measures which were unknown a comparatively few years ago. People, in general, are now better informed. Mothers have come to rely upon ed as to how to live in order to keep their intelligence rather than their instincts in caring for their children.

A much higher percentage of people now reach the age of fifty than did formerly, but once that age is reached, the expectation of life is not greater than it was during the past century.

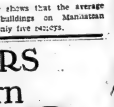
The reason for this is that the preventable conditions which have been overcome were those which chiefly affected the young; little has yet been done which would directly benefit the adult. It is quite right to do all that has been done and even more for the child, but if health is to be maintained throughout life, it must not be neglected after childhood has passed.

Outside of those individuals reached by industrial health services, the vast majority of adults do not receive any systematic health supervision once they have left school. The result is that abnormal conditions pass unnoticed until actual disease develops. The adult is apt to forget that with advancing years and altered manner of living, his habits must be somewhat modified if he is to retain the health and vigour of earlier life.



If the adult is to have health, if he or she is to have more healthy years of life, then time must be taken to give to the body the care it requires. The busy man or woman, for example, must take time from work and other activities to secure the rest and exercise required by the body.

The ideal to strive for is not so much a longer life, but health through out life. Health is worth having because it makes for happiness throughout a life of greater usefulness.



To the adult who desires to increase the expectation of years of health, we can say — moderation in all things is essential, and above all, in food. An interest in life must be maintained, whether it is in work or in play.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

LIBERAL LEADER, NOMINEE, ASSAIL HON. W. H. PRICE

Say Attorney General Should Have Dealt Stimson Charges

ISSUES CHALLENGE

Claim Full Facts Concerning Company Not Laid Before Gov't in 1928

Hamilton, Jan. 21.—Unleashing a furious onslaught upon the Conservative Government of Ontario and centering the attack principally upon the Attorney-General's department, two Liberal speakers last night flatly charged Hon. W. H. Price with failure to prosecute fraudulent stock transactions when details of the operations had been tendered his department.

Declaring that he would divulge the name of his informant "in the proper time" Mr. Philpott asserted that the full facts of the Stimson case had been laid before Col. Price in 1928 by one of Toronto's well-known financiers and that the Attorney-General had absolutely refused to act. The candidate added that his charges warranted the granting of a Royal Commission or that "other judicial procedure"—presumably meaning the Attorney-General—would be necessary. Personal liability to all Stimson creditors in Ontario was asserted by Mr. Philpott.

Mitchell W. Dingwall, Hamilton Liberal leader, and Captain Elmore Philpott, chosen last night as Liberal candidate for Hamilton-Wentworth by-election, in outspoken terms accused Col. Price of having been aware of conditions in the G. A. Stimson Company eighteen months ago which precipitated its fraud only a week ago and the hands of its principal officers a few hours later. During the addresses of the three speakers copies of documents upon which the charges were voiced were waved before the audience which cheered and applauded uproariously.

JAMES GRIMMON WAS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Went Into Ditch on the Highway — In the Hospital

James Grimmon, master of the junior house at Albert College, was injured in an automobile accident on the King's Highway, west of the city last night and is now a patient in the General Hospital. It is believed Mr. Grimmon suffered a slight concussion, three or four fractured ribs and injury to one of his limbs. The other occupants of the car, including A. Reekie, driver of the motor car, were not seriously injured, escaping with bruises. The accident was primarily due to the slippery condition of the highway and everything possible was done to avoid the ditching of the car.

The party was proceeding from Trenton, reaching the Graham house, where a slippery patch of pavement was encountered. The car slued and the driver in an effort to straighten the course took to the shoulder of the road. The car was righted and came back on the road when another slippery patch caused the car to swerve again, turning around in the road and went into the ditch. The occupants were thrown about in confusion in the car. Mr. Grimmon suffering the most. He was taken to the hospital and is being attended by Dr. J. J. Robertson. The auto was considerably smashed.

PRICE HITS BACK AT PHILPOTT, SAYS BRITISH LIBERTIES HAVE "BEEN THROWN INTO THE DIRT"

Attorney General Will Not Discuss Stimson Case with Liberal Nominee

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP)—Striking back at his Liberal critics on the Stimson failure, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General today charged Mitchell Hepburn, Liberal leader, and Elmore Philpott, Liberal candidate in the Hamilton West by-election with "throwing into the dirt the time-honored principle of British liberty" in discussing a case that is now before the courts.

"As Attorney General I am not in a position to discuss any case that is pending before the courts," said Col. Price. "In the case of the failure of the Stimson Company, criminal charges are in the hands of the courts. The department of the Attorney General and the department of the Provincial Secretary will be prepared at the proper time to put all their evidence before the courts for proper decision. When that time comes it will be found that the Attorney General has taken ample action all along the line in the performance of their duties."

ALL-DAY INSTRUCTION IN ART, MANUAL TRAINING, HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE AT O.S.D.

This necessitated the transfer from the academic department of three teachers specially qualified for this work. The resulting vacancies have been filled by the appointment of Miss Totton and Miss Tett, both of whom were experienced, successful and highly esteemed members of the Belleville public school staff.

THE BULLETIN BOARD
Mainly About People You Know

DOGS IN POUND

The dog catcher reports that a black and white hound was captured yesterday while running at large and is now confined in the dog-pound. There is also a beautiful collie dog confined that would make an ideal dog for a farmer. The collie will be destroyed in two days if no owner can be found, while the hound has longer to abide on earth. The hound is probably a prized hunting dog and if your canine has not been around for a couple of days he can be found in the dog pound. The police do not wish to destroy these creatures but are determined dogs shall not run at large within the city limits.

FAIR BOARD MEETING

The organization meeting of the Belleville Fair Board will be held tonight in their rooms on Front Street, with President Hanna in the chair. The committees will be appointed and the directors will elect their secretary and treasurer for the year. Another director will have to be appointed to fill the vacancy caused through the death of W. Vallesu. It is not expected that the board will conduct any business tonight with respect to the fair for next year.

MOOSEHEART CARD PARTY

Women of Mooseheart Lodge No. 433 held a euchre party yesterday afternoon in the Moose Auditorium. There were nine tables of euchre and one of rummy. The euchre prizes were won by Mrs. T. Holland, first; Mrs. Merriman, second, and Mrs. J. Collins, third. The rummy prize went to Mrs. Brace.

INJURED BY PUCK

Mr. Richard Arnott, Albert Street, while playing hockey with the Hawks at Wellington last night, suffered a nasty injury when his cheek was gashed by a flying puck. But twenty seconds remained to play and one of the Wellington players lifted the puck which struck the player just below the eye. The game which was an Owl League fixture, was won by Wellington. It was marred by a continual downpour of snow.

LEG FRACTURED

When sleigh-riding on Sunday afternoon with a party of friends on a big hill on the third concession of Sidney, Miss Marjorie Calnan, 15-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Calnan, Trent Road, caught one of her legs on the ground, was dragged off the sleigh, which was moving at a fast rate of speed, and suffered a broken leg. Dr. J. J. Robertson of this city was immediately called and reduced the fracture. Today, Marjorie's mother said, the girl was resting quietly, although in some pain. It will be some time before she is able to walk again. None of the other members of the party were injured. Miss Calnan was visiting at a friend's home at the time of the accident.

WOMEN'S GUILD

The annual meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas Church was held in the Parish House on Friday afternoon, January 16th, at three o'clock, when the following officers were elected: Hon. Presidents, Mrs. Wilson Bird, Mrs. Gross. President, Mrs. Arnold Thomson; Vice-President, Mrs. Logie; Second Vice-President, Mrs. J. Tilley; Secretary, Miss A. Wallbridge; Treasurer, Mrs. C. Juby; Convener of Tea and Decorating Committee, Mrs. H. McGinnis; Convener of Visiting Committee; Mrs. F. C. Anderson.

WELLINGTON TEAM TO PLAY

Wellington is sending a team of hockeyists to Belleville tomorrow to play at four thirty o'clock at the arena against the picked team of the Y.M.C.A. The visitors will be entertained at the Y.M.C.A. The Wellington boys are a team sponsored by the Legion and is composed of members of the local organization.

TO PLAY IN KINGSTON

On Saturday morning Messrs. S. Elderce Chris Lewis and J. E. Shortt will take a picked team from the Ki-Y league to Kingston to play a team from Kingston City League at the Jack Harty rink in the inter-city Spalding League series. One team represents a city in this league which covers the entire province.

LOST TO WELLINGTON

The Hawks of the Owl League journeyed to Wellington last night and although the score was three to two, in favor of the opposition, it was no indication of the play. It looks as though we have picked up a real team in the Hawks.

As there are so many oldtimers it seems as though in each game they are improving. Keith Scott "Ramey" Arnott and "Jerry" Hurley along with "Dick" Arnott starred for the Hawks. Jim Jeffery refereed with Bert Smith official time keeper and "Eddie" Logan peacemaker.

INSURANCE FIRM EXPANDS

Mr. Howard Frost for a number of years associated with the late H. F. Ketchenson in the insurance business, has become associated with S. R. Burrows in the insurance business, founded many years ago by Mr. Stephen Burrows, known as "Burrows of Belleville" in the insurance and business world. This business which formerly specialized in life insurance only, has been expanded with the entrance of Mr. Frost as a partner and will handle fire, accident, automobile, and other lines of insurance. Mr. Frost is an able insurance man, is genial and courteous and has a wide circle of friends. In joining forces with Mr. Sandy Burrows, a strong combination will be formed.

ANNUAL MEETING TRENTON COUNCIL OF WOMEN HELD

Funeral of Mary Jane Waldron Held — King Street Church Tea

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 21—The 13th annual meeting of the Local Council of Women was held in the Town Hall here last evening and the reports of the various executive officers and affiliated bodies showed the council to be in a healthy and flourishing state. As a result it was thought inadvisable to make any radical change in the personnel of the executive, and the old officers were re-elected with the exception of the three vice-presidents.

Mrs. F. J. Farley was appointed to represent the Trenton Council at the Provincial Convention being held in Ottawa on the 4th and 5th of February. Mrs. James Reddick was chosen as alternative should circumstances arise to prevent Mrs. Farley from attending.

The treasurer's report showed a total of $3479.28 realized by the ladies through the medium of rummage sales, teas, home cooking, tag days and a $500 grant from the council. After all expenses had been met for the year a balance of $364.70 was on hand.

Considerable satisfaction was experienced by all in the splendid work being accomplished by the Victorian Order Nurse, Miss Haslam and her assistant, Miss Wintage, who reported a total of 4361 nursing visits during the past year. There were 535 free visits, 476 child welfare, 23 operations, 112 confinements, 227 instructive visits and 499 new cases reported. The Baby Clinic which is held weekly had an average attendance of 39.

Miss Laura Cummings, convener of the Welfare Depot not only desired to acknowledge the receipt of ten suits of underwear from the Toronto Red Cross society but wished to thank everyone for the splendid response to requests for help. A Halloween Tea and Sale of Home Cooking held by Miss Cummings at her home netted $42.50 while sewing parties at the homes of Mrs. J. McClockin and Mrs. H. Richardson resulted in many supplies for the nurse, inclusive of which were 22 nursing bags, 4 instrument cases, 12 sprays and 22 pneumonia jackets of assorted sizes.

The 1931 executive is composed of: President, Mrs. E. L. Fraser; first vice-president, Mrs. J. Redding; second vice-president, Mrs. O. E. Fortune; third vice-president, Mrs. F. J. Farley; corresponding secretary, Miss H. Driscoll; recording secretary, Mrs. F. L. Reid; treasurer, Mrs. T. McConville; League of Nations, Mrs. J. B. Murdoff; Public Health; Nurse Haslam; Citizenship, Mrs. W. Crowe.

At the meeting of the King Street United Church Ladies' Association yesterday afternoon it was decided to hold a Valentine Tea and Sale on February 13th at the palatial home of Mrs. A. W. Belleghem. As a means of increasing membership and consequently attendance the ladies were divided into two groups, Red and Green. At the end of the year the group showing the best attendance and membership record will be entertained by the losing ladies. The next meeting of the Association is to be held at the home of Mrs. F. Abbott, Division St.

The funeral of the late Mary Jane Waldron who passed away in Oshawa on Sunday at the age of 69 years was conducted from the home of the deceased's son, Arthur Waldron, Baptiste Street, yesterday. Interment was at the front of Sidney cemetery.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION MONTHLY MEETING

On Friday, January 16th, the month ly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held in the Y.M.C.A. building. Mrs. Farnsworth presided and opened with the use of the Crusade hymn, the repeating in unison of the pledge, the W. C. T. U. motto and the Lord's Prayer.

The minutes of the December meeting and the treasurer's report were received and adopted.

Mrs. Parker was in charge of the program and called for items of interest from different superintendents. Mrs. Hagerman read a paper on Citizenship. She pointed out that good citizenship was dependent on right ideals and courage to translate one's ideals into action; that a program of education was essential in order to create right ideals based on accurate knowledge; that this education was necessary for the youth and the adult alike. The highest kind of education is that which will make the youth of this generation honest, sober, peace-loving, law-abiding citizens.

The right of the franchise is a responsibility as well as a privilege and should be used to support only persons of sound character and moral purpose.

As good citizens we should be alert to protect the young people of our community from the danger of social drinking and the spread of unwholesome literature.

Mrs. Sprackett read a paper on the blessing resulting from a proper observance of the Sabbath. Mrs. Moore reported on the recent campaign carried on in the Sunday Schools of this district. Fewer papers were sent to the examining committee than last year but they were of a higher grade than hitherto.

Rev. Mr. McCutcheon was present and gave the Union a few words of encouragements.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. H. Hill contributed a delightful duet and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

PRAGUE HANGMAN MUCH IN DEMAND

VIENNA, AUSTRIA — Besieged by a crowd of women and girls at a small hotel where he was staying one day recently, Broumarsky, the hangman of Prague, was obliged to sign 300 picture postcards. These were afterwards sold at the cafes and restaurants at the Moravian Town of Zlaun, as a special occasion of the demand on Broumarsky followed the execution by him of a murderer named Zillinger at Znaim. Not only has he been in demand for his signature but offers of marriages have been numerous of late. He told a reporter recently that he had about 6,000 marriage proposals since he adopted his present profession.

"Those Three French Girls" Tickling Farce Talkie

Reginald Denny and Fifi Dorsay head a dazzling cast in "Those Three French Girls," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's captivating farce of life in Gay Paree, which will open at the Belle Theatre Thursday for two days, matinee daily.

The plot of this talkie farce, concocted by Dale Van Every and Arthur Freed, is reported to contain a laugh in every reel and a howl in every line of its dialogue, which was written, by P. G. Wodehouse, internationally known humorist.

The action centers about the funloving nephew of a British earl, played by Denny, who goes to Paris for a good time and finds it in the company of two American ex-doughboys and three charming mademoiselles. Complications occur when the nephew brings the girls to his uncle's home in the attempt to interest his rich relative in backing a modiste shop. All would have gone well had not the uncle fallen in love with the very girl whom the nephew had picked out for himself. But all the difficulties are ironed out in the end in a rollicking manner.

Cliff Edwards and Edward Brophy are supported to be nothing less than "a scream" as the two doughboys who want to see what Paris is like without M.P.'s; George Grossmith and Peter Gawthorne are said to be equally funny as the befuddled earl and his cockney butler respectively, while the remaining members of the girl trio, Yola d'Avril and Sandra Ravel, add their drolleries to the lot.

The Cosmopolitan production was directed by Harry Beaumont, who has incorporated a fashion show which is said to outdo even the lavish one of his recent success, "Our Blushing Brides." The picture boasts one song number "You're Simply Delish," composed by Arthur Freed and Joseph Meyer and used as a specialty by Miss Dorsay.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception last night wasn't much better, and it must be going into a decline by the looks of things. Oh, well, better times are coming — we hope and hope stirings eternal. How many stations piling in on top of each other last night, the same old fault, but outside of that the programs came in all right because there was plenty of power.

The news is definitely confirmed today that Maurice Chevalier is back on the air tonight, atta boy, Maurice give the ladies a treat. The time is 9.30, and the place is the studio of WJZ. He is the guest artist chasing the Pleasure hour tonight and the name is certainly appropriate. Reinald Werrenrath also takes part in the program, so tune in.

The Tea Timers at 5.30, first shot from WEAF and at 5.45 up the Rex Cole Mountaineers. Wednesday night always brings us Uncle Abe and David at 9.45 and there should be plenty of fun in this program tonight. Bobby Jones is the featured artist on a program at 8.00 from this same station and he has prepared a very interesting little golf chat.

Welcome Lewis and Sammy Herman take the air at 8.15 and "Bugs" Baer and his schoolgirl complexion voice will also be heard during the proceedings. The Old Councillor dispenses wise advice at 8.30 and Olive Palmer and the Revellers caper at 9.30.

Graniland Rice is interviewing W. L. Young" S'pinting tonight and if you want to hear it listen in at sharp 10.30. Chester Gaylord is soloist and Leonard Joy and his all string orchestra provide the latest in dance music.

Vincent Lopez draws us in like a magnet at 11.00 and Jack Albin doesn't do so badly with his bunch of musicians at 11.30. However with "Sweet Lady" ushering in another program by Florence Richardson our cup of joy runs over. The Smith Brothers are on the WJZ chain tonight at 7.45 and Horace Heidt and his Californians are heard at midnight.

YOUNG RECRUIT CANADIAN HERO

Boston Bruins Gain in American League Section by Beating Ottawa

New York, Jan. 21—Gus Rivers, young forward of the Canadiens of Montreal gave the Flying Frenchmen a 3 to 2 victory over the New York Rangers in an overtime National Hockey League struggle last night. The defeat dropped the Rangers into a tie with the Detroit Falcons for third place in the American division. With more than half the ten minute overtime period gone and both teams slowing down rapidly from their long, speedy battle, Rivers worked his way through the Ranger defence and got a tricky back-hand shot past Johnny Roach for the deciding goal. All three of the Canadien counters came on individual plays. Pete Lepine and Aurel Joliat scoring in the first period.

Despite the absence of their star, Howie Morenz, who is still in Montreal with sore back muscles, the Canadiens held their own from start to finish. It was only when they were two men short and the Rangers one shy at the start of the third period that Joe Jerwa scored the tying goal on Frank Boucher's pass. Boucher also assisted in the first counter, starting to Bill Cook to start the Rangers off ahead.

Detroit, Jan. 21—Philadelphia's National Hockey League cellar squad dropped another game last night, the Detroit Falcons trouncing them 5 up 2 in a game full of high and low spots. The Falcons had little trouble in piling up a five-goal lead in the first two periods after they relaxed, and the Quakers fought their way through the Detroit defence for two goals, one late in the second period and the other two minutes before play ended.

Eddie Goodfellow, Falcon scoring ace, boosted his season's total to 14 goals, and Cooper, McInenly and Filmore each scored. The Quaker goals came on the sticks of Jerry Lowrey, who played stellar hockey all evening, and "Peaches" Lyon, who tallied late in the game.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 21—The Boston Bruins gained further headway in the N.H.L. race here last night by topping the Ottawa Senators, 4 to 2 in a wide open and interesting game. It was an even contest until about midway through the second period, when Hal Darragh, Boston forward who was out three weeks with a leg injury, celebrated his return to the game by sushing an assist from Eddie Shore into the Senators' net and breaking a tie. Cooney Weiland, Boston ace, scored twice and the second tally, made early in the final session ended the scoring.

HAWKS AND LEAF'S KI-Y WINNERS

Two Fast Games Played Last Night—Kids Take Keen Interest

Two fast games of hockey were played in the Y.M.C.A. rink last night and keen interest was manifest in each. At Foster Ave. free rink the Maple Leafs defeated the Bantams by a score of 3-1. Billy Norman was the star of the Leafs, scoring all four goals on individual rushes. Billy Lewis counted two for the Bantams while Murray Clare notched the other one. The game was slowed up considerably by the falling snow and the ice surface was softened while the game was in progress. The Bantams got the first goal but the Leaflets, when they got under way made things hot for the Maniacs. Benny Fair refereed a good game.

The line ups were:

At Simpson's rink the Black Hawks took the measure of the Y.M.C.A. by a score of 5-0. It was a fast game but the Hawks were the best throughout. J Faux refereed.

Y.M.C.A.—Walter Gerow, Aylmer Hamel, Harry McCreary, Franklin Martin, Don McKinney, Clifford Bennett, Eddie Schreider, T. Sager.

Black Hawks—R. Hughes, Frankie Pepper, Ted Mowbray, Jack Hopkins, Billie Pepper, Harold Carruthers, Ted Hall, Edgar Muir, Bill Hanna.

On The Sport Trail

The game of games will be played tonight at Belleville when Belleville "Cheerios" and Queens seniors tie it to each other. This game will have a distinct bearing on the championship of the group and the locals are determined to win. The team is in first class condition and ready to battle the full sixty minutes. Belleville has a front line in Lorne Mulvihill and Smith that will compare with any senior line in the Province, while Holway and Montgomery form a hard hitting and clever defense. Jeffery in goal is equal to the best and with a sub line of Davis, Weir and Hull the team is well fortified. Smith has been going better in every practice and hopes to repeat his four goal rally of the first game. The team will be accompanied by the largest band of rooters that has left the city in some time for a sporting fixture and they no doubt will make their presence felt.

Queens will trot out practically the same team that performed in this city with the exception of Gib McKelvey who is expected to play. McKelvey is in his fifth year in medicine which is the hardest year of college life in this faculty and he feels that he gave enough time to sport, when he played with the football squad. Morris is sure that the Belleville team will not beat him for eight counters while the forward line think they can penetrate the defense of the Cheerios. It will be a great game no matter, which way one looks at the contest.

Belleville Cubs made many more friends by their game display last night and all are agreed if they reach the end of the road in a tie with Frontenacs they will take all the money. These line work was nearly perfect last night while the defense played sterling hockey. The Cubs have a number of sharp shooters on the squad, who can pick the corner at the first possible opportunity. They demonstrated they have courage and if they can continue the offensive on foreign ice it is just going to be too bad for the remainder of the teams in the group. On Friday night the team will play in Orangeville and will be without the service of Morton, their goalie. McElwain is ready for duty and he is no slouch in the nets and if given any protection will emerge with a win.

BRILLIANT COMBINATION SORTIES; TRICKY SHOTS SWAMPED QUEENS JUNIORS 11-0 AT LOCAL ARENA

Smart Offensive Work by Cubs Carries Play Deep Into the Scoring Zone and Visitors Became Demoralized — Daniels in Goal, with Arthurs on Point Line Best of Visitors — Every Member of Cubs Gave Finished Display. — Donnybrook Between Spectators and Queen's Players Nipped in Bub by Cooler Heads.

(by G. D. T.)

Oh no!.

Oh my!

Ain't that sumpin'!

Belleville Cubs are to be feared!

They demonstrated that little thing last night at the local Arena.

Outskating, outgeneralling and displaying more courage under fire, they swamped Queen's in a scheduled junior pastime 11 to 0, periods 1-0; 4-0; and gave notice they were going a-gunning for the group championship.

Their offensive gathered momentum as the game progressed and reaching the third frame, the Tricolor were completely demoralized. As a hockey team and were made to look vastly inferior to the squad they were betting.

The large crowd in attendance was treated to smart plays to no end and had plenty of tobacco thrown in for good measure. The game was handled by H. Jacobi of Toronto, but a more ill loaded ass if he had lost control. The players were not "tight batting" easily either but they were certainly matching cross checking and butt ending and both squads carried the marks of the tussle. Queen's started the ply digging and the Cubs struck back with considerable force and gave as much as they received. The spectators became embroiled in the tangle and for a time a donnybrook was threatened but cooler heads prevailed and the game went on. The Tricolor team have size, if they have not playing strength and they thought their size would stop the locals but the difference only acted the other way and the Cubs battled them up and down and in the middle of the ice pond and everyone was in high glee.

Roughness Not Condoned

Rough playing is not to be condoned nor do the majority of the fans uphold the actions of spectators jumping into an affair, that can well be handled by the officials in charge. The game meant, much to both teams and it can be concerned that the nerves were frayed and any unorthodox check would only be a spark that would start a real conflagration. Quieter heads prevailed including the coach of the locals, Stan Burgoyne, and the Queen's player was protected as he should have been against any attack by outsiders and the game went on to a successful and happy conclusion for the Cubs. By their win they kept pace with Kingston and it looks more and more that the game with the Frontenacs on February 13th will decide the championship of the group.

Queen's are not out by any stretch of imagination but they received a severe setback last night by a team that were their superiors from any angle one would care to view the game. Incidentally it can be said the Cubs played back to their real form and again it is hoped all the nice things that can be said will not have the same effect as it did in the Kingston game after they had taken the Toronto Canoe Club. Hockey games have to be won on the ice and in sixty minutes of hockey. Imputations do not win games but perfect co-ordination of the team, implicitly obeying the instructions of the coach.

Queen's Heavy Squad

The Tricolor team is the heftiest squad to shake in Belleville in the junior ranks in years but they lack one essential, that of speed. They were simply swept off their feet by the hurricane attack and quick breaks of the locals and they were a tired lot when hostilities ceased, much more so than the winners. Their defense of Democko and Kostuik are big, but they have not been properly coached in the art of checking an incoming puck-carrier, and a real referee would have them in the "cooler" all night for illegal work-in. They were positively crude at times. They carried their sticks high, cross checked at every opportunity, sticking in a few elbows for good measure. Daniels is good, but a real life saver for his team in the early part of the pastime and then became a human sieve as the locals worked in close quarters for their drives. The goalie was disgusted towards the end of the game and he ignored as he if one or more didn't matter. He made many clever saves in the game and many grooms were heard as he turned aside a drive when it appeared sure the red light would flash.

All Cubs Were Good

Up front, Arthurs, the regular centre, easily carried off the honors. He was a constant threat going and coming and showed heady all round hockey. His stick-handling was perfect at times, his best work being displayed when his team was short-handed. King and Morgan, on the left wing, Carman marring all his good work by petty roughness. Nesbitt was easily the best of the visitors and turned out by W. J. Elmer. Quinn being out of his class, Grattan did a lot of fancy skating and went nowhere.

Behind the star of the winners would be entirely unfair, but Doug Rumions with his four counters deserves a little mention. He played his best game since donning the Belleville spangles, always being in position to give or take a pass and he would have had more counters had some of the passes given him been delivered with more precision. "Pete" Morgan, suffering from a sore arm and a heavy cold, caught the fancy of the fans with his beautiful skating and lovely stickhandling. He scored three goals and one of them was a work of art. Rene St. Denis was also in the limelight and is the trickiest forward in the squad. He always goes into a defense with his head up and is liable to make a play that will break up the game at any moment. He scored two goals, one being a masterpiece, and only quick thinking on the part of the goalie, Daniels, saved another. His passes were well timed and accurate. Harry Morgan turned in a nice effort. Stanley and Bibby gave their best defensive plays of the winter and could easily outstrate anything that Queen's had to offer. Jimmy had a couple of chances to make passes that would have resulted in counters and the same goes for Sherry. Don Morton, in goal, was not as busy as Daniels at the other end, but he made several spectacular saves to keep his citadel intact, one being perfect in the third frame. McDonald has not rounded to form and Jimmy McGuire patrolled his wing like a veteran but was kept off the score sheet.

It would be useless to review the play as Belleville was always the master. It took sixteen minutes to land the first counter and it was a smart play, engineered by Sherry and completed by Rumions. Bloog opened the scoring in the second frame, Morgan playing a man short. St. Denis then came into the picture with a nice play Elmer handing him the rubber. Pete Morgan scored a pretty goal before the period ended when he circled the two Clothiths and waltzed in on top of Daniels to pick the far corner. Again Rumions took the track at the opening of the third canto, sailing an snake like drive past Daniels from the blue line. From then on it was just a procession, J. Morgan, St. Denis, H. Morgan, Sherry, J. Morgan and Rumions scoring in turn. Only one of the above mentioned tallies was made by combination. All the drives were in the unguarded corner of the twine. It was a pleasure to see the boys swing into line on plays and the wing man was invariably there, when the man came over.

The lineups and summary:

OSHAWA CURLERS GROUP WINNERS

Belair Tied with Judge O'Connor and Wray Lost to Potts

OSHAWA, Jan. 21.—Oshawa Curlers today qualified to represent this district in the tankard at Toronto on Feb .3, when they won the group honors. But three clubs showed up, and as the result each club was called upon to meet the other, with wins counting first and then points.

Oshawa, though, made sure of victory, for they won both their games. In the first game they defeated Cobourg, last year's group winners and Hamilton Trophy holders, by 15 shots. Cobourg then took on Belleville and won by 8 shots thus giving Oshawa a decided margin to work on against Belleville in the final game. The clubs would have been tied if Belleville had won by 7 shots, but Oshawa made sure of group honors by winning a close and interesting game before a large crowd by 1 shot.

MADOC EASY VICTORS OVER CAMPBELLFORD

MADOC, January 19th (By Mail)—The third game to be played in Madoc in the Trent Valley League, was between Campbellford and Madoc. The game was played before an enthusiastic crowd of over nine hundred people.

Referee Max Board of Peterboro, kept the game well in hand throughout.

The first period was featured by Andrew's rushes, and Hulin's spectacular goal tending for the home team. Campbellford showed some fast skating, and the defence proved a stonewall, until Old Evergreen Moon hit net with a fast one, making the first of the Boston Tigers, figured on the counter for Madoc. Ferd Ingram late relief line, and while much was expected of the "pro" product, outside of some fancy skating and taking Campbellford's only penalty in this period, he did not show much.

Five minutes after the play opened in the second period, L'Heureux carried the rubber through, and scored the second counter for Madoc. Campbellford showed themselves still disorganized. The play see-sawed back and forth from end to end, each team striving to be in on the count, and only the vigilance of the goalies kept the tally down. Several penalties were handed out to members of each team during this period.

The third period opened like a whirlwind. Hardly had the play opened, when Barkey for Madoc took the puck from near the home net, and ploughed his way to the Campbellford defence, passed it to Johnston on the right wing who flipped it into the twine for Madoc's third counter. Another counter came soon after when Andrews passed to L'Heureux, who shot giving Hespiratall little chance for action. In the last half of this period, Campbellford received their one and only tally through the effort of Ingram, who beat Hulin from close in, preventing a total shut-out for the evening.

The team work of the Madoc crowd has been much strengthened as the season has progressed, and all deserve credit. Hulin, as goal-tender, surpassed himself, though he is always hard to beat.

Final score 4-1 for Madoc.

Line-up for Campbellford—Goal Hepplintall; defence, McArthur and Colwell; centre, Whitton; wings McKay and Horkins, Subs Smith, Fleming and Ingram.

For Madoc— Goal, Hulin; defence, Barkey and Andrews; centre, L'Heureux; wings, Johnston and McGuire; subs, Watson, Moon and Henderson.

Campbellford—Goal, Churchill; defense, Carty and Jenkinson; wings, Brown and Burleigh; centre, Walsh; subs, Christie and Seeley.

Arenas—Goal, Churchill; defense, V. White and J. Hunter; wings, Latchford and Salisbury; centre, Wilkins; sub, Haley.

BAYSIDE CONGREGATION HELD MEETING

On Wednesday evening, January 14, a goodly number of the people of Wesley United Church, Bayside Circuit, met to conclude the year's business. Rev. J. R. Butler presided and Mr. H. M. Rutter was appointed secretary. This congregation has a fine spirit of loyalty and has manifested during the year excellent liberality to the varied interests of the church. The Women's Association with Mrs. F. Denyes as president, had a good year raising $183, paying for a piano for the use of the church. The W.M.S. under the leadership of Mrs. George Bush contributed $177 and the Mission Band held regular monthly meetings and sent forth to the branch a nice sum. The Sunday school maintained itself and gave contributions of $60, some of which went to the Hospital for Sick Children. Much regret was expressed when the capable Bible Class teacher, Mr. Everett Bush found it necessary for a time to resign her his resignation. The treasurer's report reported all bills met and a balance to the good. The M. and M. fund received good support from this congregation, almost $170 being contributed. The stewards are glad to report that the appointment's portion of the stipend $450, is in hand.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Stewards—F. Denyes, J. Fred Wilson, D. Gunn, H. M. Rutter.

Elders—Everett Rush, Don Gunn, Frank Reid, Geo. Bush.

Trustee Board Rep.—Philip Denyes.

Society Rep.—W. M. Rutter, A. L. Burke.

Sunday School Supt.—H. M. Rutter.

W.M.S. Pres.—Mrs. Geo. Bush.

Women's Association—Mrs. Allie Weight.

Mr. Wesley gives a cordial invitation to all to its Sunday services.

"Come on, Doc. I'll go to your home with you and pick these birds up."

"No, you shall not. I wouldn't let those two men over to you for ten thousand dollars. They're too—"

"Yes, they have guts. They can be trusted on a particular job I want to put through. Word of honour, Steve, I'll not pinch them. I just want to talk with them."

A block from Stephen's home Dan McNamara got out of his doctor's car. He had already received from Stephen Burt a description of the ground-floor plan of his house. And Stephen had agreed to leave his latch-key under the mat at the front door.

The chief watched Stephen put up his car and enter his home. A light was shining in the entrance hall, and this light Stephen, in accordance with the chief's instructions, switched off.

In about five minutes the chief saw this light switched on and off twice. That meant the doctor had received another telephone message. Then the light was switched on and off ten times. That meant the patient would arrive in about ten minutes, so Dan McNamara hid himself in the deep shadow of a tradesman's entrance at the side of a house across the street, and waited.

In ten minutes almost to the second a car with closed curtains drove up to the house and two men got out. The chief could see that one of them had to have assistance so the driver got out and helped the other man half drag half carry, the wounded man up the steps. Stephen opened the door and the three men entered; immediately Dan McNamara ran across the street and up the front steps behind them found the latch-key under the mat, opened the door and stepped inside. He could hear voices in Stephen's reception-room, so he drew his pistol and stepped silently up to the entrance of it.

"Put 'em up, boys," he ordered cheerfully. He drew back his left lapel and revealed his blue and gold shield. "No necessity to argue in the smoke. This isn't a hanging matter."

He forced the two unwounded men to stand with their backs towards him while he felt his facile hands over their persons and relieved each of a pistol. He "broke" both guns and placed the cartridges in his pocket.

"I beg your pardon, Doctor, for entering your house, unannounced, but you left your front door unlocked and as I couldn't resist, I had a notion these men might call upon you. Just to humor, because the warden tipped us off to watch the home of your office nurse, Miss Lanning. So, while watching the home of the servant I concluded to watch that of the master, also. Slit down, boys. Never mind us, Doc. The man on the table needs all of your attention. Pix him up nicely and let him lie there until I come back. He can't run away, and if he tries, don't you let him. You obey me; come with me down to the Central Office till I see if we have anything on you. I don't appear to have the honor of your acquaintance, but we'll look the Rogues' Gallery over and compare finger-prints. While there's life, there's hope."

"You're all wet, Chief," the driver of the car replied gertly.

"Perhaps— but not as wet as your friends.' And McNamara chuckled at his little joke. "You can't do forty an hour through the tide-rips off Alcatraz Island without throwing some spray. You got an open fireplace in your house, Doctor?"

Stephen saw that McNamara was pretending they had not previously met. "Yes, Chief, in the drawing-room. It's all warm."

"I want to warm these boys up and dry them out. They did good work this afternoon and they deserve good treatments. Drop this wounded man long enough to dig up a couple of stiff jolts of spiritus frumenti for my lads. Then you and I'll always warm a cold man from the outside in and from the inside out."

"Thank you, Chief," both men muttered.

The three retired to the drawing-room and the chief tossed one of the men a box of matches. "Fire up," he commanded. "Then draw yourself up to the blaze and drink the grog the doctor will give you. Where's your pal hit?"

"Top of the right shoulder, calf of the left leg and biceps of the left arm."

"So he's the chap that dragged Nance out of the water, eh? He was in the rear cockpit, but you were up front driving the boat. There are forty bullet holes in the rear of the boat." He sighed. "These machine-guns certainly spray things. You did not drop your own machine-gun overboard, either. A Tommy gun, and a Tommy man! Visiting brethren— from Chicago, I suppose. That's why we haven't met before. Pardon me a minute while I look for the machine-gun in your car. And if you want to die in a hurry just try beating it out the back way while I'm gone."

He returned in less than a minute with the one-man machine-gun in his hands. "We've got Nance Belden where you grouped him," he announced, "so while you're lapping up that whisky tell me all about it."

"So Nance told you where to look for us eh? The man who had handled the motorboat spoke with withering contempt and hatred. Instantly Dan McNamara stuffed him viciously on the side of the head.

"Apologize for that!" he roared. "You're so damned crooked you think everybody else is too."

The man mumbled an apology.

"No Nance didn't tell me you rat", McNamara went on "and I didn't ask her because I knew she wouldn't tell. But I did think she'd do you off to call on this doctor. You dropped her at the home of his office nurse; I put two and two together and decided to investigate—all by myself. And here we are. Got any idea why I came alone?"

"No."

"Because I wanted to save you from the consequence of the job you pulled off this afternoon. I'm in sympathy with that, and as far as I'm concerned Nance Belden isn't going back to San Quentin. And she isn't going back to your gang, either. Now, you play the game with me and I'll play it with you. Double-cross me and I'll hang something hard on you, and you and your friends won't be heard of in public for a long time."

INSTALMENT XI

"Nance had no right to be there," the man protested to McNamara, "The poor kid's queer." He tapped his forehead. "But she framed a sweet getaway, if it would work, and we figured it might. So we thought we'd give the girl a hand. She's all right. I've got a blind brother that would have starved to death if it hadn't been for Nance Belden; as for the man in the doctor's working over now. Nance took care of his wife while he was in stir. Helped her when she had a baby. Chief, that girl's a saint. The only trouble with her is that she's a devil to. You never know how to figure her.

"You've figured here right. She's queer. And what's your wounded friend been doing since he got out of stir? What did he get in for?"

"He got in for bootlegging and he's the bodyguard for a boss bootlegger since he got out."

"Sh-sh-sh! And what's your specialty?"

"I don't know what line I'll take up, Chief. I've only been out of the United States Army Disciplinary Barracks on Alcatraz Island a month. I was a soldier—and I poked at officer."

"Oh, you're the machine-gunner, eh? Learned to shoot in the Army, I suppose?"

"If I hadn't, I'd have killed that guard. I would have gotten him if I cared to but instead I scared him with seven rnd shorts. Did I sweep the roof of that lookout tower?"

"You certainly did——and rattled the man at the Browning gun there. Well, you're quite a fellow! What does your friend, the chauffeur, do?"

Delivering bootleg .He took a chance for a friend."

"You may go," said Dan McNamara to the chauffeur. "Take your car and beat it. But I'll remember you and if you pull any rough stuff in this city I'll land you out in the grass. Be careful."

The man fled promptly, and Dan turned to the ex-soldier. "I've got Nance out at my country home," he explained "Dr. Burt has fixed her up and I'm not going to turn her in. Neither am I going to turn her out because she might wouldn't be out two hours before she would be picked up. That middle nose of hers is a dead give-away."

"The man nodded lugubriously.

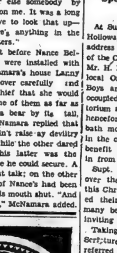
"We've got to find a quiet spot for your friend, too," the chief went on meditatively. "A man with three bullet-holes in him is an embarrassing fix——when he's wanted. So we'll take him out to my house, too. That's the only safe place I can think of."

"How about me?"

"You've been a soldier, so I suppose you can carry out orders?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well your orders are to come out to my house, too, and take care of your friends. The doctor will call every day and tell you what to do. And you will have to do the cooking."



"I can do that, too. Not fancy, but they can eat it."

"All right, you've got a job and a holing-up place as well. I'll go home now and get my car and come back for you and your friend. Meanwhile don't you get cold feet and disappear. I want to talk to you some more. I want to find out all about Nance Belden, and you and your friend might be able to give me a line on her."

"I don't know anything about her, Chief, except that her real name is Penelope Gatlin."

Dan McNamara clasped his corrugated brown both hands and pondered. "Gatlin! Gatlin! Penelope Gatlin! Now, where have I run across that name in my business? I don't usually forget names, and I seem to remember I had a call once for somebody by that name or else somebody by that name called on me. It was a long time ago. I'll have to look that up. I wonder if there's anything in the files at headquarters."

It was midnight before Nance Belden's two friends were installed with her in Dan McNamara's house Lanny looked both men over carefully and confided to the chief that she would not trust either one of them as far as she could throw a bear by its tail, to which Mr. McNamara replied that one of them couldn't raise an eyebrow if he wanted to, while the other dared not. Moreover, this latter was the only practical nurse he could secure. A trained nurse might talk; on the other hand, this friend of Nance's had been educated to keep his mouth shut. "And is very great virtue," McNamara added.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

His freedom is in my keeping and my honor is in his, so we have to trust each other. Besides, it's high time you got him."

"How about those two cops waiting for me?"

"Greet them kindly ask them their business and invite them to talk it over. Before they can tell you what it is. When they tell you permit them to search your home and be cheerful about it."

The phone rang and Dan answered it. When he rejoined Lanny he was smiling broadly. "You're a bum mopper-up" he accused. "That was Flynn one of the detective-sergeants on watch at your house. He found two drops of blood you overlooked so he thinks you and Nance are in the house but refuse to answer the bell and he wants permission to break in, in the name of the law. He says he can slide back on page from door-lock like nobody's business. I told him to wait another hour and then try it, but to be careful."

Lanny's independent and belligerent nature was instantly aroused. "If I couldn't give a shopper like that cards and spades the four aces, big and little casino, and beat him to death on the sevens, I'd kiss a cow," she declared. "I guess I'll go home and make those big boobs feel ashamed of themselves for disturbing a lady."

"Whatever you do, be nice to them," he warned earnestly. "If you get snooty with them, Lanny, they'll just waltz you down to Central Station and keep you away for the night——with the excuse that the chief wants to see you. And I've decided I don't know you. If I did I'd go home with you."

He escorted Lanny out to her car and with a flash-light examined it carefully again for signs of blood He found two dried splotches and wiped them away before permitting her to depart.

At Lanny entered the driveway and paused in front of her garage, there were no detectives in sight, although there might have been had she deemed it the part of wisdom to glance carefully about her. She unlocked the garage door, climbed back in her car, drove in, stopped the motor and gathered off the lights. Then she got out, closed and locked the garage door and turned on an electric light switch on the door- post to light her way upstairs to her kitchen.

O. S. D. STUDENTS ATTEND CHURCH

H. B. Fetterly, M.A., Was the Speaker at Holloway St. Church

At Sunday morning's service in the Holloway Street United Church, an address upon the missionary program of the Church in Canada was given by Mr. H. B. Fetterly, M.A., Supt. of the local Ontario School for the Deaf. Boys and girls from the institution occupied front seats of the auditorium and the Supt. announced that henceforth they will attend each Sabbath morning various worship places in the city, in order that such might benefit them instead of being shut in from the outside world.

Supt. Fetterly expressed gratitude over the innovation of his scholars that Christmas gone by having visited their home associations afld in many being entertained here among invited guests.

Taking as a text Acts I, 8 from the Scriptures lesson read, Mr. Petterly referred to the great commission of command of Christ to His followers. It even runs as a humorous thread through the Bible as a missionary appeal. "Canada was once the uttermost part of the earth and even a lot to old country influence and foreign missionary effort. Denominational over-lapping had by the United Church in Canada been minimized in the amalgamation of 600 hitherto manned stations into 300 places, thus releasing workers for other fields and reducing overhead. Since June 1925 the date church union was consummated, 500 stations had become like-wise self supporting and 400 new fields established particularly in Northern Ontario."

Mr. Fetterly dwelt upon the importance of Christianizing all our immigrants and new comers especially to mining areas. He ardently champions the benefits to be derived from good old races of Europe.

"The United Church of Canada carries on work throughout the world in 35 languages, 25 of which are spoken in our Dominion. Four fifths of 5000 preaching places covered are in Canada. Ninety hospitals are maintained in home and foreign fields as healing agencies of the Master. It is up to professing Christians to carry the torch of salvation and to keep burning bright the gospel light. Ten cents a week from church members on the average would furnish a missionary and also to the givers. Then not a few but many would share in the glory of achievements. Our prayers will rise no high as we lend them by our interest and sacrifice." was the closing admonition of Mr. Fetterly.

Rev. J. B. Neal pastor of the church conducted the service and the choir under the leadership of Mr. E. G. Moynes with Mr. Alec Gordon at the organ led in most fitting music.

THE CENSUS

The ten year period of time has passed which brings about the census-taking. Ten years ago Canada's population was given as 8,788,483 and today it is thought it will be in the vicinity of 9,797,000 or practically ten million. In 1871 the population was 3,485,761. The census is a big question, it is more than counting of noses, according to the Montreal Gazette, it is a real stock-taking and inventory of the people and their affairs.

THE MARKET BASKET

The question of the market basket of the individual citizen looms large even in normal times for even the small or moderate income families. Today many are spending almost half of their reduced income for food, though everything except meats and a few other commodities can be bought at a much lower figure than they could one year ago. Hence the food budget is an ever present spectre in the minds of the heads of the families in the larger cities.

To aid such families Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the United States home economics bureau at Washington has drawn up a low cost guide, says the New York Times. The schedule she suggests follows these lines: "A number of five children may see to it that they herself and her husband have a sufficiently varied and nourishing diet if she follows the suggested schedule. Milk is made the essential, a quart a day being recommended for children less than two years old, with a generous supply for the rest of the family. Foods supplying protein are comparatively expensive if limited to meat, fish and eggs, but this essential may be supplemented by dried beans, peas and peanut butter. Vegetables are not omitted from the list. The housewife should keep on hand several cans of tomatoes, to be used when oranges and other fruits are dear, since they provide the same food value.

"Many women who try in good times and bad to keep their food budget down and at the same time offer nourishing and attractive meals will be glad to have a copy of the new food guide. No prices are given, because costs vary so much throughout the country. But a careful estimate of the required amount of every item is given. There are also numerous menus and recipes suggested. Housekeepers who have always been prudent will welcome the bureau's assistance, and those now driven to careful management should find it a present help in time of trouble."

THE MEN OF '38

A glance over the muster roll of the men who went to the St. Lawrence River from 1837-1838 to serve in the event of outbreak shows that the men who were ready to fight in those days were men of means, of property and of real standing in the community. A story in today's issue gives some facts of the life history of a few of the volunteers of the Old Hastings Rifle Company.

Many men of property were numbered in the muster of the Rifles, men who subdued the civil law of Belleville.

Many of the names are familiar to old-timers yet, but the list creates a sad impression of the wear-and-tear of time on the families of Belleville. Many of the names have no counterpart now, the descendants of the old pioneers have either moved away or the families have passed out. But with all this many of the names are known to the public and are among the most treasured names in local annals.

The men of 1838 may have looked forward to a century ahead and thought of the thirties of the nineteenth century but what they saw in their mind's eye was the succession for none of them could know what things would look like today.

A roster of the names of the leading citizens of today will sound unusual a century hence. What will Belleville be in the year 2031? No one dare tell. It might seem easy for us looking backward to say Belleville's development in the century has been quite natural but the transformation which has come in the past twenty years is great let alone that of a whole century.

But though times change and customs change, there is one thing that lasts out the centuries, that is the spirit of the people. These old Belleville men of the eighteen thirties had the right spirit and they would undoubtedly have been pleased could they see what their successors in the year 1931 are like. They would realize that the men who served in 1899-1900 and in 1914-1918 were "of the breed."

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONERSHIPS

Stratford, one of the best cities of Western Canada has seen wise to appoint an industrial commissioner at a salary of four thousand dollars a year. Stratford is progressive and sees with all its development the importance of the commissionership in order to foster and secure the addition of new industries. It was not long ago Toronto added the industrial commissionership office to the civic offices there.

This is encouragement for such cities as Belleville who some years ago decided on this method of bringing the advantages of Belleville to the fore and into the minds of the men who make the industrial life of Canada and the near Republic. The result in Belleville has been to the advantage of the city.

LOVE'S WAY

Oh, Love that is too deep, too dear
For any song or sigh.
How could I hope my Love would hear
As she passed by?

How could I fancy she would guess
What I could never tell,
Or know the wealth of tenderness
I hid so well?

I went not knocking at her door,
I sent no roses sweet:
But, ah, my heart lay prone before
Her dancing feet!

How could she know my world was dim
Except for where she smiled,
And that I saw all shadows grim
By her beguiled?

I cannot gues ho wit could be
She knew all I would say,
She read the heart, the soul of me;
It is Love's way!

COLORED CLOTHES

Those genial writers of our fashions, the members of the International Association of Clothing Designers, have informed the world that the fascinating colour of the well-dressed young man's clothes for the coming spring and summer will be green. There is nothing in this announcement to cause any general upheaval. After all, green has been an accepted colour for men's suits for many years. The precise hue promised—bottle green—is somewhat lighter than that to which we have been accustomed, but green and green it will be—been the prevailing colour. But why should it not be—or crimson, or sky blue, or brick red, or lilac, or violet, for that matter? After all, colour is the factor that takes the monotony out of life.—Montreal Star.

CHALLENGE OF THE NORTH

There appears to be a special pathos about winter tragedies in the far and frozen North. Stranded for days in getting themselves to an Indian camp, and later the discovery of a canoe embedded in the ice of a lake, told a grim story of the suffering and death of a lone traveller. Recently scribbled notes found in a deserted cabin beside the body of a fur trader-explorer who sought to make a 300-mile trek with but two weeks' rations provided further proof that the North country accepts no discounts on those who dare to conquer it in the winter season.—Mail and Empire.

AUTOMOTIVE OVERHEAD

If every soul in Ontario were required to be in motorcars at a given time, and if a passing fairy were on hand to board the ark, it could probably be done. A report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows that provincial density here of 6.9 persons per motor vehicle, including buses and trucks. The average for Canada is 10.1 motor vehicles to the 8.2 persons, the registration being 1,195,594 for 1929, and more, no doubt, now. Canada's people ranks in density fifth or sixth in other country except the United States and Hawaii, and only three countries, the United States, United Kingdom and France, have a larger number of motor vehicles, irrespective of population. Total revenues collected by all governments on motor vehicles in 1929 were $41, including $22,511,473 from licences permits, tax on buses and trucks, and $18,746,000 from gasoline taxes. The total would be larger in 1930, if only by reason of Ontario's five-cent gas tax. But taking the 1929 total and adding $25,757,441 collected by the federal government in import duties and excise tax, we get an "overhead" of $66,757,441 which is $55.85 per head and averages about $7 for every man, woman and child in Canada.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

A LESSON FROM GREECE

Sir William Clark, High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, has performed many valuable services by his addresses since coming to the Dominion. He was also an interpreter for the Motherland, and his words are both informing and reassuring. In his recent speech at Ottawa he drew a lesson from Greece which is far from the fate of ancient Greece. "No other nation has had so profound an influence, direct or indirect, on the culture of posterity, or has so enriched the language and enlightened the thought of mankind," he said of William. But, as Shelley, said, the sun of her dominion failed. And why? "The chief weakness lay, I think, in this: that the Greek people were never able to work together, never learned the lesson of unity and cooperation," said Sir William. The Greek mind was obsessed by a narrow conception of the city as the ultimate State."—Toronto Globe.

NOT MUCH OF A RUSH

It will be recalled that when the new legislature met before parliament, there was a strong fear that it would cause a tremendous increase in the number of divorce applications. So far, however, that expectation has not been justified. Reports of supreme court sessions in various parts of the province have revealed remarkably few people anxious to take advantage of the new divorce law. If anything, people have been more inclined to come forward when they realized that their applicants would be tried in open court, and would be subjected to an amazing lot of hard and fast rules. That apparently, has been a restraining factor, and it would be a good thing if that were the case. Divorce is the very best, divorce is a sorry business, looked upon in these days as a necessary evil, but, nevertheless an evil which should never be allowed to have a large part in the social life of Canada.—Oshawa Times.

Bones of Tecumseh

Easula, Ont.—New light was shed upon the week-end on the discovery of Tecumseh's bones on Walpole Island when Corporal Thomas Corless, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and Chief Investigators Saturday in unearthing the remains of the great Shawnee Chief who died while leading the Indian bands who were allied with the British forces in the war of 18-12-13-14.

The remains of a person, said to be those of the Indian leader, were uncovered in a shallow grave beneath a log, close to the former village, which by the Indians was assisted by Walter Wright, Robert Williams, Sampson Sands, and Silas Shobway of the reserve.

The bones have been placed in the care of the police pending an effort by the Walpole Soldiers' Public Relief Committee funds for the establishment of a memorial to the noted warrior.

INQUIRY BEGUN

An inquiry was begun Saturday into the report that bones, which are believed to be the remains of Tecumseh, had been discovered in the attic of the residence of Mrs. Sarah White, aged widow of the former Indian Chief, Joseph White. In the search for evidence it was learned that the bones were not those of the gallant Indian warrior and subsequent investigations revealed the true bones buried in a parcel tied burlap sack. Whether or not the first set of bones are human or animal is not known but it is believed they were kept in the house by Chief White as a cherished flage, in the event of an attempt being made to steal the remains of Tecumseh.

Identity of the bones as those of the great chieftain was made by marks of a fracture of the leg Tecumseh when a young man, joined his elder brother on an expedition to the West.

During a chase for buffalo he suffered a fractured leg from which he recovered several months later. The mark of the healed bone was plainly visible. Statements given by Silas Shobway also substantiated the claim that the remains were those of Tecumseh.

Shobway, who is the step-son of the former Chief White, said that his wife's father and mother resided in the house in which he and his family are living. He explained that the chief told him that in May, 1910, he, Chief White; William Sands and Lightning Dodge went to Wallaceburg and reclaimed the bones from Dr. Mitchell, Indian physician, who, with several other white people had removed them from the grave on St. Anne's Island. On return to Walpole Island the three chiefs separated and each man took a different route to reach the village. This was done so as not to arouse suspicion. The bones were taken to Chief White's home and later interred.

Opinions of Our Readers

To this column the Ontario Intelligencer invites letters on matters of public interest. The letters should not be too lengthy and should be of such a character as to interest the public. There are many problems on which the individual voice should be heard. Letters should bear the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a sign of good faith. The Ontario Intelligencer reserves the right to refuse publication of letters deemed as not in the public interest or as too personal in character.

—The Editor.

Belleville, Jan. 21, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

In the read articles by "veteran" ress of this and "Citizen" issue of 19th with interest.

Will you kindly permit me space in your valuable paper to say some thing also in regards to Memorial Park as a site for the Soldiers' monument.

Veteran speaks of this site and the neighborhood in general as very unsuitable.

I consider him as too particular. Every town likes beauty spots and parts of interest scattered all around not to have everything of interest in just one locality. It is an old parochial idea that visitors just be one locality and very seldom visit the other parts of the city as there is nothing to see.

"Citizen" speaks of the traffic as being very heavy on Canniton and Station Roads. It certainly is, Canniton Road is one of the big arteries leading to and from the North country and Station Road is also only on a two mile drive from the town than makes up on account of its being the main road for people arriving and departing at the North Station of the C.N.R. The Park is between these two roads. Of course nearly everybody knows that within three minutes walk of the Park is the C.N.R. depot and adjacent to that we have the second largest round house of the C.N.R. System with 42 stalls for housing the big locomotives. The number of the employees reside in the ward where this Park is. As an industry in regard to repairs of the many rails the C.N.R. has all the rest of the industries in Belleville in the shade.

It would be a gracious act to the residents of Belleville when the monument was erected there, Many of their men-folk died "over there." No doubt in the near future the present depot will be replaced by a beautiful edifice.

For many years that part of the city was sadly neglected and almost forgotten except when assessments were made, taxes collected and votes solicited.

Remember those people of the C. N. R. and others there pay a large amount in taxes to the city and monthly all their money is spent in the city. I personally consider a monument in that site as an asset to the city in general.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space, I am,

Yours sincerely,

"Tax Payer."

THE NEW ORDER

Science can do much, and has done much, but, divorced from the spiritual, it is a weak reed upon which to lean. Materialism has run rampant, had its wild fling and left little to rejoice about, and thoughtful men are turning again to the old verities, but, with a somewhat enlarged outlook and a different outlook. Yet, after all, as Dr. Bland asks, is the outlook really different, or have we not rather been misinterpreting the divine message? In this period of change and transition, it is comforting to find such leaders of scientific and social mechanicians as Jeans and Eddington, as Einstein and Millikan, pronouncing the ban on a materialistic conception of the universe and upholding those who see in all things a spiritual significance. Why should not the scientists, the thinkers, the economists, the social reformers join forces with the churches in a universal campaign for progress and right—Hamilton Spectator.

MINISTERS' SALARIES

A statement was made a short time ago by Leo Bouchard, the senior examiner of the Civil Service Commission, who has not received due attention which it deserves. Speaking at Ottawa, he declared that proper adjustment of the Civil Service would effect an annual saving of $20,000,000 to the country. Centralization of services, appointment of Parliamentary under-secretaries, extension of the merit system, and rearrangement of personnel in many departments, Mr. Bouchard declared, are all necessary to raise the general standard of the service and lower the total cost of $117,000,000 including for 80,000 employees now being borne by the nation.

MOHAWK BRANCH WOMEN'S AUXILIARY SURPRISE PRES.

Tyendinaga, Jan. 20—On Wednesday last a number of members of the Mohawk Branch of the Women's Auxiliary gathered at the home of their president, Mrs. E. Amey and presented her with a handsome gift as a token of gratitude for her untiring and unselfish devotion to their society throughout the past year. They also remembered Mr. Amey with a small gift.

A very suitable address was read by Mrs. Norman Armitage and although Mrs. Amey was taken completely by surprise she replied briefly yet feelingly, to show that she appreciated their kindness and in still very interested in the work she expressed a wish to have the number of members doubled this year.

The day was a successful one and ended with Mr. Amey inviting his guests to join in an oyster supper and spend the evening in dancing and playing cards.

January 14, 1931.

Dear Mrs. Amey:—

It is a pleasure indeed, that we, the members of the Women's Auxiliary, meet in your hospitable home this afternoon, to extend to you our affectionate regards as our President, and to wish you the Season's compliment. We have watched with joy, gratitude, and a pardonable pride, the doubling of our membership since you became our leader, and our interest and work for Missions has continued unabated. Much of the success that has crowned our efforts has been due to your untiring, unselfish service, your willingness to help any of us who have sought your advice, and your zeal for the cause of Missions.

Not in the spirit of offering you a reward—for such services as you have rendered the W.A. can only be adequately rewarded by Him whose work we are striving to do—but merely as a token of our good will, loyalty and affection to our President, do we present to you this chair, hoping you will enjoy its comfort, and as a reminder of your large and happy family in the W.A.

Signed, on behalf of us all—Herbert Pringle (Rector), Mrs. Wm. Smith, Susan Burgess and Mrs. Nelson Lott.

Ontario Man Speaks With Great Enthusiasm

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbetton, Ont. Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been working at brick and stone work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty stiff work on the back. Kidneys and Backache, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following years—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. Eat lots work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills in my means. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

VIOLA'S CARD

by Richard Espey

Paul and Marie Lawrence, six months married, were pointed out by all their friends as perfect examples of marital happiness. There was never a whiff or tiff to mar their domestic felicity. Paul Lawrence, an up and coming member of the bar, was definitely on the road to eminence and prosperity. His wife was a charming and personable entertainer, and the two moved in the best social set of the suburban town where they lived.

A good housewife, Marie was economical enough to do without a maid in their modest home. She could read Paul's breakfast in the morning, kissed him goodbye, and saw to it that he caught the eight-fifteen train for the city.

This particular morning, after seeing him off, she set about her household tasks with a vim and vigor that only a young woman might muster. Birthdays still held a glamour for her, reminiscent of childhood days. Tomorrow, Wednesday, she would be twenty-two. It was nice to be married to Paul, to be happy and contented, and to be .....only twenty-two. They were having a small dinner party Wednesday night to properly observe the occasion.

Interrupted by a knock at the kitchen door, Marie went to answer it. It was the truck from the cleaners and she remembered that Paul's dark suit was to be pressed that day.

Hurriedly, she went to the bedroom and took it down from the closet. With nimble fingers she began to empty the pockets. All, save one, were empty. From the vest she extracted a small card. In a woman's handwriting the words scribbled on it came to her eyes:

Call about seven Wednesday.

Viola.

In a daze she took up the suit and gave it to the boy from the cleaners. The card she still held in her hand. After the boy had gone, she read it again.

"After all," she said aloud, "it's only a card. Perhaps she's getting a new stenographer."

Righteously she attempted to put the incident from her mind, but the attempt was hopelessly futile. Those words, the feminine scrawl were always before her, and her mind was bewilderingly filled with possible conjectures as to the import of the card.

"Wednesday night. ...At seven." She tried to remember if Paul had stayed downtown of late for any obscure reason. He hadn't. But it might be a new acquaintence ....She would soon know.

Her day was thoroughly spoiled. To ask him what it meant, or to let it go? That was the all perplexing question. If he really did have a clandestine appointment, he'd lie if he did to rely upon such inquiries. Marie hated herself for that. To suspect her husband.....Infamy! But the card? The dilemma was maddening.

At dinner that night she was outwardly calm, but inwardly her curiosity was raging.

"Everything all right at the office?" she asked with assumed casualness.

Paul looked up from his after dinner cigarette and smiled. "Of course, honey. Why do you ask? Need money for a new dress?" he said banteringly.

Feigning indifference, Marie shrugged her shoulders. "No; but isn't it a wife's duty to keep herself informed as to how her husband is getting on?

Paul arose from his chair, came over and kissed her. "And I don't know of anyone who does it better than you, old lady. Are we all set for the party tomorrow night?"

"I'm planning dinner about eight."

"Eight o'clock, eh? I'll try to be here on time but I've a very important engagement at seven o'clock that must be kept. But don't worry, I'll be here as soon as possible."

It was on the tip of Marie's tongue to bring the matter to a point then and there, but she passed up the chance. If Paul had such fearfully important engagements, why did he have to make them on the evening of her birthday? Humiliating indeed!

Shortly before eight o'clock Wednesday evening, Marie received her guests. Paul had not yet arrived and she was justly angry with him. It was nothing less than an insult for her husband to hold up a dinner party in her honor while he saw some woman....Likely as not, he was even taking the woman out to dinner!

At eight o'clock the phone rang. It was Paul.

"Hello, Marie?"

"It's eight o'clock," she said icily. "Everyone is here."

"I'll be out on the next train, the eighty twenty-two I don't want for me—"

"We won't!" she assured him tartly. Wait for him? Not on her life! Thus the dinner party began with a chair conspicuously vacant, and Marie struggling desperately to conceal her irritation.

At eighty thirty Paul arrived, profuse with apologies which were received acceptably by all the guests, but not so cordially by Marie.

"My excuse is as good d as any," Paul argued, approaching his wife. "I couldn't very well come home without a present for you, could I, Marie? Better not to have come at all. But I'm here and with the present too." He gave Marie a neatly wrapped package.

Undoing it, Marie opened the box to bring forth a very exquisite jade necklace that was instant approval with the assembled guests. But Marie was yet to be convinced. Was Paul trying to placate her with such a gift?

Paul continued his explanation. "The jade had to be fixed on the necklace by a special workman.....He's been at it all day. Didn't get done till seven."

Seven, thought Marie? And in sudden inspiration she looked at the name on the card. There it was in embossed letters of gold: VIOLA, INC. OBJETS D'ART.

Almost tearful, but radiantly happy she threw her arms about Paul. "You're a darling!"

And to herself she vowed that he would never never know about the card!

SERVING VEGETABLE PLATES AT HOME

By Hannah Wise

"Vegetable dinners" and "vegetable purees" are rapidly becoming one of our national dishes, due no doubt, to the large variety of vegetables, both fresh and canned, which we can buy all through the year that, even so, ingenuity is needed to make a collection of cooked vegetables really interesting. When you plan them as the main course, you keep three things in mind.

First, always plan a contrast in color. There are many colors to choose from—the red of tomato the delicate green of peas, the deeper green of the leafy vegetables, the yellow of carrots, the white of cauliflower, the golden brown of French fried potatoes, and so on.

Be sure, too, to select vegetables of contrasting flavor—such as peas (a bland vegetable), cauliflower (strong flavored), and tomato (acid).

The third and last suggestion is to use different methods of cooking — a plate consisting of boiled vegetables is painfully uninteresting; bake one vegetable but another, fry or scallop a third.

Vegetable plates are just as good, and far easier to prepare, if they consist of possibly four vegetables. To make a vegetable plate more substantial, add potatoes—baked, au gratin or French fried; or rice, spaghetti, macaroni or noodles; or serve a creamed vegetable in patty shells. Garnish with parsley or watercress; slices of red apple; grated cheese; croutons; or toast points.

TRY THESE COMBINATIONS

Cauliflower with mock Hollandaise sauce, broiled tomatoes, buttered peas.

Chopped and buttered spinach, carrot balls, baked onion stuffed with buttered and seasoned crumbs.

Cream corn glazed sweet potato, but tered string beans.

Shirred stuffed peppers (with rice), grilled eggplant buttered beets, coleslaw with Russian dressing.

Baked tomato with grated cheese asparagus, lima beans.

Baked carrots stuffed with onions, baked potato (in half shell).

Fried medallions of tomatoes, onions and green peppers; wax beans, asparagus with browned butter.

Green peas steamed with mushrooms, whole corn, sauted buttered greens with chopped egg.

Asparagus, whole brown, potatoes, Swiss chard and scallions, carrots.

Today's Verse

SUNRISE AND SUNSET

I'll tell you how the sun rose—
A ribbon at a time.
The steeples swam in amethyst
The news like squirrels ran.

The hills untied their bonnets,
The bobolinks began.
Then I said softly to myself,
"That must have been the sun."

But how he set I know not.
There seemed a purple stile
Which little yellow boys and girls
Were climbing all the while

Till when, they reached the other side
A dominie in gray
Put gently up the evening bars,
And led the flock away.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

With the midwinter social season in full swing fashions are seen at their best, and, this year evening fashions are particularly alluring. The dance floor has all the enchantment of an old time ballroom. Frocks have gone back to the Victorian era for elegance and charm, and the result is some very dainty creations.

The latest dance brought forth many new style ideas, and many delightful variations of the modes that were heralded in the early winter as being Fashion's favourite. Monday's dance saw gowns of beauty and grace. They were in every shade, in pastel tones, in the bright jewel shades and in the important black or white. Gloves of white kid were worn with black dresses, and black ones complemented the white or delicate toned costumes. An innovation was the use of net gloves, fingerless, tinted in a shade to match the gown with which they were worn. In this particular instance the gown was of palest shell pink. Black lace evening gloves with a black lace dress was another smart fashion note.

Beside the satin gowns, and those of lace, there was much net seen, particularly when forming the skirts of princess line frocks. The net made the skirts billow and foam, and the effect was very appealing. A rather unusual dress was of black with a little white peplum formed by rows of white net. Another frock gave the effect of a pantelette costume. It wide skirt was of net, over a foundation of satin that ended in tiny frills of net that just showed under the edge of the skirt. This model was in banana heart shade.

Fashionably yours,
LUCILLE.

Correct Manners

The Nose of Announcement

By Mrs. Cordelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I shall be engaged next month and as I have very few relatives and friends, I wonder whether it would be considered "proper" were I to write each one individually of the engagement instead of sending out announcements. I have always heard of printed announcements and am therefore skeptical as to whether my way would be correct. If it is, how should I word the note?

S.W.

Your way—writing notes telling your relatives and friends of your engagement—is the correct way of making this happy announcement.

It is not good form to send formal announcements of an engagement.

It would be natural for you to tell by word of mouth your close relatives and your closest friends. Then you write notes to those who live too far away to be told, or those who are lers close in friendship.

In your note tell of your engagement, and tell some charming things about your fiance. Say, too, naturally, to those friends who have not met your fiance, that you hope that they soon will meet.

Th "Bread and Butter Note"

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1 What is the bread-and-butter note?

2 When dining in a restaurant and the meal is served from a side dish, how do you put the gravy from the side dish on your dinner plate?

3 At a dance, when the young man takes the young lady he has just danced with back to her place and thanks her for the dance what reply should she make?

G.A.T.E.P.U.L.

1 The note of appreciation of hospitality that we write after we have made a visit, is usually referred to as the "bread-and-butter letter". In it we tell our hostess what a good time we have had at her house, how much we appreciated her giving a party or parties for our happiness, how much we enjoyed meeting her friends, and any other comment of appreciation that we think is appropriate.

2 With the service spoon. If a spoon is not served for dipping, the waiter or waitress will bring one, if you ask for one.

3 Some reply that will mean that she too, enjoyed the dance—"It was a delightful dance," or "it was delightful, Bob," or "I enjoyed that dance so much, Tom."

HEARTHSTONE

Not vainly have all ages held divine
The hearth, the lonely chasities of thought:
There nightly is the holy battle fought
By dark primeval and the soul a-shine.
The stones are hallowed as the stones that sign
A spot among the mountains where men wrought
And fought to keep their freedom.
There unbought
At last, the heart may murmur: This is mine.
It is most strange that from a square of light
Below the tremendous heavens man should dare
To hurl rebellion in the throat of night:
Should make the phalanxes of stars despair,
Should trip the thundering darkness with a sleight
And hang its lightnings, trophies in his lair.

Eclaire And Her Ideas From Paris

"Give us more!" said JAMES and ANNE

● aged 3 and 4

● Yes, it's true—children actually like to take cod-liver oil this emulsified way

Mothers! You'd certainly like your children to take cod-liver oil without putting up a struggle —wouldn't you?

Well, the Scott's Emulsion reporter recently called on Mrs. Forbes of 41 Niagara St., Toronto, to find out just how James and Anne Forbes—the two lovable children pictured above—stood on the cod-liver oil question. "My youngsters simply can't stand plain cod-liver oil," Mrs. Forbes said. "I'd certainly like to see if they'll take Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil with any less fuss."

So James tried a spoonful. And Anne took some, too. . . "I like it!" said James. "Mmmm—give me more!" smiled Anne.

Pleasanter to take—but that isn't all

Pale, thin, run-down children need cod-liver oil. Give them the pleasantest form—Scott's Emulsion. Scott's Emulsion hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in a perfect emulsion. Easier to take. Easier to digest. Assimilation is complete. You get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It contains minerals that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. So Scott's Emulsion is good for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

Get Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil to-day. See your youngsters gain weight and vigor. At your nearest druggist, in large home size and convenient, small traveling size bottles. Sales Agents: Harold F. Ritchie & Company, Ltd., Toronto.

BIRD SANCTUARY NEED IS GRAIN

President Turner Asks for Contributions to Aid in Feeding Geese

Grain for the bird sanctuary is the need of the moment, stated Walter Turner, president of the Hastings branch of the Jack Miner League.

"We have thirteen geese and twenty five old ducks here, and I have been feeding them so far this year" said the president, explaining the need.

"We let 50 172 ducks last fall and we have fed as high as 40 geese," he added to show how the sanctuary is attracting the birds. Mr. Turner expects that next spring will see the large ingress of geese and ducks the sanctuary as ever had.

Last fall sportsmen had the experience of getting Canada geese in three parts. For instance at Bay Lake for the first time in history wild geese were shot. It is believed those geese had during the year been at the sanctuary at Deseville and which would explain their presence in this neighborhood.

Mr. Turner asks for contributions towards the expense of feeding the Canada geese and ducks. He gives his time and he has given his substance to feed those birds. Sportsmen who stand to gain by the presence of the birds and the attraction of the sanctuary and others may contribute towards making it possible to have sufficient moneys on hand to look after the winter and spring feeding of the birds.

The president told the Ontario Intelligencer reporter how the presence of the sanctuary was helping the young boys of the city and neighborhood. Boys of Prince of Wales school and others go through the sanctuary and recognize all the rules. They have become lovers of wild life and would not think of causing fright or injury to the geese and ducks in the sanctuary. He believes the sanctuary is one of the finest agencies for the inculcation of humane feelings towards the bird creation and the animal creation which the rising generation can have.

REPORTS REVEAL STEADY GROWTH AT ST. ANDREW'S

Membership of Presbyterian Church Totals 521 at Present

DETAILS OF GIVINGS

Recent Improvements Cost $31,854.57 Says Treasurer's Report

Notwithstanding the somewhat inclement weather on Wednesday evening, there was a good attendance at the annual meeting in St. Andrew's Church. Rev. Dr. J. A. Seymour, the pastor, presided and conducted devotional exercises in which he was assisted by the Rev. W. Harold Reid of Pulpit. Mr. W. J. Campbell, clerk of the Kirk Session, read the statement, presenting in a general way the work of the congregation. This statement showed that during the year 24 new members have been added to the communion roll, ten have died, nine have been dismissed to other congregations. The membership now stands at 521.

The report of the Board of Managers was read by Mr. E. S. Hill, B.A., who also acted as secretary during the meeting on Wednesday evening. This report showed that the church is now equipped to meet every need of the congregation. Contributions have been generous and apart from the building fund, $8,350.69 has been raised.

The report of the Treasurer, Mr. A. E. Masterson showed that though the expenditure has been heavy, the congregation is in a better financial condition than it was a year ago, the books showing a substantial credit balance at the close of the year.

Mr. A. McCle reported the special finance and building committee Meetings were held, which were presided over by Mrs. Leach, in memory of late Col. and Mrs. S. S. Lazier; of 400 Psalm books donated by Miss Jennie Irvine in memory of her brother, the late George Irvine; of the new seating arrangements made possible through the generosity of Mr. R. Dynnahill; of the flag donated by Mrs. Black in memory of her soldier son; of pulpit drapery donated by Mr. Delisle and Miss Helen Black in memory of Mrs. Delisle. The improvements to the church, building cost $31,854.57. Tribute was paid to Mr. R. T. Wright for the satisfactory way in which he had done the work. On motion of Mr. C. A. Anderson and Mr. E. W. Tilley it was agreed to preserve the report in matter of history, to thank Mr. A. McCle and Mr. James Cokers for superintending the work; to appoint a standing committee to solicit additional funds till all the improvements are paid for. This was carried by a standing vote.

Reports were presented from the Ladies' Aid by Mrs. D. L. Fleming; from the Women's Missionary Society by Mrs. J. A. Seymour; from the Sunday School by Mrs. Horle; from the Junior School by Mr. Ed. Timmerman; from the Mission Band by Mrs. J. Diamond; from the Choral Society by Miss Maude Waters; from the choir by Prof. Wheatley; from the Budget Committee by Mr. C. A. Cameron; from the Trustee Board by Mr. A. Allen. All these reports were very optimistic, the only regret being a minor key being that of the Budget Committee which regretted to report that the congregation had not reached the allocation made by the Presbytery. Several suggestions were made for still meeting it, but no definite action was taken. The Cradle Roll contains 130 names. The Ladies' Aid contributed $1,500 to the building fund, and $1,000 for current expenses. The Sunday school has grown steadily during the year and new numbers 187 on the average. Three new classes have been added. C.W.B.M. raised $464. St. Andrew's Club expended $469, the S.S. $343. The Mission Band gave $51 to missions. High tribute was paid to Prof. Wheatley and to his volunteer choir for their leadership in the Service of Praise. Tribute was paid also to the fine quality of the sermons preached by Dr. Seymour. The meeting was characterized throughout by the utmost harmony and good fellowship.

AMBITIOUS ANGLERS BRAVE WINTER BLASTS AND "BAIT" THEIR HOOKS

Marblehead, Mass., Jan. 22 — The police and coastguard acted yesterday to prevent fishing of the northern waters when it was discovered the anglers were fishing for liquor instead of members of the finny tribe.

A few days ago a rum-runner facing certain capture, dumped over board her cargo of liquor along the shore. Since then the police have "escaped" several sacks of the contraband, but yesterday when the public began to show an interest in the sport four contraband boats were called to patrol the waters.

Meanwhile the police guarded the shore, paying particular attention to three automobiles bearing Rhode Island registration plates. The men in the cars were equipped with clam rakes but they did not look like clam diggers to the police.

The rum-runner which jettisoned the liquor was captured but no liquor was found aboard her and her pilot was released.

He summoned P. C. Byers, who was on the beat, and they returned to the store. They hid, and presently the burglar approached and put his hand through the hole. P. C. Byers grasped it, but, as he opened the door the youth escaped, but was captured after a race of a hundred yards.

GEO. BABCOCK ACQUITTED ON THEFT CHARGE

Magistrate Mikel Delivers Judgment in Halloway Heifer Case

George A. Babcock charged with the theft of a heifer from Milton Robinson of Halloway, was found not guilty of the charge by Magistrate Mikel, who delivered his judgment to counsel yesterday afternoon. In his finding His Worship stated that to steal was to take with fraud and without color of right. "In this case," said His Worship, "there is some evidence of fraud and also that there was a taking, but there was a color of right, in that the heifer was delivered to the accused by the owner of the pasture field in which the cattle were placed for the summer. The break in the born in my mind was clearly established by the defense. Two witnesses stating the break was sustained in a scrimmage with other cattle, while the heifer was a calf on the farm of Babcock. The witnesses for the prosecution made no mention of the break in their testimony and upon that salient fact I will rest in giving judgment." His Worship did not establish the ownership of the heifer as a suit is now entered or will be entered in the civil court to determine this factor. Mr. Babcock was defended by Chas. A. Payne, K.C.

Forty-one degrees' drop in temperature took place between noon yesterday and about three o'clock this morning, or 24 fifteen hours of time. The cold was thirteen below zero as against 28 degrees yesterday.

Each successive cold spell seemi to be getting lower, the winter having started in zero weather early in December.

SCREEN CAREER ENDS IN BATTLE WITH NARCOTICS

Alma Rubens, Victim of Hollywood Drug Racket Died

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22. — Alma Rubens, whose rapid ascent to fame on the screen ended so tragically in a battle against narcotics, died last night of pneumonia.

The end came in the home of a friend with only a few relatives present.

With the once famous star when death came at 7.25 p.m. were her mother, Mrs. Theresa Rubens, a sister, Mrs. Hazel Large, and a brother-in-law, Stanley Cortez. The actress' husband, Ricardo Cortez, actor, from whom she was estranged, was not present.

In the last years of her life—years in which she fought against the narcotic habit that had trapped her—Alma Rubens' career was a checkered one. Only a few weeks ago, a year after she had been released from a state hospital as cured of the drug habit, she was arrested in San Diego for possessing 120 grains of narcotics.

Action by federal officials was waiting grand jury action.

NEWLYWEDS ARE PRESENTED WITH USEFUL GIFTS

Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow of Shannonville Honored by Friends

About one hundred and fifty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barlow gathered at Shannonville Hall on Tuesday evening on the occasion of a miscellaneous shower arranged in their honor. Mr. and Mrs. Barlow were the recipients of many beautiful gifts in china, linen and glass. Cards and dancing were enjoyed with a splendid orchestra providing the music. Lunch was served at eleven-thirty.

During the evening the following address in honor of the newly-married couple was read:

Shannonville, Jan. 14, 1931.

Dear Myrtle and Bill:

We, as friends and neighbors, have gathered here this evening to extend to you our very heartiest congratulations and to spend a social evening with you in honor of the new step you have taken in life.

You, Bill, as your friends know you by, are no stranger to any of us. The majority of us here have known you from childhood, and have learned to respect you in every way. You have always been willing to help in the church and community whenever you were needed. Your sunny smile and "sure I will" are always the answer received when you are asked to do a favor. We have learned to think of you, Bill, as a jolly all round sport.

You, Myrtle, are a stranger to many of us here and we wish to welcome you to our community. Those of us who are already lucky in making your acquaintance have found in you a real friend. We are sure the others will not be disappointed when they get to know you.

We felt that we couldn't let occasion pass without gathering together and expressing our love and esteem for you in these various gifts tonight. We trust that these tokens will remind you of your Tyendinaga and Thurlow friends whenever you use them. We all join in wishing you a long and happy wedded life.

Signed on behalf of the community
Harold Osborne.
Gordon Craig.

ASSOCIATE GRAND MATRON OFFICIATED AT TWEED VILLAGE

Tweed, Jan. 22—The Auditorium was the scene of a very important occasion on Thursday last, when Tuesday night when the officers of Tweed Chapter were installed for the year 1931 by Mrs. Anna Boyd, Associate Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario. The hall was very tastefully decorated with the colors of the order and flowers and ferns in profusion. At eight o'clock when the proceedings were opened the spacious hall was well filled with local members and those from a distance, and no doubt the hall would have been taxed to capacity had the roads not been in such a bad state.

Mrs. Boyd as chief installing officer had as her associates on the installing board, Mrs. C. Weir of Madoc, as Grand Chaplain; Mrs. M. J. Barlow, as Grand Marshal; Mrs. E. Reid, as Grand Organist; Mrs. E. Taylor, Mrs. E. Naylor; Mrs. Perrett; Mrs. A. Boyd and Mr. W. M. Barlow, all of whom were complimented on the parts they played in this annual ceremony.

During the course of the installation ceremony Dorothy Sager and Mrs. H. Grier contributed solos, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Fawcett which added greatly to the rite.

The officers elected and appointed who are to guide the destinies of Tweed chapter are:

Wor. Matron, Regina Perritt; Wor. Patron, Mr. Cordy; Asso. Matron, Grace Rouane; Asso. Patron, Chas. Perritt; Secretary, Pearl Reynolds; Treasurer, Mary Blakely; Conductress, Dorothy Perritt; Asst. Conductress, Louise Coulter; Chaplain, Louise Arbour; Marshal, Mabel Emmerson; Organist, Kate Elliott; Star Points, L. Austin, A. McGuire, M. Craig, E. Tummon; Warder, Sister Wilkinson; Sentinel, P. Craig.

After the installation ceremony a number of presentations were made, chief among which was the presentation of a Past Matron's jewel to Mrs. Patterson by her sister, Miss M. Graham and a Past Patron's jewel to Bro. Donnelly, the Past Patron, by Bro. Cordy, the newly installed patron. The installation board each received a token as a mark of appreciation from Tweed chapter.

To bring to a close one of the finest nights in the history of the Eastern Star in Tweed refreshments were served after which a dance was held which was greatly enjoyed by visitors and members.

Will You Need an Income of $100 a Month?

Some one has said that the sweetest words in the English language are "Enclosed please find cheque."

How would you like to have $100 a month mailed to you regularly after you reach age, say 50, 55 or 60, whichever you select? You would like to have it now, perhaps, and if you have the capital sum needed to buy such an income the Canada Life will guarantee it to you at once. But if you haven't the capital you can arrange now that you will have that income later on.

Suppose you are earning $100 a month—it may be $150, $200, or more. Whatever it is, there is a part of that income you want continued.

If you are not here, how much would continue? That is, how much of your income would go on, no matter if you earned a salary or drew pay or not? For many people the answer would have to be: "Not very much."

It takes $20,000 capital well invested to bring in $100 a month. Under the Canada Life plan you do not need to save $20,000 in order to make sure of an income of $100 a month.

The Canada Life, with $175,000,000 of well-invested assets, will guarantee to continue that part of your income you must have later on for living expenses, say $100 a month. And the Canada Life may have to start the income going at any time to you or your family. There are no years of waiting if the need should come sooner. That is, should you die, or become totally disabled or should you die.

How you can provide such an income is told in our booklet, "Getting the Income You Want." Why not send for it now?

THIS COUPON WILL BRING YOU VALUABLE INFORMATION

Without obligation on my part, please send me by mail your booklet, "Getting the Income You Want."

TRIOCOLOR EVENS GROUP RACE BY SCORING BRILLIANT VICTORY OVER BELLEVILLE CHEERIOS BY 3-1 SCORE

Sturdy Defense of Squires and Murphy With Brilliant Goal Minding by Morris Responsible for Win—Front Line of Locals Did Not Show Same Cohesion as in Former Games—Trickster Ball of the Breaks of Pastime.

(By O.D.T.)

Popping long range shots and fallure to work into the scoring zone cost Belleville Cheerios a Senior B game last night in Kingston when Queen's defeated the Quinte City club 3-1, periods 0-0, 1-0, and fully deserved their victory. There can be no alibis for the defeat for on the night's play the Tricolor played closer defensive hockey and their scoring sallies were better timed and more cleanly executed than the attempts made by Belleville. The decision knotted the league race and it appears to be a real battle before the group championship is decided. Belleville was handicapped in that Davis, the regular centre for the second line, was indisposed and unable to make the trip. Doug Simmons being the substitute and incidentally he was not the weakest link in the chain. Queen's trotted out Gib McKelvey and although he did not play a strong game, he gave the team confidence and the old Queen's asserted itself. The Tricolor is essentially a home team and last night they made every post a winning one.

Breaks Against Losers

Although Queen's are given full credit for their victory, Belleville received a couple of breaks that probably decided the issue. Officials that are sent by the O.H.A. to take charge should not be judged by the press or public. They call the plays as they see them and are sincere in their duty. It is necessary to send officials who can keep up with the play for no one can call a play to be offside or not stealing behind. The first goal that Queen's scored was palpably offside but was allowed. Again goal umpires are appointed by the respective clubs engaged in the game and they allow their favoritism for their club to rule their decisions in many instances. Last night Belleville scored two clean goals in the last five minutes of play and the red light was not flashed for either. A referee must be completely blind that cannot see a play made on goal, 100 ft. or less, he is drawing money under false pretences. Goal umpires that have no interest in either team should be appointed by the O. H. A. for all important games as one wrong call may mean the difference between defeat and victory.

Close Checking Featured

Briefly summarizing the play, Belleville was outskated for most of the night. The smooth passing that was noticeable in the first game here was missing but this was probably due to the close checking of the Queen's wing line. Leschman was held in check by McDowell and Lee in centre but there was a reason for his rather dull game. He was struck on the calves of the legs after the opening of play and his muscles knotted and he was unable to skate. The wings played their positions but impasses were either too quick or laid in too close. The principal reason for the defeat was the failure to work in close before shooting. Benny Morris, in goal, turned in a fine effort. Long range shooting is his meat and once he got his bearings, it was impossible to beat him by this method. Probably the strong defensive game played by Murphy and Squires had something to do with the failure to go in scoring. They played a sweet game and it was a rough road to travel. The game was strenuous but clean only six penalties being handed out, each team drawing three.

Locals Played Well

"Derby" Jeffery turned in a sparkling game in goal his only lapse being on the last goal which resulted from rather slow clearing. Holway and Montgomery were strong defensively, although one goal was scored when Murphy was allowed to go around Montgomery to work in close to Jeffery. Holway at the time was serving a penalty. The attackers were well shook up with heavy bodying by the Belleville defense and rejected their prowess for most of the night. Leschman, Mulvihill and Smith were good only in spots, the heavy bodying of Squires and Murphy making them play their shots from well out. They received little help in the way of offensive from the defense pair, who played well within their limits. This exhausted a certain toll. The second line of Hull, Weir and Runions prevented a score, while they were on with Runions showing well with a nice poke check on Smiley. Their passing was not timed and were probably outraged by the Queen's line.

Queen's Defense Strong

The defense of Queen's stood out in the pastime with Lee, the shifty centre being the best of the front line. Patterson and Gibson played a fine superior game than the one turned in at Belleville, they played closer to their checks and being in position for the passes from centre. Patterson brushed well but marred his good work with deliberate cross checks when not necessary. He was well watched by Belleville team and was given but little leeway. "Red" McDowell, the sub centre, played a nice game but the heavy going slowed him down somewhat. Queen's worked a close passing game in centre ice, sometimes the wings swinging out to take passes on uncovered wings. They once were not as adept at this as Belleville but they made the most of their scoring opportunities count which Belleville did not, captalism on, this being the difference between defeat and victory.

The Play

From the fans' point of view it was a nice game with plenty of rushing and close defensive work. The play opened rather slow and Holway was given a penalty for high sticking. Nothing took place while the defenseman was resting but soon the play opened up and Murphy made the first real threat for a score carrying the rubber from end to end only to be frustrated by Jeffery. Belleville came into the picture and obviously outplayed the winners for five minutes but could not get a counter due to brilliant goal minding and defense. Reid missed a nice chance for Queen's when he was left uncovered in front of the Belleville twine. Before the period ended McKelvey was benched for charging Montgomery into the boards, a well deserved penalty. Belleville had more shots than Queen's in this period but were unable to beat Morris in the twine.

Murphy opened the second frame with a tricky rush only halted by Jeffery and Leschman came back to make Morris do a "shoulder" to stop a drive. Smith nearly scored from a face off only losing the rubber when in a position to count. Patterson was sent to the cooler for a bodycheck in centre ice and Holway followed soon after. While he was away Murphy carried down and gave a pass to Lee who was offside on the pass and the player raced in close to give Jeffery no chance. McKelvey nearly made it two when Jeffery was slow in clearing after a shot while Smith was robbed on a play with no one but Morris to beat. He came right back to make the open net and the Belleville supporters groaned. Before the period ended Gibson gave Jeffery a tough one to handle.

McKelvey and Holway were sent away soon after the third game was opened and Murphy took advantage of his absence to sail around Montgomery and beat Jeffery. That was a breakbreak for Queen's and soon the game was sailed away when Patterson banished McDowell the clue in a scramble and lie beat Jeffery from close in. Belleville came back strong and till the end of the pastime clearly outplayed the Tricolor. The old custom of shooting the rubber to the far end was resorted to by Queen's but Mulvihill worked through to lift one by Morris. The same player came back to score another, the rubber going in and out but no light came on and apparently Jacobi, the referee, was commuming with the angels for he did not see the play. Leschman was robbed of a sure goal when he hit Murphy on the head with a drive as that player was going down to defend the unguarded portion of the goal. The game ended with Belleville pressing.

The lineup and summary:

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises.

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist, and get 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water, and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

SHOOTING

The officers and sergeants of the 15th A.L.I. joined forces last evening in the shooting gallery at the armoury for an officers vs. sergeants shooting competition. Keen shooting was the general order. Many good scores were registered, and the competition was enjoyed by all who participated in this very instructive pastime.

Lieut. Davidson proved himself to be the "Dick Deadeye" by shooting 14 consecutive bulls eyes.

The sergeants won the competition by 36 points, but the officers say that the sergeants will need all kinds of good luck to beat them next time. There were several possible scores and quite a few impossibles.

After the shoot all repaired to the sergeants mess where an enjoyable social evening was spent.

Major Harry Alford showing that he knows his stuff by scoring 5 bulls eyes when the competitors fired on a blank target.

WOODSTOCK DOWN BRANTFORD TEAM

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 22—The Brantford Indians went down to defeat here last night in an O.H.A. intermediate "big seven" duel by 5-1. The difference in the play was even greater in the favor of the Red and Whites, who had about two-thirds of the play. The ice was keen and the large crowd of fans witnessed a flashy game of hockey, but the visitors just could not beat the local defense. At intervals in the first and third periods Brantford came to life and made it interesting for Lynch with a number of real hard chances.

Woodstock defence played stellar hockey, both offensively and defensively, and every time Walker and Lamport made a rush Summerhayes in goal for the Red Shirts had some real work to do and was called on in the first and third periods to do some real puck stopping.

Bernard A. Stevenston says stole the thunder of his Socialist opponents and inaugurated comprehensive social-insurance legislation.

"Y" Alleys

The Aviators and Athletics, two beginners teams, met in the Ladies' after noon league and the result was two points each in a very evenly contested game. Both teams rolled nice scores for beginners, and with a little more experience will surprise them all. High bowlers were Mrs. Law for the Aviators and Mrs. Madden for the Athletics.

In the Teachers' League (Inter-Group) game Queen Alexandra took 3/4 four points from King George. A glance at the scores will show many fine singles.

LOCAL REFEREE NEARLY MOBBED AT HOCKEY GAME

Ken Colling Was Victim of Unwarranted Attack at Hands of Player

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 22—Referee Ken Colling, Belleville, had to be given police protection in getting off the ice following the game here last night between Oshawa and Trenton, O.H.A. Juniors which the visitors won by a 4 to 0 score.

The trouble started early in the second period when Bohan, international-by or not, clipped Odalie Hurst across the back of the neck during a scrimmage in front of the Oshawa nets. Dropping his stick Hurst waded into Bohan with his fists and when Colling let Hurst off with a warning the fans booed hostily. A little later Bohan was penalized for a minor infraction of the rules and in leaving the ice shot the puck at the referee weas high. The penalty was promptly raised from the minute to four. The fans and players took this none too kindly in view of what they deemed leniency where the Oshawa net guardian had been concerned and in the final period when Mr. Colling failed to order Lorie Jack Dolan with his stick but penalized Mr. Dolan who promptly swung on Lorie. Well, Dolan took it coolly as Mr. Referee sent he was going to the hoosegow where Mr. Colling saw he remainder for the rest of the game.

Undoubtedly Oshawa got the breaks on the night's play but such is the way of the game. In all fairness to Referee Colling it must be said that he called the play as he saw it; the fact that he failed to see all that he should have seen is not just cause for a spectacle such as the final song let loose. Trenton had hard luck on at least four of their shots on goal but they were up against a team of finished players. Only the marvelous playing of Chambers in the nets kept the score from running into two figures. He was easily the outstanding player on the ice.

The line-up:

Oshawa—Goal, Hurst; defense, Lorie, Maundree; centre, Drinkle; wings, Read, Patterson; subs Authors, McDonald Grabosh.

Trenton—Goal, Chambers; defence, Cottrell, Yorke; centre, Bohan; wings, Mattis, Begin; subs, Culverson, Hidd, Dolan.

In view of the extra expense entailed and the loss of time thru having to-draw up plans and specifications and in that no radical alterations will be made in the church interior, the board of King Street United Church have decided to carry on the restoration work by day labor in place of contract. Only a rough estimate of the expense has been arrived at but it is anticipated that a period of three months will be required to place the church back in shape.

What might easily have been a serious accident, if not a terrible tragedy was averted here yesterday through quick thinking and prompt action on the part of the lady involved. Mrs. J. J. Wiggins was going about her housework as usual when in throwing some refuse into the fire she inadvertently tipped over a pan of grease which was sitting on the stove. Striking the hot stove, in a twinkling of an eye the grease became a mass of leaping flames enveloping the front of the lady's dress. Rushing to the back door she herself onto the snow and smothered the blaze. Her two little children were in the house at the time.

Reports of the various societies of St. George's Church presented at the annual Vestry meeting showed a marked improvement in all branches. In fact it may be said that 1930 was one of the best years ever experienced by the church and the suggestion to materially increase the salaries of the rector, Rev. Percy Haywood, and the organist received unanimous approval.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Rector's Warden, H. B. Smith, (reappointed); People's Warden, W. Ketcheson, (re-appointed); Vestry clerk, F. H. Viney; Executive Council, The Rector, the Wardens, the Vestry Clerk, Dr. T. S. Farncomb, W. E. Wiggs, C. W. Lott, L. Dawes, J. Stacey, R. Armstrong H. Jarrett, and E. E. Wiggins. Auditors H. Jafrett and J. Tinsley.

Messrs W. Heaney, E. James and T. Dalna were appointed Lay Delegates to attend the Synod.

An accident occurred here yesterday between the Canadian Motor Oils truck, driven by Lorne Lawson of Belleville, and a Buick sedan owned and driven by H. McClung of Lorne Ave. The truck was coming east on King Street and McClung was driving north on Queen St. The two cars came together at the intersection of the streets. Considerable damage was done to the Buick sedan while the heavy truck had a headlight smashed.

Joe Blackburn is Elected Deacon to Succeed His Father — New Officers

One hundred and fifty were present at the annual banquet and business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church last night. The banquet, program and business meeting were well arranged and the reports showed that Victoria Avenue Baptist Church has enjoyed one of the best years in history. Twenty were added by baptism during the year and over $2250 was given to Missions and more than $10,000 was raised for all other purposes. The total cash on hand from the various departments to start the new year was reported at $500. Many new officers were re-elected and notable among the list was Miss Claire Hitchon, clerk and Miss Ethel Nurse, assistant. Mr. Joe Blackburn was elected deacon for the unexpired term of Mr. Albert Blackburn who had resigned. Miss Anna Lounsberry was elected treasurer of the pioneers' fund.

The church enters the new year with harmony and good will in its own ranks and good will towards other denominations.

Warring, ton of Cornwall, judged the show and gave general satisfaction. Mr. Chas. Saunders, Mr. R. J. Meservey and Mr. Den Cook of this city, made a clean sweep with their birds, winning many specials.

Mr. Saunders won two beautiful silvey cups, one of which he has won this year outright. It is one of the best cups for poultry competition in Ontario. The Picton Poultry Association also held their yearly banquet last night with all the prominent breeders in attendance as well as the Belleville exhibitors and the judge Mr. J. H. Warrington and George Robertson from the Department at Ottawa. The dinner was enjoyed and appreciated by those in attendance and much praise goes to those responsible for same.

ORILLIA SCRIBE IN THE LOCK-UP

Kenneth Wells, Evening Telegram Reporter Runs Foul of the Law

Orillia, Jan. 22—Climaxing a controversy of long standing with certain sections of the press, Mayor J. B. Johnston ordered Chief Constable Church to arrest Kenneth Wells, a Toronto Evening Telegram reporter, yesterday afternoon when the latter refused to leave the council chamber when told to do so by the mayor.

A special meeting of council had been called to discuss the unemployment situation. Wells took the stand that until the meeting was called to order and a motion passed that the meeting be held in private, he had a right in the room.

Mayor's Version

"There were three reporters present in the private committee room at two o'clock," said Mayor Johnston, in explaining what took place. "I told the reporters that the matters we were going to discuss were of a private nature, and asked them to leave. Two of them did so, but Wells did not budge. He asked me if it was a council meeting and I told him that had nothing to do with it. Then he refused to go I went to the telephone and told Chief Church to come at once. When he arrived I told him to take Wells to the lock-up, as he was committing a nuisance. Wells walked out a few minutes later and I dropped the matter.

"I have no intention of proceeding any further with this affair," continued Mayor Johnston. "This reporter was very indiscreet. I intended to issue a statement to the press after the meeting. The press has not been banned from any of the council meetings, but this was a special gathering to discuss matters which we felt were not in the interests of the public to be made public matter at that time."

The mayor added that the 100 men who were laid off civic unemployment relief jobs would be taken on again in the morning.

Friction matches first came into use in 1833 and as late as 1850 were considered too dangerous to be transported by rail.

1 One from Adolphustown Auxiliary asking that the date of Presbyterial be changed to other than a winter month."

2 And another asking that Belleville Presbyterial be divided as it is so extensive in area and is very inconveniently located.

They were passed on to the proper committee to be dealt with later.

Mrs. F. W. Young of Picton, extended a very cordial welcome to the delegates in her inimitable style. Picton is one of the oldest towns in Ontario having been incorporated in 1836, but it was in existence before that time. Picton also boasts two of the oldest churches in Ontario. The Anglican Church built in 1870 and the Methodist, outside town, in 1809.

Mrs. W. L. Smith of Pembroke, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, sent a letter containing warmest greetings and best wishes for the success of the Presbyterial and the work of 1931.

Rev. C. S. Reddick, chairman of Belleville Presbytery extended heart felt greetings.

Mrs. J. H. Reddick of Trenton, very graciously replied in a concise and interesting address.

Communion was solemnly conducted by Rev. Mr. Wootten and this session closed with the Benediction.

ANNUAL REPORTS AT TABERNACLE ARE ENCOURAGING

Different Branches Show Splendid Year of Progress — Banquet and Program

The congregational supper and annual meeting of the Tabernacle United Church were held last evening in the church parlors. There were about 60 present to enjoy the supper prepared by the ladies.

Mr. A. E. McCutcheon was chairman. The programme began by singing a number of favourite hymns including "Faith of Our Fathers" and "I am a Child of the King".

Reports were received from the various organizations of their past year's work and financial standing as follows:

Sunday School, Mr. J. E. Walmsley Supt. of the Sunday School gave the report in the absence of the Secretary. There is a total membership of over 400. In stressing the importance of Sunday School attendance as well as church services Mr. Walmsley stated that "A Sabbath well spent, brings a week of Content". He also cited instances of the important men of our country and their relation to their church, for example, Hon. G. S. Henry, Ontario's new premier is an ardent Sunday School worker. The Sunday School itself is self-sustaining.

Ladies' Adult Bible Class have a large regular attendance under the leadership of Mr. T. G. Bell and their report was given by Mrs. E. B. Bell and was duly seconded and received.

Mrs. Adult Class—Mrs. G. Spracklett reported on the work of this class which is taught by Mr. McCutcheon and extended an invitation to all the men of the congregation to join their in their discussions.

Young People's League is an organization "where we get the chance to express ourselves and to become the right type of young men and women."

Ritchel Fox read the report of this organization which was seconded by Bessie Barlow.

The C.G.I.T. is composed of over 40 teen-age girls, who are divided into groups under the able and devoted direction of Laura Bell, Dorothea Newson and Helen Newson. This report was given by Pansie Yeomans. The girls succeeded in raising over $70 by various methods.

Miss Lorraine Bell sang a delightful solo, entitled "The Lamp-lit Hour".

The Choir is one of the most faithful organizations of the church. Mrs. Nicholson is the word, of a short poem entitled "It" summed up the choir purpose and aim of the choir. They were successful in raising $310.00. A large number was derived from the presentation of "Ye Olde Time Concert".

Mr. Leon Walmsley, the treasurer, of the church gave the complete financial report. The total receipts during the year were $9,391.35. The balance on hand being $469.91. This was all the free-will response of the congregation.

The W.M.S. had a very prosperous year under the leadership of their President, Mrs. George Horton. They operate under the group system with a meeting twice monthly. Mrs. Kelley gave the financial report. They raised $602.95 and turned $600 over to the Mission Circle also enjoyed a good year with Ethel Horton as President. Meetings are held monthly with an average attendance of 30 members. Report was given by Mrs. A. Horton showing a total of $173.42 of which $145 were given as their allocation.

Mission Band—Anna Gerow gave the report of the Mission Band, quoting their hymn and prayer. They made over $16. Mrs. Jarrell will be in charge of the band next year.

M. and M. Fund

Missionary and Maintenance Fund—Mr. Cecil Lent, the treasurer of this fund reported $780 received from the various organizations, as well as by systematic giving. He stressed the purpose of this fund, which is largely Home Missions and expressed the desire that in the coming year the people of the east would feel it their duty to help the people in the Western Canada, who have been less fortunate than we have. In moving the adoption of this report Mr. Lent moved that $60 be taken from the general fund and added to the M. and M. fund to partially make up for the loss sustained by this fund, which would increase the amount to $200.00." This privilege was granted.

Miss Bessie Barlow favoured with a piano solo, that was appreciated by everyone.

Comrade Club

Comrade Club is composed mainly of the younger married women. Mrs. McBride read the report of the year's activities. They were successful in raising $430.30 during the year through talents money, rummage sales, dinners, etc.

Women's Association—Mrs. Storey in commenting on the work of the Association stated the purpose which is to assist the minister in the work of the church, to promote a spirit of good-will and fellowship and to help raise funds for carrying on the work of the church. They are divided into eight groups, with an average attendance of 35. They reported $1,408.03, which certainly shows that they sustained the financial part of their purpose.

Mrs. Fisher gave a reading, "A Man's Version of the Ladies' Aid."

These reports had been duly received and adopted the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

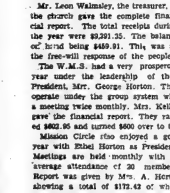
Stewards—Appointed by Mr. E. A. Bell seconded by Mr. Adams, that they remain unchanged.

Members of Board —Remained same with the addition of Mr. Chas. Greenleaf.

District Representatives — Same as last year.

Mr. McCutcheon in a few words expressed his appreciation to the members of the congregation for their loyalty and support during his three years of service with them. He extended a welcome to all new comers and expressed his regret at the coming of the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland from the city and church. The meeting closed by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers", after which Mr. McCutcheon led in prayer.

Radio Fans Corner



Reception was on the up and up last night but it has a long hard road to travel if it is before perfection is reached. Tuning in this morning the old cuss seemed to have made a deep of difference because it was coming in fine and dandy, hope it keeps up the good work tonight.

Well, and did you hear Maurice Chevalier last night? Aunt Prue tells reports there wasn't many that missed him. Every bit of the French accent we like so well was there and a-plenty. He missed flashing smile, however can't have everything and we enjoyed his performance very much. King of Jazz and Ned had signed a contract with the Marconi company for the supply of fifteen wireless stations which will provide Arabia with its complete wireless service and communication. Within the next 18 months every important centre in the Joint kingdom will be fitted up by this firm with the history. A striking development in a country where the ancient caravan routes may still be seen side by side with the modern motor car.

Uncle Abe and Daddi draws our attention first to WEAF at 6.45 and at 7.30 the M.-G.-M. Revue. From this programme is of half an hour's duration so it will be possible for the fans to hear part of the following Amos 'n' Andy. Although they announced last Saturday night that Rudy and his orchestra were leaving on a tour that doesn't mean that the fans will be deprived of their regular Thursday program beginning at 8. The Connecticut Yankees are on the air from WEAF at this time tonight so tune in.

Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith are the special speakers on the Ed Wynn program tonight at 9 from WEAF-WJZ and at 10 the program of E. A. Rolfe and his boys. Florence Richardson sings more arias on the air at 11 and Duke Ellington pays us a musical visit at 11.30 and Dick Abbin at midnight.

After Amos 'n' Andy the Jesters take the air and Pep, Vim and Vigour are "raring to go" tonight at don't be late. The program of the "Footnotes" are presented at 7.45 and at midnight Horace Heidt and his merry gang of boys. WABC carry Ben Bernie and his orchestra at 11 and Morton Downey is singing at midnight with Jack Fetla and his orchestra. It looks like a grand evening.

In signet effects, all Lodge and Orders or with the rose design. Initials raised in white gold on the black onyx. These rings please him best.

"A GREAT RADIO BACKED BY A GREAT NAME"

Sales and Service, 217 Front Street Belleville Plant, McDonald Avenue

Intrigue at Dude Ranch

by H. Louis Raybold

A tall, gangly lad leaned against the top rail of the corral and stared pensively across Big Ditch Valley to a very sun sinking slowly behind the distant ranges. A keen observer, had there been one, would have noted a certain weakness of the boy's mouth and chin, in part by an honest directness of his fine grey eyes.

"Wish Mom could see things as I do!" he said suddenly. "The Boss has promised me a job if she'll let me stay on here. If I make good at the job, perhaps Julie will marry me. And I love it out here. Don't care if I never see the East again!" He left the corral and swung up along the trail that led back to the ranch house. For a moment he lingered on the threshold of the long, low, log-beamed living-room watching the card players within. Then he went over to his cabin.

At that very moment his mother was boasting of her name for him. Plans which did not permit any indefinite prolongation of this western trip.

"Yes" she was saying to her partner, a corpulent gentleman who had made millions in California real estate. "I want Barry to follow in the footsteps of his father. All our family have been professional men and my boy must keep up the tradition."

"And she had himself "cornered" Joe Pringle, perfunctorily, being more interested in mother than son.

"Barry always yields to my wishes!" told Barry's mother, proudly. "I beg your pardon, did you say spades?"

Behind her, at an adjoining table, Julie Bawend, pretty, dare-devil daughter of the owner of the Triple V Dude Ranch, clenched her fists until the knuckles whitened.

Shouldn't this stupid woman see that she was wrecking her son's future by demanding a devotion to a career for which he had neither liking nor skill? Ah, if there were only some w y in which she could be circumvented!

Suddenly, Julie bit her lip to keep from smiling. If she only dared!

Ten days later Barry, idly running through the heap of letters dumped from Cappy's saddle-bag like a mini ture snow drift, discovered a sizeable highly scented envelope addressed to himself in a bold and unfamiliar hand.

He took it with him to the seclusion of his cabin and read the contents with an amazement that left him completely flabbergasted.

"Darlingest Barry,

Can hardly wait for you to get home! The show clears tomorrow and nothing prevents our wedding bells from jingling whenever you wish.

Your faithful

Tootsie."

Barry turned the envelop over and over. There was no mistaking the "New York" of the postmark. The address was plainly his own. But in all his twenty-three years he had never known a Tootsie. What could it mean

As he sat in cogitation on the edge of his bunk, the thought came to him that a weapon had been placed in his hands, provided he wanted to use it. Knowing his mother, Barry was keenly aware that anything would seem preferable to her compared to marriage with an unknown Tootsie. All he had to do was to show her the letter.

He refused to entertain the suggestion. "That would be a rotten trick," he muttered and thrust the mysterious missive beneath a pile of clean shirts in the tray of his trunk.

"Barry? Barry?" His mother's voice came shrilly to him down the path through the pine woods.

"Yes, Mother." Then he stopped short, staring at her expression.

"Why, Mother, what is the matter?"

"What does this—mean—Barry?" she was holding out a bit of paper. "I found this lying on the verandah railing where anyone might have found it. Who is this—this Tootsie and what has she to do with my son?"

This second materialization of a—as far as Barry was concerned—sister-in-law Tootsie so completely bewildered Barry as to effect in his manner the semblance of guilt. His reddened to the very tips of his ears.

"The paper was crowded with scribblings. "Mrs. Tootsie Bloomfield." "Darling Tootsie." "Mrs. Barry Brown Field, recently of the popular musical show, 'Blushing Beauties'." "Mrs. Susan Bloomfield announces the marriage of her son to Miss Tootsie."

"Listen, Mom," said Barry. "This is just a joke. Just a little joke."

His mother looked relieved. "Oh, it is just a joke—But, you know, my son, I would rather marry a down Joseph Pringles and spend the rest of my life listening to tales tale about the glories of his native state than have you fall in love with a girl who called herself—er—Tootsie!"

At that moment her eye fell on his open trunk. "Barry, this is no way to leave your shirts! Let me — why, Barry, what is this?"

Barry, at the sight of the mysterious letter in his mother's hands, gave a heavy sigh. "You may read it," he said, coldly.

Susan Bloomfield read it and then she turned on her son and spoke to him as she had never spoken to him before. "You have been hiding this affair from your mother! I have made up my mind. Tomorrow I marry Mr. Pringle and you sign up for a job on the ranch. New York and your—your Tootsie will never see you again!"

"Mother" said Barry quietly. "I tell you, you're all wrong. There isn't any Tootsie. There never was a Tootsie." But his mother had not remained to listen.

That night Barry and Julie hung together over the corral rail.

"It's all right," Julie was chuckling him. "Your mother is really fond of Joe Pringle. She welcomed a good excuse for marrying him. But about this Tootsie person—"

"Aw, Julie, quit it!" begged Barry. "Somebody tried to play a rotten trick on me. As it turned out—"

"As it turned out—" cooed on naughty Julie who had taxed her own intensity and the amiability of a friend in New York to perpetrate her little scheme and was now hoping for a reward greater than she detected.

"As it turned out," went on Barry soberly, "life seems just too wonderful. My job in the dear old West and —you!"

MOIRA W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Moira W.M.S. was held at the home of the President Mrs. F. Elliott with a large attendance. It being a "social" evening. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. George Hollinger who announced for the opening Hymn. 153, "Rescue the Perishing", followed by prayer by the pastor. The President Mrs. Elliott read the Scripture lesson it being St. Luke 11 1-13. Then minutes of the December meeting were given by the newly appointed Recording Secretary, Mrs. David Thompson, also Roll Call, each member responding with a text of Scripture, containing the Keyword, "Rejoice". A duett "Father Hold Thy Hand in Mine", was rendered in a pleasing manner by Rev. and Mrs. Truscott. The Devotional leaflet was given by Mrs Graham, who also donated $5.00 to the auxiliary. Very interesting readings were given bearing on the topic "Japan" by a number of ladies. They being Mrs. W. McIlroy Mrs. Joe Williams Mrs. Scott Mrs. C. Ketcheson.

The pianist, Miss Lily Ketcheson, gave a well rendered selection of instrumental music. Also the Misses Elliott and Wannamaker gave very pleasing numbers on the violin and piano; all of which were much appreciated. The "Old Hugged Cross", was very beautifully rendered by three ladies. They being Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, Mrs. Charles Ketcheson and Mrs. W. Scott. Mrs. Blake Ketcheson gave the treasurer's report which was very gratifying indeed, showing that the allocation had been reached.

Mrs. George Hollinger gave a reading entitled "Let me Live in My House by the side of the road, where the race of men go by."

Hymn 285 "You May Have the Joy Bells", was heartily sung. The President, Mrs. F. Elliott was appointed delegate to attend the "Presbyterial", soon to be held at Picton, with Miss Annie Morton as alternate. The meeting closed by singing one verse of Foster.

Hymn 108 "Take Time to Be Holy", followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Truscott, after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and a very enjoyable social half hour was spent together. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Herity. Proceeds of the evening $2.20.

ST. JOAN OF ARC DEAD 500 YEARS

ROUEN, FRANCE — It was 500 years on November 21 last that St. Joan of Arc was sold into British hands, and was put to death by fire on May 29, 1431, at Rouen. In connection with her martyrdom celebrations will be held on the quincentenary of the death of "The Maid of Orleans," and British as well as French will take part therein.

A chapel is to be built at Rouen as a memorial to St. Joan, and on May 30 next its foundation-stone will be laid by the Archbishop of Rouen, on the initiative of a French committee. The memorial will be erected on the spot where St. Joan was burned, in the old market place of Rouen. The chapel will be small and delicate, conceived in the spirit of the 15th century, with flint base and upper parts of timber, so as to harmonise with the historic buildings of the square.

Meanwhile in order that Britain may have a share in this final atonement to St. Joan a national appeal has been launched from London under the presidency of Cardinal Bourne, and with the distinguished support of such representative men and women as Great Britain's Ambassador to France, Lord Crewe, Lady Warwick, Lady Haig of Bemersyde, Lady Rhondda, the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, Rt. Hon. Geo. Lansbury, M.P., First Commissioner of Works; Sir Henry Wood, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, Dame Rachel Crowdy, Mrs. Corbett Ashby, Miss Megan Lloyd George, M.P., Mrs. Bramwell Booth, Mrs. George Cadbury, Miss Amy Johnson, Rev. P. W. Norwood, George Bernard Shaw, Miss Sybil Thorndike, Hugh Walpole, and others. It is hoped that a sufficient sum will be collected to provide the church with its main doors, on which, in the words of the Archbishop of Rouen, "it will be beautiful to read the witness to the generosity of noble England."

Miss Edith Sitwell-Smith, London, author of a number of works, is honorary treasurer of the fund being raised in that country in connection with the quincentenary memorial.

Arthur Arnold, ultra violet ray expert, is operating the "branding" instrument.

MRS. CAMPION'S BEQUESTS

Belleville institutions have been bequeathed some twenty-five thousand dollars by the late Mrs. Campion. These bequests have been given to institutions and organizations which can make the best possible use of them and provide invaluable service to humanity. Bequests of this kind have been of the greatest aid in the past to some of the institutions remembered in the will of Mrs. Campion and to other local institutions.

Though a noble citizen has passed her works will live after her, not only in these gifts but also in the influence she left behind and in the benefits she conferred on others while she lived.

TREND OF EDUCATION

Announcement of the departure of Superintendent Fetterly of the Ontario School for the Deaf on a tour of United States institutions for the training of the deaf, and of the change whereby systematic training day by day in art, household science and manual training has been effected in the school indicates clearly the trend of education of the deaf, who are to be fitted to play their part in life alongside their hearing companions with the slightest possible disadvantage through lack of hearing.

This in conjunction with what is taking place in education in the vocational schools of the country shows how education is being "bent" to bring out the best in the boy and girl and to fit them for not only their particular niche in life but also for the place they are to occupy in society.

SAYS BUSINESS IMPROVING

That the worst of the depression is over sounds like a statement made last year but this time it is made by no less an authority than President James A. Farrell of the United States Steel Corporation. He states that it has been over for thirty days, and that evidence has been accumulating that the steel business and collateral and unrelated lines give ample evidence of this. His view of the future is he says bright.

Two schools of thought are at work in the United States he points out, one looking to delay of improvement until certain factors in the world situation have been corrected and the other that business on this continent will improve by concentration upon the potentialities of the North American continent. He leans to the latter opinion and adds that return to normal involves concentrated activities plus intensive solicitation of business by aggressive salesmanship and stimulation of consumptive demand. Buyers and manufacturers must be persuaded that their interest lies not in frugal inventories and hand-to-mouth purchases, but rather in a generous recognition of the fact that normal business cannot be restored until there is a widespread utilization of normal purchasing power to the limit of consumptive capacity and consistent with credit obligations. Management, merchandising and manufacturing are the three handmaids of successful business. "I am confident" he says, "in the steady progress towards better times because of fundamental soundness." Clear thinking by hardheaded men of business is at the basis of the present upward trend.

Mr. Farrell's address contains a reference all should remember. "Among the disadvantages attendant upon a period of depression such as we have been experiencing is the stimulation of undigested opinions that always seem to arise in a general discussion of these conditions."

Mr. Farrell was speaking particularly of the United States where the depressive influences have been more pronounced than they have been in Canada, but in general his references may be considered as applying to this country in a lesser degree.

LACK OF LEISURE

Men in this machine age do not take their leisure leisurely, though machine has made leisure more possible for them said Rev. Dr. Sedgwick of Toronto to the Rotary Club.

With mass production, one would think that goods ought to be produced so cheaply that everyone would have enough and to spare and yet that is not the case. All men seem to lose sense of values and boom and depression result.

Much of the trouble is possibly in the makeup of man who it seems cannot view things calmly but must be either optimistic or pessimist.

ONE-EYED CARS

Out of the darkness on a winter's night on the highways peers the one-eyed car just as in the summertime. Despite the attention drawn to this motorists do drive their cars without an extra light bulb to replace a burned out lamp though to do so may run them within the grasp of the law.

The one-lamped cars will never cease to be a menace until there are quite off the roads. The Department officers are on the lookout for them but they do escape notice occasionally.

Why there should not be a device to show on the dash when a head light goes off is hard to say except that possibly such a device would not be any more regarded than the reading of the gas tank register or the oil gauge.

SIDELIGHTS

"THE PLOWMAN"

Half hidden in the gray of evening,
Cleaving the earth's brown flank, he stumbles on,
Till clouds creep up to veil the pallid sky,
And the last fiery glow of day has gone.

The team plods home; harsh jangling of the harness,
Trample of hoofs on clay; the doors swing wide,
Voices ring through the dark, a pale light glimmers;
Gray banks of mist close over the hillside.

He plows his ridge; neither in joy nor sorrow,
Nor anxious of the approaching season's gain,
Others shall sow, and watch the seed's awakening;
Others shall draw the shaking loads of grain.

His work outlives him; harvest, seed, and harvest.
With change unchanging as the night and morn—
Though years pass by, the fields fulfill their promise;
He labors on for masters yet unborn.

—Richard J. Needham

AFTER DINNER SPEAKERS have to collect stories with a spice of humor in them to brighten up their talks and cause a laugh; for the man who can create a laugh is forgiven many things. Here are a few picked up here and there, sure fire hits when young, and old enough now to be young again:

John Bright, the British Liberal statesman and one of the most stirring phrase-makers of his day, was not deterred by his Quaker faith from evincing a strong hostility toward Benjamin Disraeli. "But, Mr. Bright," a partisan of Disraeli once urged in defense of his favorite. "You must admit that Disraeli is a self-made man." "Yes," retorted Bright, "and he worships his maker."

x x x x

Another story along the same line was told about Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, who was fiercely attacked in the Reconstruction Congress following the Civil War. One of the president's admirer's remarked in his favor on the floor of the House that Johnson was a self-made man. To which Thad Stevens quickly retorted, "I am indeed glad to hear it, it relieves the Creator of a terrible responsibility."

x x x x

Edward Bok, of Ladies Home Journal fame, was continually approached by women who wanted his advice in problems of the heart. One who said she has lost three husbands and now had an offer of a fourth sought Mr. Bok's opinion. "Shall I accept him?" she asked. "If you have already lost three husbands," replied Mr. Bok, "I should say that you are too careless to be entrusted with a fourth."

Admiring one of George Bernard Shaw's objects d'art, a young lady caller exclaimed. "Oh, isn't it nice!" "Don't say 'nice'," corrected G.B.S. "It's a nasty word. "Don't say 'nasty'," retorted the caller. "It's not a nice word"

The Hon. Sam. F. Rice, a noted politician of Alabama, was a fiery Secessionist before the Civil War, and in a speech advocating secession he told his hearers not to be apprehensive of war. "We can whip the Yankees with popguns," he boasted. When he was running for office years after the War, he made a speech at the same place, and was interrupted by a question from the audience:

"Ain't you the same man who told us here in '60 that we could whip the Yankees with popguns?"

"Yes," he replied, "and we could have done so, but the rascals wouldn't fight that way."

While a professor at Leland Stanford, our present Secretary of the Interior, Lyman Wilbur, assigned to his students the task of writing an essay on "Manners."

"A would-be wit of the class arose and hesitantly asked what kind of manners the professor meant—good or bad?

"I care not what kind whatever kind you are most familiar with," replied Professor Wilbur.

A group of newspaper men last summer were flying from California to Kansas City. At a high altitude—the region of freakish air currents—the plane suddenly dropped about 200 feet causing one of the boys to cry out in alarm:

"My word! How far can one of these planes drop?"

Will Rogers, a passenger, replied, "The ground's the limit, my boy."

Newspaper Opinions

IT IS NO USE MOVING

It may take Canada a long while to get back to the roaring times that preceded the stock crash of 1929. But either things are getting a little better or people are adjusting themselves to a slower movement of cash. Christmas trade is reported a little better than a year ago. That may not mean that the people have more money. It may just mean that they are not so much afraid to let go a little more of what they have. And if good times are simply a frame of mind people must again be gradually veering towards the necessary line of thought to give industry the impetus it needs. Anyway, Canada is better off than any other part of the world, so it's no use moving.—Toronto Telegram.

PYJAMAS AND WOMEN

During the last two or three years, this fondness for bifurcated nether garments on the part of the fair ones has grown to alarming proportions. They were first used for negligee purposes—lounging over breakfast, and the like. There was nothing much wrong in that. Then came pyjamas for beach wear. This development wore a sinister look. It seemed to be leading to something that was for stouter people. And what it is really leading to is reported in the New York item already referred to. Pyjamas, says this dispatch, will be worn "around the clock" in future by modish women. Models exhibited this week were for "dancing, the beach, the garden and the home." No one, therefore, are pyjamas to be confined to the boudoir at night and the beach by day—but they are to be worn at all hours, for the garden and in the home. The next step, of course, is afternoon and shopping pyjamas. And then pyjamas all the time! Frankly, we don't like it. This is the Thin Edge of the Wedge or something or other. All we know is that a number of pyjamaed women and trousered men is too, too horrible to contemplate.—The Globe, Toronto.

DRASTIC ACTION PROMISED

Mayor Marks did not mince words in his address to the Kiwanis Rotary Club yesterday, when he said that there were people in the city, ratepayers, who preferred to leave their taxes unpaid, although they were well able to pay them, and to finance their business or investments, with money which really belonged to the city, at a rate of five percent, rather than paying their taxes and securing money required for business through the regular banking channels. Mayor Marks stated emphatically that drastic steps would be taken to compel these ratepayers to pay their taxes, if his assertion that people are doing this can be justified by the facts, and one cannot imagine the mayor making this assertion unless he were sure of his ground, then drastic action is in order.—Oshawa Times.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

The British government committee appointed to consider capital punishment and recommend either its abolition or continuation has filed its report and it is an interesting document. The evidence and the thoroughness with which the studies of the subject were pursued, it may be pointed out that the commission went as far back as Victor Hugo for inspiration, recalling his lines: "Let it not be supposed that the social order will depart with the scaffold. The social building will not fall for want of its guillotine keystone." The commission had that thought in mind, undoubtedly, when it recommended that capital punishment be abolished for a period of five years, and urged that the home secretary be empowered by parliament to commute to life imprisonment death sentences already imposed, but not executed. Under the suggested plan, life imprisonment would be substituted for all offenses now carrying the death penalty. And no distinction would be made between the sexes in the administration of justice. Revision of the rules on insanity and complete elimination of the death penalty for persons under 21 years of age are other recommendations.—Hamilton Spectator.

MARRIED WOMEN TO BE JOBLESS

200 Telephone Operators Who Have Support of Husbands to be Laid Off

Boston, Mass., Jan. 20—All married women employed as operators in the telephone exchanges of Greater Boston will be laid off on January 26, the only exceptions being cases where husbands are unemployed and incapable of supporting the family. This decision, affecting about 200 operators, was taken by the telephone company to meet "its problem of force distribution in the face of slack business."

"It is so doing," said the company, "the management is observing a recommendation of the State's Committee on Unemployment Relief, which, however, is supported by its own judgment as the most equitable step in such an emergency.

"Within the metropolitan division, the entire group of central offices, because of their inter-relationship, had to be treated as one unit, and it was decided that, instead of allotting periodical days off to all employees, it would be far more equitable first to lay off married women living with husbands able to support their families. In some of the large centres outside the metropolitan division, similar conveniences have been met by allotting one or more days off per week or per month, as the case might be among the entire force of a given central office.

"In its announcement to its employees, the telephone Company made it clear that its action was taken not because of a purpose to discriminate against married women as such, but to meet in the most equitable way a situation which, for the time being would require a reduction in its force of employees.

Ontario Man Speaks With Great Enthusiasm

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbeton, Ont., Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been worried at pick and shovel work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty stiff work on the back, kidneys and bladder, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following result—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. So lets work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills is my maxim. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Marmora

Marmora, Jan. 20 (By Mail)—A very successful and enjoyable euchre and bridge was held in the Separate School-rooms on Friday evening. The prizes for bridge were won by Mr. T. J. Byrnes and Mrs. Brown and the prizes for euchre by M. Thos. Moffatt and Miss Jean O'Neill. The proceeds amounted to $45.00.

Miss Marion Minter of Havelock spent Friday evening in town.

Mr. Walter Wiggins of Bancroft was a recent visitor in town.

Mrs. A. H. Connor who has been confined to her bed through illness is able to be around again.

Mr. Leonard McNeily who has been visiting his brother, Mr. H. A. McNally returned home on Monday.

Mrs. Alfie Meehan is quite ill in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro.

Several from Marmora attended the hockey match in Stirling on Wednesday. Quite a number also attended the hockey match on Friday evening in Norwood.

Miss Mary A. Flynn of Peterboro is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. Flynn.

The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine with an attendance of over thirty. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. F. P. Wells, Mrs. Prentice acted in that capacity. The roll call a Scotch Joke was responded to by practically everyone present and many a hearty laugh was given for example the one chosen by Mrs. Pinner. "The Scotchman who insisted that his wife fry his bacon in Lux so it wouldn't shrink."

Several items of business were discussed. The financing of the milk for the underweight children in the public school, the holding of a class in sewing by an instructor from the Department of Agriculture and several other matters which will be taken up more fully at the February meeting.

The program was quite a lengthy one but was of unusual interest. After an opening, "Welcome Song," by Aileen and Marion Flynn, Mrs. Curtis presented the "current events" which among other interesting recent happenings contained a brief sketch of our member, Hon. J. R. Cooke and his connection with the Hydro Commission. She finished with a beautifully prepared paper on the Scotch poet, Robert Burns, whose birthday is celebrated in Scotland each January. Mrs. Percy Gray sang a solo at this point of the program, "The Old Fashioned House," which was a real treat.

Dr. H. Crawford gave a short talk in reference to the supplying of milk to underweight children in the public school. He explained what is meant by vitamins and the part they play in developing our bodies and keeping them in a healthy condition. Milk in some form or another contains all the vitamins and so it comes reasonable being a perfect food of anything in that class. Although milk had only been provided in the school for about twenty days, already the teachers note considerable improvement both in the physical condition of some of the children and in the progress they are making in their studies. It is hoped to continue until summer holidays.

Mrs. F. H. Howard followed with a paper along the lines of child training and the relationship of mothers and daughters after which Aileen and Marion Flynn played a piano duet. Mrs. Saunders gave a splendid synopsis of Burn's poem, "Tam O'Shanter" and community singing and an "advertising contest won by Mrs. C. Jones brought the program to a close. Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Schofield and Mrs. E. Flynn.

GARAGE BURNED TO THE GROUND

Port Perry Man is Heavy Loser in Early Morning Blaze

Oshawa, Jan. 22—A disastrous fire breaking out in the early hours of Sunday morning completely destroyed the garage of the Carnegie Motor Sales Co. at Port Perry along with 10 or 12 automobiles and also damaged the premises of the Carnegie Hardware Co., next door.

The fire which was raging fiercely when discovered for a time threatened to become a general conflagration in the business section of Port Perry, and a call was sent for assistance to the Oshawa fire brigade. The Oshawa department responded but by the time it reached Port Perry the local fire brigade had the blaze under control.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. The garage had been closed at 11 o'clock by Frank Hood, one of the employes. The damage is estimated at about $10,000 only slightly over half of which is covered by insurance.

BIG DECREASE IN ACCIDENTS

Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Has Enviable Record

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 20—Accidents in the Sydney steel plant have decreased from 502 less years ago to 90 for the year just closed, according to a statement issued by the company, which affirms that while the figures deal with frequency rates of accidents only there has been a marked decrease in severity rate as well. The marked improvement is attributed jointly to physical safeguards and increased vigilance on the part of employees.

The 60 accidents occurring in 1930 represented the risk index for the year of slightly more than three quarters of a million man days worked, and the 502 mishaps in 1920 punctuated an employment total of one million and a quarter man days. In 1921 accidents dropped to 276, and in 1924, when fewer man days were worked than in 1920, the accident rate was 351. This year's results, when accidents fell below the hundred mark for the first time, indicated a greater improvement than in any previous year.

The foundry performance with respect to accident prevention is especially noteworthy. Among the approximately 60 men employed in the hazardous foundry work, there has not been a single accident in the last four and one half years.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Pile tumors of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak and the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. E. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID and prescribed it for 1000 patients and his marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and J. S. McKeown's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees if not entirely satisfactory to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

GOLDEN DAWN

By PETER B. KYNE

Then she winked scornfully. "Two big words," said he.

"Oo," replied Lanny, realized that they appreciated her very much indeed. "She's a lawyer," said one of them.

"Not a very good one, though," the other replied. "However, Pat, let her have her own way. A woman's a woman."

"A outrageous fellow bowed low——" said particularly a young and beautiful woman——with a pistol—always makes me nervous. If you will be good enough to open your garage door, Miss Lanning, we will go out come up your front stairs ring the bell like gentlemen, and ask if we can't come in and have a little chat with you. Is that satisfactory?"

"Eminently so," Lanny was as polite at the speaker now. She felt for the bolt in back of her and slid it back and kicked the door open without taking her eyes or her pistol off the pair. They went out, closed both doors behind her and held them closed until she had shot the bolt home again. Then she went upstairs and let herself in just as the door-bell rang; so she switched on the lights, removed her hat and coat, went to the door and opened it instantly, two large hands thrust two cards at her; when upon she was aware that she was about to entertain Detective-Sergeant P. Flynn and Detective-Sergeant A. Angelloti.

"Good evening, gentlemen." Lanny hailed them cordially. "Come in and rest your big flat feet."

P. Flynn nodded wisely to A. Angelloti. "She resents us, Amadeo", said he.

"No," I hope not, Pat. Let us hope it is not us she resents but our honorable profession." The wretch bowed again. "Thank you, Miss Lanning." And both gentlemen entered.

Lanny led them down the hall to her tiny drawing-room. Angelloti, like a hound, followed close behind her, but Flynn was in no hurry. He swept the runner in the hall with a flashlight first, then followed his partner into the drawing-room, and sat down heavily on a divan.

"Is this to be a long interview?" Lanny asked cheerfully. P. Flynn shook his head. "A minute or two."

"Then I'll not bother giving you anything to drink."

"Well it might take ten minutes at that," Flynn countered.

"At least that," Angelloti agreed.

"Besides, Pat, she works for a doctor and her stuff is probably good old prescription goods."

"We been hours out in the cold," Flynn added softly.

Lanny mixed her guests each a highball. P. Flynn drank half of his at a gulp, set down his glass and said:

"Well, where's Nance Belden?"

"I see by the papers she escaped from San Quentin about six hours ago."

"She came here," Flynn charged. "We're it. Lanny challenged tartly; whereupon Flynn went out into the entrance hall and returned, dragging the end of the hall runner with him. He turned it over and revealed a large dark red spot. "Blood!" he announced. Angelloti touched the spot. "Fresh blood!"

"Human blood," Flynn went on. "Quite a clot of it. She must have fainted after Miss Lanning let her in. Undoubtedly she lay several minutes in the hall bleeding while Miss Lanning was fixing a bed for her."

"We know she came here," Angelloti charged. "We found two spots of blood on the sidewalk."

"Tick bottles it." Flynn declared with ponderous finality. "Miss Lanning, you have this female convict secreted in your house and I advise you to give her up. Come now, give her up, be wheedled. "And we'll just give it out that we caught he trying to get into your house during your absence.—"We'll protect you."

"Search my house," Lanny offered it. A decent, civilized voice. She loathed herself for having overlooked that large blood stain on her hall runner.

INSTALMENT XII

Flynn and Angelloti needed no second invitation. They searched the house thoroughly and helurned to the little drawing-room to finish their drinks.

"You've taken her away," Flynn charged. "Where did you take her?"

"If you've such good detectives, go and find her," Lanny was getting her courage back again. "She did come here, but I wasn't fool enough to receive her. She came in a car with two men and she did faint in my hallway and lie there for a little while. Of course she expected—why, I can't imagine why—to find hide her and nurse her. But she's neither a friend nor a relative of mine; she met me once in Dr. Burt's office where I am employed and took a liking to me—is her funny way. She's a psycho-neurotic personality. She write me, asking me to call upon her, and I did—like a fool—because I felt sorry for her. She should be in a sanitarium, not in a jail."

"Who brought her to Dr. Burt's office?"

"Chief McNamara."

Messrs. Flynn and Angelloti sat up. They glanced slowly at each other. "The old man's been up to his old tricks again," said Flynn. "What become of Nance Belden after you received to receive her?"

"She left in the automobile." Lanny was careful not to state which automobile or whose.

"You're an accessory to her escape. It was your duty, as a citizen, to hold her here, telephone police headquarters and have you her taken down to the Emergency Hospital for treatment. You can go to the pen for this."

"Get out of my house," Lanny commanded fiercely.

"Sure, but you come with us." Thus Angelloti.

"You can't arrest me without a warrant."

"I said before you ain't such a good lawyer. We can always pick up anybody that carries a gun without a permit. Into your hat and coat, Miss Lanning, and come with us."

"I'll telephone my lawyer and then go with you," said Lanny with dignity.

"Nothing doing." Flynn declared firmly.

"You two dare lay hands on me and I'll have you both broke, understand. Be careful. Call up Chief McNamara before you get fresh with me. The telephone is in the kitchen."

Flynn went into the kitchen and called up Dan McNamara. He was much subdued upon his return, and Lanny smiled. "We'll get you yet," he growled. "You must have a drag with the chief. He's pulled us off the case. Good night."

When they had gone, Lanny put out the hall light and watched them from behind the door curtain. They crossed the street to their car, climbed in and settled down for an all-night vigil —— at least so Lanny decided.

So she dragged the hall runner into the kitchen, scrubbed the bloody spot thoroughly and dried it over the gas stove, reviling herself the while.

To the surprise of the machine-gunner, Chief Dan McNamara did not ask him a single personal question—not even his name. Nor did he question him regarding his wounded friend. He and the chief partook of a breakfast, which the Tommy man prepared, and discussed marksmanship, wounds, bullets and sudden death. As the chief was leaving, he gave the machine-gunner a list of the tradesmen, who supplies his house, and told him to telephone his orders; when delivery was made, they were to be left on a table in the basement.

"And don't you answer the telephone and don't show yourself outside or near the front windows," he warned. The fellow nodded. "By the way, Chief, what's going to become of that speedboat? It belongs to Nance. She bought it for forty-five hundred dollars."

McNamara sat down and looked his amusement. "She paid forty-five hundred dollars for that boat——and yet she was doing time for pinching a dozen silk stockings? I don't like to ask you any questions you might be embarrassed to answer, boy, but today will be a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THERMOMETER A SUBSTITUTE FOR COMPASS

Capt. Bob Bartlett Tells How he Navigated the Morrissey in Arctic

ST. JOHN'S, NFLD. — Use of the thermometer as a navigation instrument was one of the striking features of Arctic seamanship described in a recent radio address by Captain Bob Bartlett, Newfoundland's noted explorer. Picturing the various routine adventures and hazards attending travel in the ice fields, Captain Bartlett told how his ship, the Morrissey, was bombarded by a Bureau of Fisheries thermometer to the land of the lost Eskimo."

"This year (1930) the Morrissey, after leaving Battyknik, Ireland," he said, "was bound up the northeast coast to Greenland. We had more than the usual share of bad weather in the shape of snow, fog, heavy seas and head winds. With such conditions observations were out of the question, so our three thermometers had a rest. Commissioner O'Malley of the Bureau of Fisheries at Washington had loaned me three water thermometers. I used them spiringly on that trip. They enabled me to keep out of mischief. When we approached the danger line, where I expected to make the ice, the water temperature dropped suddenly. Then I would put her over on S-and off until I made about 37 degrees Fahrenheit. I kept on that course, with the thermometer gradually falling as it was heaved over, until I got about 34 degrees, then hauled off until the thermometers showed a water temperature of 37 degrees. I kept the Morrissey on a course between those two temperatures and when the fog cleared we were thirty-four miles east of Shannon Island and right at the edge of the ice."

Captain Bartlett explained that as a rule, ships visit the Arctic only in summer. "The sun is visible, in addition to navigation throughout the whole twenty-four hours. When the stars begin to shine we know that it is freeze-up time, and then we look for a good strong harbor to tie up our little craft."

He compared present day methods with those in use when he sojourned with Peary at Grantland. "At that time we had no wireless and therefore could not obtain time signals from Arlington, Paris or Germany. It was essential we check up on our chronometer as often as possible, and once in every twenty-four hours as the stars passed our meridian we would note the time and so kept a good check.

"Nowadays, of course, with the time signals coming in from Europe, America and Asia almost every hour, this factor is well taken care of.

"No one but a seaman or an explorer can really appreciate such a blessing as the wireless. No matter where you are, all you have to do is rig up your wireless outfit, listen in, hear the beeps, and there you are.

Those of us who have met, or who have read the experiences of early explorers and seamen wintering in the Arctic, who have heard them tell of having to make hundreds of lunar observations, and star observations, can really appreciate the benefits of modern navigation. The early explorer had to stretch out full length on the snow, with the mercury at that time well below the Fahrenheit mark, and the telescope and a constant guard to his eyes. He must have been an iron man to do it, but he did, and his observations, checked by modern instruments, show how conscientious and skilful he was.'

QUINTE BRANCH OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET

The January meeting of the Quinte Branch W. I. was held Tuesday afternoon, 13th, at the home of Mrs. F. Parrot, Front of Thurlow, with some fifty members present. The president, Mrs. Jas. Burtzell, had charge of the meeting which opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. There was considerable business transacted and it was decided that a euchre and dance be held in the Orange Hall, Shannonville on Jan. 28th, in aid of the cemetery work. As the membership of the Branch is steadily increasing the President suggested that we work and raise funds to build a "Home" of our own in which to hold our monthly meeting's in the future. This was left for further discussion at the next meeting. Community singing was indulged in and many old familiar songs were sung. Mrs. Jas. Garbutt gave a splendid paper on "Be a Sport—Make Life Worth While Just Where You Are," outlining the facts, and reminding us that more joy would be given to earth's toils if more love prevailed and to appreciate the sweet things of life. No not worry about tomorrow, do our best today. Be a sport —everyone has their troubles. Mrs. Harry Greatrix rendered a solo, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Mrs. Wm. Murphy gave a humorous reading "Getting Pa to Bed," which afforded lots of laughs for all. Mrs. Robert Bell gave a most interesting paper on "The Place and Power of Young Womanhood of Today," explaining the value of the girls to their homes and country.

The roll call "How to Reduce House hold Expenses," was well responded to and some helpful hints exchanged. Miss Jones invited the Institute to her home for the February meeting which will be held at night. After the singing of the National Anthem a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Parrot.

DENIS FLEMING NOT CANDIDATE

Name Appears on Hungerford Ballot But Does Not Wish Election

Denis Fleming, who was nominated for the office of deputy-reeve of Hungerford on Monday last, has made it clear that he is not seeking election to that office on Monday, January 26th. Three names appear on the ballot for deputy, namely those of Fred Blakely, Dalton Clarke and Denis Fleming but Mr. Fleming states that he tendered his resignation before nine o'clock on Tuesday evening but that through a technicality it was allowed to remain on the ballot.

Mr. Fleming has expressed a desire that his friends do act vote for him as he is not a candidate and so notices are to be posted advising the electors not, to cast their votes for him. This leaves the contest between Fred Blakely and Dalton Clarke.

A notice published in the Tweed News this week over the signature of Mr. Fleming states:

"My name will be found on the ballot on Monday next as a candidate for the office of Deputy Reeve. I placed my resignation in the hands of the Clerk before 9.00 o'clock on Tuesday night last, and I wish to take this opportunity of informing the electors that I am not a candidate and would ask that no votes be polled for me. I regret very much that this contingency has arisen, but it is through no fault of mine".

George E. Jordan and T. H. Mouck are candidates for the reevship, vacated by Sheriff G. H. Stokes.

COMMISSIONER DIES

LATE J. CHARLES PANTER, Member of Belleville Board of Parks Commissioners since organization, who died today after lengthy illness.

CHARLES PANTER DIED FOLLOWING A LONG ILLNESS

Prominent Member of Parks Board and Well Known Horseman Passed

The death of Mr. John Charles Panter took place this morning, at the Belleville General Hospital after attending physicians had given up hope for his recovery. He suffered from intestinal ailment. Mr. Panter was identified with the firm of Panter and Thomson, Insurance and Real Estate Brokers, and was a member of the congregation of Christ Church. He was a valued member of the Belleville Park Board since its inception, and enjoyed a keen interest in beautifying his native city in that capacity. The late Mr. Panter was also an honorary president of the Belleville Fair Board. He was widely known as an ardent admirer of show horses. Mr. Lewis is to mourn his death and two brothers, Ex-Mayor W. H. and Fred E. also his sister, Mrs. Lorne F. Green.

Tribute from Parks Board

John Charles Panter, familiarly known as "Charlie" Panter, took a great interest in all matters for the improvement of Belleville. When the Parks Board was formed he was one of the original members and served continuously up to the time of his death. Charles J. Symons, chairman of the Parks Board, paid the following tribute to his late colleague:

"It was with sincere sorrow that I learned of the death of my esteemed colleague, Charlie Panter, one of the original members of the Board of Parks Commissioners. Commissioner Panter always took a deep and active interest in the work of the Board, in the never-ending task of adding to the beauty of Belleville and year by year improving the parks system of the city. He was always a tower of strength to the Board, a willing worker and one who by reason of his kindly disposition, geniality and stability it was a pleasure to be associated with. When the present fair grounds or Recreation Park was planned by the Board, Commissioner Panter assisted very materially in bringing this project to a successful conclusion by visiting various cities and inspecting similar grounds to the end that Belleville should have the very best recreation park possible. Speaking for myself and colleagues on the Board of Park Commissioners we feel that we have lost a valued co-worker and that there is lost to the city of Belleville a citizen who has contributed much to its advancement and progress, one always willing and anxious to serve the best interests of his fellow citizens."

GILBERT FRENCH MADE PRESIDENT CONSERVATIVES

Ward Chairmen Chosen — Plans for Financial Drive are Laid

TARIFF CHANGES

Ex-Ald. Gilbert H. French was the unanimous choice of the Belleville Conservative Association for president at the annual meeting held in the club rooms, Front Street, last evening. Mr. French is entering his second term at the same post, his work during the past year having met with very general of the members. Frank McKeown is first vice-president and R. H. Ketcheson secretary.

The attendance was not large but the enthusiasm indicated another progressive year for the party in Belleville.

Mr. French thanked the members for the co-operation during the past year and said that only united effort would result in success for the organization. R. H. Ketcheson read the minutes and the treasurer's report showed a balance of $22.92.

six members were paid in last year. Plans were laid for a financial drive for the Association and it was finally decided that the matter rest in the hands of the lead chairmen.

O. B. Fredlin was appointed for president by George Ostrom and Harry Smith seconded the name.

Frank McKeown, K.C., was sponsored for first vice-president by Harry Meath and A. L. Johnston was duly manimously elected while R. H. Ketcheson who has occupied the post of secretary-treasurer for many years, was unanimously elected. The ward chairmen were named as follows:

Victor Ward, David Hollins, Sumpter Ward, Alexander Ketcheson Ward, A. L. Johnston; Baldwin Ward, Jesse Barlow; Bleecker Ward, James Patrick; Coleman Ward, Charles Reid; Murney Ward, Alf. Lazier. H. B. Stock and Fred Wiggins retired while A. L. Johnson succeeded H. P. Ketcheson, deceased, as ward chairman.

Messrs. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. and W. E. Tummon, M.P., are Hon. Presidents. A motion was made that that a letter of condolence be forwarded to the family of the late H. P. Ketcheson who served as president of the Association as well as in other capacities.

Some discussion took place on the organization to a local government and George Ostrom and T. Y. Wills, newly appointed harbor commissioners, were asked to address the meeting. Both spoke in regard to the matter which has been one of paramount interest to the members since the last Federal election.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., thanked for the association for the loyal support he had received in the past and always had faith in Hon. R. B. Bennett and that faith has not been shattered still think that he is the leading statesman of Canada today. Mr. Tummon pointed out that the Hon. Prime Minister has ever faced greater problems than at the present but had the courage to tackle all the questions with zeal. He has been accustomed all his life to dealing with big problems and he was in a position after the election to go ahead with the work.

"He promised unemployment relief and he has given it," said Mr. Tummon. "Municipalities were advised to proceed with work and they have done all carrying charges would be paid. Six by-eight million dollars worth of work has been undertaken and this amount today as a result of Mr. Bennett's plan. The change in the tariff has resulted in many factories being established across the Dominion while others have made additions and have increased their payrolls."

Mr. Tummon supplemented his general remarks with a short talk on local conditions with particular reference to the airport. He said that work is being carried on but a larger staff will be taken on in the summer after further estimates have been passed.

CANARK PRESBYTERIANS VIOLATE CHURCH LAWS

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 22— Because the congregations of Lochmarch and Stewartville in Lanark County, have "persistently violated the constitutional laws of the Presbyterian Church, thereby placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the church and presbytery", the presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew has temporarily suspended them and also notified the W.M.S. presbyterial that delegates from the two congregations are ineligible to send delegates to its meetings.

PROPERTIES ALONG NEW SEWERS HAVE BENEFIT OF LOW COST

Government Aid on Winter Relief More Than Makes up Extra Cost

CREDIT MILD WEATHER

City's Gain is Very Small Fraction on Intersections

Fairly mild weather is keeping down the costs of the winter construction of sewers as laid under the unemployment relief plan whereby the two governments, federal and provincial, contribute $22,500 to the $45,000 cost of sewer construction in Belleville this winter before the end of March.

This is fortunate for those property owners whose lands abut on the streets on which sewers are being constructed. Before the total cost of the sewer is made up to be levied against the property owners the government aid is deducted so that the property owners directly profit if winter construction is not doubly expensive, and this winter being mild the costs would still be as high as if the weather had been very severe and there were a great deal of frost to contend with in excavating for sewers and streets where the rock is in considerable depth. A severe winter would have driven up the cost of sewer laying very much and the property owners would probably have not profited at all, but might have to pay more for the work even with the offering aid from the government than they would have had to pay had the work been performed in the warmer weather.

There is another angle to this situation, however, which is that in some streets which would probably have done without sewers or have had them constructed because of failure of property owners to agree upon laying a sewer. Under the present arrangements, there was no objection to the work going ahead and there the city was able to rush the work. Under other conditions some of these sewers would doubtless not have been laid.

Indirectly the city gains by government aid for that portion of the sewers such as intersections levied against the corporation at large. The Parks Commission also profits from the aid on the sewer to the fairgrounds.

Directly gaining from winter construction of sewers are the unemployed of the city.

Sewer costs are laid out over thirty annual payments.

Miss Evelyn stressed importance of the tractor, and the obtaining of heavier yields per acre through seed, cultivation and machinery employed. The choice of crops and crop rotation were advised, and the treatment of the soil could be accomplished by manuring and draining. There should be no overproduction and wastes should be eliminated. Finally, the careful supervision of the farm by the owner will make better returns and hence lower the cost of production.

ASK LOCAL POLICE TO SEEK SALESMAN

J. T. Dulyea is Wanted by the Police of Gananoque for Fraud

GANANOQUE, Jan. 22.—During the last week in December a young man of good appearance reached town and at once began the collecting of subscriptions for any and all classes of newspapers and magazines. His name was J. T. Dulyea, and his printed receipt books and forms indicated that he had authority to make collections. In a few days he had collected a good by sum of money, and business was brisk in his line. He attended a ball here on New Year's Eve and then suddenly disappeared.

A few days later Chief Chevrie received a communication from Macdonald's agency, 459 Ossington avenue, Toronto, enquiring about Dulyea, and stating that this gentleman had no authority to represent them, and enquiring as to his whereabouts. The chief found that he had been staying in a local hotel and had left behind him a receipt book which showed collections amounting to about $135, none of which, it is alleged, had ever been turned in to the publishers. Those who money was collected from the public library, local professional and business men. How much more Dulyea gathered in, it is not above that shown in the receipt book is not yet known.

The local police have sworn out a warrant for his arrest. Thomas Murphy, constable at Port Hope, writes that this young man has done the same good a record. He has been in trouble before, but has managed to escape punishment. Police from Belle ville east have been requested to be on the lookout for him.

Gananoque is not the only place where he had trimmed a number of people. He also operated in Perth, where he made collections and skipped out leaving an unpaid hotel bill behind him. He is thought to be somewhere in Eastern Ontario. He registered here as coming from Cobourg, Ont., but other information would indicate that he resides with an aged grandmother in Port Hope.

DR. M. W. LOCKE, QUEEN'S MEDICAL GRADUATE, MAKES WILLIAMSBURG MECCA

His Holiday Comes in Winter When He Only Has Fifty Patients Per Day—Hundreds a Day in Summer.

(E. Avery Nelson, in the Waterloo Times)

A long line of automobiles, most of them bearing New York State license plates, stood in front of a solid, two-storey frame house on a side street in the out of the way cross roads village of Williamsburg.

Most if the occupants remained seated in their cars watching with an air of expectancy the door of a small waiting room, in which a dozen people were occupying every available chair.

In the reception room total strangers, many of whom had been waiting one or few hours, were engaged in animated conversation. Seated on a broad window seat two farmers were discussing the prevailing price of poultry. Near, to them was a mother with her two sons. A quiet elderly lady occupied one corner of the tiny room and in the other a portly, jovial lady remarked for the sixth time that waiting was a tiresome business.

Suddenly and dramatically the inner door opened. Framed in the casing was a brisk, well-built slightly rotund gentleman with graying hair and an air of complete competency. The elderly woman advanced and entered. Dr. M. W. Locke, far-famed fooc specialist, had settled down for his afternoon examinations.

Dr. Locke! A man whose name has become familiar to thousands of Americans, and particularly to residents of Watertown and Jefferson county, who constitute almost the bulk of his patients.

A visit to this remarkable country physician who sometimes treats 200 patients a day is an absolutely unique experience. Perhaps because the man, his methods of treating patients and his environment present a staggering contrast to every conception of a rural or city doctor.

But one must have some ailment, some affliction, to command his attention. He has no time "to be interviewed" and he simply has nothing to say about himself. Besides, he always has patients waiting. And one learns more from these patients than from this physician, whose winter vacation consists in treating only about 50 cases a day.

"How does he stand it?" Every visitor to Williamsburg sooner or later asks that question. When he or she sees the multitude of patients, some of whom came last summer from as far west as Wisconsin.

This is how he bears up under a strain which would kill the average practising physician. When he finds himself growing tired, when his body refuses to respond, he simply quits. He walks out. He may be for an hour during the day. It may be for half an hour hours. But that is his method of relaxation.

True, there may be patients in his office who have come many miles to see him. His reception room may be crowded. Suddenly he walks briskly into his car and drives the six miles to Morrisburg. He takes a nap. Or he plays with patients scarcely behind the barn with his doorstep jammed with waiting patients.

That is the way Dr. Locke "stands it." But even so it has become too much for him. He has been giving treatments for $1. Now he is considering and probably will decide next year to give only one treatment for $1. He could give one treatment for $10.

His methods are probably unique in the annals of American and Canadian medical practice. There is no expensive, elaborately equipped waiting room. There is no private secretary. There is no provision of any kind for the hundreds who flock to his door.

On silo in a tiny, ill-lighted waiting room. There is no table, nor even the inevitable magazines in every doctor's office. An enterprising shoe merchant in Brockville has a sign on one wall announcing the birth of a new shoe especially designed to aid Dr. Locke in his treatments, and approved by him. That and a diploma certifying to the fact that he is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh constitute the wall decorations. But yes, there is also a copy of the Lord's Prayer.

How did it all start, the average visitor to Williamsburg asks. It started about four years ago when they brought a man from Watertown to Dr. Locke on a stretcher, unable to walk and barely able to move. Six months later he walked out of the office, climbed vigorously into a car and was driven away to tell afar and wide of his experience.

Now special motor busses are run from Ottawa and other points in Canada. Parties of six or seven hire taxicabs and drive there. Always there with American license plates predominate. Either Canadians have fewer ills or they take him for granted.

Williamsburg is a village of 300 or 400 inhabitants. It has a "Dominion" hotel, a few general stores, a post office, a branch of the Bank of Montreal and a couple of restaurants. One is located on the main street bears the sign "Room and Board."

It is six miles off the King's highway. If you do not have your own car, you must hire a taxicab. But the doctor will not move to a more central part. He does not have to. Incidentally such has become the year round traffic from Morrisburg over the six miles that the road will be kept open all winter. So his "vacation" must be no vacation at all, as the village is not snowbound.

Residents of Morrisburg, six miles from Dr. Locke's home, speak of their neighboring village with something like awe. But they are not envious. To sum it up in the words of taxi drivers between the two points: "You Americans may have more money than we have, but we've got Dr. Locke." This same taxi driver was eloquent on the merits of his distinguished neighbor. "Why, he does a fair ever thing by the summer. We've got to we can get a car is going to Dr. Locke's even before they ask the way to Williamsburg.

Chauffeured limousines drive up in front of the doctor in turn or in twos. Ascend patients who would not tolerate a moment's delay in a physician's office elsewhere. Here they sit patiently for an hour, or two or three, and he may go at 1.30. He may come back at 5 o'clock or he may come back after two hours. And each new arrival asks brightly of the crowded reception room "Is this the doctor in now or is he out in the country?" His whereabouts is the general topic, and any impending arrival is answered swiftly to those waiting outside.

Were it not for the cars one would pass the house without a glance. There is no doctor's sign. "Dr. M. W. Locke." Canadians passing the corner at a half block away slow up their cars. Then they turn the street and see how many cars are in front of Dr. Locke's.

It is difficult to describe the man. There is a bald spot on top of his head. He is around 56 years of age. He has a poise of mental alertness, an impression of power and strength which holds the attention unconsciously. There is the swift feeling that if he says you can be cured, you can be cured. If he says not, there is no appeal finality. And patients bear this out.

Dr. Locke will abandon his office immediately if he gets a call to attend one of his people anywhere else in the surrounding territory. When this writer arrived he had been gone an hour on such a journey for two hours. Yet his patients were waiting cheerfully. Each visit to him seemed to be an adventure to them.

The majority of the patients limped into Dr. Locke's office and obviously had some trouble with their feet or legs. But there was one tall, husky farmer who had no perceivable ailment or affliction. The doctor moved to have concentrated his particular skill upon manipulation of the feet. Yet the other day he had a railroad man from Malone, N.Y., whose shoulder had been bothering him. His trouble had been diagnosed as neuritis, rheumatism and various other things. Dr. Locke swung the man's arm about, bent it back two or three times and his shoulder clicked back into place.

Dr. Locke's early training is not an answer to his success. He was born on a small farm seven miles from his present home. He graduated in medicine at Queen's University and then he went to Edinburgh and took a post-graduate course in orthopedics. Then he came to Williamsburg and settled down to a general practice. There he still is.

What will the future of the man and the village be? There is none who can say. The time must come when he cannot possibly care for all of his patients. Already the natives are wondering what next summer will be like. Will he have an assistant? Will he expand his quarters? One guess as good as another. But the patients come, and they remain, and they marvel.

DISMISS ACTION AGAINST DRIVER

Aftermath of Highway Accident Was Heard in Napanee Court

A trial of considerable interest took place in County Court in Napanee yesterday before Judge Ernest Madden, when C. Nichols, driver of a brewery truck appeared before His Honor on charge of criminal negligence arising out of the operation of his motor vehicle near Desoronto last September. As that time a collision occurred between the truck and a car owned by E. T. Hinchcliffe, both being thrown into the ditch. Judge Madden dismissed the action against Nichols, judging him not guilty of criminal negligence but in his mind contributing gross negligence. His Honor found that Hinchcliffe was not by no way or manner contributed to the accident. He further struck on the left hand side. He was driving on his right side of the road and as time did he pull over to the centre to cruse the truck to strike his car as was suggested by Nichol's witnesses. The case has created considerable interest in and about this district but the disposition yesterday writes finis to the aftermath of the accident.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception fizzled to start out on the right foot last night and for awhile things were rather spoky but it found its self later on and everything was rosy once more. Always manages to clear up around the midnight hour doesn't it? No wonder we get the nightshawk habit.

The fans tell me that the program of the Repasteurs last Monday night was dedicated to Belleville. I didn't hear it myself but one can't be all over the dial at once and I'm mighty glad to hear so many compliments as to tell me. They described the beauties of the city and its surrounding district and its industries and generally painted Belleville right up to the eaves.

These programs will come through WEAF Broadcasting Station Abe and David at 6.45 and then at 8 Jerniea Dragonette and the Casaliers. The program tonight includes "Valencia," "To A Wild Rose," "Indian Love Call" and plenty others, sort of making them up.

Cliquot Club Eskimos at 9 and at 10.30 the program of the Radio Keith Orpheum and the guest artists tonight will be Richard Dix screen star, Lucy Beaumont also of screen fame and Fleyd Gibbons. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra is on from WEAF at 11 and another smashing big program at 11.30 when the annual entertainment and dance of the Press Photographers Association of New York rank of the air. Among those celebrities present will be Vincent Lopez, Eddie Dowling, Helen Morgan, Bill Robinson, Ginger Rogers, Gus Van, Fannie Brice and Hannah Williams.

Ten million dollars is being asked by the Red Cross Society for the sufferers from last summer's drought in the western United States. Last night the big feature on the air was a Red Cross broadcast with much music and a number of "big shots" talking over an appeal for funds. Among the headliners was Mary Pickford who gave a delightful sympathetic talk expressing her own convictions as to the great need of the moment from her own observations, also pledging her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, co-operation in helping to put over the drive as well as that of Charlie Chaplin. Mary told of some experiences she had in New York recently while slumming. President Hoover was packed up from Washington for a talk. Ex-President Calvin Coolidge from down Easton way, Will Rogers from Little Rock, Arkansas; Amos 'n' Andy from out Chicago way; Al. Smith from Albany, and others. It was a handy program and undoubtedly listeners-in learned more about the splendid work of the Red Cross than they ever knew before. Will Rogers talk was the brightest spot on the program. He had flown from Washington to Little Rock, Arkansas, that day, said that what was needed most there was radio relief as the radio was not working and he had no idea who had preceded him on the air or how he was going to follow unless it was Peggy Joyce who could go out and pick up more money in a short time than anybody he knew of. Will concluded beside his talk a check for $5,000, half for himself, half for his wife, half to be used in the relief of Oklahoma drought victims, and half for those of Arkansas.

WJZ has the Frootite program at 7.45 with at 8 Billy Jones and Ernie Hare. Frances Williams Broadway "Blues" singer. I forgot to mention will be the guest star at 8 just preceding the Thirty programs. Irvin S. Cobb will be heard again at 9.30. Florence Richardson at midnight.

Night Life Melodrama Triumph For Sherman

Actor-Director Stars In The "Pay-Off."

CENTRE W.M.S.

The interesting program for unadulterated entertainment will find it at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow during the opening performance of Radio Pictures' drama "The Pay-Off," featuring Lowell Sherman and an excellent cast.

Sherman also directed the production, and while his initial direction effort "Lawful Larceny," was praised by press and public alike, "Losing Game" is even better.

Marion Nixon and William Janney give great portrayals as innocent youngster-lovers, who become involved in the activities of a gang of thieves headed by Sherman.

The story, an original by Samuel Shipman, is intriguing from the beginning, when the youngsters are robbed of their marriage-money by a member of the gang, until the climax, when Sherman, in love with the girl, is faced with the ordeal of sacrificing his life to save hers.

While smacking of the underworld, the picture is not the typical gangster melodrama, futile treatment has relegated the underworld to the background and brought out the idealism of devotion and sacrifice.

Hugh Trevor gives a distinguished performance in his first "heavy" role. The cast includes Heinie Mitfeld, George Marion, Walter McGrail, Robert McWade, Alan Roscoe, Lita Chevret and Bert Moorehouse.

Stop the Cough—Coughing is caused by irritation in the respiratory passages and is the effort to dislodge obstruction that comes from the inflammation of the mucous membrane. Treatment with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will allay the inflammation and in consequence the cough will usually stop. Try it and you will be satisfied.

The W.M.S. held their first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Elwood Spencer, the husbands and the families of the ladies being also invited. The meeting began with singing, followed by prayer by the president, Mrs. H. Adam. The Rev. Mr. Rose then gave the Scripture Reading from the 25th Chapter of Luke, after which Mrs. Melvin Pulver gave the minutes of the December meeting, and Mrs. Cyrus Giles gave the Financial Report for 1930.

A solo given by Miss Audra Brickman was much enjoyed as also a reading given duet by Misses K. and O. Giles, and then Miss Huffman, a missionary from China, in a delightful address, carried her hearers with her, in fancy on a trip back to China to spend Christmas in her home. It will proved very interesting, and helped us to realize a little of what our missionaries are doing to make the lives of people in other lands much happier, with the knowledge that a Father in Heaven knows and cares for them, and also with the Medical Aid they are able to give them. We also realized that this work needs our prayers and our money if it is to go on.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Huffman, and then the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Ross gave a beautiful duet, followed by a reading by Miss Ruth Townsend. The collections were then taken, and a cornet solo given by Mr. Donald Spencer. The meeting ended by all singing, Blest Be the Tie That Binds; after which many of the guests entered into a Biblical contest which was very interesting.

Lunch was then served and an interesting and profitable evening was brought to a close. Our thanks are due to Mrs. Spencer for her hospitality. The collection was $5.00 and 75 cents over the flower fund.

The next February meeting is invited to the home of Mrs. W. Fox.

TENSE MOMENT IN "THE PAY-OFF"

The accusing finger of Alan Roscoe, District Attorney, in the "Pay Off" which plays at the Capitol Theatre, Saturday Monday and Tuesday, points threatenly at the two lovers, Marion Nixon and William Janney. Lowell Sherman directs and also plays a prominent part.

MAY USE RADIOEAR FOR ENTIRE COURSE IN EDUCATION AT O. S. D.

Remarkable Invention Added to Equipment at School for Deaf

PLANS FOR SCHOOL

Story of Radiocar and Part it Plays in "Silent" Education

Except in very rare instances, it is impossible for the deaf to have their normal hearing restored, but in recent years various instruments have been devised that enable many to hear who are not totally deaf. The most successful and satisfactory of these is the radio ear, a quite recent invention, which is capable of a variety of uses, and is especially adapted to schools for the deaf. Some three years ago one of these was installed at the Ontario School for the Deaf and has proved to be a very helpful device. The main defect was that it was attached to the electric wiring and was therefore subject to a great deal of interference on account of the extreme sensitiveness of the microphone. A few weeks ago the latest improved radiocar was installed, with twenty-five outlets. This is equipped with its own battery, which obviates the trouble of electric interference. At present it will be used by several classes in rotation, and, if it meets all expectations, it is probable that next season or the following, a class of suitable junior pupils will be selected and the experiment made of carrying on their whole school course through the medium of one of these remarkable instruments.

The Winnipeg Tribune describes the radiocar as follows:—

"When Alexander Graham Bell was teaching little deaf Mabel Gardiner Hubbard, experimenting on an instrument which he hoped would help her to hear, he little dreamed that his crude pianola was a telephone, one of the greatest inventions of all ages.

When E. A. Meyers of Pittsburgh, a successful lawyer, began to lose his hearing and turned to manufacturing where he thought he would be less handicapped, he found the handicap greater than he expected it to be. His handicap became heavier and heavier, he tried every remedy and every hearing device. Shut off from his friends in their social intercourse by still greater deafness, he decided to try radio, then young, as it means of entertainment. The radio sets then in use had their limitations for him. He thought he could improve upon the radio in his home by building one better suited to his deafened condition. His effort was a definite success. Several of his hard-of-hearing friends persuaded him to build special radio sets for them. It was not long before he was in the radio business, calling his own invention the RADIOEAR.

"Now so deaf he could neither use the telephone nor carry on a satisfactory business interview, Mr. Meyers took his radiocar into his office and after a few alterations he could both use the telephone and interview callers. Gradually he developed an instrument which has been recognized by other scientists as a greater boon to hard-of-hearing persons than any other instrument in existence.

"Little did Mr. Meyers dream that in relieving his own handicap, he was to become a benefactor to great numbers of his fellowmen. Business men, whose hearing is dull, are installing radiocars in their offices, conference rooms and homes. Schools for the deaf have already recognized the radiocar as an indispensable part of their equipment in the instruction of children with partial hearing. Public schools for hearing children are beginning to see that they are not doing justice to their children having hearing defects unless radiocars are installed in their special classrooms. Auditoriums and theatres will soon be equipped with radiocars for their hard-of-hearing patrons. Churches will not be slow to recognize their need of the invention for their members who have defective hearing.

"The radiocar cabinet, about two feet long, one and a half feet wide and one foot deep contains a number of radio tubes with a peculiar microphone which is its distinctive feature. The microphone is highly sensitive and is remarkably free from resonance. In the reproduction of sound the amplification is all that can be desired with the absence of the distressing distortion so familiar to radio fans.

"Those who are familiar with the ordinary aid to hearing are surprised to learn that it is not at all necessary to raise the voice in addressing a person using the radiocar. A normal conversational tone of voice spoken naturally reaches the deafened ear in the same tone that it reaches the normal ear. A dial which can be regulated to suit the needs of the slightly deaf and those of the very deaf is a part of the equipment. With the teaching set, which has, for schools for the deaf, twelve outlets, each pupil gets the teacher's voice and his own by means of an earphone and the dial-control by which he can regulate the amplification to suit his own needs. This is a valuable characteristic of the machine, for no two persons are hanid amped by exactly the same kind and degree of deafness.

"Teaching correct speech is one of the most difficult problems in the education of deaf children, the partially deaf as well as the totally deaf. With the radiocar the child can hear his own voice and that of his teacher. Then he can make comparisons which will enable him to correct his own speech more easily.

"A certain type of the radiocar has a phonographic attachment by which music or the spoken word, taken from records with an electro-magnetic pick-up is amplified usec in the voice pick-up with the microphone. It is quite possible that standard records made from especially prepared lessons on different subjects by skilled teachers will eventually be available. This type of radiocar containing the phonographic attachment, is the one best suited for use in schools for the deaf."

SABBATH

Dr. Knowles approximately emphasizes the origin, of the Sabbath as a divine institution. It was made a day of cessation from ordinary labor, but on this religious institution is based the law of the land, for which, curiously enough, the Lord's Day Alliance is often criticized. The law does not require people to go to church; public worship is customarily held on Sunday because people are free—or ought to be—from the demands of their week-day occupations. But because of the tendency to make the day one of sport, thousands of persons are compelled to carry on their secular occupations in order to cater to pleasure-seekers. There is need of an awakened public conscience, if Canada is to retain the spirit and practice of Sunday observance which for so long has been a wholesome feature of her life and as well a practical asset, the abandonment of which has undoubtedly lowered the standard of morals and citizenship in some other countries.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

PICTON POULTRY SHOW ATTRACTS MANY VISITORS

Two Fast Games Were Played in Prince Edward County Hockey League

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 22—The Poultry Show came to an end today. The heavy fall of snow which blocked many roads in the country, kept many away with the result that the attendance was not as large as usual. However, the show was a success financially as there were nearly eight hundred birds on display, and the talkie, put on at the Regent Theatre under the auspices of the Association realized nearly $200 profit for the Association.

The exhibitors at the show come from many parts of the province and a win at this show is a win indeed. According to leading poultry men who travel around with the shows, Picton has one of the best exhibitions in Eastern Ontario. The armories, with its great floor space, makes an ideal place for arranging the coops. There is no crowding and the birds may be seen to advantage.

The pen of Golden pheasants in the show are attracting much attention, the gorgeous plumage of this game bird being much admired. The pet stock is of special interest to the children as well as the Public School Exhibit.

The Poultry Association is fortunate in the choice of its officers, all being very capable men. Mr. Fred Newman, who is so seriously ill at the present time, is the president, Mr. Clarence Rutter is the Secretary and Mr. C. H. McGibbon is the Treasurer. The directors are F. E. Trimble, R. Davison, L. B. Calnan, Stewart York, A. Adams, M. B. Parks, Garnet Taylor, Bert Prior, F. W. C. Kent, Allan McCoy, J. L. Graydon, J. E. Hagerman, Fred A. Newman, Fred Stafford and F. J. Webster.

Some of the exhibitors at the show this year are: Fred Goodell of New Hamburg; Charles Thrope of Port Hope; A. Hugh and Son of Port Credit; Peterboro; Mr. McKernan of Toronto; Ralph McColl of Midland, Ont.; W. J. Abernethy, Campbellford; Lorne Hutchison of Warkworth; R. J. Mahoney of Belleville; Charles Saunders of Belleville. These are all from outside of the country and a splendid exhibit at the biggest shows in the province.

The Prince Edward County exhibitors include: Keith Martin of Union Vale; J. D. Keeble of Mountain View; Allan McCoy of Greenbush; Joyce Hubbs of Mt. View; Miss C. Foster of Big Island; Stewart York of Black River Bridge; Charles Peck of Big Island; Daniel Kay of Bloomfield; F. E. Trimble of Picton; Willet S. Black of Victoria; C. L. McPaul of Allisonville; L. Peeling of Picton; Dayton Murphy of Wellington; R. Herrington of Picton; Joseph Cook of Bloomfield; Sam McQuaid of Picton; John G. Carter of Picton.

Mr. Trimble has a very fine exhibit of pigeons. Some of the birds in the show were winners at Toronto, N. E. and at the Royal Winter Fair.

Next year it is planned to add new features to the show which are expected to increase the attendance.

The heavy fall of snow on Tuesday night almost blocked the main roads and they have been cleared out so that cars are still running. Some of the country roads are blocked and detours must be made through the fields. Cutters and sleighs are much in evidence these days and it is not uncommon sight to see old dobbin go merrily on his way while some car is having a great time in getting out of a snow bank.

The Prince Edward County Agricultural Society had a very successful year and at the annual meeting this week, the secretary treasurer, Mr. F. H. Minaker reported that the indebtedness of the Society has been greatly reduced. It is planned to make this years' fair of special interest and an old home week has been suggested. Whether or not this idea will be carried out remains to be seen.

The newly-elected officers are:

President—A. E. Cunningham.

1st Vice-Pres.—Morris Huff.

2nd Vice-Pres.—B. R. Hepburn.

Sec.-Treas.—F. H. Minaker.

Directors—Sam Doods, Jr., I. F. Fraser, E. M. Herrington, T. O. Crandell, E. B. Purtelle, Arthur Wright, F. J. Webster, B. S. A., Herb David, George Rose, Dunam Foster, Colin Carter, Howard Leaven, Colin Hepburn, H. S. Collver M.P. P., and C. E. Stothers, I.P.S.

The district Fairs Association will meet in Belleville next week when dates for the Fairs in this district will be selected.

There was a good crowd at the arena on Tuesday evening for the hockey games though motoring conditions were not good. Wellington defeated the Demorestville team, the score being 4 to 2. The Demorestville boys tried hard but Wellington goalie Pearce was right on the job and stopped many fine shots.

The Imperial Oil stepped up to place by defeating Bloomfield which is in second place in the League. The Collegiate team leads in the League, having never yet been defeated. The score in the Imps.-Bloomfield game was 3 to 0.

Both games were featured by whirlwind finishes and kept the crowd in a continual roar of cheers.

Ex-Rtwanis Governor W. Mills, of Kingston, is to speak at the Picton Kiwanis Charter night anniversary on Thursday evening. A supper is being held at the United Church.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cherry Valley Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall, January 13th. Owing to the icy roads and stormy day only 32 were present. Mrs. Dodds agreeing to act as librarian. Many were sorry to miss the meeting tan as it was in charge of the juniors, Mrs. N. McKibbon reported on the girls having charge of the program and refreshments.

Mrs. S. P. Doods, the president, presided over the business section and the meeting opened in the usual way.

Roll call was answered by singing, whistling or humming your favorite piece of music and caused a great deal of amusement.

Correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. G. Kavanaugh, and it was decided to have the summer speaker as usual.

A motion was passed also to send for books from the travelling library. Mrs. Dodds agreeing to act as librarian.

Institutes visit to the Refuge and Mrs. Doddds reported on the boxes which were packed at her home for the children in our own vicinity. Eleven boxes were made up consisting of clothing, toys, picture books, candy, nuts and oranges.

The President thanked all who help ed with supplies for the boxes. A basket of fruit was also sent as a Christmas gift to an aged couple who have always been good friends of the Institute.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the girls for the enjoyable afternoon.

"The 1931 Pontiac ...Isn't it a Beauty?"

General Motors announces the new, 1931 Pontiac.

Notwithstanding its new beauty, its refinements and its larger size, the 1931 Pontiac sells at lower prices. On seeing this car you will be cheered by the value which General Motors has made possible.

You will find a larger car—longer, roomier and more restful. This added size makes possible more pleasing lines. Beauty is carried out to the smallest details—and Pontiac's beauty is highly distinctive. A new V-shaped radiator with an inbuilt chromium-plated screen presents an unusually attractive front view in keeping with the modern manner. A new, graceful one-piece fenders carry useful parking lights.

In consideration of the owner's comfort and pleasure, General Motors has included many mechanical refinements in the 1931 Pontiac so that it will be known for its riding ease, smoothness and quietness. For instance, spring shackles are mounted in "Inlox" rubber bushings so that the body really rides on rubber. These bushings cannot squeak and they eliminate 12 points of bothersome chassis lubrication.

In making the new Pontiac an unusually quiet automobile, General Motors has deadened noise and lessened vibration by setting the engine in a new 4-point, live rubber mounting. Besides, the engine is rubber insulated from the drive shaft. Another silence feature is the new air silencer, which eliminates the usual carburetor hissing. There are many other mechanical features that add to efficiency. Pistons are electro-plated, assuring a closer fit and a longer engine life. The frame has been greatly strengthened. Lovejoy shock absorbers assure smoother riding. Five wire wheels are standard equipment at no extra cost on all regular models.

General Motors presents the 1931 Pontiac for your approval. We invite you to see it and drive it. Find out for yourself just how much this new car will add to your pleasure, comfort and pride.

The 1931 Pontiac may be purchased out of income, through GMAC, General Motors own time payment plan. The General Motors Owner Service Policy assures your complete and continued satisfaction.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT MAROONS

Harvey Jackson Was Out-standing as Montreal Took a Licking

Montreal, Jan. 22—Toronto Maple Leafs flung a 4-3 defeat on the Montreal Maroons here last night in an exciting National League encounter that looked like another fiasco for the Leafs until the third period was half over and the Maroons woke up. Their last-minute thrust with five men up the ice saved them from the ignominy of a whitewashing, but was too late to pull the fat out of the fire.

Toronto swarmed over the Maroons all evening with a snappy short-passing style of attack that gave Kerr plenty of work and kept the Maroon goalie floundering helplessly. It was not until the third period that Conacher seized up a couple of his old-time rushes, but lacked a scoring punch. Joe Primeau was going good until he ran into the goal post and shirt his shoulder. The two and three man attacks of the Leafs worried the Maroons and netted the visitors a thunderous victory.

It was Eddie Belfour that saved the Maroons from a whitewashing. He turned in the best line in the limelight, after a quiet evening. Stewart and Smith played well while they were on short notice shortening breaking up many a dangerous Leaf attack.

It was a rough game, but few found their way to the penalty box. Hugh Plaxton started it all through, and of the bodying was noticeable. There were two flare-ups. Stewart and Primeau went to the mat fighting early in the first, and were chased. In the third Chuck Conacher and Jimmie Ward struggled in a corner until Bert Corbeau threw them out and sent them to the coolers.

Bailey and Colleo Again

Maroons started with their second line of Primeau, Ward and Roche. This section was desultory at the opening of hostilities only to come to life when Stanley Smith, Stewart and Selbert came on. Stewart and Smith aspied at Chabot, a couple of times from skirmishes at the defence and Smith fell full length once when he was alone with the Toronto goalie. Stewart and Primeau took a dislike to each other and were grappling on the ice when Corbeau chased them both. Chuck Conacher burned a shot one at Kerr on a solo play, and Blair nearly scored the local defence twice, only to lose the puck in the corner. Whistle blowing grew monotonous and the crowd showed dissatisfaction.

Bailey and Cotton combined for the first Toronto goal of the evening. They showed the puck away from Hooley Smith at the Toronto blue line, and worked up the ice, passing. Harold Cotton took Shorty's short pass to score cleanly on Kerr from a few feet out.

Montreal pressed hard with Stewart picking up loose pucks for many dangerous scoring shots at the Toronto net. Jimmy Ward nearly scored on a nice hand shot after circling the net. Toronto were dangerous with their close passing game. The period closed as a helter skelter.

KINGSTON SAYS—

Following the defeat of the Seniors in Kingston on Monday night, the sporting editor of the Whig-Standard did not pass up the opportunity to add a few piquant notes in his column. Some of the more tart and pungent remarks are reproduced herewith:

"Queen's were certainly the better team last night, and the visiting Belleville team were given fo realize that the road is rough to the championship.

"Wherever got the idea that Holway is a really improved player might know his badminton but not his hockey. Holway was out there exclusively to bounce everything in sight, and he succeeded he missed a many rushes as he stopped. He was so averse to carrying the puck that in the last period when he made one of his characteristic rushes of the game, the crowd got a big laugh.

"But "Bounser", when he did get the Queen's rushes sure tossed them off heavily. Not however, as effectively as Murphy and Squires.

"And Mr. Jacobi! "What mus' we do?" The Toronto official missed a great deal and at one time when checking, the fans got a big laugh. It was as legitimate a check as was ever handed out, but Mr. Jacobi must have been running behind in his penalties, and some one had to go to the bench.

"A little before that he sent Gib McKelvey to the showers for some offence apparently only Mr. Jacobi saw. As an efficient hockey referee the best that can be said is that Mr. Jacobi isn't any better than Mac McCarthy. And you know what's meant."

Miller's Worm Powders will purge the stomach of all varieties of worms so effectively and so easily and painlessly that the most delicate stomach will not feel any inconvenience from their activity. They recommend themselves to mothers as a preparation that will restore strength and vigor to their children, and protect them from the debilitating effects which result from the depredations of worms.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 23—Gene Prasch's Falls juniors ereate O.H.A. history here last night by playing a double header, taking on both Welland and Grimsby in O.H.A. group games. The Falmen were not hard pressed in either tussle, winning from Welland by 8 to 1, and from Grimsby by 14 to 2. The double bill was witnessed by 700 fans. Manager Fraser used all of his roster, including three goaltenders, Dunham, Mace and Brodie. The twin victory lives the Falls' youths six straight wins and no loses in their group schedule. They have still two other games with Port Colborne and then they meet Hamilton in a group play-off series.

CHICAGO HAWKS DEFEAT QUAKERS

Chicago, Jan. 23—A wild scoring splurge in the first six minutes in the final period, during which they rifled in three goals, carried the Chicago Hawks to a 5 to 2 National League hockey victory over the Philadelphia Quakers last night. The victory enabled the Hawks to within one point of the Boston Bruins, leaders in the American division, who were defeated by the Montreal Americans.

Because of remarkable goal tending by Will Gude, the teams finished the regulation period deadlocked at 1 all. Wally Kilrea scoring in the first period for the Quakers and Johnny Gottselig tieing them up for the Hawks near the end of the second.

The Black Hawk offence clicked suddenly at the start of the final period, however, the Quakers fell apart, Ingram, Gottselig and Marsch scored a goal each, all within the first six minutes. Miller tallied one for the Quakers later, but Wentworth sustained the Hawk lead by flipping one in just before the game ended.

On The Sport Trail

The Belleville Cubs journey to Gananoque tonight for a scheduled junior game. This is the longest jump the Cubs have to make in their group and the journey will be made by bus. The team will be without the services of Mc'ons, the regular goalie, who will be playing with Stirling in the Trent Valley league but McKinnon is no weakling and will no doubt turn in a good game. The Cubs are taking all teams the meet seriously as they need every game to place themselves in a tie with Kingston. The regular team will be taken down and no chance will be taken in the game. Stan Burgoyne has his team in real condition and is now perfecting the system. The boys are assimilating the teaching and are getting smarter with every game. The strength of the Gananoque team is well known but from the scores turned in, Belleville should have little difficulty in turning in a win.

o—o

The big game in the intermediate section from a local standpoint is the game on Tuesday night, Kingston being the opposition. Trenton plays in the Lindsay City league and if they could pull out a win, the group would be in a merry tangle. It is necessary for Trenton to defeat Kingston at least once and they have two chances to perform the feat, on Tuesday night here and in Trenton for a game. Belleville was only defeated by two goals in Kingston and the locals are out for a repeat the winners and the boys are determined to take the Frontenacs on Tuesday night. Trenton is defeated twice and the game should be a hum-dinger. Stan Burgoyne has chosen a lineup that will be in there from the first gong.

LOCAL BOWLERS MEET TRENTON

Rev. C. B. Brethen Was Offered Pulpit at Havelock—St. Andrew's Officers

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 23—Tonight is a big night at the Recreation Bowling Alleys! A team of young ladies from Belleville composed of the Misses Marjorie Lynch, Stella Ford, Helen Reddick, Mrs. P. Belnap and Miss Holway are to meet Trenton's all star team a team who are effort to roll up a larger score than they. The local team will be composed of Messrs L. Lamore, H. McPeur, G. Thompson, S. Hicks, E. Begin and J. Yerex.

Workers in the woods around Trenton report conditions as ideal. There was very little rain last fall and consequently marshy spots which are the cause of so much trouble have been frozzled, and the snow is just right for good slipping.

Election for officers of the O.C.M. of King Street United Church was under the leadership of Mrs. H. Kemp resulted as follows: President, Victoria Hess; vice-president, Doris Glenn; secretary, Ruth Little; treasurer, Jean Bedal, corresponding secretary, Helen Taff.

Rev. C. B. Brethen, pastor of Grace United Church here, has turned down a call to the United Church at Havelock. Incidentally Mr. Brethen was given an increase of $200.00 a year in salary at the Board meeting this week.

Officers of the St. Andrew's church choir for 1931 are: Hon. President, J. H. Dickey; President, W. Lester; secretary treasurer, Miss Thelma Johnston; musical committee, Miss M. McLellan, Mrs. W. Bain, G. A. Ross and Bruce Wilson.

Mrs. M. Miller, of Napanee, county president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, is to pay an official visit to the local union on February 3rd.

Ex-Councillor George Sprentall was the winner of a $50.00 prize in the All-Canada contest conducted by the Toronto Star recently.

NATIONALIST WON FROM THE PORTS

Toronto, Jan. 22—National Yacht Club's senior team, also Sea Flea gave their most convincing display this season last night and their S.-O.H.A. tussle at the Arena Gardens victory over Port Colborne in an indicates that they are capable of playing hockey that backs the team's paper strength which placed the yachtsmen in a high rating earlier in the season. The local victory moves the winners to even terms with Marlboros and both Toronto outfits are tied for third place in the standing. Port Colborne are still at the top of the race with Hamilton second. While the game had its flashes of brilliance it could not be rated as an outstanding contest except for the fact that it was a Toronto victory over the league leaders. The side of locals rose and fell numerous times and while both teams created their waves of exertion with clever plays there was no continued favor of fortune for either team

Nationals Miss Chances

Nationals, with their faster breaks on the attack, had felt their opposing forwards flatfooled, displayed an alarming lack of combination and weakness round the goal. Headed by Bert Paul, who played a great game by himself, the local brigade carried themselves into scoring positions 1981, seemed would end in tallies but their shooting was off color. Combined with their inability to shoot accurately was the stellar work of Moore in the local net. The net minder's ability to out-guess the Fleas' attack ers and to draw their shots was another factor that held the score down.

WELLINGTON IS BEATEN BY Y.M.C.A.

Locals Began Scoring Early in the Game —Visitors Were Entertained

A team of hockey players from Wellington, Ontario, under the leadership of Mr. Bowerman and representing the Legion, of that town, met a team representing the Belleville Y.M.C.A. on the Arena yesterday afternoon. While the Legion boys had a considerable advantage in weight and age the Y' Boys more than off-set this by their speed and stick-handling ability. The Game was one of an exchange series with the Lake Shore town and was a hard fought but clean battle from beginning to end, the latter being only two minor penalties in the game.

The "Y" boys began their scoring early in the game Don Rader, Herby Burley and Don Lee each getting a counter in the first period. Ridley on a nice play through the entire team again bulged the net in the second period. On the last frame Allan McCreary who had been working like a trojan all through the game was rewarded with a counter. The Wellington team then got its second wind and throwing all their energy into the game were able to gather two goals before the final bell. The game was handled by James Churchill. After the game the Wellington boys were entertained at the Y.M.C.A. Line-up follows:—

Wellington Legion—Goal, Manno; defence, Brimley, Ainsworth; Centre, "Greer"; Wings, Carrel; Roberts, Bobo Steen. Greenfield, Boulding.

Y.M.C.A.—Goal, Moore; defence, Murphy Cole, defense; Centre, Ridley; Wings, Lee, McCreary; Miller, Burley, Bubs.

EARLY ONTARIO ARCHITECTURE IS FULLY DISCUSSED

Prof. R. Arthur Spoke at Women's Canadian Club Here

At the Women's Canadian Club meeting in John Street Church Hall last evening Professor E. R. Arthur, M.A., B. Arch., F.R.I.B.A., of Toronto University gave an interesting address on Early Ontario Architecture, illustrating his lecture with slides of some of the outstanding examples of the different forms of architecture seen in the province. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Logie.

The idea of preserving the early styles of architecture by means of photographs was one now said the speaker, and Toronto University had made a collection of some five hundred pictures and fifty models of Ontario's first architecture. In other countries movements were under way to preserve old homes and buildings but in many things prevented this being done in Ontario, the chief of which was lack of sufficient wealth to permit of the luxury of preservation. Another reason was that in the average mind there is no history connected with these homes as the majority of people are interested in the melodramatic rather than the charm of the quiet and unassuming.

The old houses of Canada were of the first form of Ontario architecture, and these structure very favourably with the best timber houses of England. These were used up till the first half of the twentieth century. Then followed brick houses those of hand made brick and stone.

During the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries books on architecture had a strong influence on the styles of buildings that were erected. Among the United Empire Loyalists were artisans, carpenters and joiners who copied from books the kind of houses they built and to their skill is owed the beautiful buildings and fine ornamentation seen on many of the earlier houses.

In those days owners designed and built their houses, very few were designed for them.

Professor Arthur showed a series of slides many of them of homes not far from here. These slides showed doorways, arches, staircases, windows and entire buildings. Professor Arthur pointed out their architectural claim to beauty. The Georgian, Grecian, and planter or southern influences were also shown in the early architecture of the province and some very charming old homes were shown.

The appreciation of the club for the very entertaining address was expressed by Mrs. Logie.

"The Big House" Marked by Tense, Dramatic Action

Unusual Prison Scenes in New Film Carry Tremendous Punch

"The Big House," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking drama of penitentiary life screening in the Belle Theatre Saturday and Monday, matinee daily, and night if a way, be compared to "The Big Parade". Three central characters work out a dramatic story against seething hates and a desperate prison riot quelled with machine guns and tanks. A sympathetic love story of a boy and a girl is adroitly woven into the thrills, realisms, horrors and heart throbs of the massive play.

The three central characters are played by Chester Morris, Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery, as three cellmates in the penitentiary. Friendship, jealousy, the corrosion of souls, and regeneration through love and turmoil are elements of the picture.

George Hill directed the production with the deft actualism that marked "Tell It to the Marines" and "The Flying Fleet". The story is by Frederick Hatton.

Leila Hyams plays the heroine, and the cast includes Lewis Stone, Karl Dane, George Marion, J. C. Nugent, Tom Wilkinson and Claire Maxwell. More than a thousand extra service men took part in the prison and cell house scenes.

The thrills include gun battles, tanks battering down steel doors to quell the rioters, the mad demonstration in the cell house, the dramatic death scene of Wallace Beery, human scale recording and effective light and shadows in photography do much to heighten the effect of the unusual photoplay.

WOMEN OF CUBA ASK EQUALITY WITH THE MEN

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 21—The dictum that woman's place is in the home is being challenged in Cuba today by the feminist movement. Just now a campaign is being pushed for equality in the business world. Miss Marubiana Sabas Alomá, an active leader among women, points out that Cuban women more and more are entering business, and that as they increase, they are demanding improved working conditions and higher wages.

Having been successful in improving their situation in five-and-ten cent stores, the women are bidding for consideration as department store clerks. A campaign also has been begun by women's organizations for a court for children similar to the models in the United States. A nationwide effort in behalf of women's suffrage also is gaining impetus, representatives already having been made to the Cuban government.

LANDED GENTRY OF ITALY FACE LOSS OF ACRES

Rome, Jan. 21—Landed families that have long been among Italian aristocracy may find themselves stripped of their estates unless they actually undertake the farming of their lands under the new Fascist programme for the encouragement of scientific agriculture. This programme makes the ownership of farm land contingent on "good behavior." And the Fascist idea of good behavior in a farm means the elimination of small tracts of land, the employment of modern machinery and above all constant supervision of the actual work. The lands of small independent farmers who do not comply with these rules are condemned to be sold.

Such a sale is conducted by the government which pays the old owner the value of his unimproved land in thirty annual installments. The farm is sold to some new owner who pays for it at the same valuation, also in thirty years. On the other hand, should an owner wish to undertake the modernizing himself, the government will pay sixty per cent of the cost and lend the remainder on long term notes. It has been recently pointed out that these rules concern absentee landlords just as well as independent farmers.

Mussolini has avoided disputes with the aristocracy since his march on Rome in 1922, but with the farm land programme being considered as of prime importance to the future welfare of Italy he is expected now to enforce his ideas.

Most of the richest lands in the Campagna district, potentially a great wheat producing area, are owned by a few families. The lands are for the most part unimproved, but due to their huge holdings the owners have been able to maintain themselves in Rome, Paris, or on the Riviera in luxury.

This life of ease is threatened and unless the actions of the old aristocratic families get on their boots and go to work on their farms, they may find themselves in need of some other kind of a job.

Ontario Man Speaks With Great Enthusiasm

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbetton, Ont., Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been working at pick and shovel work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty stiff work on the back. Kidneys and bladder, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following results—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. Eat lots work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills is my maxim. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

ATTACHMENT AN AID TO WINTER FLYING

Akron, O., Jan. 23—An attachment to the aeroplane engine as an aid to winter flying, which it is claimed, will start a cold motor in Arctic temperatures has been developed by H. P. Whittle here. Whittle, a former marine pilot, said the invention is indirectly the outcome of the expedition of the first pursuit group from Selfridge field into the Arctic regions last winter. He was unofficially connected with the expedition and studied the effect of low temperatures on engines.

In use, the heater is attached underneath the motor. It is 18 inches long and 8 inches in diameter, consisting of a drum within a drum. The inner drum is heated with gasoline and insulated so that there is no fire danger, Whittle said. The cold air is circulated through the inner drum and goes heated to any desired temperature to the engine.

It is not the man who knows the most who has the most to say.

Stop That COUGH!

A most effective method of treating coughs, colds, sore throat and bronchitis is to let a Peps tablet dissolve in the mouth. Soothing, healing fumes are released, which are breathed down the air passages, loosening the phlegm in the throat, stopping the racking cough and clearing the bronchial tubes.

WHO Services YOUR Car

A factory trained man who knows its every detail or a "Jack-of-all-cars" who is "game to try anything"?

The satisfaction, or lack of it, which you are experiencing with your car depends greatly upon just who is doing the service work on it. Probably this is something that has never been called to your attention before. You stop at the handiest service station for gasoline and oil, have your greasing done there (whether they have a grease chart for your car or not) and if it comes to it you may even take their easily given opinions as to the cause of mechanical troubles. Is it fair to your car? Did the factory that made it ever think that it would fall into such unskilled hands for service? Absolutely NO. In fact the factories by regular bulletins keep the DEALERS informed on all service points, but no one else gets this information. The regular automobile dealer is the only one who stocks genuine factory-made parts—and surely you would not put "bootleg" parts if you could help it.

The only place to take your car for real satisfaction is back to the dealer who sells that line of cars in your city. His workshop is equipped with tools made to fit YOUR car; his men are trained at the factory to know every nut, bolt and grease-cup on YOUR car; the dealer is interested in the service that you get from the car he sells. Isn't it only logical that he is most interested in keeping your car in proper shape. And beyond all this, remember you have the Factory which made the car absolutely responsible through the local dealer. The Engineering Departments and Service Departments at the factories are maintained solely for the purpose of seeing that you get proper service from your dealer. The service station (so-called) has distinct limitations: the "one-man garage" that undertakes to repair all makes of cars is not properly equipped or trained. Take you car to its HOME for really satisfactory service.

THE RADIOEAR

Science is the handmaid of mankind. Scientific invention would not be possible if it were not that there was an ever urgent impulse to make instruments which make life more easy and enjoyable for mankind.

In today's issue is a story of the "radiocar" which has proven of the greatest importance in the training of the deaf. An improved machine has been placed in the Ontario School for the Deaf which will bring up-to-date the methods and means of making those hear who have any vestige of hearing. The "radiocar" which has been in use at the school has been of great benefit but has had one drawback in interference through its connection with the wiring. A late model "radiocar" has been just in stalled equipped with its own battery which will eliminate the disturbance incident to wiring connection. There are twenty-five outlets in the instrument and it is possible that if it works out to advantage the experiment may be made of carrying on the entire course of school education through the medium of these wonderful instruments.

Truly science does wait upon mankind. Who can tell what is yet to come!

PEACE RIVER

The Department of the Interior has issued a book entitled "The Peace River Country Canada Its Resources and Opportunities." fully illustrated. The publication is timely and gives a concrete impression of this vast territory which is symbolic of the riches of the far distant portions of the Dominion. The "Peace River Country" is a name symbolizing the wealth and opportunity of the Canada that is ahead. It symbolizes the faraway for it lies three hundred miles beyond Edmonton, its last great agricultural frontier of Western Canada. Beyond is rugged belt is found this great inland reserve.

The Peace River Country is experiencing an active era of development and colonization such as each successive section of the Canadian Prairie Provinces has witnessed during the past fifty years. This territory in which we locate and comprises, generally speaking the drainage basin of Peace River proper, namely 98,000 square miles. With adjacent areas which should be included the Peace River Country covers 145,000 square miles. It contains sixty million acres, more than the territory of England, Scotland and Wales, combined and is eight times the size of Belgium. Ten to twenty million acres can be used for grain growing.

Though its location is northern its possibilities have not been appreciated at its true worth. It has been demonstrated that the combination of favorable climate, moderate precipitation, and good soil guarantees this area as being one of the world's greatest wheat and mixed farming areas.

The book tells the story of the settlement of this territory, describes the climate and vegetation, shows that that annual precipitation is from 12 to 17 inches and that most of the rainfall occurs in June, July and August. There is more woodland than prairie and the hills and mountains are lesser plateau, gently rising above the level of the surroundings. Wheat and oats from this area have won world championships. The population is sixty thousand.

Not only is there opportunity for the farmer, but for the professional man as the country develops. Its stride will be very rapid.

BASE METALS IN CANADA

A well-illustrated descriptive account of base metal production in Canada features the January issue of "Industrial Canada," the official publication of the Canadian Manufacturers Association. This important publication of industry which has witnessed remarkable expansion in the last few years, is presented as an example of what the development of the Prepared-in-Canada idea means to the Dominion. It is demonstrated that through its expansion Canada is no longer dependent on other countries for its supply of refined copper, lead, zinc and nickel and that as a result of having a domestic source of supply at hand new industries using these raw material are springing into existence.

Official statements are published showing that in their construction programmes, which have been very large, the base metal producing companies have adopted the Produced-in-Canada policy, buying materials and equipment very largely in Canada. This is further attested by statements from many manufacturers of machinery and supplies, who report that they have derived substantial benefits from the orders placed with them. The railway companies likewise point out the advantages flowing from the new traffic created, while an article points to the way in which new communities have been built up, creating valuable markets for agricultural produce and other commodities. The fact that several of these communities have grown up in hitherto inaccessible wastes, reveals the further advantage to Canada through the opening up of new territory to settlement and the pushing northward of the frontier of civilization.

The days of mergers and amalgamations indeed are here as the reported amalgamation of two of the oldest cheese factories in Ontario that at Mountain View and Hyland at Roblin's Mills bears out. As in all business duction of overhead charges.

SIDELIGHTS

FRUITAGE

When someone comes whose coming fires a light
That never shone before within your eyes,
Ah, then you can be sure the world is right,
Nor has Earth strayed too far from Paradise;
When one comes in whose footfall stirs your heart
And makes the pulse grow quicker in your wrist,
Full well you know that, though all else depart,
So long as that one stay, naught will be missed.

God has been kind in all the gifts He made
For man on earth—white roses, sunsets, song,
Laughter and moonlight, kisses and smooth jade
And patient strength for labors hard and long;
But this is fruitage of His tenderest mood
This gift of one whose coming makes all good!

— Aline Michaelis.

YOUR APOTHECARY in the olden days used to be a very important member of the community, he is yet, for that matter but in the slower tempo of the horse and buggy age the apothecary seemed to stand out more. Now you can get most anything from the local drug store from a radio to a mustard plaster, but the service is still there, camouflaged though it may be by many lines of goods which the apothecary shop never knew. The apothecary shop and its successor, the drug store, have always been first-aid stations where the minor ills of life have been ministered to from castor oil to yeast extracts and calf's liver compounds relieving the family doctor of the small ailments sent periodically as a chastening influence no doubt. The druggists are proud of their profession and traditions and even an association have compiled a series off illustrated articles showing the progress of pharmacy through the past four thousand years, the first one of which appeared in this paper Wednesday. Watch for these articles they are interesting and instructive.

THERE IS A MAN in this city who had not been inside a theatre since 1882 until Wednesday evening when he witnessed "Whoopee" and saw Eddie Cantor make merry in his own inimitable way.

"I liked the show, he said, but he had seen better. The last show he saw was Joe Murphy in Kerry Gow at the old Carman Theatre in 1882. Remember how Joe Murphy used to pack the theatre once a year as he played "KerryGow," or "Shaun Rhue?" Remember how he used to play the blacksmith and shed the horse shoes at the footlights from the orchestra pit? Remember how he used to sing "Just a handful of earth from the land of my birth, from the grave where my dear mother lies?" Joe Murphy was always sure of a crowded house and to miss him was a calamity. Alvin Adelin "Charles E. Davis was also good for an overflow audience once each year, with his immense diamonds on view in the window of the Argus Meyer & Co. store, a great collection, about a billion dollars worth if they were all real. "The Devil's Auction" was another popular yearly visitor but it was for "Men Only" and the boys did not advertise the fact that they were in attendance. James O'Neil in "Monte Cristo," Lewis Morrison in "Faust," were hardy perennials while Harry Lindley introduced the ten-twenty, thirt', and stayed at it while others followed and made fortunes. There were others but the above is sufficient to start reminiscing on in the barber shops and corner grocerries.

THE UNIVERSAL ACCLAMATION of Sir Thomas Lipton as a "good loser" a "true sportsman" has recalled one defeated challenger for the cup who was neither. The Dunraven episode of 1895 is remembered chiefly for the many antics or thereabouts, alleged by the challenger when the race was over, to explain how he had been unfairly robbed of victory. One of them the charge that, whether purposely or not, the "excursion craft blanketed his wind." This had an unexpected echo later on.

In December of the same year, 1895. President Cleveland sent in his celebrated "Venezuela message," with its veiled defiance of England in case that country refused arbitration of the disputed territorial claim. Excited discussion instantly filled the newspapers, which canvassed the relative strength in the street cars the Navy Department found it impossible to shut out interviewers. The whole country, in short, went through the emotions of a war scare. When the stock market was at its worst, a round-robin cable message came to the New York Stock Exchange signed by the Stock Exchange of London. It inquired if Great Britain, in case its warships found it advisable to invade New York Harbor, "could be assured that they would not be blanketed by the excursion craft." There was probably no answer; an answer would have smoiled the humor of the query, which correctly foreshadowed the humorous view which other people later took of the threatened British war.

ONE PURCHASING BODY

The city council at its meeting on Monday night, took a step which will meet with the approval of the citizens when it appointed a purchasing committee, consisting of the chairmen of the four standing committees and the mayor, to supervise all the buying which has to be done by the city during the year. This step will give the citizens a feeling of confidence in the desire of the council to practice economy in all its undertakings, and the centralization of the purchasing power in this body should help towards that end. The committee appointed is not quite as effective as the business administrator plan, but it is moving in that direction, and should ensure that this important part of the work of the council is more efficiently handled than could be possible under any haphazard system of each committee looking after its own requirements. What the citizens are chiefly interested in is that there should be some effort at placing civic affairs on a more business-like basis, and the council has made a commendable step in that direction.—Oshawa Times.

INVENTOR OF MOTION PICTURES

While it is estimated that more than 50,000,000 people visit the motion pictures every week, it is doubtful whether, six months ago more than a few hundreds of them were aware of the name of the man whose invention it was that made possible "Beau Geste," "The Birth of a Nation," "Potemkin" and the other classics of the screen possible. In England, however, the city of Leeds has recently unveiled a memorial to him and by doing so has reminded the world that in that city in 1888 the first motion pictures were taken by a Frenchman, Louis Aime Aveustin Le Prince. When Edison gave his triumphant exhibition in the early days of his fame at West Orange, N.J., in October, 1889, Le Prince has been exhibiting moving pictures for several years, his twenty months.—Christian Science Monitor.

VOLSTEAD ACT

The apparent swing of public opinion against the Volstead Act may have encouraged the wets to hope for a definite pronouncement by the administration committee as a whole against a continuance of the present regime. If they cherished any such notion it has been dispelled by the report, which tersely declares that the Commission does not favour a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and recommends merely to add to the general bemusement that prevails. Of course the most interesting and pertinent question remains of all, and this confusion is the action of President Hoover in mailing his colours to another mast. His message to Congress accompanying the Wickersham report to Congress is unequivocal and he appparently has determined to stake his personal fortunes are allied, for better or worse, with the dry element in the Republican Party. His presidential message will have at least one result.—Montreal Star.

HARDY ANNUALS IN STAGELAND

Britain's ability to change with moderation, without sacrificing old loyalties too abruptly, is nowhere seen to better advantage than in the pantomime season—as it may still be called—now drawing to a close in London's stageland. The old-fashioned end of the pantomime—that essential "Harlequin" connection, though originally introduced from unexhausted farm by the Grimaldis upward of 150 years ago—has been expected ever since the war, and presumably the expectation will not be fulfilled in due time. But London does not part with an old friend without ceremony. Its passing calls for reconcile reasons back of the parting may be cogent. Pantomimes may have left their strongholds in the provinces, but the more sophisticated London theatres will show that Aladdin, with a surprisingly modern sense of equality, has still a poor nuisance sailor, has been nightly wooing the Princess Bad-roulboudour in at least three theatres. Still, Whittington and Cinque, resourceful heroes (or heroines), are once more disproving the assumption that having had mayors and lord mayorships of considerable islands are a modern invention. The babes are again making their way in a hidden wood and perhaps an equally trackless plot, while Cinderella is giving her annual warning to the proponents of the art of "go-getting."—Christian Science Monitor.

SAND

This is the last oblivion of all
That was so wild with fire, so hard with cold.
So desperate with purpose when the bold
New earth arose from chaos with a caul
Of blinding rain and steam upon the soil.
And arrogant young mountains, now grown old—
The ruined record by the breakers rolled
Along the sea-edge as the ages crawl.

This is ochre'n more still and deep
Than the last reaches of the ocean floor
Where midnight waters lie in granite sleep.
Gray-featured, acquiescent — winds may pour
Across it, drive it on a sliding dune—
It is no more lives or wakes than does the moon.

Treating Speech Defects

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

The subject of speech might well occupy an entire volume. There are so many possible factors in its development. Mal-formations of the tongue, palate, teeth, etc., may be causative factors in speech defects, but it would seem that in all cases, in addition there is a fundamental nervous make-up that requires treatment as well. This explains why so many persons afflicted with one or another of the speech difficulties are not cured or, if cured, do not remain so when only speech exercises have been employed.

In stut-ering, the victim has difficulty in pronouncing a syllable and there is the hesitancy and halting of speech. Many varieties of speech difficulty occur under this heading.

Sometimes the person stammers suddenly that he cannot speak at all; that he cannot begin the flow of speech, or he hesitates in the course of sentence and is unable to go on. Often, after a violent effort, he overcomes his inability and then his words gush out all at once in quick succession.

Shocks and frights are the most frequent cause of stuttering and, behind this and antedating it, a nervous make-up is usually a favorable soil for the sprouting of the symptoms of speech difficulty.

Limitation often plays an important part in the production of stuttering in children.

Stammering is another form of speech trouble. It would probably be best, however, to give up this term altogether in favor of stuttering. If distinction is made between the two terms, stammering means that the individual sounds are difficult of pronunciation while in stuttering, words and syllables give trouble

Cluttering is another form of speech defect that is often confused with stuttering. It is a kind of hurried, mumbled speech. The cluttere talks too fast and slurs his words. He is too eager to get his message to talk.

Therefore the cluttere should think about his speech and talk slowly and deliberately, while the stutterer talks best when he loses his self-consciousness and doesn't worry over what he is trying to say.

Lisping, another type of speech trouble, is rather common. It may be pronounced or only slightly in evidence. This is a defect of enunciation and is due to faulty location of the organs of articulation. It may be a survival of "baby talk" and then it is known as "neglected lisping."

A person who says "tandy" for "candy" may be able to pronounce "car" correctly. That is, although he says "tandy" for "candy" without difficulty, he replaces it in some words through sheer negligence

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

"If he could bring me word that the photographs, finger-prints and Bertillon measurements of Nance Belden—ten cents that name? — have not been destroyed by some fool clerk in the city, and he'll come to me, his friend—if he got into a jam latterly and he wasn't too serious—I'll do what I can for you, Chief. I'll ask Bender. He's assistant to the chief clerk."

"Size him in the merchant all right. And see somebody in the prison photo-shop. They're probably running off placards to read to all the prisoners in the state. That's where they advertise for escaped prisoners—in post-office lobbies. Can't let those placards with the half-tone photos and Bertillon measurements get out, you know. Goodbye, Benny, and thanks a lot."

From San Quentin Dan McNamara motored down to San Jose and called upon I. Abrahms Ladies' Tailor.

"Mr. Abrahms, have you ever made a tailored suit for a girl with a new varicose fracture of the left clavicle and a compound fracture of the middle?"

"Sure I have," Abrahms replied. "You mean Miss Penelope Catlin, don't you?"

Abrahms looked in his card index cabinet, then opened a large book in which his customers' measurements are recorded, together with a sample of the cloth from which each order had been cut. Dan McNamara unhesitatingly placed his finger on one of these samples. "That was the cloth."

"Sure, that was the suit I made for Miss Catlin two years ago."

"Did Miss Catlin live in this city? If so, I'd like to have her address."

Ten minutes later, McNamara was pressing the bell at the door of the house in South Mariposa street.

"Does Miss Catlin live here?" he queried.

"Not any more. She used to live here with her mother, but she disappeared about two years ago, and her mother sold this house to the lady I work for."

"Where is Mrs. Catlin now?"

"We don't know."

"Thank you." And McNamara directed his driver to go to the Security Trust Company, where he sent his card in to the president. He was received promptly.

INSTALMENT XIII

"Do you happen to have an account in the name of Penelope Catlin?" Chief McNamara asked the banker.

"Both a trust account and a checking account, Chief. We had her father's account for years before he was unfortunately killed in an automobile accident some eight years ago. We had the account of his divorced wife for quite a while too, but she has closed that."

"Do you know where she lives at present?"

"I do not." He was interested. "But I remember her quite well—a very beautiful woman. Her first husband was a splendid chap—total abstainer in this city, and very prominent. He and his wife had a row and she divorced him and got the child. Catlin was committed by the court to the child—its own Sunday afternoons a month, and one day he took her to the grand and the zoo in the bleachers. A busy hard ball flew into the bleachers and flattened little Penelope's nose; Catlin rushed the uncon-scious child to a hospital and his ex-wife came and took her home before anything but emergency treatment could be given. Mrs. Catlin was a religious fanatic and Catlin suspected she was going to try to cure the child's injured nose by prayer—so he kidnapped the child, was caught, arrested and sentenced to thirty days in the county jail.

"While he was in jail Mrs. Catlin fled to Europe with the little girl, and Catlin was devastated. Subsequently Catlin died of cancer, and his estate, liquid and established a trust with us in favor of himself and his daughter. He had made a settlement with Mrs. Catlin.

"When his wife fled to Europe with the child, Catlin ceased to deposit the monthly check to her credit, in the belief that she'd write to know why. She didn't, but in some other manner he located her, and started for Europe with the intention of stealing the little girl from her. On the way to the station, an automobile hit the taxi he was in and Catlin was killed."

"Did he leave a will?"

"He did. His daughter was his sole beneficiary. We were the executors and probated it. There was the ten-thousand dollar letter of credit he had purchasing just before starting on his trip, and half a dozen pieces of city realty, which has since increased enormously in value. We advertised for the heir but received no answer. So the estate was closed and we handle it now, as trustee."

"How do you know Mrs. Catlin has married the man Abrahms?"

"She had leased the house Catlin gave her in the diverse settlement, and about two years ago, when the lease expired and the tenants departed, she came down here to have the place renovated and secure a new tenant. It was only then that she heard of Catlin's death. She came to this bank with her husband, making inquiries about Catlin's estate, and tried hard to get control of it, but she was out of luck. That's how we located the heir."

"What were the conditions of the trust?"

"The income was to be permitted to accumulate and be reinvested and the child was to have two hundred and fifty dollars a month until her eighteenth birthday, when the total income from the trust was to be turned over to her. She can never touch the principal, however although Catlin did provide that she might have up to ten thousand dollars of it at any one time if, in the judgment of the trustee the emergency requiring such withdrawal was deemed good and sufficient Catlin had faith that the real estate, if held long enough, would appreciate tremendously —and it has. The trust is now worth three-quarters of a million and the income is close to twenty thousand a year."

"You say Penelope Catlin has a checking account also?"

"Yes. We deposit the income from the trust semi-annually, in her account."

"Has she ever cashed for an emergency withdrawal of ten thousand dollars?"

"No."

"Is her checking account active?"

"Not very. The cash her was spending to me about it less than two weeks ago. She draws checks sporadically. Her checking account has interested us considerably for the past two years, because her monthly statement red dead checks have all been returned by the post-office. With the exception of about a dozen checks made out to local merchants and probably in payment of her bills, Miss Catlin's checks have all been in favor of one Ella Gates of San Francisco. We traced the Gates woman down through the endorsement on the checks, but she stated she didn't know Miss Catlin's address; that Miss Catlin visited her occasionally, wrote out checks and asked her to cash them for her at the local grocery store or drug store. These people stated that Ella Gates never received the money at once, but they collected the checks for her and then gave her the money. I don't like the looks of this, Chief."

"I'll soon find out all about it," McNamara promised. "And I know where Penelope Catlin is—only I'm not going to tell you now. Would you mind letting over her old bank statements and the dead checks?"

The banker readily granted him the privilege, and McNamara went through the checks carefully, noting those drawn in favor of Ella Gates. The last one, drawn was in favor of a man named Hugh P. Taylor, in sum of five thousand dollars, and deposited by him to the credit o this account in the Federal Trust Company of San Francisco."

"I have all the information I want, with this exception." He drew forth one of the Rogue's Gallery photographs made at the Central Station by the police photographer. "Is that Penelope Catlin?"

"That's the girl, Chief. Is she in trouble with the police?"

Dan McNamara laughed. "Not at all. She's the sweetest little thing on earth. The only trouble she's been in is that she's been lost. Amnesia. Can't remember who she is or anything about her past life. Has several aliases she goes at will."

"How interesting—and how sad."

"Neither interesting nor sad — to me. We handle lots of cases like this. They're curable. You'll be good enough to regard this interview as strictly confidential of course. It would be very embarrassing for the girl if news of her unfortunate predicament should leak out for of course after her mind has been restored to its normal functions she will have no memory of the period in which she has been lost. I know a doctor that will fix her up in jig time."

"And after he's done that" the banker suggested, "have a plastic surgeon fix up her nose. She used to be as love-ly as a violet."

"Sorry about the nose." McNamara lied, "but I've had the best plastic surgeons in town examine it and there isn't a hope." He held out his hand. "Thanks for your courtesy. You've been a great help. Meanwhile, don't send out any more of those bank statements and dead checks. Mum's the world."

Back in San Francisco, McNamara went directly to the city prison and left the letter over the blotter to see what a strange fish his men had brought in during his absence.

He found a woman, an old offender, booked for drunkenness, and ordered her sent to his office. When she arrived he locked the door, and fingerprinted her or the appropriate card, after which he lectured her on the error of her ways. Then he went upstairs to the identification bureau and asked the filing clerk to have pointed out to him the filing cabinet containing criminal records for the years 1915 and 1916.

He was searching for a face that was photographed on his remarkable memory, and as he found it, it was that of a young woman, black-haired and with a "saddle" nose, but not quite so badly deformed as Nance Belden's nor did the contour of the face resemble Nance Belden's. However, since the origin al of that photograph was, to the chief's knowledge, both dead six months, he decided it would do. He slipped this record into his breast pocket and went back to his office. Here he carefully removed the three photographs from the card to which they were pasted in a row across the top. Below the row of photographs appeared the typewritten criminal history of the subject and in appropriate blanks on the reverse of the card appeared the subject's finger-prints.

McNamara picked up the fresh card upon the reverse of which he had finger-printed the woman who at times drank too much. He placed this card in the typewriter of his secretary who typed for the day, and carefully filled it in with Nance Belden's criminal record. Then he pasted over the blanks this record the three photographs of the dead woman he had taken from the old files, carefully burned all the evidence of the substitution, went upstairs and handed the record to the clerk, who replaced it in the files.

Promptly at six-thirty a knock sounded on his door, and to his hearty "come," Messrs. P. Flynn and A. Angelloti entered.

"I sent for you two boys to tell you, in no uncertain terms to lay off Miss Rebecca Lanning," the chief began. "However, I owe it to you to tell you why. Miss Lanning is a friend of mine of long standing, and I know she is a worthy and dependable woman and absolutely truthful. She isn't interested in this girl, Nance Belden. It happened this way. I regarded that girl as a nut sex—and I haven't any confidence in the bone that does our medico-legal work. So I took Nance up to see Dr. Stephen Burt. Miss Lanning is his nurse. She was very kind to the girl—very understanding —and the Belden brat got stuck on her. She has an affection complex, understand."

Flynn and Angelloti had had listen, many a time and oft, to Dan McNamara's dissertations on complexes in prisoners. They nodded lamely now.

"Apparently," the chief continued, "Nance hasn't any friends. The poor lonely kid remembered Miss Lanning, lonely kid remembered Miss Lanning, so she wrote and asked her to visit her in the pen—and now the warden swears she smuggled out of San Quentin a letter with the plan of escape. Well, maybe she did, but if she did, Miss Lanning didn't know it.

"Now, when the Belden girl came to Miss Lanning's home she realized she couldn't harbor her. Within a minute after the girl entered, Miss Lanning had me on the 'phone.

"The girl just heard a thump out in the hall' says she. 'I think the girl's fainted. Better let me put her to bed, Chief and have Dr. Burt come over to bind age her wound; then the ambulance can call for her in the morning.'

"I thought that was a good idea. When she came back Nance was just going out of the door. Miss Lanning tried to stop her but her boy friends were still waiting, and grabbed her and beat it. The trouble was that Miss Lanning thought the girl was unconscious but Nance heard her said that. Now it's up to you two to find her."

"He's long have you known Miss Lanning?"

"Quite a while." McNamara lied. "Well, even if she is a friend of yours, Chief, she's no sitting vine."

"Well, leave her alone from now on and don't waste your time watching her house. The Belden devil won't come back there again. Another thing. We have criminals loose in our midst who are more important than a poor nut of a girl that only swiped a mess of silk underwear. Get busy, Flynn, and waste much time. That will be all, boys."

INSTALMENT XIV

Outside of Chief McNamara's office door, Detective-Sergeants Flynn and Angelloti looked at each other dubiously.

"He's up to his old tricks, Amadeo."

"Always feeling sorry for the under dog Pat. He makes me sick."

"Say, a month's salary he knows where the Belden girl is this minute."

"I'm not quitting such a hot scent, Pat."

"We'll just split that two hundred and fifty-dollar reward—and see how the chief likes it. That old Lang' how the chief likes it. That old Lang' will be able to sleep softly or she'd have us broke, didn't she? Well, where does she get her drag with the old man?"

A. Angelloti jumped to the natural conclusion of his kind. "She's got something on him, I suppose."

"I'll make you bet you knows he knows where she's hid the body."

"We've got to see the Belden girl's photographs and finger-prints and Bertillon measurements. They're in the upper office."

They went up to the identification bureau and called for the record of Nance Belden and studied it for a couple of minutes.

They recognize that dome now if she was burned to ashes." Thus Angelloti

Flynn drew his partner into a corner. "The girl was wounded. We know that from the guard that shot her and we're sure of it after looking at the blood in that speed-boat."

"Yes, but she's had time all by her self she'd never have gotten ashore under her own power, Pat. I'm inclined to think one of the crew got hit too."

"There's hope for the dapper pet, my boy. You're right. It stands to reason some doctor fixed them up. Now, then, what doctor?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt," Angelloti decided.

"It stands to reason that if this Dr. Burt dressed they wounds last night he'll call on his patients every day until they're out of danger. If we catch him at his dirty work, there ought to be a little something in this on the side, Amadeo."

P. Flynn thought that a thousand each would be a very modest sum to charge Stephen Burt for their silence—very modest.

An hour later they pulled up in front of Stephen's house, and behind a couple parked at the curb. Flynn, circling around it, noticed a red cross on the radiator.

They circled the block and returned to park at the lower edge of the block. At a quarter past eight they saw Stephen come out, tug in hand, enter his coupe, and drive away. So they followed him and came, in time, to Dan McNamara's house, into which they saw him enter as they rolled slowly past.

"He had a latch key. He didn't ring the bell. An' no lights in front o' the house," Angelloti cried excitedly. "Drive back, Pat, and I'll get the number.

"That house," Flynn informed him dramatically, "is the habitat of his Royal Highness Daniel McNamara, Chief of Police of San Francisco. I always knew he was a fox, but I never suspected he was fool enough to hide an escaped convict in his own house."

MEN VOTERS IN QUEBEC SCORED

Montreal, Jan. 21—Indifference of men voters in Quebec provincial elections as revealed by the low percentage of registration on voters' lists was deplored by Mrs. Pierre Casgrain, president of the League of Women's Rights of the Province of Quebec, in an address on "The Advantages of Woman Suffrage."

It has been charged that women of the Province of Quebec did not want the vote, Mrs. Casgrain said. It now was evident that the men did not want the vote either. Such a condition of affairs could scarcely be worse if women of this province were given the right to exercise the franchise, and it would undoubtedly be much better, she affirmed.

Political indifference, when it existed, the speaker said, was the curse of democracy, which in this province must lead to unwonted results. A means of combatting this indifference was to give the vote to women, who as mothers would be able to develop a sense of responsibility in their sons toward the state and thus bring them up better citizens.

"It is not to be thought that women will lose their charm because they take an active interest in politics," said the speaker. "They would not change because they voted once every four or five years," she declared. As for being liable to give too much time to political affairs and not enough to the home, was it not better that women should take an interest in politics rather than give their time to bridge, tea parties and similar social events? Mrs. Casgrain asked.

DAISY DEVOE IS FOUND GUILTY ON ONE COUNT

Blonde Wept Bitterly as Jury Brought in Their Verdict

ASKS FOR LENIENCY

Clara Bow's Refusal to Pay Gambling Debts Started Present Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24 —A jury which for 48 hours had leaned toward acquittal, returned a compromise verdict late yesterday, finding Daisy Devoe guilty on one of 35 counts charging that she stole $16,000 while private secretary to Clara Bow. Leniency was recommended.

The 26-year-old blonde wept hysterically as the court methodically thumbed the sheaf of documents placed before him. As the verdict was read she heard it with her tear-stained face buried in her arms.

Since late Wednesday afternoon the jury had stood 9 to 4 for outright acquittal. But two men and two women refused to yield and finally the majority gave way. They found, specifically, that Daisy Devoe was guilty of count seven, which charged that she had obtained an $835 cheque signed in blank by Miss Bow for payment of income tax, and had used it to purchase a fur coat.

Under California law, the court automatically must sentence Miss Devoe to serve from one to 10 years in the state penitentiary. However, he can grant probation if he wishes to do so. Had Miss Devoe been convicted on all 35 counts she could have been given a maximum penalty of from 35 to 350 years, it was pointed out, each sentence to run consecutively.

Superior Judge William C. Doran ordered in grand Miss Devoe release on bond and ordered that she be remanded to the custody of the sheriff, flinching and wiping blindly at her eyes she was led away to the county jail. On Monday she will appear for sentence.

The jurors were reluctant to give their names when they stepped from the box and in the mix-up it was impossible to identify them by number.

Women Juror Gives Reasons

"We held out for hours," said a man who was for final acquittal, "But the other four wouldn't give in and we compromised. But we attached the letter recommending that the court give leniency."

A woman juror who had clung doggedly to a vote for conviction, said:

"We are likely in a day where too much of our life is influenced by the desire for riches and fine clothes. It was this that led Miss Devoe to take money from Miss Bow that she might buy those things."

The jury announced that it had reached a verdict almost an even 48 hours after it retired. The courtroom was crowded, with many standing in the aisle. Three times before the jurors had notified the court that they believed a verdict impossible, but Judge Doran would not discharge them.

As the jurors filed into the box, Miss Devoe sat calmly at counsel table. The foreman told the court that a verdict had been reached and the clerk carried the jury documents to the bench.

"Sits eyes hidden by a dark green eye shade, Judge Doran thumbed the papers Miss Devoe's eyes never left him. As the court continued the slow, nerve-wracking trifling, there was a pause.

Suddenly a flash illumined the room and there was a tinkle of breaking glass, then a great sob as Miss Devoe collapsed after two weeks of trial and 48 hours of nervous waiting. A photographer had taken a picture, using one of the new flashlight bombs that resemble an electric light bulb.

The secretary's sister, Mrs. Grace Black, rushed to her side. Miss Devoe buried her head in her arms, still wrinkling her body. A woman juror, unnerved by hours of deliberation and tense waiting, followed suit.

At last the court called Clerk A. Y. Yorba and he took up his position in front of the jury box. In a steady voice he read the verdict of guilty on count seven.

Miss Devoe never looked up from the counsel table but broke down until she left the courtroom.

When the reading was completed, Judge Doran set Monday for sentence.

WILL LABOR GOVERNMENT BE DEFEATED ON TRADE DISPUTES BILL?

The long-heralded fight over the second reading of the trade disputes bill has commenced in the British House of Commons. With the majority of the Liberals abstaining a government defeat is not expected but the voting is expected to be very close and the bill will probably have a rough ride in committees. Above are four of the principal figures in this brief debate. Left: Sir John Simon, prominent Liberal, who will vote against the Government with a small band of Liberals. Centre top and bottom: Sir William Jowitt, Attorney-General of Great Britain, who moved the second reading of the bill, and Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister, who is seriously harassed by attacks from Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin (right) Conservative Leader.

LABOR LEADERS SPLIT ON POLICY

Division on Second Reading of Trades Disputes May Cause Trouble

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 24.—(Can. Press Cable)—The MacDonald government is facing two way trouble. The division on the second reading of the trades disputes bill, now scheduled for eleven o'clock Wednesday, will be critical. The prediction is common that if the government is defeated, it will ask for dissolution of parliament.

Within its own ranks too, the government is finding difficulties. The group led by Sir Oswald Mosley continues to press for a conference on unemployment. A special meeting of the Parliamentary Board Party had been called for Tuesday to discuss it.

At both places, the safes, which were of medium size construction were blown to pieces. Soap was sprinkled about the rooms and the entire interior was ransacked.

IS SEEKING HEIRS

George L. Gillies, attorney of Ottawa, now is anxious to locate the heirs of Euphemia Lillie Johnston, who married Lawrence Sherbert Denton about 1877, according to a communication received in this office. She was born in Canada about 1850 and died in Trenton in May, 1918. Her father's name was George Johnston who was engaged in the occupation of shoe making. She had two brothers, Alex. and Geo. Johnston, both of whom had children. Mr. Gillies states that Alex. Johnston is believed to have moved to Belleville where he died. Any person who has knowledge of this family is advised to communicate with Mr. Gillies at Ottawa, Iowa.

TEAMS ENTERTAINED

The Belleville junior hockey team was royally entertained by the Gananoque team last night after the game. Aubrey Lott, ex-mayor of Gananoque and a former Belleville boy, was the host and was assisted by directors of the Gananoque Hockey Club. It was a most fitting gesture on the part of the Gananoque team and management and was fully appreciated by the boys from the Quinte City. Stan Ruggerio at the close of the dinner thanked the club for their kindness and bestowed full praise on the team for their splendid showing and hoped they would continue to play the game in a sportsmanlike manner. The game last night was exceptionally clean and well handled by Mac McCarthy of Toronto. Mr. Lott wished to be remembered to his many friends in the city where he spent his boyhood and early manhood. The dinner closed with three hearty cheers for the Belleville and Gananoque clubs given by the respective teams.

Both games were fast and clean. The senior game perhaps, provided the more excitement. Albert College was leading at half-time by twenty-two points to nineteen, but the visitors came back in the second half to run wild on the floor and pile up thirty-one points. Al Waters refereed.

The line-ups of the two teams lined up:

TWEED DEFEATED BY MADOC TEAM

Hard-Fought Game in Trent Valley League Last Night

Tweed, Jan. 24 (By Special correspondent)—The unexpected happened last night in the Trent Valley League when Madoc hockey team with a large following stepped into Tweed, defeating the boosters 2-1. So important was the game that Herman Jacobs of Toronto was engaged to handle the ice and there was no unnecessary roughness and the teams being evenly matched, a well contested and interesting game was the result. This game strengthens Madoc's position in the league race, which is now reaching an interesting stage. Injuries to players on both squads held up the contest but the 700 who were in attendance did not mind the wait due to the closeness of the game. Hicks goalie for Madoc, was hit in the hip with the rubber, while Cripps was injured and carried off in the second period early and did not come back until the starting of the third frame. Madoc received four penalties and Tweed two.

The first period was even with Madoc scoring the first counter. The goal was deflected into the net and it was impossible to credit any particular player. Alex Gerald notched Campbell of Tweed a beautiful pass and the player made no mistake in beating Hulin. Madoc clinched the victory in the third frame, after a scoreless second period, when McGuire took Andrew's pass and easily beat Moore. Tweed went on a rampage and tended all men on the ice but failed to batter down the defence, that Madoc put up. Hulin was the busiest player in the Tweed zinc but he looked kicked or caught all the drives sent towards his cage and Madoc tropped off the ice with a well earned win. The lineups.

Tweed—goal McGie, defence Marshen and M. Geraldi, centre Cripps wings A. Geraldi and Campbell, Alternates F. Geraldi, Boyd and G. Geraldi.

Madoc—goal, Hulin, defence Andrews and Barkey, centre Johnson, wings McGuire and L'Heureux, Alternates Henderson, Mcon and Watson.

TROPICAL CLIMATE IN PAST CENTURIES ON THE PRAIRIES

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG—Visualize the prairies of the west—today covered with snow—once a broad garden with a subtropical climate instead of the subzero days of the winter season.

Millions of years ago, how many only scientists will hazard a guess, when the dinosaurs roamed the prairies, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta had the tropical climate—a period known to geologists as the cretaceous era, with the beautiful sassafras tree in bloom, and the magnolia and fig trees blooming in the warm zephyrs.

And it isn't just a vision of what might have been. The University of Manitoba botanists know it was true, for they now have in their possession a fossil leaf, probably that of the sassafras tree, recently discovered in Saskatchewan.

The discovery was made in Southern Saskatchewan along the new branch railway line which runs from Rockhaven to serve a present day agricultural district. Grading, digging a deep cut, made the discovery of a finely preserved fossil leaf which was sent to the University botanists here, creating intense interest, not only of authorities on botany but scientists.

Resembling a giant Maple leaf, the fossil is nearly a foot square, a product of the upper cretecous era.

MEDIOCRE SHOWING OF JUNIOR CUBS ELIMINATES TEAM FROM GROUP RACE

Scors was 3-2, Winners Deserving Their Victory — They Played Consistent Hockey with McDevitt, Brennan and Defence Standing Out—H. Morgan and Sherry Deserve Mention for Work but Rest of Team Lacked a Fighting Spirit.

By C. D. T.

Any aspirations that Belleville Cubs had of even tieing the junior group race were schmmered last night and only a miracle will put them back to the running. Displaying the form that would not do credit to a team of midget classification, the Cubs lost to Gananoque 3-2, with periods 0-1, 2-0, on Gananoque ice and in losing the game fully deserved the defeat registered against them. It has been hard to believe that the kids could not give as good a display away from home as at home but last night they conclusively proved that they were not of championship quality and in that respect it is just as well that the bubble burst before the fans became too much enthused. They lacked everything that a good team should have, the principal ingredient lacked being courage to fight back, when the going was the toughest. In winning Gananoque gave a finished performance lead by the best goal minding that has been seen in the group this year. The winners checked back at every opportunity, provided a sound defence and took every advantage of the breaks in score goals.

Ice Had Surface a Handicap

The large ice surface that is attained in this city can partly be blamed for the defeat. The Cubs can skate but last night their work was handicapped by the small surface and with the perfesterous checking by the Gananoque front line the kids never did get going. They bunched in centre ice, the passes were poorly delivered and when they did break through the defence, the poorest of judgment was used about the nets. Actually dozens of chances were missed in the latter part of the game due to over anxiousness and inability to drive the rubber any other place but in the goalie's pads. Although only three supporters were with the team, these groaned many times when the scoring opportunities were missed that would be otherwise "applesauce" for the boy who had the rubber. The Cubs displayed more finish in their work but went nowhere. The Gananoque team were more surprised over the win than the locals in losing but probably it was another case of winning the game before playing it on the ice and holding the opposition too lightly. The team were in high glee when they stepped out before the game and as silent as clams when it was all over.

Sherry and H. Morgan Good

There were two boys that worked their hearts out to win the game, they being Sherry and Harry Morgan. They showed like fiends and at the end were all in but the rest of the team did not raise a good perspiration. Doug Rumsey from whom much was expected was spotty in his play and the latitude with which he allowed his wings to roam was practically the cause of the defeat. The Gananoque team swept through centre ice and were not hindered in their progress for McDonald was generally checking on the wrong side of the player. He could not skate and when he secured was caught before he reached centre ice. "Pete" Morgan was a washout. He appeared burnt out and not able to go for any length of time at top speed. Too much skating is blamed for the condition and he was told so in no uncertain terms by the coach. St. Denis showed some flashy stickhandling but his boring in tendencies were sadly lacking. Jimmy Ehler was simply lost on the small ice surface and was lacking his usual fight. He was relieved of the rushing duties in the last frame but still did not come out of his lethargy until it was all over.

McKinnon Played Well

It has been rumored that the kids had but little confidence in the goal minding proclivity of "Dimp" McKinnon but he can in no way be blamed for the defeat. Last night he turned in a sparkling effort but his one lapse cost a goal and the game. He made many remarkable saves in the pastime especially in the second period, all because his team mates did not cover the wings and the defence allowed liberties to the Gananoque players in the scoring zone. The whole team was just a collection of players not realizing the importance of the struggle and thinking they were out on a lark at the expense of the manager. Ament committee that was trying to take them somewhere but the thunderbolts struck and they can now sit down and calmly think the pastime over and muse on the many chances they missed.

A Courageous Team

Turning to the other side of the picture, Gananoque showed courage every credit for their splendid showing. Down two goals midway in the second frame they did not give up but went about their work in a businesslike way and when the period was over were all even terms with the losers and were much the better looking team. Their offensive did not cease in the next period and coming out in the third canine they still swept the Cubs off their feet with consistent checking and soon were rewarded with a million dollar goal. Immediately failing back to a defensive game they protected their slim lead and started off with a well deserved victory. McDevitt in goal, was wonderful and some of his saves were sensational. He played every shot carefully and his clearing was much better than McKinnon's. Dorey and O'Hearn starred on the defence and although they received a number of penalties for illegal checking they were in the fight all the time. Their rushes were timely and they constantly fed their wings who roamed uncovered all evening. Brennan was a star in centre ice. His sweeping poke check stopped the Belleville players before they were started and if this method failed he was back in there backchecking like a fiend. Wing and Willis on the wings worked well with the pivot man and their shots were dead on. The second line of Sweet, McKenzie and Pearson were good both ways, not brilliant but well in the game and taking advantage of every break.

THE PLAY

It was not until thirty seconds before the expiration of the first period that Belleville was able to flash the green light. They had many chances but they were either fumbled or broke up before they started. Finally Rumsey found an opening with O'Hearn in the penalty box and he skated in fast and when McKinnon moved to smother the disc, the left winger promptly lifted it over the prostrate form. In the second period two penalties, Brennan bne and McGuire for Belleville. The game appeared in the air and McGuire made a perfect rush and batted in one fore close quarters to give his team a comfortable lead. Then came a break when Brennan was given credit for a goal which was a real play. Then came a scramble and it is believed that one of the Belleville forwards in clearing a passout by a Gananoque player drove the rubber into his own net. In the third frame the game was of up and down variety until Pearson took a clearing out pass from McKinnon and prompt drove it into the twine. Belleville resent everyone up on the attack and although there were some close calls, McDevitt kept his citadel intact.

The lineups and summary:

RALLY RESULTED IN VICTORY FOR PETERBORO TEAM

PETERBORO, Jan. 24.—A garrison finish in the third period, during which they scored three goals, kept the Peterboro team in the running in the group race and enabled them to defeat Port Hope 4 to 3 in an O.H.A. intermediate fixture here last night. It was the most exciting game of the season.

The Petes took the lead in the first few minutes, when Hatton scored on a combined rush. Hirwood went through alone for Port Hope just before the period ended to tie the score. Early in the second session LeHarr lifted in a rebound to put the homesters again in front, but Port Hope went on a scoring rampage and slapped in four goals, R. Ware and Moist getting two each. Creighton got one back for the Petes and the period ended with the Ontario leading 5 to 3.

In the final twenty minutes the Petes staged an attack that the visitors could not stop, LeHarr and Hatton on a pass from Malodsky and Jarvis tied the score with the assistance of Hlumal. Then Lackey banked in his own rebound to win the game.

FRED INGRAM IS ALLOWED TO PLAY

Campbellford Goalie is Barred from the Trent Valley League

Campbellford, January 24— Fred Ingram will again be seen on the lineup of the Campbellford Maroons, but Ted Owens, the Miller's goalie, will have to take a back seat for this year. This was the decision reached by the Trent Valley Hockey League at a meeting held in Stirling yesterday afternoon, called by the president W. J. Whitty, and attended by delegates from the teams comprising the league.

Much contention was raised over the playing of these two men on the Campbellford team, that the schedule game staged at Madoc on Jan. 19th between that team and the exclusion of Owens is that his card was not in by January 1. This matter was discussed by the meeting, who decided that following the rules of the league he would be unable to play this season.

Ingram's case, however, was a little different. Fred tried out this year with a pro team but did not play, and in consequence with other amateur players who did the same had his amateur card suspended. The A.A.U. of C., however, by their ruling given at a meeting over the week end, cleared up the matter with the result that Ingram was given his amateur card. Then he played against Madoc for the millions with the result that some of the league took offence at his presence and tried to bar him from the Trent Valley League.

The excuse that the executive put up was that Ingram did not have his card signed by January 1 of this year. Fred, who attended the meeting, pointed out that the rules of the Trent Valley League did not state this but read that a man must have his card in the hands of the secretary by this date. The point was undebatable and as Ingram's card was in the hands of the secretary by January 1, there was no other option but to allow him to play.

The Stephens Adamson Maple Spillers Bush League fixture was a win. The Maple Spillers won the first game by 189 pins, Stephens Adamson came right back to win the second by 197 and the third game and two points was decided by sixteen pins. The Maple Spillers had two blows in the 10th frame while the S. A. crew had a big frame. The final result was Stephens Adamson three points, Maple Spillers one point after a great battle.

In the second league game, Ontario Intell vs. the Supremes resulted in four points for the Supremes. Eight pins was the difference in the first game while 30 pins was the last game difference, so one would say that this was rather close.

Y'S MEN DEFEAT KINGSTON TEAM IN LEAGUE GAME

Locals Win Second Game in Eastern Basketball Section

The Y's Men's Club team was successful in their invasion into the Limestone City yesterday evening, where they took the Kingston Y-Gonic into camp to the tune of 28-23. At half time the score stood 12-11 in their favor and up until that time there was little to choose between the two teams on their play.

The Kingston players were the first to score, counting a field goal and a free throw before the Club Men registered any counters. Midway through this half the visitors overtook their opponents and from then on held the lead for the balance of the fixture. Unfortunately a considerable amount of holding and kicking was allowed to be indulged in the players through lax work on the part of the referee and this rather marred what might have been a fairly even game. Both Quints experienced a lot of hard luck in their shooting, the ball on numerous occasions appearing to enter the basket only to fly out again.

Vince and Morris were the main point getters for the Kingston Y Team while the scoring of the Y's Men were well distributed amongst the whole team. In foul shooting the locals showed considerable improvement over their previous performances, counting five of their eight attempts.

As a result of this win the Club Men are leading the league with two wins and no loses. All the other four teams in the Eastern Loop have each lost a game. The locals can see their game against the Napanee Representatives here next Wednesday night they will have further strengthened their position. Although the latter have dropped their opening game in the league, it was by a close score and report has it that the Napanee boys are a greatly improved aggregation of players over last year's entry.

The teams—

Kingston Y.M.C.A. — Day, Vince, Vince, Drew, Smith, Grobb, Morris, Ashley, Veale.

Belleville Y Men— McPee, Division Faulkner, White, Weir, Evoy, Buck, Allan, Alexander.

JUNGLE KINGS DEFEAT DUKES

Ten Minute Overtime Game Results in Victory for Hamilton

Hamilton, Jan. 23—Hamilton Tigers snatched a real battle out of the burning here last night when they came from behind to defeat Marlboros, of Toronto, in ten minutes of overtime play, 3 to 2, and place themselves solidly in second place in the O.H.A. senior 'A' series; four points in front of Marlboros and Nationals.

The Jungle Kings fought through three stiff periods of bruising hockey to no avail, except that in the second frame they ran in a pair of counters to equal those secured by Marlboros in the first, and after the third frame proved scoreless the Yellow and Black banged in the winning counter just before the teams changed ends in the first overtime period.

High class hockey was conspicuous by its absence but the earnestness of both teams, once they settled down, more than made up for any deficiency in this respect.

Neither team was able to show any kind of style in attacking, the close, hard checking absolutely prohibiting anything like combination work and Tigers were woefully weak in defensive play, once showing the form they are capable of.

In addition, the Bengals never did make aससस of beating the powerful Marlboro defence and it was no fault of the heavy-hitting Rauke-Levinsky duo that the Bengals registered at all.

While Marlboros had a big edge in every way in the opening period, Tigers rallied strongly and made the rest of the battle tough for their opponents. Heavy body checking by the rival defenses took much of the steam out of the players, and the rival front line missed up most of their scoring chances.

Tigers Three Stand-outs

Hamilton would have been in a bad way but for three players, Marsh in goal, McKay and Kane. The former was a tower of strength in the first period and his blocking from then on bordered on the sensational at times. McKay's great bumping in the opening period saved the Bengals from a beat-rout, and he was strong for the balance of the game, while "Hurry" Kane dove in often enough to score two goals and furnish the pass for the third one.

Toronto drew a starry display from Radke and Levinsky, with Harris being exceptionally good between the uprights, while Thoms, Oliver and Davey played brilliantly on the front line.

THE PLAY

Holloway Street Dramatic Society Presents Drama With Fine Effect

Holloway Street United Church Young People's Dramatic Society on Friday evening presented "The Prince Chap", a three-act play by Edward Peple, before a fair-sized audience in the Collegiate Theatre. The play was under the direction of Miss Jessie B. Tuite and was one of the most successful amateur plays produced here in recent years. The young people in the cast took their dramatic duties seriously and endeavoured with success to make the characters stand out in all the richness with which the imagination of the playwright had clothed them.

The story itself has an appeal to every age of life, to the young, with its story of the child left as ward of a young bachelor, to the older with the problems of the situations, the healthy development of the story and the complications of the plot, and to all ages with the wealth of comic situations which evolved out of the complexities of the characters and of their meetings with one another. The production was highly gratifying to the directress and to the players and public, the young actors and actresses feeling with rather remarkable intuition their way to a rounded-out production. Most of those taking part had not appeared in any previous production.

The collegiate stage never showed to better advantage than last evening. The back of the stage fitted into the scene with real effect. Though the stage is very large and the entire stage was used for the scenes, it was not felt to be too large and for some reason the actors did not appear to be lost upon it. The setting was simple but effective. It had just enough detail to make it appear natural and suitable to the theme of the play. Miss Tuite knows that simplicity of setting is preferable to an overloaded setting which distracts and destroys the sense of unity not only of the setting but also of the production.

In this romantic story, set in London, in which the ward after fourteen years from the time of her bereavement by the death of her mother who had given her in the keeping of an American sculptor, William Peyton, becomes his betrothed after a scene in which she refuses Jack Rodney, the Earl of Huntingdon, who had proferred his hand. Peyton had been disappointed in love and had been refused ten years before when he had refused to send away Claudia, his ward, at the request of Alice Travers, his fiancee.

Thomas F. Byrne in the role of Peyton played the part well and the role of hero with fine discrimination and sympathy particularly in the scenes with the child Claudia. Henry C. Hubbs as the Earl of Huntingdon, had a rather heavy role to play of the dashing young man, but he managed to achieve much of the quality sought for this character. J. Paterson as Frits and W. T. Morgan as Ballington, two other artists had lesser roles, but acted with the restraint necessary in their parts. Harold F. Mott really "made" the character Marcus Runion, an English serving man, and his diction and his gestures caught the true flavor of the role. Kathleen Woodley essayed a difficult task, two roles. She had been prepared for the role of Miss Harrington, Claudia's mother, and this she interpreted with much feeling, in the scene in which her love for the child Claudia, and her relinquishment of the child into the wardship of Peyton were revealed. The acting was not overdone but was really fine, and Mr. Byrne and Miss Woodley made the scene a memorable one. But Miss Kathleen Woodley had been compelled two days before to fill also the role of Alice Travers, the fiancee of Peyton, owing to a bereavement in the family of the girl, who was to have taken this part. The role was quite a heavy one, but Miss Woodley proved her ability to fit into the character at short notice. One of the outstanding pieces of acting in the production, was that of Miss Irene Woodley as the maid of all work, Phoebe Puckers. Miss Woodley threw much comedy into some after scene and wound up her performance with a screaming appearance as the bride-to-be after her joining up with a circus. Phoebe's mentality showed even in her circus dress of minty colors. The characterization was very fine and enjoyable.

Hazel L. Smith took the part of Mrs. Partridge who did not have to act but to pose over the stage. That stern lip caused many a laugh in the true spirit of the play.

The role of Claudia, the daughter of widowed Mrs. Harrington, and the ward of Peyton, and after the play to be his wife, was taken by two actresses, for the name "actress" is the only word to express the superior work of little six year old girl, Helen Brown and of a young girl, Beatrice D. Moynes, who played as the child at the age of ten years and as the young woman of about twenty years. Little Helen Brown is a real dramatic find and how she remembered her lines and acted up to the fullest opportunity of dialogue and situation was amazing to the audience. Her voice carried throughout the large theatre, and her acting was splendid. Miss Moynes in the older roles in the life of Claudia was good. As the ward of ten years, asking for presents at Christmas season and as the grown up young woman in love with her guardian, though she had not allowed this to be seen otherwise than as the love of a daughter for her father, Miss Moynes' work was very clever.

During the evening, Mrs. John Adams and Mr. Alec. Gordon played a piano duet, Mrs. Adams sang a very fine song with encore, and Mr. Gordon gave a piano solo. These selections made the intermissions bright.

Rev. Harold S. Neal, minister of Holloway Street Church, made an explanation of the change of cast where by Miss K. Woodley took the two roles above noted.

Miller's Worm Powders will purge the stomach and intestines of worms so effectively and so easily and painlessly that the most delicate stomach will not feel any inconvenience from their action. They recommend themselves to mothers as a preparation that will restore strength and vigor to their children and protect them from the debilitating effects which result from the depredations of worms.

HONEY PRODUCTION INCREASES YEARLY

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG — Manitoba has a million dollar industry in the production of honey, reports presented to the Industrial Development Board disclose.

In eight years the honey production in this province has increased from 2,000,000 pounds to 11,000,000 pounds with a value of one million dollars annually.

Manitoba produces one third of all Canadian honey, running a close second to Ontario, the Dominion's largest producer.

The "big five" among British banks have something like 8,000 branches spread over the country, more than 1,000 of them being in London.

OTTAWA HOCKEY CLUB FOR SALE

Dwindling in Gate Receipts Means That Senators May be Moved

Ottawa, Jan. 24—There are indications that the cradle of hockey may soon lose its famous tenant, the Ottawa Senators. Another possibility is that the team will merely change hands, to be operated in future by a new syndicate of Ottawa sportsmen. Word that the team which has long represented the capital in the National League, and brought many a world's professional hockey championship to the city, is up against it financially, came from an officer of the club, Redmond Quain, director and legal adviser of the Ottawa Hockey Association, said: "We are anxious to keep the team in Ottawa but we cannot afford to any longer."

The first indication he placed on the Quain statement is that the Senators are on the sale block. A disastrous slump into which the team has fallen in the last few weeks has tumbled them deep into the cellar of the league standings. A corresponding gate receipts for their home games has followed and operating the team nowadays is hardly a paying proposition.

Irvin Cobb, newspaper man and author of those charming Judge Priest southern stories, and cohort of the air last night and handed out a smile or two with his amusing stories and drawling Southern dialect. Irvin's turn came at 8.30 over WJZ.

x x x

Mary Pickford was acclaimed "America's Sweetheart" at the dance given in New York City last night by the Press Photographers' Association. Mary made a nice little speech and was easily the belle of the ball. There were present a host of celebrities of the stage, screen and prize ring, and Primo Carnera, the man mountain from Mussolinland, was acclaimed as the best heavyweight champion of the world. Hooey, and then some. The fun waxed fast and furious, so much so that some of the entertainers declined to finish their acts because no one appeared to be listening to them. One chap got half way through a story after several attempts to quiet the crowd, and then quit cold.

Radio Keith Orpheum presented a special program last night from Washington and New York featuring the premier showing of "Cimmaron," Edna Ferber's great story of the historic rush of thousands into Oklahoma territory when the land was thrown open for settlement. Richard Dix, Estelle Taylor were introduced by Floyd Gibbons as principals in the Cimmaron cast, and Vice-President Curtis, on behalf of Oklahoma gave the picture official approval as historically correct, and worthwhile.

Big doings on the air last night, wasn't there, fans? Yes sir, a number of special programs and celebrities and it all makes fun. The reception here go nobly and we were able to do all the dial chasing we wanted, and the family would allow.

Tea Timers from WEAF tonight at 5.30 per usual, Rex Cole Mountaineers next in line and then Uncle Abe and David at 6.45. The Varieties at 8.15 with Welcome Lewis contralto and Tommy Herman, xylophonist. Silver Flute program at 8.30.

S. A. Rolfe at 10, Lanny Ross at 11 Horace Heidt at 11.15, and Little Jack Little a 11.45. We must remember to tune in on the Jesters at 7.25 from WJZ tonight and an episode of the Campus at 9. The Musical Doctors at 9.30 is a smart program and I'd advise you to try it out tonight. Phil Spitalny at midnight.

Ashmas Doctor's Wear Off Alone. Do not make the mistake of waiting for asthma to wear away by itself. While you are waiting the disease is surely gathering a stronger foothold and you are in danger of more severe and stronger attacks. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy taken early will prevent impending condition from becoming chronic and saves hours of awful suffering.

"THE BIG HOUSE" INTENSE DRAMA

Exciting Episodes in Talkie Depicting Prison Life

Life on the "inside" in a great penitentiary is echoed in thrills, sensations, grim episodes, comedy and heart throbs, in "The Big House." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much heralded drama of penitentiary life, which is the feature offering at the Bells Theatre, today and Monday matinee daily.

Stark realism, and men in the raw, are contrasted with home life and a love romance in the vivid story. There is a great prison riot, with a thousand men quelled by machine guns and army tanks; there is a pathetic story of the friendship of two convicts, and the regeneration of one by love, and the startling spectacle of a boy first offender thrown into the company of hardened criminals until he becomes a worse even than they.

Chester Morris, Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery play the central male roles as three cell mates about whom the riot, hate, and ferment revolve. Beery enacts a gangster slayer of vicious yet with a sardonic humor about his characterization; Morris is seen as a forger and crook who eventually finds regeneration in the turmoil, and Montgomery does a splendid characterization as the boy showing the erosion of a human soul.

Other members of the exceptional cast in "The Big House," include Leila Hyrns, Claire McDowell, J. C. Nugent, De Witt Jennings, Lewis Stone, George Marion and Karl Dane.

ing the former secretary and she was led away.

In returning its verdict, the jury attached 11 signed letter to the court which read:

"We, the undersigned, ask that His Honor grant leniency in pronouncing sentence in this case."

Miss Devoe was accused in the 30 count indictment of stealing $15,870.33 from the Clara Bow special account. It was specified that she used the $26.30 for jewelry, furs and an automobile took $400 in cash and issued $10,344 in other cheques which could not be traced.

Start of the Case

First signs of a rift between Miss Bow and the beauty specialist who became her secretary and companion came last November when Clara took $13,700 at Calneva, Nev., a fashionable gambling resort away from home.

Coming house proprietors presented Clara's cheques at a Hollywood bank and were informed that she had overdrawn payment stopped. Miss Bow said she did not know that the 50-cent pieces used as chips were valued at $100 each in the game.

At her trial, Edna Devoe said she left the Bow home, November 1, after overhearing the star and Rex Bell, Clara's present fiance, planning to disinherit her.

She admitted that she took some jewels, telegrams, and letters belonging to the actress but denied that she demanded $15,000 from W. I. Gilbert, Clara's attorney, for her silence and the return of the personal papers.

When Miss Devoe was called the woman's jail on the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice. She had recovered sufficiently to smile and pose for pictures.

"SALADA" GREEN TEA

"Fresh from the gardens"

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

Angelloti was excited but like all smart Italians he was not impulsive except when he was in a fight, or angry. "This pinch will keep several nights, because some o' these birds'll no condition to be moved. This situation is ticklish an' requires extra an' mature deliberation."

"Maybe you're right at that Amadeo. Well we'll stick round a while."

They stuck around half an hour before Dr. Burt came out and drove away. Drop off an' watch the house" Flynn suggested to his partner, 'an I'll follow his Nibs. I'll be back later."

He trailed Stephen Burt to the latter's home and saw him pull up across the sidewalk, preparatory to opening the door of his garage. So Flynn rolled past, circled, picked up Angelloti at the end of the block.

"After you an' the doc left, I went up to the corner drug store and 'phoned the chief's house, but nobody answered," Angelloti confided. "The gang's in there, all right."

"I'm as nervous as an old woman," Flynn confessed. "I wish I had a drink."

Angelloti was a resourceful fellow. "Let's call on that Lenning woman, apologize for our rough work last night, an' maybe she'll slip us some o' that pre-war Bourbon again."

Flynn shook and they drove to Lanny's house. Lenny received them coldly. "Have you come to search my house again?" she demanded irritably.

No mule's face could possibly have been longer than Flynn's. "We didn't come to annoy you, Miss Lanning. Chief's given us the inside story. We just called to apologize for even suspectin' you."

"An officer, Angelloti explained, "has got to do a lot o' things he don't like to do in the discharge of his duty. The apology goes double, Miss Lanning."

"It's accepted." The kitney shook hands. "How about a shot in the arm?" Lenny, the worlding, suggested, much mollified.

Angelloti shrugged expressively. "Well, seein' as how," P. Flynn murmured. So they had three drinks and spent a very pleasant evening with Lenny and she was loth to see them depart.

Now, Lenny was aware that Stephen had planned to visit his query patients after dinner that night. So she telephoned — and Dan McNamara answered.

"I shouldn't ring you up this late and get you out of bed——"

"Not at all. Just got in this minute." "I'm glad. Now's everything. Dan?"

"I haven't seen the patients, but my chief of staff was up waiting for me, and reports everything jake."

"That's all I wanted to know. Thanks Dan. Oh, by the way, Flynn and Angelloti called on me again, tonight."

"What's that?" The chief's voice was sroar. "What are those two cops up to? I told them to lay off you."

"They're doing that, Dan. They just called to apologize. They spent the evening with me. They only left a moment ago."

"The liquor must have run out."

"Oh, Dan."

"I know those two. It would never occur to them to apologize to anybody if they didn't have a reason. It's just as I suspected, Lanny. They're going to hang on to this case on the quiet and trail you around."

An anguished thought popped into Lenny's agile brain. "Oh, Dan, suppose they took a notion to trail Stevie!"

"Hush! You don't have to paint me any picture, Lanny. When did those two busy-bodies call at your house?"

"At nine-fifteen".

"Wait a minute." Lanny waited a minute and then McNamara said:—"Stephen left her just about that time so I guess we're safe tonight. And to morrow I'll cover that loophole, I'm an ass not to have thought of it before. Goodnight."

In the morning Dan McNamara sent for Flynn and informed him he was to depart that night for Los Angeles to bring back a prisoner. Flynn begged Angelloti to keep his eyes on the job. But that night McNamara found other work for Angelloti. By the time Flynn returned, Angelloti was gone, and the same night, without a moment's notice, McNamara shot him up to Seattle on a similar job.

He let himself into the house that night with his latch-key, turned on the hall light and whistled. "Hello everybody," he shouted. Nobody answered, so he hurried down to Nance's room. The door was open. He switched on the light and found a disordered bed with nobody in it. He searched the house thoroughly, only to discover he was alone in it; finally, on the living-room table he found a note:

Dear Chief: We think you mean well and we thank you for what you have done, but the dicks are watching this house. They trailed the doctor last night, but a friend of ours trailed them. Forgive us if we just can't trust any cop. Anyhow, it would be embarrassing for you if your men found us here. Goodbye and good luck.

McNamara sat down. He was suddenly weak. So he hadn't fooled Flynn and Angelloti after all. The smart devils! Well, they might suspect all they pleased, but unless they had seen his guests and recognized Nance they could never prove anything.

He realized now that his act in sending them out of the state would enrich their suspicions; they would be sure to have somebody in their confidence keep the house under constant surveillance until they got back. Evidently they had sent a burgler and the ex-soldier had spotted the fellow —he wondered if Nance and her loyal friends had made a clean getaway.

The front door-bell rang and he went to answer it. A thin, bent man stood in the entrance, and even in the dim light from the hall McNamara knew him for an ex-convict in his prison suit of civilian clothes.

"Chief McNamara?" he queried hushily.

"Yes. I'm the chief."

"I got out of San Quentin this morning. I had a message for you, but I didn't want to come to headquarters to deliver it. Benny the Beetle told me to tell you to rest easy."

"Thanks friend. Come in and rest easy yourself. Let's get acquainted." McNamara invited hospitably. In the clearer light of the living room he saw that his visitor was far from being a well man. "What is it, kid?" he demanded with gruff kindness. "Hop-or T.B.?"

"The old coughin' sickness, Chief. The prison doctors shortened my term to let me out for treatment. As if I can get treatment anywhere," he ridded bitterly.

"I'll see you can. I'm living alone here for the next thirty days, so I'll get a nurse in to take care of you, and you stay here."

The man looked at him suspiciously. "You mean it, Chief?"

"What did Benny tell you about me? he asked.

"That you was trust you. He said you was one human being, even if you was a chief of police.'

He changed the linen on Nance's bed, put the man in order, laid out a suit of pajamas and ordered his guest to bed.

"And now, we bold buckos," he reflected," keep on stalling for Dr. Burt to my house. If you feel like it."

He waited up until Stephen Burt arrived. He examined the situation to him. Stephen consicered it a shame to dous joke but commended his line of action on Flynn and Angelloti.

"The man needs need treatment very badly," he told the chief. "I'll send around a practical nurse early today. Personally to look after him, and I'll continue to call upon the devil nightly until further orders. We're both involved in a tricky game now and must play the hand through."

INSTALMENT XV

Dr. Burt was suddenly serious. "I do hope we haven't lost Nance, Dan. She's the most interesting psychological case I've ever seen."

"She ain't lost, but I'll bet a cookie she's well hid. But I'll locate her within twelve hours," Chief McNamara added, thinking of Ella Cates.

"I've met Nance's early history; down since I saw her last, Doc," he announced suddenly "I got busy the othey day and luck was with me. She's an heiress and her name is Penelope Gatlin. She got it in the zone by a baseball——a long fly into the bleachers. But I also discovered something else. It's a question whether she ain't just a natural nut. Her mother is. A religious fanatic—the sort that thinks it can cure a busted nose by faith. She led Gatlin a hell of a life."

"No, I don't think it's congenital, Dan. There's something about that girl that's healthy—mentally and physically. Did you meet her mother?"

"No, but I'm going to. I'll run her down easy enough."

Stephen sighed. "Oh, poor Nance! Im afraid she's beyond my skill after all. A bad family history, Mac—very bad. There's a structural weakness in some families that never gets brog out, and I suspect poor Nance has an inheritance of mental instability from her mother."

"Well with that buried hose her inheritance and her hell-cat mother, she certainly had a fine start on the road to the foolish farm, didn't she, Doc? Excuse me, there's the telephone."

Lanny was ecrling. "Dan, she, quavered, "my house has been burglarized. They jimmied the back door, and for all I know the burglars are upstairs still. I'm watching the staircase—got my pistol covering it. Come over quick Dan—please."

"Coming right away Lanny." He hung up and faced Stephen. "Lanny has burglars into your car, boy, and we'll beat it over."

Lanny, very white and shaken, was in her living-room, pistol in hand, watching the stairs, when McNamara and Stephen came noiselessly in the back door. The chief whipped out his pistol and went unhesitatingly up the stairs. Presently he called to them to come up.

They found him standing in the doorway leading into Lanny's guest-chamber. "Take a look at that," he ordered.

They looked. Lying in the bed, sound asleep, was Nance Belden!

McNamara switched off the light and softly closed the door. With his great head cloaked in both huge hands he went down the stairs to the living-room. "Doc," he pleaded, "whose funny now? I think I am because I'm seeing things that ain't in the book. Ochone, ochone, and wirra, wirra, the fairies have me in tow!"

"Got to get her out of here," Dan McNamara decided." "Flynn and Angelloti finally got on her trail, no doubt about that—and it's a mighty cold trail these two dicks can't follow. I suspected this, and the note she left at my house confirms it. It's just the mercy of God that Flynn and Angelloti didn't happen to slip into my domicile and find the note. If they had I'm sunk. They can suspect all they want to but hanging it on to me is another pair of boots, as the French say."

"Why, they wouldn't dare invade their own chief's house," Lanny protested.

"They wouldn't? You dont know those two bozos like I do. They'd dare anything if they figured they could get away with it."

"Can't you give the miserable spoopers an office job?" Lanny demanded. She was fairly provoked at Daniel for his lack of initiative.

"Would you put down even with a couple of horses that had won the Derby?" "Oh!"

"Wake that psychopathic nuisance up, Lanny, and get her down here, I've got to find out things or go crazy. Besides she hasn't had any dinner."

"Let the poor lamb sleep, Dan," pleaded Lanny.

"I need a lot of sleep myself and I cant get it until I know how, when and where Nance and her gang made the getaway; suppose Flynn followed the mer and Angelloti followed Nance? They'd do that; they wouldn't risk getting in Dutch with me by making the pinch as the gang drove out of my house. They have some loyalty and a lot of common sense, and they know which side their bread is buttered on. When they take the chief's job I got turn her in to me. They'll waltz her straight back to San Quentin to the Warden and let his men get the credit for recapturing her. All they want is the reward. Suppose they know she's here now and suppose they have seen me come here? Ochl! Mad deration!!

"Have her down, Lanny" Stephen commanded in his operating-room voice and Lanny had no alternative save to obey. So presently Nance came down the stairs with her. The girl was strayed in an old wadded dressing-gown of Lanny's, her hair was tousled, and she yawned sleepily.

"Hello, Stevie, old darling; hello, Dan, you great big beautiful thing. Here I am."

"Sit down," McNamara invited in his eyed accents.

So Nance sat down promptly—on his burly neck and kissed him. "Now, don't get excited, she cooed. "I know exactly what's burning you up, but you needn't worry. One of the boys recognized Flynn and I recognized Angelloti, because he's the dick that pinched me the first time I got in Dutch. They kept circling the block in their car all the afternoon, and when it was almost dark, we saw Flynn go into an alley corgside a vacant house across the street. We decided Angelloti had gone home for dinner. So we telephoned Angelloti's house and his wife said his was eating his dinner, and unless it was important to call up in fifteen minutes. So we said it wasn't important, hung up and held a conference.

"We decided the back of the house wasn't guarded, so we telephoned the boy friend that met us at the yacht harbor that night and he came and parked in the next street. We went out your back door, leaving the light in the front room burning, and shinnied over the back fence. Some job for two members of the party, I'll say. Once over the fence we had to prowl through the back yard of the house that abuts against the rear of your house—and a dog bit me, but not very hard. We got out in front and into the next street before anybody could come out and see what luck the dog had had; our car was there and we beat it. Where pretty soon Flynn followed us, but we drove out to the park first with our lights doused, and when we were sure nobody was trailing us, the boys brought me here. We jimmied your back door, Lanny dear; then the boys said goodbye to me for keeps. It seems you don't want me associating with them any more and they think you're right about that, Dan."

"Did your men scout the street in front of this house before pulling up in front of it?" asked McNamara sharply.

"Certainly. We circled the block twice."

"Prod our Nance, Lanny," McNamara urged happily "She's a smart girl. How's the shoulder, desrie?

"Fine. It'll be O.K. in another week."

"So am I". Mr. McNamara grinned hor'ibly. "Flynn's home eating his dinner now, and Angelloti must be on guard in that alley. I'm going to mistake Angelloti for a suspicious character, lurking there in the dark and put a mark on him so I can recognize him later. He just can't stand to mix it with me, and get recognized, of course, so when he runs I'll fire in the air. He'll know who I am but he'll never suspect I know who he is."

INSTALMENT XVI

McNamara bade Nance, Lanny and Stephen goodnights and hurried away in a taxi. A block from his house he alighted and walked down the side of the street opposite his own house. He was whistling, softly as he came abreast Angelloti's hiding-place, where he turned at right angles apparently with the intention of crossing in the middle of the street to his own house. A step from the curb he halted, turned, his bent his head in a listening attitude, then stepped resolutely into the alley.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Receiving no answer, he got out a small flashlight; he seemed to have some difficulty flashing it on, for he cursed softly, and suddenly a beam from the flashlight illumined his own face for an instant, but long enough, he decided, to permit the watchful Angelloti to recognize him. The alley was empty but in a little garden strip a large cypress bush grew, and instinct warned the chief that his prey was behind it. So he walked past it, his flashlight held close to the bush, and as he had anticipated, it was snatched from him. As he turned, one of his stout legs was jerked from under him by a man crouching low; so, before permitting himself to topple backward, McNamara dropped his good right arm to the level of his knee and swung a short, slashing punch. He felt a cheek-bone and the side of a nose; so he punched again. a little higher up, and Dan fell over backward. Instantly his assailant rose and fled like a roe.

LATE J. C. PANTER

The death of J. Charles Panter, Parks Commissioner since the organization of the Board of Parks Commissioners removes the second member of the board, the other being the late Thos. J. Power.

On behalf of the Parks Board the late Mr. Panter was a tireless and progressive representative and not a little of the success of this body is owing to his persistent efforts on its behalf. When the board was in its early stages of development Mr. Panter took freely of his own time and means to visit other cities in Eastern Ontario to obtain the best ideas as to layout of grounds and location of buildings and track. His findings proved of immense value when the Board was laying its original plans.

Mr. Panter was closely associated with the amusement interests and many a fine meet here owed its success in part at least to the zeal he showed for the cause of entertainment to be provided the people of Belleville and the district.

In the business world and as private citizen as well as in his representative capacity, Charles Panter was highly esteemed. His loss will be keenly felt.

His efforts on behalf of interests of vital importance to the life of the city and district mark his life as one of usefulness.

THE LIMOUSINES DEPART

Premier Bennett is earning many comments upon his drive for economy at the hospital by the cutting out of a large motor bill of expense, through the special motorcars used by ministers and deputy ministers at Ottawa. They will use taxis on official business here after thanks to Mr. Bennett's decision.

Mr. Bennett has put in practise his belief which seems to be the belief of many individuals who do not act upon it that it is cheaper to hire a taxi when you want it than to have your own car at your own service.

It is true that some ministers have not always used the luxurious limousines in the past for strictly official business, but it is stated that the service of one deputy minister did thousands of miles one season in an official car.

The Montreal Star praises Mr. Bennett's move as one in which economy is practized at home. "The Prime Minister's official family may feel regret," says that paper, "but the country at large will agree that taxis ought to screw them very well." The Globe remarks that "Premier Bennett has acted wisely and courageously in seeking to remedy the lamentable abuse at Ottawa. It is reported that the motor bills kept for the use of Ministers and their Deputies and likewise used by their families and other relations, is to be sold and taxis used when necessary in place thereof. It is admitted that the privilege has been abused and this is apparent when it is stated that the maintenance of the fleet has cost the government more than $500,000 a year. The use of private cars on railways has also been carried to excess.

THE INDIA-TO-BE

The new India is in the process of making is the opinion of most men. The constitution which is to be given that portion of the Empire shortly is called "daring," going far to meet the demands of the people of India. To many the prospects of realization of Dominion Government for that country are bright indeed. For it has been given the endorsation of the three British parties as well as that of moderate Indian opinion.

Experts are to work upon the scheme, British and Indians together. They are to work side by side to "lighten up the structure and convert what is now a sketch into a working blue print.

A new era must be dawning all over this province. A hitherto dead church at Georgetown over one hundred years old is to have a new parish hall built shortly. Such improvements are not isolated instances but mean an indication of the vitality of the religous sentiment all over this country. It may mean a new form of interest in which the social and religious are to have due prominence.

Major Gene Tunney, who won a world championship left the squared ring and put on a wedding ring, toured Europe, and improved his scholastic standing, has graduated in glory as to the Connecticut Governor in a democratic county. Two thoughts survive the readings of this news account. Firstly the fine pugilist like applause. Likewise democratic folk love to dress up in the symbols of state authority.

The bus and truck driver who has been overworked in the past with the result that he may have become sleepy while on the highway is to be prevented from reaching the stage of sleepiness because the Ontario Legislature is going to limit his hours of work. Accidents have been caused by unexpected dozing of drivers.

Ontario gold production reached a new high record in 1930 of a total of over $15,000,000, an increase of over $2,000,000 over the previous year. This is a bright spot in Canadian industry and a good sign, especially when so much attention is focused on the question of the shortage of gold in the world.

Oh, there are marvels greater than the Spring,
With all its flowers and song;
Greater than scents the April breezes fling
Where larks and linnets throng.

There is a strong resurgence of the soul
Which comes from deeps unknown,
When life lies shattered, nothing sound or whole,

When being, like the wind-tossed flotsam, drifts
Upon each changing tide,
There comes this power that directs and lifts
And will not be denied.

When strife is past, when strength has ebbed away
And every conflict ends,
When dreams are done and idols all are clay
This primal force ascends.

It shapes, it drives, it fashions life anew,
Resistless, never still
Until it sees that soul, where hope seemed through,
Re-born in work and will.

IT CAN FAIRLY be said that the newspapers of Belleville have kept pace with the growth of this city and have assisted that progress materially. Belleville is now stepping right along and the projects are that in the next five years Belleville will witness more progress and prosperity than in the last fifty years as the result of seed carefully sown in good ground by the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce. The year 1931 will witness an advance all along the line of civic improvement and the Family Journal of 1931 will be right up in the front rank with a bigger and better paper and a new and greater equipment with the use of modern publishing machinery, chief of which is a giant newspaper press now being installed which will print and fold thirty-two pages at one operation, is equipped with a color attachment and other modern attachments. A large force of workmen are busy on an addition to the building to provide new press room, composing room, editorial room, etc., and a stroll around the premises today reveals a force of fifty or more busily engaged on the Great Family Journal of today and getting ready for the greater Family Journal of tomorrow, the Daily Ontario Intelligencer. This is the answer of The Daily Ontario Intelligencer management to talk of depression and blue ruin. With all faith in the future of Canada in general and Belleville in particular, the answer of The Daily Ontario Intelligencer to all pessimists can be read in the program of expansion now going on getting ready for the better times coming already presaged in golden promise on the business horizon.

OF COURSE, YOU COULD

Specialists in bidding are urging the present as the best time for the home owner to do such repairing and painting in house needed. These appeals are especially emphatic in the zone in which winter means all that its name implies. Any effort, therefore, to transfer a bit of summer work to the winter season means a step in unemployment relief.

A great many home owners do much of their own repair work. There are not a few who successfully paint-paper-and-paint anything from laying three or four coats of white enamel on the bathroom finish to spreading handsome patterns of wall paper in the kitchen doors. Perhaps the results may sometimes distinguish the artist as of a distinctly Surrett school, but think of what it would have cost if a regular painter had been hired.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE LATEST BANK MERGER IN CANADA

The absorption of the Weyburn Security Bank by the Imperial Bank of Canada is the latest step in the consolidation of Canadian banking machinery in a limited number of powerful institutions. At the opening of the century the Dominion boasted thirty odd banks. Since then there was a long series of consolidations, these have been reduced to eleven. The completion of the merger just announced will be right up in the front rank with a bigger and better paper and a new and greater equipment with the use of modern publishing machinery, chief of which is a giant newspaper press now being installed which will print and fold thirty-two pages at one operation, is equipped with a color attachment and other modern attachments. EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What Is A University?

(New York Times)

When James Bryce, fifty years ago, was gathering material for "The American Commonwealth" he found that there were not more than twelve institutions of higher learning which fell within his definition of a university—"a place where teaching of a high order is given in a range of subjects covering all the great departments of intellectual life." How the word "university" was debased is suggested by his meeting the President of a "young university" in the Far West. Dilating upon his plans, he referred frequently to "the Faculty," but finally admitted that at the moment it consisted of "Mrs. Johnson and myself." There are now more than 200 institutions in the United States which go by the name of university, but President Butler holds that real universities are number only about eight or nine.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, in his recent book on "Modern Universities," goes so far as to say that there is not even one that comes up to his definition of a university—which is a free society of scholars, a seat of learning devoted to higher teaching and research, unhampered by the presence of undergraduate and vocational activities. The nearest approach to this ideal was John Hopkins University in its earlier days. Looking about today, Dr. Flexner doubts whether the term university can ever be saved or "is even worth saving." From what he has written about Columbia University and three or four other institutions that must be on President Butler's list, he would not spare the name even if there were twenty "righteous" ones on it. What name should be given to its successor is not stated, beyond the general designation "a school or institute of higher learning."

The name "university" is not likely to be relinquished. Editorially Dr. Flexner's ideal university as a reality but under another name, "small as Gilman's John Hopkins was small," with a propulsive power that "would be momentous out of all proportion to its size," would give fresh impetus for schools of higher learning within existing universities. If there is to come a clear definitionfor IT TO be come a clear differentiation of functions, words will be found to make known as the public the fact. A "university" in the Middle Ages, when universality began to be, was not a persons, not of the sciences; an association of teachers and students, of scholars of reputation and of disciples eager to be taught. The outstanding and significant fact in the midst of all the present confusion of terms is the overwhelming number of those who have a desire to be taught. Democracy cannot be discouraged in their multitudinous presence. She will insist upon having her "university."

Niagara Falls Trend

Events have shown that even keener watchfulness was needed on what is popularly referred to as the American side of the Falls. The series of rock slips this week created a rift at the brink of the cataract estimated to be over 150 feet wide and about 200 feet deep and geologists say, "it will grow." Five or six years ago, at a time when water was running so low that it was possible to walk across the river-bed, a special survey was made and the engineer of the Niagara State Reservation Commission reported a split in the rock some fifty or sixty feet back from the brink of the American Falls and a similar crevice about 150 to the eye.—Montreal Gazette.

CONTOUR OF NIAGARA FALLS

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

"A crash of rock which changed the contour of Niagara Falls is a major news event in the eyes of mankind but is only incident in the age-old geological history of the falls.

"Niagara started to spill over the back at the escarpment about 30,000 years ago, that is 200 centuries it has shoved ed l's way seven miles, and that at its present rate of excavation more than four feet annually it will take it to the remaining 16 miles to Lake Erie about the year 31,924, the society added:

"Before this time, however, man may take a hand, since the peril to the famous horse shoe falls, by the recent erosion, has brought forth the suggestion of reinforcing the lip of the falls.

"For 30,000 years the Falls has been the geologic hour glass for much of North America. By reading the record of the rocks that go through the neck of the gorge, as grains of sand slip through the hour glass, scientists study which the glacier sheets, which were the first plows to furrow the fertile mid-west.

"Our Niagara was born when the glaciers melted back, exposing the ridge the water now tumbles down. Like the glaciers of the Ice Age, the enormous sheets of ice moving down from Labrador poured out streams of water. These streams collected ages ago at the foot of the huge ice lobes in depressions extending into Great Indiana and Illinois. Accumulated water sometimes rose hundreds of feet above their present level of the Great Lakes and poured out into the Mississippi over the present site of Chicago and through outlets in Ohio and Indiana.

"Finally, as the ice melted northward, prehistoric Lake Tonawanda formed on the edge of the plateau over which Niagara pours. There were then five outlets from this lake—over Hedley, Medina, Gasport, Lockport and Lewiston. Niagara won out. Lockport Gorge now contains a flight of steps for the New York barge canal.

About the time Niagara was beginning to triumph, the melting glaciers moved back to Lake Simcoe, Ontario. The fickle waters of the upper lakes lost little time in finding the Ottawa Valley, a rugged series of lakes and rivers leading into Lake Ontario. Trent Valley gorges tell of many early Niagaras, at this time only 15 per cent of the present flow went over Niagara, forming the narrow lower gorge. Nature came to the rescue, tipping a great block of land, ever so slightly, but enough to shut off the northern faucet and make it even more water go over Niagara than the spectator sees today.

PROGRESS SHOWN BY LONDON LIFE

Details of Year of Business Just Closed by Insurance Company

Despite the present unfavorable business conditions the directors of the London Life had one of the best statements in its 56 years of operation, submitted at its annual meeting which was held this week.

The surplus earnings were the largest in the Company's history, After deducting the funds required to meet all Government requirements and providing in addition for all profits due and accruing to policyholders the accumulated surplus amounts to $7,530,000, an increase of $1,312,121. The policy reserves (i.e. the money necessary to meet all obligations under its policies) are maintained on the highest standard in use on the North American continent for similar classes of business and on a standard which calls for $1,802,790 more than required by the Dominion Insurance Act. A large portion of the Industrial business has been placed on a 3 per cent basis, existing $63 per cent of the Company's business on this standard.

The new business amounted to $107,180,000 for the year, or slightly more than $2,000,000 of insurance each week. Several new records were set, notably the largest single risk in the Company's history, namely $14,000,000 in March; the largest single application written by a single agency of its field force; the largest single premium ever submitted to it. The total number of new policies written during the largest December's business per records.

The assets of the Company, which do not contain speculative securities, but consist chiefly of first mortgages on improved real estate, Government and municipal bonds, showed a gain of $7,538,000 and now stand at $65,346,491. The rate of interest earned on the assets invested was 6.66 per cent, a slight increase over 1929.

The income of the Company has now increased to $15,000,000, there being 11 per cent gain in premium income and interest on investments. The payments to policyholders and beneficiaries amounted to $5,800,000 for the year. Of this amount, $4,000,000 was paid to living policyholders and $1,800,000 to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders.

An interesting feature of developments for the year was given by Edward E. Reid, Managing Director. He concluded his remarks with a discussion of conditions in Canada's future, and declared that as for man power and financial stability the London Life is better entered upon a new year better equipped to render service to its policyholders and the public generally.

SPENDING AND THRIFT

There is a just balance to be struck. Canada, at least, needs neither miser nor spendthrift. Each Canadian should examine his own economy, and decide whether increased spending will not hurt his personal security and independence. If it will not hurt him, let him indeed disburse freely for the common good. But in days of ill-directed spending, leading inevitably to personal embarrassments, is not the foundation laid both to national prosperity. We need a golden mean between hoarding and improvidence.—Montreal Star.

LATE AFTERNOON

The rain comes down, gray curtains coldly drawn
By Autumn fingers on the weeping hill;
Mist, like a weasel, lurks about the pool
The garden drips, discomfiture and chill.

And in the room, like rabbits in a hole,
Men fortify their little hearts with fire,
And rub their knees, and chatter to the coal
Their monotone and burden of desire.

PROVINCE DECLARES WAR ON CARBON MONOXIDE

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG—The province of Manitoba has declared war on carbon monoxide gas, sinister agent of death that lurks behind closed garage doors during winter months.

As a first step in this campaign 5,000 placards, admonishing motor car and truck drivers to play safe have been sent to all parts of the province by the department of public works. These will be posted up in garages and in public places.

By a series of educational posters the department hopes to enlighten the public of carbon monoxide poisoning and reduce the hazards attendant upon winter driving on snow and ice.

"PREPPING" FOR KINDERGARTEN

By Constance Cameron

A mother's life is made up to an alarming extent of explanations. From babyhood until the child is married, Mother is called upon to say "why" this is thus or so, and to go further and help the child make adjustments by truthful and logical explanations.

I think one phase of a child's life which we are apt to take too casually is his entrance into kindergarten, or nursery school. I'm talking about the very little fellow who, up until this period, has been with mother a great deal, tagging around at her heels feeling her love and attention constantly.

Mr. there take it for granted, and correctly too, that the teacher will be interested at least in the children and all the most will be fond of them and try to act as a substitute mother.

But just stop and consider the monumental task of being a mother to thirty-five or forty children at one time. It requires a totally different method of procedure than when a woman cares for all of her attention upon one child.

A mother should prepare her little child for this situation before he enters his first school room.

Little Jack didn't enjoy kindergarten as his mother had expected. Finally, at the end of the first week, he came home in tears and said: "That teacher doesn't like me." The mother sat down and tried quietly to find out where he'd gotten this impression.

"I only asked her to put my rubbers on," said Jack, "Do it yourself, Jack!' She wouldn't help me."

Here was the mother's chance to instill two things. One was that the teacher quite probably did like him, but that she couldn't possibly put on the rubbers of twenty odd children. The second was to tell little Jack that children were sent to school to learn to be independent little people and discover how to help themselves.

The mother went to the teacher alone and admitted she should have done so before sending Jack to school, but that she hadn't realized the necessity of it. The teacher was cooperative and went out of her way to show the child that she did like him. All is peaceful and happy now.

The little fellow, who has yet to experience his first taste of school life, can be helped a lot by explaining to him, then he won't get as much attention due to his large number of children, and that he has a part in to help the teacher be such as possible by learning to help himself.

His social adjustment can be made easier at home, by telling him at home that, too, he must share toys and play materials, because each child at Kindergarten, or nursery school has a certain right to these things as he. This preparation for the first taste of school will ease the period of adjustment materially.

Ontario Man Speaks With Great Enthusiasm

Mr. J. A. Shook Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Says He Uses Them More As a Preventative Than a Remedy

Corbeston, Ont., Jan. 19 (Special)—It is with real enthusiasm that Mr. J. A. Shook, a well known resident of this place, gives his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For the past thirty years I have been working at rock the school work —ditching, road building and section work. Pretty hard work on the kidneys and bladder, with the result, a pain in the small of the back. A friend recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used some with the following results—less pain and more work. That was some thirty years ago. Since that time I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills more as a preventative than a cure. I use them when I have hard work to do. For lots work hard and use Dodd's Kidney Pills is my maxim. I am in my sixty-third year and can do a man's work, yet thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

There isn't anything much more buoyant than a rumor. It is always so much easier to float one than to sink one.

When a good idea comes into your mind do not give it a seat; put it to work.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers:-

Those who delight in the beauty of a real Canadian winter are enjoying this week's weather to the fullest. Bright sunlight and the letter-picture just low enough to bring a glow to the cheeks lure one out of doors. Hardy sports enthusiasts revel in each day's opportunities for the pursuit of their favourite winter pastime, and those who are not bent on any particular item of out door exercise take long walks in the sunshine.

One looks with envious glances at the tobogganing and sleighing that the very young are enjoying. Some of it, however, since no hills are closed for the sport, is rather dangerous. In one such area where the hill for coasting is hazardous a citizen has erected a regular toboggan slide in the back yard for the little girls to go up rope to the top and are off with a rip, and the slide is high enough to give small adventurers a nice little thrill. I am sure that all the mothers on that block know where to find their wee daughters when supper is ready.

Ed-ing in Belleville is a little known art, for the simple reason that there is practically no place where it can be practised. There remains snow shoeing and skating. Snow shoeing after some experience is great fun. Of course at first you spend most of your time dragging yourself out of snow banks into which you fall persistently because you trip yourself so often.

Skating in the winter sport in Belleville. About now there are many beginners on the ice—who have succumbed to the fascination of new Christmas skates. Families who have beginners in their midst develop strange habits of disappearance on fund nights. Relatives are just a little chary of escorting the unskilled to the rinks. As one plaintively remarked it would be a good idea if there were a beginners' hour at the rinks. But one must learn even if first efforts are disastrous. It isn't especially consoling, either to have children who hardly look big enough to walk, whizz by you on skates like little whirlwinds, while you stumble out skating mostly on your "uppers." However, all things come with practice so don't despair.

Pashionably yours
LUCILLE.

Fashion Flashes

A gentle rain of diamante embroidery in the form of tiny dots is scattered over a lovely evening gown of white chiffon with a jewel-like effect. There is a slim molded bodice which extends in straight hanging circular fullness from the hipline and the skirt hangs in soft folds.

Hidden charms are surprised by the gay dresses now so popular under sombre-hued fur coats. Lovely with a brown fur coat would be a tunic frock of red crepe de chine with red and gold embroidery at the cowl neck line and border of the tunic. The sleeves are short and there is a pleated skirt in sunray fashion.

Perhaps it shouldn't be mentioned here but it is difficult not to mention articles not strictly pertaining to fashion that should be of interest to women. And so we must speak of a delightful week-end cake in a soft brown leather that leaves enough space for a small typewriter. The handle which comes with the case is held by clamps in its own corner.

Something new in the ring is a model made of black horse-hair a strikingly smart medium. It has a handle, frame and tab of black calf and the clasp is a large crystal elephant.

Put by for a rainy day and buy umbrellas that will be ornamental and smart as well as useful. One of the latest umbrellas has a bird handle with a bright red leather beak. It has a rigid red leather case into which the umbrella can be slipped, wet or dry. Another model has a cane, long and handle trim of green and gray tweed.

Try to shine by wearing one of the new sequin frocks. One of the newest evening ensembles is finds entirely of massed sequins in a new shade of gold-white. The cape wrap has a deep collar of black velvet.

Darling, you have often told
That my hair is purest gold;

That my eyes twin sapphires are,
Brighter than the brightest star;

That my teeth are precious pearls,
Envied by all other girls;

That my lips are rubies red,
Causing you to lose your head.

Such as these depreciate
At a very rapid rate.

So my dear, if you'll agree,
I'll have some from Tiffany.

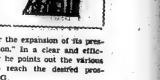
Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria



WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

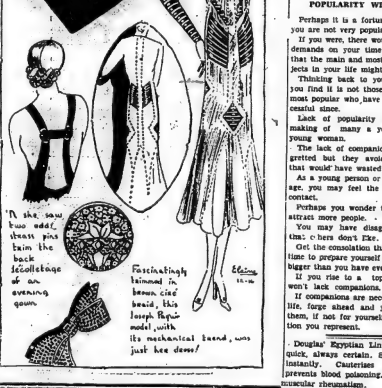
"Disillusioned India" by Dhan Gopal Mukerji presents the Indian problem as seen by an Indian living in America. Written as a result of his recent visit to his native land, Mr. Mukerji's book reviews the attitude and work of India's younger generation in relation to the revolutionary movement. He has stressed the general inconsistency and lack of unity of opinion regarding India and her independence by quoting interviews with representatives of different Indian classes and types and has heightened his narrative by the lighter touch of humour.

Mrs. Delia J. Akeley in "Jungle Portraits" tells how, with only black servants as companions, she travelled to the land of the Pygmies in the heart of the Congo jungle. She has studied savage life extensively and described the habits of the ages, etc. An interesting feature of the book is her description of a journey to rescue and care for her husband, Carl Akeley, who had been wounded by a charging elephant and deserted by his native guides. Her book illustrated with many photographs taken by the author, provides interesting diversion and information.



A group of biographical studies of the intellect and work of six men whose lives are red letter pages in the history of science have been collected in the volume "Crusaders of Chemistry" by Jonathan Norton Leonard. The scientists are Bacon, Paracelsus, Boyle, Priestley, Cavendish and Lavoisier, men whose discoveries have helped give us automobiles, airplanes, skyscrapers, anaesthetics, all the miraculous things considered commonplace today. The book will have a strong appeal because of the author's vivid style and forceful language, as well as for the absorbing subject matter.

Stephen Leacock, equally noted as humorist and economist, has turned to the latter role in his volume "Economic Prosperity in the British Empire," and has written a concise and valuable treatise on this important subject.

The purpose of his book is "to discuss the establishment of a system of mutual co-operation for the development of the vast wealth of the Empire and for the expansion of its present population." In a clear and efficient manner he points out the various methods to reach the desired prosperity.—K. G.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PRESBYTERIAL HELD AT PICTON

Sessions Were Largely Attended — Keen Interest Was Shown

Picton, Jan. 21—The fifth annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada convened in Picton United Church on Wednesday and Thursday, January 21st and 22nd.

The delegates were welcomed at the session in the afternoon and from there they were conveyed to the church where, after registering, they enjoyed a very appetizing luncheon. Owing to a delay at Trenton of one hour, while another coach was prepared, the afternoon session was delayed until 2.45.

The initial session opened with singing the Doxology and all repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, with the President, Mrs. S. C. Gay in the chair.

Their devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. C. Clapp Spencer and Mrs. J. Laird of Picton. The former chose the hymn, "Soldiers of Christ Arise," and Mrs. Laird read a portion of the first chapter of Joshua, where God encouraged his people to go forward and assures them four times that if they do go forward He will give them success. The speaker succeeded all to go forward during 1931 and accomplish God's work.

The following committees were appointed:

Resolutions and Memorials—Mrs. (Judge) Deroche, Belleville, Bridge St.; Mrs. J. H. Foster, Tweed; Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson, Newbrugh.

Courtesy Committee—Mrs. (Rev.) Jones, Trenton; Mrs. F. T. Hooper, Napanee; Mrs. George Harris, Madoc.

Mrs. Switzer read two resolutions—

(1) One from Adolphustown Auxiliary asking that the date of Presbyterial be changed to other than a winter month.

(2) And another asking that Belleville Presbyterial be divided as it is so extensive in area and is very inconveniently seated.

Welcome by Mrs Young

Mrs. F. W. Young of Picton extended a very cordial welcome to the delegates in her inimitable style. Picton is one of the oldest towns in Ontario, it having been incorporated in 1850, but it was in existence before that time. Picton also boasts two of the oldest churches in Ontario, the Anglican Church built in 1875, and the Methodist, outside town, in 1809. What a heritage to us that our forefathers built these churches in our midst. We women are very thankful for, only to-day, as we have been told, of the two hundred thousand workers.

Greetings were also extended to us from the women of the Presbyterian Church, from the Mission Circle of Picton Baptist Church, and from the ladies of the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. W. L. Smith of Pennbroke, President of the Bay of Quinte Conferences, sent a letter containing warmest greetings and best wishes for the success of our Presbyterial and the work of 1931, and she entreated us to be "beacons for Christ—as in this verse—

His lamps are we
To shine where He shall say
And lamps are not for sunny rooms
Nor for the light of day.
But for the dark places of the earth,
Where shame and wrong and crime have birth
Or for the murky twilight gray,
Where wandering sheep have gone astray.

Rev. C. S. Redick of Bloomfield chairman of Belleville Presbytery, extended heartfelt greetings and told how he appreciated the work of the women; also asking God's blessing on our work in the various departments and more especially in our work on the mission field.

Mrs. J. H. Reddick of Trenton very graciously replied in a concise and interesting address and said: We are here to honour the Master and to bring glory unto ourselves, and petitioned the Father to send peace and prosperity to Picton till time shall end.

Supply Secretary's Report

Miss Alma Thompson of Napanee, Supply Secretary, gave her report. She commenced with expressing her appreciation for the help received, also stated that we were indebted to Mr. Hooper for conveniences of storeroom and boxes donated, in which goods were re-packed for shipment to various destinations. Increased interest in the department of the work is found. The quality of goods received were excellent. Even though the supply received was great, a larger quantity is needed especially for the school children. Parents are unable to send them to school owing to the lack of apparel. Seventy-nine auxiliaries have contributed $1024.84. Two Young Women's auxiliaries $30.00; eight Mission Circles $11.35; nine Mission Bands, $231.70, total of $1267.18. Sibling auxiliaries have been generous, quilts and clothing given to the value of $204.25 and the Mission Band $52.00. Previous to the founder of the Kindergarten said,

"Anyone who makes a little child happier for even an hour is a co-worker with God." Shipments have been made to St. Ola, Flinton, Hybla, Picton R. R. 9, Actinolite, Belleville, Deseronto St. Mission and Coe Hill to our home mission work and emergency shipments to different parts in Saskatchewan. Total cost for freight, cartage, express, etc., has been $57.90; of this $7.07 was freight for Indian work and will be refunded to treasurer. In conclusion Miss Thompson thanked everyone for the work which gave the Presbyterial an opportunity to help the ones in need.

Stranger's Secretary Report

Miss Alice Hume, of Stirling, Strangers' Secretary of Bellerville Presbyterial in her first remarks stated that she was pleased to learn the Stranger Secretary work is becoming more understood. One scarcely realizes how a cheery smile, a shake of the hand or a farewell one or one who is a stranger in a town or city. Christ said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me." The speaker received sixteen encouraging reports during the year. Extracts were, "I wrote to a member of the W.M.S. in Kingston to call on a loyal W.M.S. member who was ill in the General Hospital and was called on regularly until her return home. What a better than send-flowers, fruit, etc. In one auxiliary the immigrant boys are will looked after." Another secretary writes telling how she enjoys the work. Another instance where a secretary spent all night at the home of a mother in labour, who was suffering with convulsions and it is believed her life was spared thru prayers. A young lady from there came and in daughter were looked after by the Stranger's Secretary when in a strange city. The secretaries to unite for a hymn of shortly after contracting pneumonia. The mother and son were taken to her home. She was called upon by sisters and floral tributes presented when she died. The secretary sent out 182 letters. On the whole they were well responded to, 25 not being answered. A great loss is sustained through the death of Mrs. West, Stranger's Secretary of the Dominion Board. The vacancy is not filled yet.

The statistics for the year are as follows:

After singing two verses of 'All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name' the department secretaries gave their reports.

Holy Communion was then solemnly conducted by Rev. Wootton and this session closed with the Benedic-

At the close of the afternoon session the ladies of Picton United Church served a very bountiful and delicious supper to the delegates and visitors in the basement of the church. The tables were beautifully decorated with pink carnations, fern and candles and the tasty viands were heartily enjoyed.

The auditorium of the church was tastefully adorned with potted ferns and flowering plants which made a very lovely picture indoors in contrast to the many piles of snow which were lined along the streets, for on Thursday, Picton surely received a deluge of snow. However, the Picton folk relied forth to the fore and cleared their streets for the occasion of our meeting and the men very kindly met the delegates at the train with their autos.

Surely the delegates will be very thankful to the Picton folk for their interest in; making us comfortable while in their town.

On Wednesday evening, one hundred and twenty-six delegates had registered which is almost the normal attendance and is a wonderful showing considering the weather.

Wednesday Evening Session

The evening session commenced at 8 p.m. with Mrs. W. S. Gordon, Tweed, and Miss D. Card of Picton in charge of Devotional. The organist rendered quiet music followed by the singing of the hymn "O Love that Will Not Let Me Go" and the reading of 1st Cor. 13th chapter in Moffatt's Translation and prayer.

The full choir of the church rendered a very effective and pleasing anthem, "I Will Magnify Thee, O Lord" (Turner), with Mrs. F. E. Walker, organist of Picton Church presiding.

The little girls of Picton Mission Band sang a very pretty missionary selection, "Little Cliffs for Jesus" and the girls certainly rendered the song in an excellent manner. Miss Thos. Jones is the leader of the band and Mrs. C. Walters officiated as the piano. Owing to sickness some of the band members were unable to attend. Those present were Blanche Rookwood, Geraldine Algar, Bernice Manning, Doris Hare, Phyllis Card, Jones, Doris Hare, Phyllis Card, Fredrica Frederick, Noreen Frederick.

A quartette comprised of Mrs. Bradley, Miss Pettingill, Miss Phillips and Mrs. Nash of Wellington, sang very graciously "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," with Miss Winifred Pearce, A.T.C.H., of Wellington, organist. of Wellington United Church officiating at the piano. Miss Pearce also presided at the day sessions.

Present Pageant

After singing hymn "Father in Heaven Who Lovest All" the next item was a very lovely pageant, "The Japanese Madonna" which the girls of Wellington C.G.I.T. group kindly enacted. The beautiful costumes of the girls lent distinction to their portrayal of this beautiful interesting and instructive missionary exercise.

The Japanese Madonna was presented by the Senior C.G.I.T. group of Wellington under the direction of the leader, Mrs. H. W. Brown. There are two speaking characters with shepherds, wise men, etc., for the Christmas pantomime scene. The first act takes place at a girls' boarding school where we find Miss Severance an American school teacher and Ine, a Japanese girl who has spent three years in America. Ine has fallen in love with Tatsuo, a Christian American Japanese, but feels she cannot marry one she was promised to as a child, although she has never seen him.

Act II is divided into four scenes. The girls of the school are practicing a Christmas pantomime and Ine is asked to play the part of Mary, the mother of Christ. Here we see the beautiful story told by the different poses of Mary, the shepherds and the parents with the child Jesus—receiving the three Wise men. The fourth scene shows the effect of this pantomime on the Japanese girl who becomes a Christian after taking part in this Christmas story. Jessie Morden played the part of Mary and Evelyn Stevenson that of Miss Severance.

Mrs. W. A. Gordon, who is Secretary of work for young women, was very pleased that the first evening of the Presbyterial was given over to the young people and was delighted to see so many young faces in the audience. She said that if we as women don't train our young girls in Missionary work we may find that in time we have neither workers for our auxiliaries or for our mission fields. Therefore it behooves us as women to do what we can for our girls during 1931 and not waste any of our opportunities.

Mrs. Gordon then introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss Effie A. Jamieson, General Secretary of Toronto, who this year attended the Agola Mission Jubilee celebration held from May 2 to 18 when over 14,000 were in attendance, and she was given a hearty ovation as she arose to give her vivid portrayal of that outstanding and illuminating jubilee which was invariably inspirational in tone. Any rural sections wishing to view lantern slides of her trip may procure same by writing to Mrs. Phillips at Headquarters, W. M. S. workers will also be pleased to read her sketch in the Missionary Monthly.

At the close of her address Mrs. G. Bishop of Belleville in a hearty vote of thanks tendered to the speaker the appreciation of the audience and said she had crystlized our vision and given us a vivid picture we never had before.

Miss Card also spoke feelingly as five of her classmates are now in Africa, one of them being Miss Annie Bradley, her special roommate. The others girls are Misses Marjorie Miller, Kate Rutherford, Margaret Holliday and Millicent Howes.

The vast audience then rose and sang one verse of "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun" as a tribute to Miss Jamieson.

The offering was gathered by Misses Blanche Shepard, Lettie Hicks, Phyllis Pringle, Edith Williams, Miss Norce and Mrs. Palmatier and was dedicated very fittingly by Miss Card.

The singing of the Doxology followed by the benediction brought this very delightful fellowship of the days proceedings to a close.

Thursday's sessions were largely attended. Following a department conference, an 'in memoriam' service was conducted by Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson of Newburgh.

Department Secretaries reported, Mrs. Alma Moore of Belleville, telling of Associate Helpers; Mrs. W. S. Gordon, Tweed, of Young Women's Work; Mrs. (Dr.) Mayhew, Odessa, of Literature; Mrs. Winnifred Pearce of Wellington, of C.G.I.T. work; and Mrs. Percy McMullen of Stirling, on Press Publicity.

Mrs. Claire Newman gave a vocal solo.

The choir of the church under Mr. Walden gave an anthem.

A question drawer was conducted by Mrs. S. C. Gay of Pennboro and hymn "One there is Above all Others," was sung.

The afternoon session closed with singing, "The Church's one Foundation," and the benediction.

In the evening, Rev. F. M. Wootton conducted a devotional service and the church choir gave an anthem.

The Wellington C.G.I.T. girls gave a fine pageant, "The Japanese Madonna," all taking their parts well.

Mrs. George Switzer of Napanee, gave the Corresponding Secretary's report.

Mrs. S. C. Gay, Picton, the president, gave an address full of interest.

Mrs. (Dr.) Currie and Mrs. C. Spencer gave a delightful duet on hymn, "We Have Heard the Joyful Sound," was sung. Mrs. E. J. Corbitt of Napanee, the treasurer, gave her report.

The singing of hymn, "Lord Dismiss Us With Thy Blessing," and the Benediction brought this convention to a successful close.

SKIPPER SLAIN BY COAST GUARD PROBE FOLLOWS

Josephine K. Said to Have Been Loaded With Contraband Liquor

WAS AT THE WHEEL

British Ship was Target for Fusilade of Bullets—Captain Unconscious

New York, Jan. 26—Shot down when his vessel, the Josephine K., was fired upon by United States coast guardsmen off Ambrose lightship last night, Capt. William P. Ginett, a Canadian citizen of Lunenburg, N.S., died in the United States Marine Hospital on Staten Island.

A one-pound shot ripped through the cabin of the Josephine K. as she was fleeing before the advance of the coast guard cutter No. 143, according to the official announcement.

Ginett was at the wheel of his vessel when he was brought down.

The coast guard patrol with a crew of four under Capt. Cecil M. Gasbarr, was cruising about four miles northeast of the lightship which marks the entrance to New York harbor, when she came upon four heavily loaded vessels.

One was the Josephine K., a British oil screw vessel. Lying alongside her coast guardsmen reported, were the barge Brooklyn, the tugboat Dunnellon No. 6, and a small speed boat.

Eight men were aboard the Josephine K, eight on the tug and three on the barge. The captain of the tug was John Amidon and the captain of the scow Mario Landi.

Cases of liquor were being transferred from the Josephine K. to the barge, the officers said. They threw a searchlight on the group of vessels and fired blanks into the air in order to forestall any attempt to escape.

The Josephine K headed for the open sea, they said, with the government cutter in close pursuit. Several shots were fired across her bows and when she continued to flee, the officers said, a one-pounder was fired directly at her.

The British ship bore to and the cutter pulled alongside. The coast guardsmen found Capt. Ginett unconscious in the cabin where he had fallen, badly wounded about the head and legs by the shot. Members of his crew were trying to revive him when the officers boarded the ship.

PURSE SNATCHER HELD BY POLICE

James White Made Dash for Liberty from Train in North Country

New Liskeard, Jan. 26—James White described as a picture enlargement salesman, was taken back to Rouyn to stand trial on a charge of robbery with violence, following his capture by the provincial police in the basement of the Grand Union Hotel here. He had been chased there by Constables R. O. Stromberg and H. Allsopp.

A short time before Sergeant Geo. DeDen, secured the two prisoners from Kirkland Lake to Haileybury, noticed on the train a man he thought resembled White, who was wanted in Rouyn and when he had once more imprisoned after he had been arrested at Timmins, the sergeant asked the suspect his name to be told it was Seaton. As the train pulled into New Liskeard station the man made a dash for the outside and ran behind the freight shed.

Unable to give chase because of his other prisoners, Sergeant DeDen went on to Haileybury, handed his charge over to Chief Constable McCoy, interested and organized the pursuit which ended in the hotel cellar, where White was found curled up in a box.

White is alleged to have been the man who snatched a hand-bag containing $150 from Mrs. S. Alexander, who was taking home the night's receipts of her husband's theatre.

IS SPRING HERE? ROBINS EVERYWHERE

Kingston, Jan. 26.—CP — If the robin still remains a true harbinger of spring, winter is fast disappearing, in this part of the country at least.

CONSTABLE HELD FOR THEFTS IN PETERBORO CITY

Leonard Matthews With Ten Years' Service Falls for Trap

PETERBORO, Jan. 26.—Leonard Matthews, until Saturday morning a constable in the local police force, will appear in Police Court today charged with robbery. His arrest early Saturday by Chief Newhall is believed by police to have solved the mystery of burglaries in downtown business establishments that have puzzled the department. He is charged with the theft of automobile accessories.

Matthews had been under suspicion for some time, the fact that most of these thefts occurred while he was on night duty, and that none was reported while he was on the day shift. A trap was set Saturday morning. At a special session of the Police Commission he was formally discharged from the force and later appeared in Police Court, and was remanded until tomorrow.

Matthews, who is married and has a family of three children, has been a member of the Peterboro' police force for ten years and had been regarded as efficient officer and officers' constable. He was much in the public eye several years ago when, after Provincial Constable Norman Maker was shot and killed in a hotel by R. Mongreen ney, he entered the vacant store where the infuriated killer was hiding and did the murderer when the later swung his gun around to menace the officer. Several months ago Matthews again distinguished himself by grappling with and arresting a burglar just as he was entering a local business establishment.

INDIA SEETHING WITH EXCITEMENT AS GANDHI'S RELEASE ANNOUNCED

British Government Will Submit to Force the Great Masses

London, Eng., Jan. 3—Premier Ramsay MacDonald warned the House of Commons today that Great Britain is willing to continue peaceful negotiations for the settlement of the Indian problem, the British soldiers must be prepared to subdue by force not only the Indian masses but the spirit of the times.

Viscount Willingdon, former Governor General of Canada and newly appointed Viceroy to India listened to the debate from the Peer's gallery.

As the British Parliament prepared today to begin debate on the government's policy in India, the Empire itself seethed with excitement for Mahatai Gandhi, the idol of millions was about to be released from prison after nearly nine months. The Viceroy has definitely ordered his release but it was possible that Gandhi might refuse until the thousands of other political prisoners were also liberated. Several of the congress party leaders were released today but the government has given no indication of its stand on general political amnesty.

Fifty Rifles and Shotguns of German Make Seized by Police.

WINDSOR, Jan. 26—German-made rifles, shotguns and ammunition were seized late on Saturday night by the Windsor police in the basement of a sporting goods supply house, and are now being held at Windsor police head quarters.

The seizure consists of over 50 high-power rifles, five automatic shotguns and several thousand rounds of ammunition, in which have been found steel-jacket and dum-dum bullets.

A warrant charging that the guns and ammunition were stored illegally in a Major J. M. Tooley of the United States army, an alien in Canada with the authority on which the police made the seizure.

According to information available, the shipment came into Canada by way of Montreal some five months ago. Colonel George H. Wilkinson, proprietor and manager of a local sporting goods and shoe store, recalls that a man representing himself to be Major Tooley made arrangements for the storing of the goods in his establishment some time ago, and the shipment was moved to the other place of business, where the seizure was made.

Records of a local hotel show that about the time the shipment arrived a man registered at the hotel under the name of Major Tooley and stayed in Windsor several days.
